Subject: Revised draft to fit under the WCA

Dear Rick:

Thanks for meeting with us again today. I have done what I can to figure out how the Governor's suggestion might work, and you will find a roadmap attached to this email that I hope will be self-explanatory. Would you please either email me or call me on my cell (214.282.7693) once you've had the opportunity to review the document? I think this captures everything that we would like to accomplish, along with incorporation into the WCA as requested by the Governor. I would have done the redrafting myself, but unfortunately do not have an editable electronic document from which to work.

Thanks. Chris Korst

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a consumer credit transaction that is entered into for personal, family, or household purposes is generally subject to the Wisconsin Consumer Act (consumer act). The consumer act grants consumers certain rights and remedies and contains notice and disclosure requirements and prohibitions relating to consumer credit transactions. Currently, a consumer lease that has a term of more than four months is among the consumer credit transactions that are subject to the consumer act. In addition, the consumer act applies to any other consumer lease, if the lessee pays or agrees to pay at least an amount that is substantially equal to the value of the leased property and if the lessee will become, or for not more than a nominal additional payment has the option to become, the owner of the leased property.

This bill exempts certain consumer leases from the consumer act and creates a new chapter of the statutes for the purpose of regulating these leases and the businesses that rent property to individuals under these leases. This chapter is to be known as the Wisconsin Rental-Purchase Agreements Act. The primary aspects of the bill are as follows:

SENATE BILL 486Scope

The bill regulates the activities of a rental-purchase company, which is defined in the bill as any person engaged in the business of entering into rental-purchase agreements or acquiring or servicing rental-purchase agreements that are entered into in this state. With certain exceptions, an agreement qualifies as a rental-purchase agreement under the bill if, among other things, the rental property is to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes; the agreement has an initial term of four months or less and is automatically renewable with each payment after the initial term; the agreement does not require the lessee to renew the agreement beyond the initial term; and the agreement permits, but does not require, the lessee to acquire ownership of the personal property. Under the bill, a rental-purchase agreement is not subject to any laws relating to a security interest or lease under the Uniform Commercial Code.

Certain transactions are specifically excluded, however, from the new chapter. These exclusions include a lease or bailment of personal property that is incidental to the lease of real property; a credit sale, as defined in the federal consumer credit protection laws; and a motor vehicle lease.

Administration

The bill requires every rental-purchase company doing business in this state to obtain a license from the Division of Banking in the Department of Financial Institutions (division), pay an annual license fee, and make annual reports to the division. Under the bill, licenses are not assignable and must be posted in a conspicuous place at the location of the rental-purchase company. The bill permits the division to examine the books and records of a rental-purchase company to determine compliance with the new chapter. In addition, the bill specifically authorizes the division to issue orders and conduct investigations and examinations. Under the bill, the division may suspend or revoke a rental-purchase company's registration if, among other things, the rental-purchase company violates the new chapter, the rental-purchase company fails to pay the license fee, or the division becomes aware of a fact that would be grounds for refusing to grant the rental-purchase company a license. If certain conditions are satisfied, a rental-purchase company may appeal an order of the division that suspends or revokes the rental-purchase company's license.

Provisions of rental-purchase agreements

The bill requires every rental-purchase agreement to contain all of the following provisions, to the extent applicable:

- (1) A description of the rental property.
- (2) The cost of purchasing the rental property on the date on which the rental-purchase agreement is executed.
- (3) A statement indicating that it may cost less to purchase the rental property from a retailer other than the rental-purchase company.
- (4) The amount of the rental payments.
- (5) The amount of any payment due when the rental-purchase agreement is executed or the rental property is delivered.

SENATE BILL 486

(6) The total dollar amount, total number, and timing of all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership of the rental property.

(7) The total dollar amount and an itemization of all taxes, liability damage waiver fees, fees for optional services, processing and application fees, and delivery charges that the lessee would incur if the lessee were to rent the property until the lessee acquires ownership.

(8) An itemization and description of any other charges or fees the rental-purchase company may charge the lessee.

(9) A summary of the lessee's early-purchase option.

(10) A description of the lessee's responsibility in the event of theft of or damage to the rental property.

(11) A statement indicating that, with certain exceptions, the rental-purchase company is required to service the rental property to maintain it in good working condition.

(12) A statement that the lessee may terminate the rental-purchase agreement at any time, without penalty, by surrendering the rental property in good repair.

(13) A description of the lessee's right to reinstate the rental-purchase agreement.

(14) A statement indicating that the lessee does not own the rental property and will not own the property until exercising an early-purchase option or making all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership.

The bill also prohibits certain provisions from being placed in a rental-purchase agreement. For example, under the bill, a rental-purchase agreement may not include a confession of judgment, a provision granting the rental-purchase company a security interest in property other than the rental property, a provision granting the rental-purchase company permission to enter the lessee's premises or commit a breach of the peace in repossessing the rental property, a waiver of any defense or counterclaim or any provision of the new chapter, a provision requiring rental payments totaling more than the total dollar amount of all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership, a provision requiring the lessee to purchase insurance from the rental-purchase company to insure the rental property, or a provision requiring the lessee to pay attorney fees. Several of these prohibitions are similar to prohibitions contained in the consumer act.

Disclosure

All required provisions of a rental-purchase agreement must be clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the lessee in at least eight-point standard type on the face of the rental-purchase agreement. The lessee's payment obligations must be evidenced by a single, dated instrument that includes the signatures of the rental-purchase company and lessee. As under the consumer act, the bill requires the rental-purchase company to provide the lessee, or one lessee if there are multiple lessees under the same agreement, with a copy of the executed rental-purchase agreement. In addition, a rental-purchase company must provide the lessee with a receipt for any payment made by the lessee in cash, or upon request, for any other type of payment. With certain exceptions, upon the request of a lessee, a rental-purchase company must also provide the lessee or a person designated by the lessee with a copy of the lessee's payment history. The rental-purchase company may charge a fee if a lessee or designated person requests more than one copy in any 12-month period.

SENATE BILL 486

Related transactions

Under the bill, a rental-purchase company must offer an early-purchase option to a lessee and may offer a liability waiver to a lessee. The terms of a liability waiver and the fact that the lessee is not required to purchase the waiver must be disclosed to the lessee in writing. The fee for the liability waiver may not equal more than 10 percent of the rental payment due under the rental-purchase agreement. The bill permits a lessee to cancel a liability waiver at the end of any rental term.

Marketing activities

With certain exceptions, the bill requires a rental-purchase company to display a card or tag on or next to any property offered for rent, indicating whether the property is new or used and indicating the cash price of the property, the amount of the rental payment and the term over which the rental payment must be made, and the total number and total dollar amount of all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership of the property. In addition, a rental-purchase company must ensure that an advertisement for a rental-purchase agreement that refers to the amount of a payment for a specific item of property also states that the advertisement is for a rental-purchase agreement and that the lessee does not acquire ownership of the property if the lessee fails to make all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership. The advertisement must also include the total number and total dollar amount of all rental payments necessary to acquire ownership of the property. The provisions relating to advertising, however, do not apply to an in-store display or an advertisement published in the yellow pages or similar business directory.

The bill also prohibits a rental-purchase company from inducing an individual to enter into a rental-purchase agreement by giving or offering to give the individual a rebate or discount in consideration of the individual's giving the rental-purchase company the names of prospective lessees, if the earning of the rebate or discount is contingent upon the occurrence of any event that takes place after the time that the individual enters into the rental-purchase agreement. The bill, however, specifically allows a rental-purchase company to give or offer to give a rebate or discount to a current lessee, in consideration of the lessee's giving the rental-purchase company the names of prospective lessees.

Right to reduced amount of rental payments and right to reinstatement

Under the bill, a lessee has the right to reinstate a terminated rental-purchase agreement, as long as the lessee returned the rental property within seven days after termination and not more than 60 days have passed since the return date or, if the lessee paid at least two-thirds of the total number of rental payments necessary to acquire ownership, not more than 120 days have passed since the return date. A rental-purchase company may require the payment of a $5 reinstatement fee, all past-due rental charges, and any applicable late fees as a condition of reinstatement. Upon reinstatement, a rental-purchase company must provide a lessee with the same rental property, if available and in the same condition as when it was returned, or with comparable quality rental property.

SENATE BILL 486

Default and right to cure

The bill establishes a notice procedure similar to that contained in the consumer act that a rental-purchase company may follow if a lessee defaults under a rental-purchase agreement. The bill defines "default" as a material breach of the rental-purchase agreement or a failure to return rental property within seven days after the expiration of the term for which the last payment was made. Before giving a lessee a notice of default, a rental-purchase company may first request the lessee to voluntarily surrender the applicable rental property. Under the bill, as under the consumer act, with certain exceptions, to file an action against a lessee arising out of the lessee's default, a rental-purchase company must give to the lessee a written notice of the default and of the lessee's right, within 15 days after receiving the notice, to cure the default. Under the bill, the notice must specify, among other things, the actions required to cure the default, although, unlike the consumer act, the bill does not indicate what actions are required or permitted. As in the consumer act, if the lessee received a similar notice and cured the applicable default at least twice during the year preceding the current default, the bill permits a rental-purchase company to file an action without providing the written notice of default and right to cure as a condition of filing an action.

Collections practices

Under the bill, a rental-purchase company may not do any of the following in attempting to recover rental property or collect amounts owed under a rental-purchase agreement:

- (1) Use or threaten to use force or violence.
- (2) Disclose or threaten to disclose false information relating to the creditworthiness of the lessee.
- (3) Disclose or threaten to disclose a debt that is disputed by the lessee without disclosing the fact that the debt is disputed.
- (4) Harass or threaten the lessee or a relative of the lessee.
- (5) Use obscene language in communicating with the lessee or a relative of the lessee.
- (6) Threaten to enforce a right with knowledge that the right does not exist.
- (7) Use a communication that falsely simulates legal, judicial, or governmental process.
- (8) Threaten to file an action against the lessee, unless the action is of a type that the rental-purchase company files in the regular course of business or unless the rental-purchase company intends to file the action.
- (9) With certain exceptions, disclose or threaten to disclose to a person other than the lessee or the lessee's spouse information affecting the lessee's reputation, with knowledge or reason to know that the person to whom the disclosure is made does not have a legitimate business need for the information.

In addition, a rental-purchase company may not threaten criminal prosecution. A rental-purchase company also may not communicate with a lessee's employer, except to verify employment status or earnings, to determine whether the employer has established a debt counseling procedure or to give effect to an assignment of earnings. Similar provisions regarding debt collection are also contained in the consumer act.

Unconscionable conduct

The bill requires the administrator of the division to promulgate rules declaring specific conduct in rental-purchase agreements and the collection of accounts and property arising therefrom to be unconscionable and prohibiting the use thereof. In promulgating the rules, the administrator must consider that the practice unfairly takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience, or capacity of the lessees; that those engaging in the practice know of the inability of lessees to receive benefits properly anticipated from the goods or services involved; the fact that the practice may enable rental-purchase companies to take advantage of the inability of lessees reasonably to protect their interests by reason of physical or mental infirmities, illiteracy, or inability to understand the language of the agreement, ignorance or lack of education, or similar factors; that the terms of the transaction require lessees to waive legal rights; that the terms of the transaction require lessees to unreasonably jeopardize money or property beyond the money or property immediately at issue in the transaction; that the natural effect of the practice is to cause or aid in causing lessees to misunderstand the true nature of the transaction or their rights and duties thereunder; that the writing purporting to evidence the obligation of the lessees in the transaction contains terms or provisions or authorizes practices prohibited by law; and definitions of unconscionability in statutes, rules, rulings, and decisions of legislative, administrative, or judicial bodies.

Obligation of good faith

Every agreement and duty regulated or established under the bill must be executed or performed in good faith, consistent with reasonable standards of fair dealing.

Penalties, remedies, defenses, and statute of limitations

Depending upon the violation, a rental-purchase company that violates the new chapter may be required to forfeit up to $100 per violation or may be subjected to a $2,000 fine and imprisonment for up to six months. In addition, with certain exceptions, a rental-purchase company that violates the new chapter is liable to a lessee damaged as a result of the violation for the greater of $100; the amount of actual damages sustained as a result of the violation, including incidental and consequential damages; or an amount equal to 25 percent of the total amount of payments necessary to acquire ownership under the lessee's rental-purchase agreement, up to $1,000. A rental-purchase company is also liable for the costs of the action and reasonable attorney fees. If, however, a rental-purchase company includes a prohibited provision in a rental-purchase agreement, these remedies do not apply. In this case, the rental-purchase company must surrender to the lessee the rental property and any amounts paid under the rental-purchase agreement. With certain limited exceptions, multiple violations in connection with the same rental-purchase agreement only entitle the lessee to a single recovery. The bill also caps the total liability of a rental-purchase company under a class action at $500,000 plus costs and reasonable attorney fees.

SENATE BILL 486

The bill provides that a rental-purchase company is not liable for any violation that the rental-purchase company shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, was unintentional and resulted from a bona fide error that the rental-purchase company has acted to correct and that took place notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid the error. The bill specifies that a bona fide error includes a clerical error, an error in making calculations, and an error due to computer malfunction or computer programming or a printing error. The consumer act does not contain similar defenses.

An action brought by a lessee for a violation of the new chapter must be commenced within one year after the date of the violation, two years after the date on which the rental-purchase agreement was entered into, or one year after the date of the last payment, whichever is later.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

21 records, safes, and vaults of the licensee shall be open to the division for the purpose
22 of an investigation or examination, and the division has authority to examine under 23 oath all persons whose testimony is required for an investigation or examination.

25 licensee shall pay the cost of an investigation or examination. The licensee shall pay

SENATE BILL 486

1 the cost of any hearing held for the purpose of this subsection, including witness fees,

SENATE BILL 486

1 provision of this chapter is liable to a lessee that is damaged as a result of that
2 violation for the costs of the action and, notwithstanding s. 814.04 (1), for reasonable 3 attorney fees as determined by the court, plus an amount equal to the sum of the 4 following:

5 (a) The actual damages, including any incidental and consequential damages,
6 sustained by the lessee as a result of the violation.

7 (b) An amount equal to 25 percent of the total amount of payments necessary
8 to acquire ownership of the rental property under the lessee's rental-purchase 9 agreement, except that liability under this paragraph may not be less than $100 nor 10 more than $1,000.

11 (2) TEMPORARY RELIEF; INJUNCTIONS. The administrator may bring a civil action 12 to restrain, by temporary or permanent injunction, a merchant from violating any 13 provision of this chapter, or from engaging in false, misleading, deceptive, or 14 unconscionable conduct, in rental-purchase transactions.

15 (3) LIABILITY; CERTAIN VIOLATIONS. Except as provided in subs. (4) and (5), if a 16 rental-purchase agreement violates s. ~~430.509~~<sup>422.604</sup>, the lessee may retain the rental 17 property under the rental-purchase agreement without obligation to pay any 18 amount and may recover any amounts paid to the rental-purchase company under 19 the rental-purchase agreement.

20 (4) CLASS ACTION. (a) In the case of a class action, a rental-purchase company 21 that violates this chapter is liable to the members of the class in an amount equal to 22 the actual damages incurred by the class. The total statutory damages for all lessees
23 whose recovery is computed under sub. (1) (b) relating to statutory damages may not 24 exceed $500,000 plus the costs of the action and, notwithstanding s. 814.04 (1),
25 reasonable attorneys' fees as determined by the court. In determining the amount

SENATE BILL 486

1 to award under sub. (1) (b), the court shall consider, among other relevant factors,
2 the amount of actual damages sustained by the members of the class, the frequency
3 and persistence of the violations by the rental-purchase company, the resources of 4 the rental-purchase company, the number of persons damaged by the violation, the 5 presence or absence of good faith on the part of the rental-purchase company, and 6 the extent to which the violation was intentional.

7 (b) Notwithstanding par. (a), no class action may be maintained for conduct
8 proscribed in ~~§. 422.405, 423.301, 427.104(1)(h)~~ unless the conduct has been found to violate ~~ch. 430~~ at least 30
9 days prior to the occurrence of the conduct involved in the class action by an appellate 10 court of this state or by a rule promulgated by the division, specifying with 11 particularity the act or practice in question.

12 (c) At least 30 days before commencing a class action for damages, a party must 13 do all of the following:

- 14 1. Notify the rental-purchase company against whom an alleged cause of 15 action is asserted of the alleged claim or violation.
- 16 2. Demand that the rental-purchase company correct, or otherwise remedy, the 17 basis for the alleged claim.

18 (d) The notice required in par. (c) shall be in writing, and shall be sent by 19 certified or registered mail, return receipt requested, to the rental-purchase
20 company at the place where the transaction occurred, the company's principal place
21 of business within the state, or, if neither will effect actual notice, the department
22 of financial institutions.

23 (e) Except as provided in par. (g), no action for damages may be maintained
24 under this section if an appropriate remedy, which shall include actual damages and

SENATE BILL 486

1 may include penalties, is given, or agreed to be given within a reasonable time, to
2 such party within 30 days after receipt of such notice.

3 (f) Except as provided in par. (g), no action for damages may be maintained
4 under this section upon a showing by a rental-purchase company against whom the 5 alleged claim or violation is asserted that all of the following exist:

6 1. All lessees similarly situated have been identified, or a reasonable effort to 7 identify such other lessees has been made.

8 2. All lessees identified under subd. 1. have been notified that, upon their 9 request, the rental-purchase company shall make the appropriate remedy.

10 3. The remedy requested by the lessees has been or in a reasonable time will 11 be given.

12 4. The rental-purchase company has ceased from engaging, or if immediate 13 cessation is impossible under the circumstances, the rental-purchase company will,
14 within a reasonable time, cease to engage in any acts on which the alleged claim is 15 based.

16 (g) An action for injunctive relief may be commenced without compliance with 17 par. (c). Not less than 30 days after the commencement of an action for injunctive
18 relief, and after compliance with par. (c), the lessee may amend his or her complaint
19 without leave of court to include a request for damages. Paragraphs (e) and (f) shall 20 apply if the complaint for injunctive relief is amended to request damages.

21 (h) As soon as practicable after the commencement of an action brought as a
22 class action, the court shall determine by order whether it is to be so maintained. An 23 order may be conditional, and may be altered or amended before the decision on the 24 merits. If the court determines that the action may not be maintained as a class

SENATE BILL 486

1 action, it shall allow the action to proceed on behalf of the parties appearing in the 2 action.

3 (i) In any class action, the court shall direct to the members of the class the best
4 notice practicable under the circumstances, including individual notice to all
5 members who can be identified through reasonable effort. The notice shall inform 6 each class member that:

7 1. The court will exclude him or her from the class if he or she so requests by 8 a specified date.

9 2. The judgment, whether favorable or not, will include all members who do not 10 request exclusion.

11 3. Any member who does not request exclusion may enter an appearance
12 through his or her counsel.

13 (j) The judgment in an action maintained as a class action under this section,
14 whether or not favorable to the class, shall include and describe those whom the court
15 finds to be members of the class. The judgment in an action maintained as a class
16 action, whether or not favorable to the class, shall include and specify or describe 17 those to whom the notice provided in par. (i) was directed, and who have not 18 requested exclusion, and whom the court finds to be members of the class.

19 (k) When appropriate, an action may be brought or maintained as a class action
20 with respect to particular issues, or a class may be divided into subclasses and each 21 subclass treated as a class.

22 (L) If judgment is for a class of plaintiffs, the court shall render judgment in 23 favor of the administrator and against the defendants for all costs of notice incurred
24 by the administrator in such action.

SENATE BILL 486*SECTION 9

1 (m) In the conduct of actions to which this section applies, the court may make,
2 alter, or amend orders that do any of the following:

3 1. Determine the course of proceedings or prescribing measures to prevent
4 undue repetition or complication in the presentation of evidence or argument.

5 2. Require, for the protection of the members of the class or otherwise for the 6 fair conduct of the action, that notice be given in such manner as the court may direct 7 to some or all of the members of any step in the action, or of the proposed extent of 8 the judgment, or of the opportunity of members to signify whether they consider the 9 representation fair and adequate, to intervene and present claims or defenses, or 10 otherwise to come into the action.

11 3. Impose conditions on the representative parties or on intervenors.

12 4. Require that the pleadings be amended to eliminate therefrom allegations
13 as to representation of absent persons, and that the action proceed accordingly.

14 5. Deal with similar procedural matters.

15 (n) Once certified by the court under this section, a class action shall not be 16 dismissed or compromised without the approval of the court, and notice of the 17 proposed dismissal or compromise shall be given to all members of the class in such 18 manner as the court directs.

19 (o) A rental-purchase company shall not be liable in a class action for statutory 20 damages computed under sub. (1) (b) relating to statutory damages, unless it is 21 shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was a willful and 22 knowing violation of this chapter. ~~No recovery in an action under this subsection may~~ 23 ~~exceed $500,000.~~

24 (p) Reasonable attorneys' fees in a class action shall be determined by the value
25 of the time reasonably expended by the attorney rather than by the amount of

SENATE BILL 486

1 recovery on behalf of the class. A legal aid society or legal services program that
2 represents a class shall be awarded a reasonable service fee in lieu of reasonable
3 attorneys' fees, equal in amount to the amount of the attorneys' fees as measured by 4 this subsection.

5 (q) The administrator, whether or not a party to an action, shall bear the costs
6 of notice except that he or she may recover such costs from the defendant as provided
7 in par. (L).

8 (5) DEFENSE; BONA FIDE ERROR. Notwithstanding any other section of this 9 chapter, no customer shall be entitled, in an individual or class action, to recover any 10 penalties provided under sub. (1) (b), if the rental-purchase company violating this 11 chapter shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not 12 intentional, and that the violation resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding 13 the maintenance of procedures reasonably adapted to avoid these errors. A bona fide
14 error under this subsection includes a clerical error, an error in making calculations,
15 an error due to computer malfunction or computer programming, and a printing 16 error.

17 (6) DOUBLE LIABILITY LIMITED. The liability of a rental-purchase company under 18 this chapter is in lieu of any liability under the federal Consumer Credit Protection
19 Act and s. 138.09. An action by a person alleging a violation under this chapter may 20 not be maintained if a final judgment has been rendered for or against that person
21 with respect to the same violation under the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act
22 or s. 138.09. If a final judgment is entered against any rental-purchase company
23 under this chapter and the federal Consumer Credit Protection Act or s. 138.09 for 24 the same violation, the merchant has a cause of action for appropriate relief to the 25 extent necessary to avoid double liability.

SENATE BILL 486

1           (7) NECESSARY PARTIES. If more than one lessee is a party to the same
2 rental-purchase agreement, all of the lessees that are parties to the rental-purchase
3 agreement shall be joined as plaintiffs in any action under sub. (1), and the lessees
4 are entitled to only a single recovery under sub. (1).

5           <sup>425.505</sup>430.903 Limitation on actions. An action brought by a lessee under this 6 chapter shall be commenced within one year after the date on which the alleged 7 violation occurred, 2 years after the date on which the rental-purchase agreement
8 was entered into, or one year after the date on which the last payment was made 9 under the rental-purchase agreement, whichever is later.

10           <sup>425.504</sup>430.904 Venue. (1) GENERALLY. The venue for a claim arising out of a 11 rental-purchase agreement is any of the following counties:

12           (a) Where the lessee resides or is personally served.

13           (b) Where the rental property is located.

14           (c) Where the lessee sought or acquired the rental property or signed the 15 document evidencing his or her obligation under the terms of the rental-purchase 16 agreement.

17           (2) CHANGE IN VENUE. When it appears from the return of service of a summons
18 or otherwise that the county in which an action is pending under sub. (1) is not a 19 proper place of trial for the action, unless the defendant appears and waives the 20 improper venue, the court shall transfer the action to any county that is a proper 21 place of trial.

22           (3) MULTIPLE DEFENDANTS. If there are several defendants in an action arising 23 out of a rental-purchase agreement, and if venue is based on residence, venue may 24 be in the county of residence of any of the defendants.

25           SECTION 10. Nonstatutory provisions.

SENATE BILL 486

1 (1) SUBMISSION OF PROPOSED RULES GOVERNING REGISTRATION OF RENTAL-PURCHASE
2 COMPANIES. Using the procedure under section 227.24 of the statutes, the 3 administrator of the division of banking in the department of financial institutions
4 may promulgate rules under chapter 430 of the statutes, as created by this act, for 5 the period before the date on which permanent rules take effect, but not to exceed 6 the period authorized under section 227.24 (1) (c) and (2) of the statutes.
7 Notwithstanding section 227.24 (1) (a), (2) (b), and (3) of the statutes, the 8 administrator of the division of banking is not required to provide evidence that 9 promulgating a rule under this subsection as an emergency rule is necessary for the 10 preservation of the public peace, health, safety, or welfare and is not required to 11 provide a finding of emergency for a rule promulgated under this subsection.

SECTION 11. Initial applicability.

12 (1) This act first applies to rental-purchase agreements, and conduct pursuant 13 to those agreements, that are entered into on the effective date of this subsection.

SECTION 12. Effective date.

14 (1) This act takes effect on the 90th day after publication.
