Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law generally allows a teacher to remove a pupil from his or her class if the pupil violates the code of classroom conduct adopted by the school board; is dangerous, unruly, or disruptive; or exhibits behavior that interferes with the teacher’s ability to teach effectively, as specified by the code of classroom conduct.

This bill extends this ability to remove a pupil from a class to any school district employee and also allows a school district employee to remove a pupil from school property or from a school-sponsored activity supervised by that employee. Under the bill, the code of conduct must specify the kinds of behavior that interfere with the ability of a school district employee to perform his or her job effectively and that would warrant removal, from school or from a school-sponsored activity.
