Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, the Department of Public Instruction (DPI) must approve driver education courses offered by school districts, county children with disabilities education boards, and technical college districts. DPI must also establish minimum standards for driver education courses offered by private driver schools. DPI may not approve a driver education course or establish driver education course standards unless the course or standards, among other things, provides instruction relating to safely dealing with the hazards posed by machinery and animals on highways and by railroad highway grade crossings, passing stopped emergency vehicles, and the hazards of text messaging while driving.

Under current law, the Technical College System Board (TCSB) must approve courses of study for each program offered in technical college district schools, including driver education courses. TCSB may not approve a driver education course unless the course, among other things, includes instruction relating to the same topics described above. The Department of Transportation (DOT) licenses private driver schools, and DOT may not license a driver school unless its course of instruction includes the content required for TCSB approval of a driver education course.

SENATE BILL 313

Under this bill, all approved driver education courses must provide each student with instruction in proper procedures for attaching a trailer to a motor vehicle.

Under current law, DOT must test knowledge and understanding of certain topics when it gives the knowledge examination for applicants for motor vehicle operator's licenses. These topics include highway signs, traffic laws, fuel-efficient driving habits, anatomical gifts, and the effects of consuming alcohol on operating a motor vehicle.

This bill requires DOT to include knowledge of proper procedures for attaching a trailer to a motor vehicle in its knowledge examination.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
