Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Currently, the secretary of employment relations (secretary) may reclassify positions in the state civil service system. Reclassification consists in the assignment of a filled position to a different class in the state civil service system. This bill prohibits the secretary from reclassifying any civil service position until the secretary gives the incumbent holding the position at least 30 days' written notice that the position is to be reclassified.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
