Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

The bill would require state agencies to prepare privacy impact statements on bills impacting on personal privacy. The Department of Revenue could prepare these statements using existing resources. In addition, the bill would restrict access to certain public records and access to social security numbers contained in certain state and local government records. These proposed restrictions are not expected to interfere with the Department of Revenue's administration of state taxes, in particular, enforcement of tax compliance.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications
