Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill creates reporting and repayment requirements for recipients of grants, loans, and tax benefits (development assistance) under certain current economic development programs.

Under current law, the Department of Commerce (department) may not award development assistance unless the department enters into an agreement that requires the recipient to repay the development assistance if, within five years after receiving the development assistance, the person ceases to conduct in this state the economic activity for which the person received the development assistance and commences substantially the same economic activity outside this state.

Under the bill, the department must enter into an agreement with a recipient of development assistance that requires the recipient to repay the development assistance.
assistance as provided under current law or if the recipient fails to make a capital investment specified in the agreement or fails to create or retain jobs as specified in the agreement. The department may agree to accept repayment of a pro rata share of development assistance.

The bill requires a recipient of development assistance to submit an annual report to the department that contains certain information about the jobs created or retained as a result of the development assistance. The department may make reasonable inspections to verify the information contained in such reports. If a recipient fails to submit a report, the department must suspend further development assistance to the recipient until the recipient submits the report. Under the bill, the department must make recipients’ annual reports available to the public on the Internet.

The bill requires the department to submit an annual report to the legislature that contains certain information about development assistance provided in the preceding year. Also, the Department of Revenue must annually submit to the legislature a report identifying taxpayers who received tax benefits in the preceding year and the amount of tax benefits each taxpayer received.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
