> Jo, I've been giving some further thought to the Court of Appeals decision regarding reimbursement of state paid birth expenses. There is one possible legislative remedy that I think might be less offensive to low income advocates but would allow us to continue our current policy and ensure that counties MSL incentives are not reduced. Under sec 767.51 (3) (e), Wis. Stats, as it currently reads, a judgment or order of paternity must contain:

> > "> An order requiring the father to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother> '> s pregnancy and the child> '> s birth, based on the father> '> s ability to pay or contribute to those expenses.> ">

> The department> '> s current policy is that the CSA may obtain an order for birth cost within the guidelines of the regional averages for recovering birth cost. However, if the family's income is below 185% of the federal poverty level, the child support agency must NOT ask the court to order regular payments. In such cases, tax intercept may be used to recover birth cost.

> The court construed the 'ability to pay' language to mean that we can't obtain any order establishing an obligation for birth costs, even if the order specifies that no current payments are due. We could seek to amend 767.51(3)(e) to provide that the judgment must contain:

> > "An order establishing the father's obligation to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth. Such order shall specify whether periodic payments are due under the order based on the father's ability to make payments at the time of the hearing."

Appeal No. 04-2267-FT
STATE OF WISCONSIN

Cir. Ct. No. 04-FA-10

IN COURT OF APPEALS
DISTRICT III

Rusk County Department of Health and Human Services,

Petitioner-Respondent,

Danielle K. Schultz,

Petitioner,

v.

Leonard M. Thorson,

Respondent-Appellant.

APPEAL from an order of the circuit court for Rusk County: FREDERICK A. HENDERSON, Judge.
Reversed.

Before Cane, C.J., Hoover, P.J., and Peterson, J.

¶1. PETERSON, J. Leonard Thorson appeals an order¹ obligating him to pay lying-in expenses for his children, as authorized under Wis. Stat. §767.51(3)(e). Thorson argues the circuit court had no authority to order he was obligated to pay those expenses when, at the time of the order, he had no ability to pay.³ We agree and reverse the order.

BACKGROUND

¶2. Thorson is the father of twins born September 28, 2003. He resides with the children and their mother. The Wisconsin Medical Assistance Program paid the expenses associated with the birth of the twins.

¶3. On February 5, 2004, the Rusk County Department of Health and Human Services filed a paternity petition seeking, among other things, reimbursement for lying-in expenses. The parties agreed and the circuit court found that Thorson did not have the present ability to pay any of the expenses. Nevertheless, the court ordered that Thorson was obligated for the total of $4,332.50, although it held payment in abeyance. It also ordered Thorson to provide copies of his tax returns and to report to the County any change of address, employer or income.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

¶4. The authority of the circuit court in paternity actions is limited to that provided in the paternity statutes. State v. Charles R.P., 223 Wis.2d 768, 771, 590 N.W.2d 21 (Ct. App. 1998). The interpretation of a statute and its application to a set of facts are questions of law that we review independently. Id. Our role is to give effect to the plain meaning of the words in the statute. State ex rel. Kalal v. Circuit Court for Dane County, 2004 WI 58, ¶45, 271 Wis.2d 633, 681 N.W.2d 110. Accordingly, when interpreting a statute, we begin with the plain language of the statute. Id., ¶44. If the language is plain and unambiguous, we apply it as written without further inquiry. Id.

DISCUSSION

¶5. Wisconsin Stat. §767.51(3)(e) authorizes the circuit court to order a "father to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth, based on the father's ability to pay or contribute to those expenses." By the plain language of the statute, the court's ability to order payment is contingent on "the father's ability to pay." Wis. Stat. §767.51(3)(e). Accordingly, because it is undisputed that Thorson had no ability to pay at the time of the hearing, the court had no authority to set his obligation to pay lying-in expenses.⁴

¶6. The County argues that setting an obligation for payment is not the same as an order to pay. However, the circuit court's authority is limited to that provided by the statutes. Charles R.P., 223

Wis.2d at 771. The County provides no statutory authority, and we can find none, for a court to obligate a father to pay lying-in expenses when he has no current ability to pay.

¶7. The County also argues that if courts lack the authority to impose an obligation for payment, even if the father has no ability to pay, it would "virtually eliminate collection of lying-in expense from a father." However, a county cannot collect the expense until a father has the ability to pay. Therefore, an order setting the obligation amount with payment held in abeyance does nothing to aid the County in collecting the expenses. When and if a father has the ability to pay, the court may order him to pay or contribute to the lying-in expenses. If the father's ability to pay changes, the order may be modified. Wis. Stat. §§767.51(6) and 767.32.

By the Court.-Order reversed.

Recommended for publication in the official reports.

1 The document is titled "Order and Judgment."

2 This is an expedited appeal under Wis. Stat. Rule 809.17. All references to the Wisconsin Statutes are to the 2003-04 version unless otherwise noted.

3 Thorson also argues the circuit court erroneously exercised its discretion by applying the wrong legal standard. Because the interpretation of Wis. Stat. §767.51(3)(e) is conclusive, we do not address this argument. See Gross v. Hoffman, 227 Wis. 296, 300, 277 N.W. 663 (1938) (only dispositive issues need be addressed).

4 The County contends that the court's order was supported by the facts, since Thorson has a gross monthly income of $2,027.88 and has no physical, mental or emotional limitation on his earning ability. However, the County conceded in the circuit court that Thorson had no current ability to pay. The County cannot now be heard to argue that Thorson is able to pay, based on his income and lack of inhibitors to his earning ability. See State v. Michels, 141 Wis.2d 81, 98, 414 N.W.2d 311 (Ct. App. 1987) (judicial estoppel bars litigant from argument directly contradictory to circuit court argument).

PRELIMINARY DRAFT - NOT READY FOR INTRODUCTION

Draft

1 AN ACT relating to: requiring a court to establish a father's obligation for birth
2 expenses.

parent

Wisconsin

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

X Under current law, in a paternity judgment or order the court must include an order that requires the man who is determined to be the father to pay or contribute to the expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth based on the man's ability to pay. A recent Court of Appeals decision based on this statute held that, if the father has no present ability to pay, a circuit court has no authority to set an obligation to pay lying-in expenses, even if payments are held in abeyance. This bill modifies the requirement under current law so that in a paternity judgment or order the court must establish the amount of the father's obligation to pay or contribute to those expenses and must specify whether periodic payments are due on the obligation based on the father's ability to pay.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

3 SECTION 1. 767.51 (3) (e) of the statutes is amended to read:
4 (e) An order requiring the father establishing the amount of the father's
5 obligation to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's pregnancy

1 and the child's birth. The order shall specify whether periodic payments are due on
2 the obligation, based on the father's ability to pay or contribute to those expenses.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, in a paternity judgment or order the court must include an order that requires the man who is determined to be the father to pay or contribute to the expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth based on the man's ability to pay. A recent Wisconsin court of appeals decision based on this statute held that, if the father has no present ability to pay, a circuit court has no authority to set an obligation to pay lying-in expenses, even if payments are held in abeyance. This bill modifies the requirement under current law so that in a paternity judgment or order the court must establish the amount of the father's obligation to pay or contribute to those expenses and must specify whether periodic payments are due on the obligation based on the father's ability to pay.

I thought that it would be misleading to have the initial applicability apply to modification of paternity judgments and orders to require periodic payments because I assume there is no reason why those judgments and orders cannot currently be modified to require periodic payments. I would not want a judge to think that paternity judgments and orders granted before the effective date of the act could not be modified in this way.

A recent Wisconsin Court of Appeals decision based on this statute held that, if the father has no present ability to pay, a circuit court has no authority to set an obligation to pay lying-in expenses, even if payments are held in abeyance.

This bill modifies the requirement under current law so that in a paternity judgment or order the court must establish the amount of the father's obligation to pay or contribute to those expenses and requires the court to set the father's obligation at one-half of the total actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses. The bill requires the court to specify in the judgment or order whether periodic payments are due on the obligation, based on the father's ability to pay, and provides that, if the court does not require periodic payments because the father does not have the present ability to pay, the court may modify the paternity judgment or order at a later date to require periodic payments if the father has the ability to pay at that time.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 767.51 (3) (e) of the statutes is renumbered 767.51 (3) (e) 1. and
2 amended to read:

3 767.51 (3) (e) 1. An order requiring the father establishing the amount of the
4 father's obligation to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's
5 pregnancy and the child's birth. The amount established shall be limited to one-half
6 of the total actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses. The order also shall
7 specify whether periodic payments are due on the obligation, based on the father's
8 ability to pay or contribute to those expenses.

9 SECTION 2. 767.51 (3) (e) 2. of the statutes is created to read:

10 767.51 (3) (e) 2. If the order does not require periodic payments because the
11 father has no present ability to pay or contribute to the expenses, the court may
12 modify the judgment or order at a later date to require periodic payments if the father
13 has the ability to pay at that time.

Note that "actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses" was not changed to "actual pregnancy and birth expenses" because the requirement to contribute in current law applies to "reasonable expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth." The two references to the expenses that the father must pay should be consistent with each other, and removing "reasonable" in current law will create a question about whether the statute now requires the father to contribute to unreasonable expenses.

2005 ASSEMBLY BILL

1 AN ACT to renumber and amend 767.51 (3) (e) and 767.62 (4) (d); and to create
2 767.51 (3) (e) 2. and 767.62 (4) (d) 2. of the statutes; relating to: requiring a
3 court to establish a father's obligation for birth expenses.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, in a paternity judgment or order the court must include an order that requires the man who is determined to be the father to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's pregnancy and the child's birth based on the man's ability to pay. A recent Wisconsin Court of Appeals decision based on this statute held that, if the father has no present ability to pay, a circuit court has no authority to set an obligation to pay lying-in expenses, even if payments are held in abeyance.

This bill modifies the requirement under current law so that in a judgment or order determining paternity, including one based on a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity, the court must establish the amount of the father's obligation to pay or contribute to those expenses and requires the court to set the father's obligation at one-half of the total actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses. The bill requires the court to specify in the judgment or order whether periodic payments are due on the obligation, based on the father's ability to pay, and provides that, if the court does not require periodic payments because the father does not have the present ability to pay, the court may modify the paternity judgment or order at a later date to require periodic payments if the father has the ability to pay at that time.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 767.51 (3) (e) of the statutes is renumbered 767.51 (3) (e) 1. and
2 amended to read:

3 767.51 (3) (e) 1. An order ~~requiring the father~~ establishing the amount of the
4 father's obligation to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's
5 pregnancy and the child's birth. The amount established shall be limited to one-half
6 of the total actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses. The order also shall
7 specify whether periodic payments are due on the obligation, based on the father's
8 ability to pay or contribute to those expenses.

9 SECTION 2. 767.51 (3) (e) 2. of the statutes is created to read:

10 767.51 (3) (e) 2. If the order does not require periodic payments because the
11 father has no present ability to pay or contribute to the expenses, the court may
12 modify the judgment or order at a later date to require periodic payments if the father
13 has the ability to pay at that time.

14 SECTION 3. 767.62 (4) (d) of the statutes is renumbered 767.62 (4) (d) 1. and
15 amended to read:

16 767.62 (4) (d) 1. An order ~~requiring the father~~ establishing the amount of the
17 father's obligation to pay or contribute to the reasonable expenses of the mother's
18 pregnancy and the child's birth. The amount established shall be limited to one-half
19 of the total actual and reasonable pregnancy and birth expenses. The order also shall
20 specify whether periodic payments are due on the obligation, based on the father's
21 ability to pay or contribute to those expenses.

ASSEMBLY BILL

1 SECTION 4. 767.62 (4) (d) 2. of the statutes is created to read:

2 767.62 (4) (d) 2. If the order does not require periodic payments because the
3 father has no present ability to pay or contribute to the expenses, the court may
4 modify the judgment or order at a later date to require periodic payments if the father
5 has the ability to pay at that time.

6 SECTION 5. Initial applicability.

7 (1) The renumbering and amendment of sections 767.51 (3) (e) and 767.62 (4)
8 (d) of the statutes first applies to judgments or orders that are granted on the 9 effective date of this subsection.
