Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

√ RETIREMENT AND GROUP INSURANCE

Currently, the attorney general, or his or her designee, serves on the Group Insurance Board (GIB). This bill requires that the attorney general designee on the GIB must be an attorney. Current law also provides that the GIB may not enter into agreements to modify or expand group insurance coverage in a manner that conflicts with applicable statutes, or rules promulgated by the Department of Employee Trust Funds, or that materially affects the levels of premiums required to be paid by the state or its employees or the level of benefits provided under any group insurance coverage. This bill provides that this prohibition does not apply to GIB agreements relating to group insurance coverage for the 2012 and 2013 calendar years.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

2 SECTION 1. 15.165 (2) of the statutes is amended to read:
