Oh, you and your infernal questions!

The education tax credit is based on LRB 0103/3 from this session.

The apprenticeship tax credit and marketing activities and preapprenticeship grants, etc, are from LRB 2911/1 which I don't believe has been introduced yet.

The productivity enhancement tax credit, the job skills advancement program and the development zone tax credit transfer are from last session's SB 394 (LRB 3778/2) — PG

Finally, there is a provision on expanding the W-2 based employment skills grant program which was taken from the budget, but I don't have the spill draft number handy. I think Ivy drafted it.

I think the rest we concocted on our own (and will undoubtedly need the most work).

Hi Bob:

Could you tell me what the LRB numbers are of the drafts on which your draft is based? Thanks.

Marc:

As we discussed earlier, here are the copies of the two drafts introduced by the Joint Legislative Council. Now that I think about it, you may not be involved in the drafting of any of these, but I thank you for your willingness to parcel them out to the appropriate people at the LRB anyway. Much of WLC:0150/1 are based on current or prior drafts from the LRB so hopefully they should be in good shape. They should be introduced as companion bills/resolutions in each house, by the Joint Legislative Council. Nick Zavos and I are the lead people over here on the bills and can be contacted about any questions you may have. These are, of course, superpriority drafts that we can't live without for more than a couple of weeks.....Seriously, though, your prompt attention would be appreciated. I have a feeling some of this may be showing up as budget amendments over the summer.

Again, thanks for your help. Let me know if you need hard copies. If you have questions, please let me know.

Subject: Social Security Reductions

Marc

In case you haven't already found it, I think the appropriate federal cite for the social security reduction on account of work is generally in 42 USC 403 (f). I think (f) (8) was amended in the 106th Congress by PL 106-182 to eliminate the earnings penalty for those who have reached retirement age (65).

You can work and get Social Security at the same time

You can work while you receive Social Security benefits. And when you do, it could mean a higher benefit for you. That can be important to you later in life. It also could increase the future benefit amounts your family and your survivors could receive.

In April 2000, the law that determines what happens when you work and get benefits at the same time was changed. While you're working, your benefit amount will now be reduced only until you reach your full retirement age, not up to age 70. We will use this formula to determine how much your benefit must be reduced:

- If you are under full retirement age (currently age 65) when you start getting your Social Security payments, $1 in benefits will be deducted for each $2 you earn above the annual limit. For 2000, that limit is $10,080.
- In the year you turn full retirement age, $1 in benefits will be deducted for each $3 you earn above a different limit, but only counting earnings before the month you reach the full benefit retirement age. For 2000, this other limit is $17,000.
- Starting with the month you reach full retirement age, you will get your benefits with no limit on your earnings. These new rules apply for the entire year of 2000, starting back in January.

Normal Retirement Age for Social Security and the Effects of Early or Delayed Retirement

The normal retirement age (NRA) is the age at which benefits (before rounding) are equal to the "primary insurance amount." The table at right shows how NRA varies by year of birth.

Benefits can be significantly higher or lower than the primary insurance amount, depending on age at retirement. With delayed retirement credits, a person can receive his or her largest benefit by retiring at age 70. A worker can choose to retire as early as age 62. If such early retirement is chosen, we will reduce the worker's benefit by a certain percentage.

In the case of early retirement, a benefit is reduced 5/9 of one percent for each month before NRA, up to 36 months. If the number of months exceeds 36, then the benefit is further reduced 5/12 of one percent per month. For example, if your NRA is exactly age 66 and if you retire at exactly age 62, there are a total of 48 months of reduction. The reduction for the first 36 months is 5/9 of 36 percent, or 20 percent. The reduction for the remaining 12 months is 5/12 of 12 percent, or 5 percent. Thus, in this example, the total benefit reduction is 25 percent.

Year of birth	Normal retirement age
1937 and prior	65
1938	65 and 2 months
1939	65 and 4 months
1940	65 and 6 months
1941	65 and 8 months
1942	65 and 10 months
1943-54	66
1955	66 and 2 months
1956	66 and 4 months
1957	66 and 6 months
1958	66 and 8 months
1959	66 and 10 months
1960 and later	67

Note: Persons born on January 1 of any year should refer to the normal retirement age for the previous year.

Delayed retirement credit is generally given for retirement after the normal retirement age. No credit is given after age 69. Delayed retirement credits increase a retiree's benefits. The table at right shows the delayed retirement credit by year of birth.

For example, if you were born in 1940 and you retire at age 68, you first find that your NRA is 65 1/2 in the first table, above. From the table at right, you see that your credit is 7 percent per year. The difference between your retirement age and NRA is 2.5 years, so your benefit would be 7 percent times 2.5, or 17.5 percent, higher than your primary insurance amount.

A table illustrates the complex interaction among normal retirement age, actuarial reduction, and delayed retirement credit.

Year of birth	Delayed retirement credit Credit per year
1924	3.0%
1925-26	3.5%
1927-28	4.0%
1929-30	4.5%
1931-32	5.0%
1933-34	5.5%
1935-36	6.0%
1937-38	6.5%
1939-40	7.0%
1941-42	7.5%
1943 and later	8.0%

Note: Persons born on January 1 of any year should refer to the credit percentage for the previous year.
