Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law requires, with certain exceptions, that state parks be open to hunting, fishing, and trapping by persons who hold the appropriate hunting, fishing, or trapping license, permit, or other approval. One of the exceptions to this general requirement provides that the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) may prohibit hunting, fishing, or trapping in a state park within 100 yards of a designated use area. DNR may also prohibit hunting, fishing, or trapping in a state park if the Natural Resources Board determines that the prohibition is necessary to protect public safety or to protect a unique animal or plant community.

This bill generally eliminates the requirement that state parks be open to hunting, fishing, and trapping. The bill prohibits a person from hunting in a state park unless the person is hunting deer, elk, wild turkeys, or small game in the state park and DNR has promulgated a rule that authorizes the hunting of that type of game in the state park. The bill also prohibits a person from trapping in state parks.
