Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

SB 200 would produce an increase in the Commission's mediation and interest arbitration caseload. The increased caseload might be absorbed through use of existing staff resources. The increase in caseload will produce additional filing fee revenue.

So long as existing statutory revenue caps are maintained, SB 200 will not in and of itself increase local school districts' overall costs.

SB 200's elimination of an interest arbitrator's consideration of (1) local economic conditions, and (2) expenditure and revenue limitations will likely increase the number of interest arbitration cases won by a union which will, in turn, likely increase the costs of local governments other than school districts.
