Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

The proposed legislation eliminates the ability for joint labor-management apprenticship committees to set an apprenticeship standard for a "job site ratio" of the number of apprentices a journeyman may supervise.

Currently the only "job site ratio" that has been established is for electricians. This ratio was established due to the number of accidents that had occurred as a result of too many apprentices at a particular job site. Otherwise, all of the other joint labor-management committees have established apprenticeship standards using what is known as a "shop ratio." Shop ratios are not affected by this bill.

In that this bill does not affect the administrative work of the Apprenticeship Standards staff, there are no administrative costs associated with it. In addition, there is nothing in the bill on apprenticeship that increases or decreases state revenue.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications

There is no long term fiscal effect.
