Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate: The proposed bill would affect the workload of the Department in three areas. One of the proposed statutory provisions would potentially decrease the revenue collected by the Department by waiving the fees for its review of building plans and its construction inspections for historic buildings over 100 years old. The Department estimates that it reviews approximately 10 historic projects per year of this type. Typically, these projects are small in size, ranging between 5,000 and 10,000 square feet. Based upon these assumptions, the Department would expect to realize an annual loss of $5,800 with the waiver of fees. The Department anticipates it can absorb the loss without significantly affecting agency operations or staffing levels. Under another provision, the Department would be responsible for preparing and maintaining an informational pamphlet for owners of historic buildings about the historic building code. The Department currently publishes many other types of informational pamphlets and brochures regarding the scope, nature and application of its building codes. It is anticipated that the development of a pamphlet for historic buildings can be absorbed into the current workloads without additional staff. Finally, the proposed legislation would, at the request of a historic building owner, involve the Department in reviewing local ordinances or decisions that would affect a historic building project. Since, by current law, the application and use of the historic code supersedes local regulations, the Department considers this new provision as an extension of its existing consultation services. Therefore, the Department does not anticipate this additional duty as significantly affecting existing workloads. Long-Range Fiscal implications: No long-range fiscal implications are anticipated at this time. Prepared By: / Phone # / Agency Name Department of Commerce James Quast, 286-9292		1
