2 provided under the Wisconsin retirement system and making an appropriation.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, as the result of the enactment of 1999 Wisconsin Acts 11 and 12, a beneficiary of a participating employee in the Wisconsin retirement system (WRS) may receive a death benefit equal to the sum of the additional and twice the employee required contribution accumulations credited to the participant's account. Before the enactment of 1999 Wisconsin Acts 11 and 12, however, the value of the death benefit was the sum of the additional and the employee required contribution accumulations, not twice the employee required contribution accumulations.

This bill provides that any WRS participant who at the time of death was a participating employee, who died between January 1, 1999, and July 31, 1999, who, prior to death, had not attained the age of 55 years, or age 50 if the participant was a protective occupation participant, may have his or her death benefit retroactively increased by an amount equal to the participant's employee required contribution accumulations that were credited to the participant's account on the beneficiary annuity effective date, or in the case of a lump sum payment, on the first day of the month in which the department of employee trust funds (DETF) approved the payment of the death benefit.

In order to qualify for the increased death benefit, the beneficiary to whom the death benefit was payable must either have been a dependent of the participant or a trust in which a dependent had a beneficial interest. In addition, the beneficiary must submit an application to DETF, on a form provided by DETF, before the first day of the sixth month beginning after the effective date of the bill. Finally, the participant must have been a state employee and had at least 30 years of continuous state employment on his or her date of death.

This bill will be referred to the joint survey committee on retirement systems for a detailed analysis, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
