1. Definition of "Community within a straddling county" – Agreed NOT to change definition. Instead, insert in the Water Supply Service Area Plans for Public Water Supply Systems section: "For purposes of this section, if a community seeking Great Lakes basin water is adjacent to or extends across a straddling county boundary and outside the Great Lakes basin, it may be considered a "community within a straddling county" if the water service area boundary is determined by the straddling county boundary instead of by population projections, densities or other growth and development factors as specified by rule." Insert in s. 281.348?

Note from 4/8/ meeting: The idea is to give a community that is partly within a straddling county the ability to get water from the basin for the portion of the community that is within the straddling county.

Mike Bruhn:

This amendment corresponds to item 1 on the amendment list.

part*
The amendment allows Great Lakes basin water to be provided to a community that is outside of the basin and that extends outside of a straddling county, although only to the ~~portion~~ portion of the community that is in the straddling county. As I read the compact, it does not authorize diversions to any part of a community that is outside of the basin unless the community is entirely within a straddling county. For that reason, I believe that the post-compact portion of this amendment is inconsistent with the compact.
