Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law generally prohibits the retail sale of a product in a plastic container unless the container consists of at least 10% recycled or remanufactured material. This prohibition applies to the sale of food, beverages, drugs, cosmetics, or medical devices that are regulated under the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act only if the federal food and drug administration approves the use of a plastic container that consists of at least 10% or more recycled or remanufactured material for the food, beverage, drug, cosmetic, or medical device.

This bill generally prohibits the retail sale of a product in a plastic container unless the container consists of at least 10% postconsumer waste beginning in 2002, at least 20% postconsumer waste beginning in 2004, and at least 25% postconsumer waste beginning in 2006. Postconsumer waste is basically solid waste other than solid waste generated in the production of goods. The prohibition does not apply to the sale of drugs, medical devices, infant formula, medical food, or products that the federal department of transportation prohibits from being packaged in a plastic container that consists of the specified percentage of postconsumer waste.
