The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

PREFATORY NOTE: This bill was prepared for the Joint Legislative Council's Special Committee on the Public Health System's Response to Terrorism and Public Health Emergencies.

Public Health Council <sup>23</sup>

The bill creates a 17-member Public Health Council in the Department of Health and Family Services (DHFS). The council must include representatives of health care consumers, health care providers, health professions educators, local health departments and boards, public safety agencies, and the Public Health Advisory Committee established by the Secretary of DHFS.

The council is required to advise DHFS, the governor, the legislature, and the public on progress in implementing DHFS's 10-year public health plan and coordination of responses to public health emergencies.

Reimbursement for Quarantine Costs

The bill requires the state to reimburse local health departments for all of their expenses incurred in quarantining a person outside his or her home during a declared state of emergency related to public health and not reimbursed from federal funds.

Reimbursement would be made from one of 2 state sum sufficient appropriations: (1) a DHFS appropriation created in this bill, if the governor has called a state of emergency related to public health under s. 166.03 (1) (b) 1. and has designated DHFS as the lead state agency; or (2) an existing Department of Military Affairs (DMA) appropriation, if the governor has called a state of emergency related to public health under s. 166.03 (1) (b) 1. but has not designated DHFS as the lead state agency.

Intrastate Mutual Aid

The bill establishes a statewide system of mutual aid for emergency management programs, emergency medical services (EMS) programs, fire departments, and local health departments.

Currently, law enforcement agencies are authorized to enter into mutual aid agreements with other law enforcement agencies in the state, under s. 66.0313 (2), stats. The personnel of the agency furnishing assistance are considered employees of the requesting agency while providing assistance. Law enforcement agencies may also enter into mutual aid agreements with law enforcement agencies in adjacent states.

The state is party to a compact for interstate emergency management mutual aid, but there is no specific statutory provision for intrastate emergency management mutual aid. The statutes provide that counties, towns, and municipalities may cooperate through an intergovernmental contract to provide and finance emergency management services and combine offices. Generally, this contracting has been between adjacent counties.

Fire departments throughout the state operate under mutual aid agreements with other in-state fire departments that are not specifically provided for in statutes. These mutual aid agreements appear to fall under the general language of s. 66.0301, stats., which permits municipalities to enter into intergovernmental cooperation agreements. A provision of the Wisconsin administrative code relating to fire department dues provides that a fire department may use mutual aid agreements as a means of providing fire protection services. [s. Comm. 14.48 (1) (b) 1., Wis. Adm. Code.]

SENATE BILL 120

Some local fire departments are also parties to interstate fire mutual aid agreements under the general statutory provision authorizing municipal interstate cooperation agreements. [s. 66.0303, stats.]

Under the bill, upon the request of a county, city, village, or town, or a person acting under an incident command system (ICS), the personnel of any emergency management program, EMS program, fire department, or local health department may assist the requester within the requester's jurisdiction, without regard to any other jurisdictional provision. The entity employing the personnel acting in response to a request for assistance is responsible for the personnel-related costs incurred in providing the assistance. The bill defines "incident command system" using language from the definition in s. Comm. 30.01 (16), Wis. Adm. Code, and from the state of Washington's ICS statutes.

Incident Command System

The bill requires utilization of the ICS in managing emergencies and training of specified personnel in the use of the ICS.

Under current law:

1. Department of Commerce administrative rules governing fire department incident management require that every public sector fire department establish an ICS which has written guidelines applying to all fire fighters involved in emergency operations and which identifies fire fighter roles and responsibilities relating to the safety of operations. These rules define "incident command system" as an organized system of roles, responsibilities, and suggested operating guidelines used to manage and direct emergency operations. Under these rules, fire departments are required to train all fire fighters involved in emergency operations in the ICS and assign safety responsibilities to supervisory personnel at each level of operations. [ss. Comm. 30.14 (1) (a) to (c) and 30.01 (16), Wis. Adm. Code.] A footnote to the incident command rule provision indicates that suggested operating guidelines have been developed and published by the Wisconsin Technical Colleges System Board.

2. Department of Natural Resources administrative rules relating to hazardous substance discharge response provide that when deemed appropriate to effectively coordinate all actions at the scene of a hazardous substance discharge, an ICS shall be implemented. In these rules, "incident command system" is defined as an organized approach used to effectively control and manage operations at the scene of a hazardous substance discharge. [ss. NR 702.09 (2) and 702.03, Wis. Adm. Code].

3. The state Emergency Operations Plan (EOP) developed by the Division of Emergency Management (known as "Wisconsin Emergency Management" or "WEM") provides that an ICS "will be used in disaster response". However, the EOP does not indicate specifically what the ICS system entails or who must use it. The EOP further states that unified command is to be used in situations which affect multiple jurisdictions or multiple agencies within a jurisdiction or which require response by multiple levels of government. The EOP notes that these command and control systems require the participation of the chief elected officials. The EOP also provides that as the lead state agency for direction and control, WEM is to direct and coordinate emergency operations to support incident command at the local level.

At present, there are no statutory provisions pertaining to incident command.

This bill does the following:

1. Defines the term "incident command system", using language from the definition in s. Comm. 30.01 (16), Wis. Adm. Code, and from the State of Washington's incident command statutes.

2. Requires that an incident command system be used by all emergency response agencies, including local health departments, in responding to, managing, and coordinating multi-agency or multi-jurisdiction incidents, when a state or local emergency declaration has been made or in any other emergency situation.

SENATE BILL 120

3. Requires the Adjutant General, in developing statewide emergency training and exercise programs, to provide training to officers and employees of local health departments and to elected and appointed local government officials in use of the ICS in managing emergencies. The Adjutant General must consult with DHFS regarding the ICS training for local health department personnel. The bill requires the Adjutant General to utilize federal funding to provide this training, to the extent possible.

Exemption From Liability

Current law provides an exemption from liability for a person who provides equipment or services during a state of emergency declared by the governor for the death of or injury to any person or damage to any property caused by his or her actions. The immunity does not apply if the person acted intentionally or with gross negligence. Under current law, the exemption from liability applies if the person provides the equipment or services under the direction of the governor, the adjutant general, or the head of emergency management services in any county, town, or municipality.

The bill amends the law so that the exemption from liability also applies if the person provides the equipment or services under the direction of DHFS, if that department is designated by the governor as the lead state agency to address a public health emergency, or at the direction of a local health department that is acting as the agent of DHFS.

Chemical, Biological, or Radioactive Substance Threats

The bill prohibits a person from intentionally making a threat to release or disseminate a harmful substance, knowing that the threat is false, if the threat induces a reasonable expectation or fear that the person will release or disseminate a harmful substance. The term "harmful substance" is defined as radioactive material that is harmful to human life, a toxic chemical or its precursor, or a biological agent. A person who violates this prohibition is guilty of a Class I felony, which is punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000, imprisonment for not more than 3-1/2 years, or both.

The bill further requires that persons who violate this prohibition are to be assessed by the court for moneys expended by a state or local government agency for activities in connection with the threat, including: (1) the response to the threat by emergency medical personnel; (2) the analysis of any substance alleged to be a harmful substance; and (3) the treatment of persons who are alleged to have been exposed to an alleged harmful substance. The moneys assessed are to be reimbursed to the state or local agency that incurred the expense.
