(1) Study on limiting arrearages. The department of workforce development shall conduct a study on whether arrearages in child or family support that accrue while the support payer's income is below the federal poverty line, as defined under 42 USC 9902 (2), for a single individual, should be limited to no more than a specified amount, such as $500; whether any such limitation should not apply if the court determines that the payer has the actual ability to earn more than the federal poverty line amount for a single individual, based on the payer's education, training, and work experience and the availability of work in or near the payer's community; and what effect, if any, on such a limitation there should be if the payer, during the time that his or her income is below the federal poverty line amount, receives a sizable amount of money or other valuable assets that are not considered income for purposes of support, such as an inheritance. No later than October 1, 2001, the department of workforce development shall report the results of the study, together with its findings and recommendations, to the chairpersons of the senate and assembly committees on judiciary in the manner provided under section 13.172 (3) of the statutes.".
