Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate Under current law, a pupil may attend school in a school district other than the one he or she resides under certain circumstances. This bill provides that beginning with applications submitted for attendance in a nonresident school district in the 2001-02 school year, a pupil may apply for admittance to no more than three nonresident school districts in any school year. State effect: There would be no state fiscal effect; however, the bill would reduce some administrative workload for the department. Local effect: There would be no local fiscal effect; however, the bill would reduce some administrative workload for school districts.
