STENGER GOVERNMENT RELATIONS, LLC

MEMORANDUM

TO: SENATOR BROWN
FROM: MILLER BREWING COMPANY
SUBJECT: ASSEMBLY BILL 787
DATE: 11/2/2005

Miller Brewing Company supports Assembly bill 787. We believe this proposal strengthens and maintains the Three-Tier system of distribution for the beer industry. Assembly bill 787 is the result of several months of negotiations and compromise between the brewing tier of the industry and the Wisconsin Beer Distributors Association.

The existence and maintenance of a strong, viable three-tier system is a critical component of Miller's future sales and marketing strategy as we continue down the road to turning our business around. It is critical we continue working with our distributor partners to insure that our retailer allies fully realize the value of that partnership and that as a result, the consumer - the beer drinkers of Wisconsin - truly benefit.

While some small brewers have indicated opposition to this legislation, it should be noted that this legislation contains very generous language exempting small brewers who produce fewer than 100,000 barrels of beer a year. The 100,000 barrel limitation means that small brewers, who are below that cap, may be able to continue to direct ship up to 30,000 barrels per year. It is our opinion that if small brewers oppose the 100,000 barrel cap, they are not committed to the three-tier system.

In conclusion, we believe that the provisions in AB 787 protect all the members of our three-tier system - brewers, wholesalers and retailers. As a result, Miller believes that in the end, Wisconsin benefits.

Editorial: Let the free market work

From the Journal Sentinel

Posted: Nov. 3, 2005

Folks who have a fondness for the workings of free-market economics can be forgiven if they're scratching their heads over pending legislation that would virtually enshrine beer wholesalers as the middlemen in the beverage's path from brewers to retailers and consumers in Wisconsin.

The bill, approved Tuesday in the state Assembly, 78-16, would require brewers to grant exclusive distributorship territories to wholesalers. It would also add to the costs for brewers who surpass certain production and sales benchmarks and want to ship directly to retailers.

Wisconsin's microbreweries producing far less than that are now on notice. Grow, produce or sell more than the benchmark amounts, think about shipping directly to retailers, and they will have to add prohibitively to their costs by building separate warehouses. And this, of course, will make wholesale distributors, who already have warehouses, irresistibly attractive.

Out-of-state brewers, already well-versed in the dictates of three-tier distribution systems nationwide, are also on notice. Don't even think about upsetting the status quo by shipping directly to so-called big-box stores in Wisconsin.

The notice comes in the shorthand description of the bill, courtesy of the Legislative Reference Bureau, which analyzes bills for legislators: "The bill requires deliveries of beer to retailers to be made only by wholesalers and requires deliveries to retailers to be made only at their retail premises."

In other words, beer is so unlike other products that state law must prevent distribution directly from the manufacturer to the retailer. Simple economics may dictate the use of a middleman with many commodities. But why are beer's middlemen deserving of a law that preserves their places, profitably sandwiched in the state's three-tier beer-distribution system?

Middlemen as a matter of simple economics is one thing. Crafting a law to ensure this is quite another. Small brewers predict higher costs for their products if this bill passes.

Recent Coverage

 11/1/05: Microbrewers bitter over bill

The Wisconsin Beer Distributors Association, of course, is pleased with the bill. According to an article Wednesday by Journal Sentinel reporter Tom Daykin, the association, through its political action committee, donated $6,000 to state legislative campaign committees during the first six months of 2005, split evenly between Republicans and Democrats.

Coincidence between those contributions and the bill? Not likely.

More likely is that the contributions and the legislation were spurred by 1) a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in May that New York and Michigan bans on interstate wine shipments to consumers were unconstitutional and anti-competitive and 2) a legal challenge by Costco Wholesale Corp. of a Washington state law that prevents the company from buying directly from beverage producers.

The Supreme Court ruling calls into question whether this new bill will stand if challenged. A ruling favorable for Costco would further cloud the issue.

The Senate Small Business Committee on Wednesday heard testimony on the bill. On Thursday, committee members were to vote through a distribution of paper ballots to the committee, ballots that are to be returned by the close of Senate business today.

The bill should not move forward. If it does, the Senate should not approve it.

FROM: Wisconsin Brewers Guild
DATE: November 8, 2005
RE: Support of AB 787 & SB 415—As Amended by SA 1 to AB 787

In recent weeks, the Wisconsin Brewers Guild has contacted your office regarding our concerns with Assembly Bill 787 & Senate Bill 415, legislation that would modify state regulation over the sale and distribution of beer in Wisconsin.

While the Guild believes that a legislative solution was needed to protect Wisconsin's three-tier system from potential legal challenges, we had problems with certain provisions in the bill that would have (in our estimation) harmed the growth of Wisconsin's craft beer industry.

Fortunately, through the leadership of Representative Jeff Fitzgerald and Senator Ron Brown (authors of the bill), we had an opportunity to sit down with the Wisconsin Beer Distributors Association and craft a compromise amendment that alleviates our concerns with the bill. Therefore, I am happy to inform you that the Wisconsin Brewers Guild supports AB 787 & SB 415—as amended by SA 1 to AB 787.

Our objective from the beginning of this debate was to preserve the ability of small brewers to succeed. We believe this amendment accomplishes that goal. Unlike other alternatives presented during the negotiation process, this amendment provides small brewers with the opportunity to grow and the flexibility to ensure our products make it to the marketplace.

Again, the Wisconsin Brewers Guild would like to offer our support for AB 787 and SB 415 as amended (by SA 1 to AB 787) and would ask that it be passed as soon as possible.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact the Guild's government affairs consultants, Tim Hoven or Michael Welsh, at 608-310-8833.

The Wisconsin Brewers Guild represents over 50 Wisconsin owned and operated small breweries and brew pubs. The Guild is dedicated to the revival of Wisconsin's brewing heritage through the production, marketing and sale of top quality craft beers.

Over the last few days, and under the guidance of Representative Jeff Fitzgerald and Senator Ron Brown, members of our association and members of the Wisconsin Brewers' Guild have found compromise on several key points in this legislation. The compromise provides clarification and appropriate protections for Wisconsin's craft brewing industry while maintaining the integrity of the legislation as a whole.

That compromise will be embodied in Senate Amendment 1 to AB 787. WBDA is very pleased to lend its strong support to AB 787 with the addition of Senate Amendment 1.

We ask for your support in passing AB 787 with the inclusion of SA 1 in the Senate, and your concurrence in the Assembly.
