Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill places strict limits on the ability of a man alleging himself to be the father of a nonmarital child to file a declaration of paternal interest and/or appear in a Termination of Parental Rights (TPR) proceeding. Passage of the bill would not affect the administration of the child support program as declarations of paternal interest are not a prerequisite to the adjudication of paternity and not a sufficient basis on which to establish a support order.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications
