 Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

 [small

Currently, under the common law doctrine of sovereign immunity, the state is immune from lawsuits, except in certain instances in which laws permit the state to be sued or the enforcement of a federal or constitutional right is involved. State authorities do not enjoy such broad immunity, although narrower grants of immunity are provided to such authorities under various specific laws. Also, in certain limited circumstances, a state governmental officer, employe or agent may be sued for certain acts or omissions even though a lawsuit arising from the same acts or omissions may not be brought against the governmental unit that the officer, employe or agent serves. No punitive damages (damages not resulting from direct or indirect loss but awarded, instead, as punishment for wrongful conduct) may be awarded in any such lawsuit based upon tort (a noncontractual claim based upon alleged wrongful conduct). Damages in tort lawsuits against a state officer, employe or agent are generally limited to $250,000. Currently, with certain exceptions, the state must pay interest on late payments to vendors.

This bill provides that no person may recover any damages against any state governmental unit, including a state authority, or any officer, employe or agent thereof, for any act or omission caused by the failure of an electronic computing device that is under the control of such a unit, officer, employe or agent to recognize, process, distinguish or interpret the year 2000 or a subsequent year or the failure of an electronic computing device to produce, generate or calculate a correct date if the year 2000 or a subsequent year is a part of that date. The bill also provides that any contract entered into on or after the day on which the bill becomes law that contains a contrary provision is void. In addition, the bill provides that the state is not required to pay interest to vendors on late payments arising from a "year 2000" failure described above.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 16.528 (3) (f) of the statutes is created to read:

2 16.528 (3) (f) An order or contract to which s. 893.83 applies.

3 SECTION 2. 19.37 (2) of the statutes is amended to read:

4 19.37 (2) COSTS, FEES AND DAMAGES. (a) Except as provided in this paragraph
5 and s. 893.83, the court shall award reasonable attorney fees, damages of not less
6 than $100, and other actual costs to the requester if the requester prevails in whole
7 or in substantial part in any action filed under sub. (1) relating to access to a record
8 or part of a record under s. 19.35 (1) (a). If the requester is a committed or 9 incarcerated person, the requester is not entitled to any minimum amount of 10 damages, but the court may award damages. Costs and fees shall be paid by the 11 authority affected or the unit of government of which it is a part, or by the unit of 12 government by which the legal custodian under s. 19.33 is employed and may not 13 become a personal liability of any public official.

14 (b) ~~In~~ Except as provided in s. 893.83, in any action filed under sub. (1) relating 15 to access to a record or part of a record under s. 19.35 (1) (am), if the court finds that 16 the authority acted in a wilful or intentional manner, the court shall award the

1 individual actual damages sustained by the individual as a consequence of the 2 failure.

3 SECTION 3. 19.37 (3) of the statutes is amended to read:

4 19.37 (3) PUNITIVE DAMAGES. If Except as provided in s. 893.83, if a court finds
5 that an authority or legal custodian under s. 19.33 has arbitrarily and capriciously
6 denied or delayed response to a request or charged excessive fees, the court may 7 award punitive damages to the requester.

8 SECTION 4. 218.015 (7) of the statutes is amended to read:

9 218.015 (7) ~~In~~ Except as provided in s. 893.83, in addition to pursuing any other
10 remedy, a consumer may bring an action to recover for any damages caused by a 11 violation of this section. The court shall award a consumer who prevails in such an 12 action twice the amount of any pecuniary loss, together with costs, disbursements
13 and reasonable attorney fees, and any equitable relief the court determines 14 appropriate.

15 SECTION 5. 560.05 (3) of the statutes is amended to read:

16 560.05 (3) ~~The~~ Subject to s. 893.83, the state shall be liable for accrued rentals
17 and for any other default under any lease or sublease made under sub. (2)(c) and may 18 be sued therefor on contract as in other contract actions under ch. 775, except that 19 it shall not be necessary for the lessor under any such lease or sublease or any 20 assignee of such lessor or any person or other legal entity proceeding on behalf of such 21 lessor to file any claim with the legislature prior to the commencement of any such 22 action.

23 SECTION 6. 775.01 of the statutes is amended to read:

24 775.01 Actions against state; bond. ~~Upon~~ Except as provided in s. 893.83,
25 upon the refusal of the legislature to allow a claim against the state, the claimant may

[INSERT COMMA]

BILL

1 commence an action against the state by service as provided in s. 801.11 (3) and by
2 filing with the clerk of court a bond, not exceeding $1,000, with 2 or more sureties,
3 to be approved by the attorney general, to the effect that the claimant will indemnify
4 the state against all costs that may accrue in such action and pay to the clerk of court
5 all costs, in case the claimant fails to obtain judgment against the state.

6 SECTION 7. 893.83 of the statutes is created to read:

7 893.83 Claims against state resulting from certain incorrect dates. (1)

8 In this section:

9 (a) "Electronic computing device" means any computer hardware or software,
10 computer chip, embedded chip, process control equipment, or other information
11 system used to capture, store, manipulate, or process information, or that controls,
12 monitors, or assists in the operation of physical apparatus that relies on automation
13 or digital technology to function.

14 (b) "State governmental unit" means this state, and every subunit or 15 instrumentality of this state, including any institution or authority, regardless of 16 whether moneys are appropriated to the unit.

17 (2) No person may maintain an action against any state governmental unit, or 18 any officer, employe or agent of such a unit acting in his or her capacity as an officer,
19 employe or agent, for any damages arising from any wrongful act or omission caused 20 by the failure of an electronic computing device that is controlled by such a unit,
21 officer, employe or agent to recognize, process, distinguish or interpret the year 2000
22 or a subsequent year, or the failure of such an electronic computing device to produce,

new date
~~Monday, October 5, 1998~~

#1. This draft is the same as LRB-0394/1, which was requested by Paul McMahon. Ed Main or Brian Hayes may have redraft instructions. You may wish to follow up with them.

#2. This draft initially applies to liability incurred under contracts entered into, extended, modified or renewed on its effective date (so as not to impair preexisting contracts) and to noncontractual injuries occurring on its effective date (so as not to raise a due process issue by retroactively shifting liability for injuries that have already occurred). Please let me know if you intend otherwise.

#3. You may wish to consider the following collateral issues:

#a. 1. Currently, a state governmental unit may, by contract, absolve itself of 'Y2K' liability. The party with whom the unit contracts must then assume the 'Y2K' risk of the governmental unit. In some cases, this will mean that the cost of this risk is passed back to the governmental unit by way of increased costs for goods or services provided. Because the party with whom the unit contracts has no way of knowing what the unit's 'Y2K' exposure is, it is possible that it will cost that risk on the basis of a worst case assumption. If the governmental unit is reasonably confident that it has little or no 'Y2K' exposure, it may therefore find it advantageous not to shift its contractual 'Y2K' liability in order to obtain the best possible price for goods or services.

#b. 2. In litigation, damages are of 3 types: 1) general or compensatory (direct, out-of-pocket damages); 2) consequential (indirect damages such as lost profits or increased borrowing costs); and 3) punitive or exemplary (damages awarded as punishment for wrongful conduct). Under ss. 893.80 (3) and 893.82 (6), stats., punitive damages are not recoverable against a state governmental officer, employe or agent. General damages may include payments to which an injured party is now legally entitled such as a governmental benefit or payment in the ordinary course of business. You may therefore wish to consider limiting 'Y2K' liability for consequential damages only.

#c. 3. Under ss. 16.528 and 66.285, stats., state governmental units must pay interest on payments that are made late as a result of a 'Y2K' problem. This draft deletes this requirement because under the draft, state governmental units have no liability in any situation resulting from a 'Y2K' problem. Under ss. 814.04 (4) and 815.05 (8), stats., interest is generally recoverable in civil lawsuits from the time that a verdict or decision is made for the recovery of money, or in some cases from the time that offer of settlement is not accepted, until the judgment is paid (recovery of interest in lawsuits against the state is more limited). This draft does not change these laws because, under the draft, no lawsuit may be brought whenever damages are incurred as a result of a 'Y2K' problem. If you decide to allow some general (out-of-pocket) damages to be recovered, however, you may wish to provide an exemption for interest recovery.

Re. 4. You may wish to consider excluding from the scope of this proposal actions resulting from gross negligence or wilful misconduct.

Re. 5. You may wish to consider placing an expiration (sunset) date on the liability limitation created by this draft in order to provide an incentive for state governmental units to remedy 'Y2K' problems within a reasonable period.

DOT proposal

895.86 Liability exemption; Computational date errors.

(1) In this section:

(a) "Computational date error" means:

1. The failure of a computer system as defined herein to handle correctly and consistently all dates before, during and after the year 2000; or
2. The inability of a computer system as defined herein to correctly interpret, produce, calculate, generate, utilize, manipulate, represent and account for all dates before, during and after the year 2000.

(b) "Computer system" means any electronic device or collection of devices, including support devices, networks, and embedded chips that contains computer programs or electronic instructions and that performs functions including, but not limited to, logic, arithmetic, data processing, data storage and retrieval, communication or control.

(c) "Action" means any civil action or proceeding including any action for declaratory or injunctive relief.

- (2) No person may bring an action against a state officer, employe or agent by reason of the alleged failure of such officer, employe or agent to plan for, test for, detect, disclose, prevent, report on, reprogram or remediate a computational date error or to have in place alternative provisions to deal with the effects of a computational date error or for any other act or omission related to a computational date error for which there would otherwise be liability.

CORRESPONDENCE/MEMORANDUM

STATE OF WISCONSIN

Date: November 16, 1998

To: Charles D. Hoonstra
Civil Litigation Unit Director

From: Richard A. Victor Rich
Assistant Attorney General

Subject: Review of LRB-0394/1 Re: State Y2K Liability

At your request I have reviewed the above captioned LRB draft and have the following comments:

Section 1 -- What is "[a]n order or contract to which s. 893.83 applies."? Seems that the following would be better: "The failure to pay timely due to an occurrence to which s. 893.83 applies."

Section 2 -- Should make clear that the s. 893.83 exception applies to committed or incarcerated persons as well as to the general case so that a court cannot award damages in either the general case or in the case of the committed or incarcerated requestor.

Section 3 -- Okay

New Section -- What about s. 19.37(4)? Shouldn't the s. 893.83 exception be placed there as well? is there liability here?

Section 4 -- I don't see the relationship between s. 218.015(7) and the State's Y2K liability.

Section 5 -- Okay.

Section 6 -- Okay.

is this all?

NOTE -- The preceding specific statutory amendments raise the question as to whether there are other sections that should be similarly amended. If there are, what is the effect of including specific treatment for these sections and not for others. A broad coverage in s. 893.83 may be better than trying to find all of the places to reference s. 893.83. Note, however, that s. 560.05(6) would appear to require express exclusion because of its superceding language.

Section 7 -- (1)(a) -- This definition is not as broad as the one I drafted. I would be interested to know what the drafter was trying to accomplish by redrafting it. I attempted to define this term by function rather than by type of device. The new draft defines it by type of device and then attempts to broaden the definition by including the undefined "other information system" language. Under the new draft, if a device is not included in those denominated, it would not be included regardless of its function. In addition, the new draft uses a number of undefined terms such as:

- computer chip
- embedded chip
- process control equipment
- other information system
- automation
- digital technology

The terms which I used that were not specifically defined were merely examples within the class of "electronic devices or collection of devices" and, unlike the undefined terms in the new draft, do not set the bounds of coverage.

Section 7 -- (1)(b) -- The inclusion of the State may give rise to arguments that sovereign immunity would not have protected the State from this liability in the absence of this legislation.

Section 7 -- (2) -- The requirement that the electronic computing device be "controlled by such a [State governmental] unit" is unnecessarily narrow.

My language defining "computational date error" is broader than the types of functions which are included within the definition of this section.

The new language only covers dates of 2000 or subsequent. Mine covers all dates.

Charles D. Hoonstra
November 16, 1998

Section 7 -- (3) -- There should probably be a way that an agency can contract explicitly for this liability, perhaps by express reference to this section or by signature of someone such as the Governor or head of DOA.

Section 8 -- I think the drafter is correct that we can't make this applicable to existing contracts without subjecting it to challenge as an impairment of contract. I thought we had concluded that the State could, however, deprive a person of a tort cause of action without running into a similar problem.

I'd be happy to discuss this with you at your convenience.

MEMORANDUM

To: Brian Hayes, DOA

From: Jeff Kuesel

Subject: LRB-0394/1 – Dick Victor comments

SECTION 1. This change is an improvement.

SECTION 2. Point well taken.

Section 19.37 (4), stats. This is a policy decision, but my judgment was that it wouldn't be appropriate to treat this penalty since it only applies to arbitrary and capricious denials and delays or charging excessive fees, and a Y2K failure should not be used as an excuse to act arbitrarily or capriciously or to charge excessive fees.

SECTION 4. Paul Nilsen inserted this section. This section is designed to address the situation in which DOR fails to issue sales tax refunds under the motor vehicle warranty law because of a Y2K failure. While there is no deadline for issuing refunds, at some point it seemed to us that consequential damages might be claimed if an unreasonable situation developed and negligence on the part of state officer was proven. While this addresses a real potential problem, a more serious issue would be raised by DOR's failure to issue refunds under other laws. We don't amend those laws in the draft and maybe we should do so.

NOTE: Some time ago, I asked the other attorneys on staff to review this draft and identify for amendment any conflicting provisions in their assigned areas. Some of them, I think, understood what I was after better than others. We could take another look at identifying conflicting provisions, but even if we do, we probably won't find them all, because they are probably worded in various ways that we can't completely anticipate when searching for them. However, as to general policy, the joint rules of the legislature require us to identify conflicting provisions and to specifically treat them when required. This policy is based on the notion, which we think is valid, that this method of drafting is much more likely to ensure that legislative intent is effectuated than to draft general preemption provisions which the courts must sort out.

SECTION 8. As I explained to Ed Main, the DOJ draft was not in our hands at the time we prepared this draft. When I saw it, I thought that it had some advantages over this draft but suggested that before redrafting this draft, Ed should send it to DOJ so DOJ could react to the draft and drafter's note. The definition of "electronic computing device" in the draft was pulled from the Y2K law of another state (Washington, I believe). I will take a closer look at the two definitions. The DOJ definition might offer some advantages. One minor problem I had with it was the use of the word "control" as a function like arithmetic is a function. Is this necessary or is there a better word here?

(1)(b) I agree. As I'm sure your'e aware, there are some exceptions to the sovereign immunity bar. If DOJ is comfortable that the exceptions wouldn't enter into play here, I would delete reference to the state and just focus on the state officers, employees and agents.

(2) The inclusion of the language "controlled by such a unit..." was not intended to limit the scope of the provision, but only to tie the Y2K failure to the unit, officer, etc. associated with it, which any lawsuit would have to do in order to be successful. (The DOJ draft used the term "operated by" rather than "controlled by".) I think if there is no tie, the provision is overbroad. In my mind, a finding of control would be a necessary antecedent to a finding of liability.

Regarding the scope of the dates covered, this is a policy question but if you bring in all dates, rather than just dates in the year 2000 and thereafter, in my mind you've got a draft that goes beyond the Y2K issue.

SECTION 7 (3) This was my point as explained in the drafter's note to LRB-0394/1, #1. This draft makes a shift in Y2K liability the default option. There are probably some governmental units out there that would be better off with the default option being no shift in liability, because they will have little or no liability, they can already limit their liability by contract if they want to and they could suffer cost increases by forcing others to accept their liability.

SECTION 8. I think the point regarding the initial applicability of tort liability suits might be well taken. I would suggest, however, that the initial applicability shown in this draft might be the most logical from a policy or administrative standpoint. Another choice might change the rules of the game in the middle of a lawsuit or even after a judgment is entered. In any event, the desired initial applicability should be made clear in the draft..

Here is the draft we talked about. It's intent is the same as yours except that:

I included municipalities (I used your language from one of the assembly drafts).

I removed the exception for punitive damages under the open records law.

I used the AG's method of exemption and tried to exclude state immunity because I didn't want to puncture the sovereign immunity but wanted to cover state employees, authorities and local governments and their employees, agents, etc.

OTHER COURTS AND PROCEDURE

Currently, under the common law doctrine of sovereign immunity, the state is immune from lawsuits, except in certain instances in which laws permit the state to be sued or the enforcement of a federal or constitutional right is involved. State authorities do not enjoy such broad immunity, although narrower grants of immunity are provided to such authorities under various specific laws. Also, in certain limited circumstances, a state governmental officer, employe or agent may be sued for certain acts or omissions even though a lawsuit arising from the same acts or omissions may not be brought against the governmental unit that the officer, employe or agent serves. No punitive damages (damages not resulting from direct or indirect loss but awarded, instead, as punishment for wrongful conduct) may be awarded in any such lawsuit based upon tort (a noncontractual claim based upon alleged wrongful conduct). Damages in tort lawsuits against a state officer, employe or agent are generally limited to $250,000. Currently, with certain exceptions, the state must pay interest on late payments to vendors.

State authorities do not enjoy such broad immunity, although narrower grants of immunity are provided to such authorities under various specific laws. Also, in certain limited circumstances, a state governmental officer, employe or agent may be sued for certain acts or omissions even though a lawsuit arising from the same acts or omissions may not be brought against the governmental unit that the officer, employe or agent serves. No punitive damages (damages not resulting from direct or indirect loss but awarded, instead, as punishment for wrongful conduct) may be awarded in any such lawsuit based upon tort (a noncontractual claim based upon alleged wrongful conduct). Damages in tort lawsuits against a state officer, employe or agent are generally limited to $250,000. Currently, with certain exceptions, the state and local governments must pay interest on late payments to vendors.

This bill provides that no person may bring a lawsuit against a state authority or local governmental unit, or an officer, employe or agent of a state or local governmental unit (including a state authority) acting within the scope of his or her employment or agency, for the alleged failure of the authority, unit, officer, employe or agent to plan for, test for, detect, disclose, prevent, report on, reprogram, remediate or otherwise deal with the effects of the failure of a computer system to handle correctly and consistently any date, or the inability of a computer system to correctly interpret, produce, calculate, generate, utilize, manipulate, represent or account for any date, or for any act or omission related to such an alleged failure for which there would otherwise be liability, if the authority, unit, officer, employe or agent made a good faith effort to address the alleged failure. The bill also provides that any contract entered into on or after the day on which the bill becomes law that contains a contrary provision is void. In addition, the bill provides that the state and local governments are not required to pay interest to vendors on late payments arising from a computational date error failure described above.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

COURTS AND PROCEDURE

OTHER COURTS AND PROCEDURE

Currently, under the common law doctrine of sovereign immunity, the state is immune from lawsuits, except in certain instances in which laws permit the state to be sued or the enforcement of a federal or constitutional right is involved. State authorities do not enjoy such broad immunity, although narrower grants of immunity are provided to such authorities under various specific laws. Also, in certain limited circumstances, a state governmental officer, employe or agent may be sued for certain acts or omissions even though a lawsuit arising from the same acts or omissions may not be brought against the governmental unit that the officer, employe or agent serves. No punitive damages (damages not resulting from direct or indirect loss but awarded, instead, as punishment for wrongful conduct) may be awarded in any such lawsuit based upon tort (a noncontractual claim based upon alleged wrongful conduct). Damages in tort lawsuits against a state officer, employe or agent are generally limited to $250,000. The state and its authorities and local governments may also currently limit their liability or the liability of their officers, employes and agents by contract. Currently, with certain exceptions, the state and local governments must pay interest on late payments to vendors.

This bill provides that no person may bring a lawsuit against a state authority or local governmental unit, or an officer, employe or agent of a state or local governmental unit (including a state authority) acting within the scope of his or her employment or agency, for the alleged failure of the authority, unit, officer, employe or agent to plan for, test for, detect, disclose, prevent, report on, reprogram, remediate or otherwise deal with the effects of the failure of a computer system to handle correctly and consistently any data, or the inability of a computer system to correctly interpret, produce, calculate, generate, utilize, manipulate, represent or account for any data, or for any act or omission related to such an alleged failure for which there would otherwise be liability, if the authority, unit, officer, employe or agent made a good faith effort to address the alleged failure. The bill also provides that any contract entered into on or after the day on which the bill becomes law that contains a contrary provision is void. In addition, the bill provides that the state and local governments are not required to pay interest to vendors on late payments arising from a computational data error failure described above.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:
