4 enforcement agencies.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, one law enforcement agency may respond to a request for assistance from another law enforcement agency. The requesting agency is responsible for defending a responding officer in a civil action arising out of the officer's response and for indemnifying the officer for the amount of any civil penalties imposed or damages awarded in such an action. The responding agency is responsible for personnel costs (such as the salary and benefits of the responding officers) and other costs related to a response (such as damage to equipment), but may bill the requesting agency for these costs. Current law does not apply to tribal law enforcement agencies.

This bill authorizes tribal law enforcement agencies both to request assistance from state, county, and municipal law enforcement agencies and to respond to requests for assistance from such agencies. It assigns responsibility for defending and indemnifying officers in civil actions arising out of a response and responsibility for the costs associated with a response in the same manner as current law.

To ensure that a tribe's responsibility for the costs of a law enforcement agency that responds to its request for assistance can be enforced, however, the bill limits the authority of a state, county, or municipal law enforcement agency to respond to a request for assistance from a tribal law enforcement agency to cases in which one of the following applies:

1. The tribe has adopted a resolution waiving its sovereign immunity to the extent required to allow enforcement of this responsibility in state courts or a resolution that the Department of Justice (DOJ) determines has the same effect.

2. The tribe maintains insurance to cover these costs up to specified limits.

3. The responding law enforcement agency has an agreement with the tribal law enforcement agency under which the responding law enforcement agency accepts the responsibility for these costs.

The bill requires that, for one of the foregoing actions to have the effect of allowing a nontribal law enforcement agency to respond to a request for assistance from a tribal law enforcement agency, the tribal law enforcement agency must have provided a copy of the resolution, insurance policy, or agreement to DOJ, and DOJ must have posted the document or a notice of the document on the Internet site that it maintains for exchanging information with law enforcement agencies.
