Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

Bill SB 23, if enacted into law, would provide workforce training grants to public and private organizations in each state fiscal year 2014 and state fiscal year 2015 of $7,500,000 per year.

This bill would provide on an ongoing basis funds for 4 FTE (positions), as well as software and database tools to identify and enroll workers into private and public training programs. The training programs shall meet both employers' and the workers' needs.

The total annual salary costs of the four positions are estimated to be $237,300 and the fringe costs about $113,900 per year. Supplies and services costs to support the new positions are estimated to be $83,300 annually. The balance of the administration allocation will be used for necessary Information Technology. DWD will be utilizing the assistance of the DWD Bureau of Information Technology Services (BITS) to modify the current program tracking system with the necessary program data elements. In addition, new software will be purchased through Department of Administration's (DOA) Master Lease program. DOA would then be reimbursed on an annual basis under the master lease program through the funding DWD receives from this bill. DWD BITS and software costs are unknown at this time as proposals for the purchase of software have not been received by vendors at this time. Total annual administration costs for the workforce training program will be identified by July 1, 2014.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications

The new initiative this bill will fund is projected to provide a return on the investment by adding to Wisconsin's workforce skills which match employers' needs. Workers with the right training will be quickly employed and employers will not need to look beyond Wisconsin for the skilled workforce they need. Thus, our investment will be offset by increased revenues from taxable wages and increased taxable employer income. Though, the amount of increased revenue cannot be projected at this time.

To ensure the grants are properly utilized and the training program is working as intended, funds are provided for audit and inspection activities. Recipients may be required to match the state investment of grants with their own funds.
