restaurants that provide inaccurate nutritional information, and providing a penalty

Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

AB 664 requires certain chain restaurants to provide information regarding the nutritional content of the food the restaurants serve to customers. The bill gives the Department the authority to fine a restaurant that does not provide this information.

It is assumed that staff from the Department's restaurant inspection program can review a restaurant's compliance with this requirement at the same time that they review compliance with other public health provisions. As a result, this bill is not expected to have a fiscal effect on the Department.
