Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person who is sentenced or placed on probation for a felony or certain specified misdemeanors must provide a deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) sample to the crime laboratories for analysis and inclusion in the Department of Justice DNA database. A person who is placed on probation must provide the DNA sample at the sheriff's office as soon as practicable after being placed on probation or as directed by his or her probation agent. A person who is sentenced to prison generally must provide the sample while in prison. A person who is sentenced to jail must provide the sample as directed by the sheriff.

Also under current law, a juvenile who is adjudicated delinquent for certain offenses must provide a DNA sample to the crime laboratories for analysis and inclusion in the Department of Justice DNA database. A juvenile placed in a secured correctional institution must provide the DNA sample while in the facility, and a juvenile who is not placed in such a facility must provide the DNA sample as directed by the agency supervising the juvenile.

This substitute amendment requires a court, upon convicting a person for a felony or a specified misdemeanor, to place the person in the physical custody of the sheriff for a time sufficient for the sheriff to collect a DNA sample. The substitute amendment also requires that if a juvenile is required to provide a DNA sample in connection with a delinquency finding, the court must, at the end of the proceeding in which the court makes the delinquency finding, place the juvenile in the custody of the sheriff for a time sufficient for the sheriff to collect a DNA sample. The substitute amendment requires the sheriff to submit the DNA samples to the state crime laboratories.
