Under current law, whoever intentionally receives or conceals stolen property is subject to the following penalties:

- If the value of the property does not exceed $2,500, a Class A misdemeanor.
- If the value of the property exceeds $2,500 but does not exceed $5,000, a Class I felony.
- If the value of the property exceeds $5,000 but does not exceed $10,000, a Class H felony.
- If the value of the property exceeds $10,000, a Class G felony.

In addition, under current law, whoever receives stolen property from a child or conceals stolen property received from a child is subject to the following penalties:

- If the value of the property does not exceed $500, a Class A misdemeanor.
- If the value of the property exceeds $500 but does not exceed $2,500, a Class I felony.
- If the value of the property exceeds $2,500 but does not exceed $5,000, a Class H felony.
- If the value of the property exceeds $5,000, a Class G felony.

Assembly Bill 411 provides that it is a Class H felony to receive or conceal stolen property or to receive stolen property from a child or conceal stolen property received from a child if the property is a firearm.

Assembly Amendment 1 modifies the offense of receiving stolen property to provide that it must be knowingly or intentionally received. Under current law, there must be a showing that it was intentionally received.
