Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau
Under current law, a person who for compensation provides day care for four or more children must obtain a license to operate a day care center from the Department of Health and Family Services (DHFS). Currently, DHFS may not license an applicant to operate a day care center, and a person operating a day care center may not employ or contract with a caregiver or permit a nonclient to reside... at the day care center, if the applicant, caregiver, or nonclient resident has been convicted or adjudicated delinquent on or after his or her 12th birthday for committing a serious crime, has abused or neglected a client or misappropriated the property of a client, or has abused or neglected a child or, in the case of a position for which a person must be credentialed by the Department of Regulation and Licensing (DRL), the person’s credential is not current or is limited so as to prevent the person from providing adequate care to a client (disqualifying circumstances), unless the applicant, caregiver, or nonclient resident demonstrates that he or she has been rehabilitated. To determine whether any disqualifying circumstances apply to a person, DHFS must obtain a criminal history search from records maintained by the Department of Justice, information contained in a registry maintained by DHFS of individuals who have abused or neglected a client or who have misappropriated the property of a client, information maintained by DRL regarding the person’s credentials, information maintained by DHFS regarding substantiated reports of child abuse or neglect, and information maintained by DHFS regarding any denial of a license, certification, or contract to operate, employment at or a contract with, or permission to reside at a day care center, a child welfare agency, a foster or treatment foster home, a group home, or a shelter care facility (entity) due to a disqualifying circumstance (background check). These requirements, however, do not apply to a person, such as a baby-sitter, nanny, or au pair, who provides care for less than four children.

This bill permits any person who provides, or who is expected to provide, care and supervision for a child, but who does not have, and is not seeking, a license to operate an entity and who is not, and is not expected to be, an employee or contractor of an entity (nonlicensed caregiver), to request DHFS to list the nonlicensed caregiver’s name in a registry that DHFS is required to maintain under the bill. On receipt of such a request, DHFS must conduct a background check of the nonlicensed caregiver and, if the nonlicensed caregiver is providing, or is expected to provide, care in the nonlicensed caregiver’s home, all nonclients who reside in the nonlicensed caregiver’s home to determine whether any disqualifying circumstance applies to the nonlicensed caregiver or a nonclient resident. If no disqualifying circumstances apply, DHFS must list the nonlicensed caregiver in the registry. If a disqualifying circumstance applies, DHFS may not list the nonlicensed caregiver in the registry and must so advise the nonlicensed caregiver, stating the reason why the nonlicensed caregiver is ineligible for listing in the registry. A nonlicensed caregiver who is denied listing in the registry may demonstrate to DHFS that he or she or, if applicable, a nonclient resident of the nonlicensed caregiver has been rehabilitated.

Any individual who has employed or contracted with, or who is expecting to employ or contract with, a nonlicensed caregiver to provide care and supervision for the individual’s child may request DHFS to search the registry for the name of the nonlicensed caregiver. The bill also requires a temporary employment agency that places nonlicensed caregivers with or refers nonlicensed caregivers to persons who are not entities to conduct background checks of those nonlicensed caregivers and prohibits a temporary employment agency from employing or contracting with a nonlicensed caregiver if any disqualifying circumstance applies to the nonlicensed caregiver.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
