1 AN ACT to renumber and amend 175.35 (2L); and to create 175.35 (2L) (b) of
2 the statutes; relating to: firearms restrictions record checks.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law requires that a firearms dealer complete a department of justice (DOJ) firearms restrictions record check on a handgun purchaser before transferring possession of a handgun to the purchaser. A firearms restrictions record check consists of a search of criminal history records, and a search of prohibitions against a person possessing a firearm as a result of a finding that the person is mentally ill, drug dependent, or developmentally disabled, or based on conditions of a domestic abuse or child abuse restraining order. If the firearms restrictions record check reveals that a person is prohibited from possessing a gun, a firearms dealer may not transfer a gun to that person. A person denied the right to purchase a gun as a result of a firearms restrictions record check may request that DOJ review the denial, and if the outcome of the review is unfavorable, the person may appeal the denial to a DOJ administrator.

This bill requires that if DOJ finds, either in a review or in an appeal, that a person was improperly denied the right to purchase a handgun on the basis of incorrect information found in a firearms restrictions record check, DOJ must correct the information in DOJ records, notify the agency that provided the incorrect information and request that the agency correct it, and notify any agency or person to whom DOJ provided notice of the denial that the denial was based on incorrect information and has been reversed.
