Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, each school district must hold school for 180 days each school term and must schedule at least 437 hours of direct pupil instruction in kindergarten, at least 1,050 hours of direct pupil instruction in grades one to six, and at least 1,137 hours of direct pupil instruction in grades seven to twelve. With some exceptions, the state superintendent must withhold state aid from a school district if the school district fails to hold school for 180 days. If, however, a school district holds less than 180 days of school as a result of a strike by school district employees, instead of withholding state aid from the school district, the amount of state aid is reduced to account for the amount of shared costs not incurred by the school district as a result of the strike.

SENATE BILL 589

This bill eliminates the requirement that a school district hold school for 180 days each year. The bill replaces the requirement that the state superintendent withhold state aid from a school district that fails to hold school for 180 days with a requirement that the state superintendent withhold state aid from a school district that fails to provide the hours of direct pupil instruction specified above.

Current law permits a school district to receive state aid for pupils who enroll in academic summer classes and laboratory periods offered by the school district if the state superintendent has determined that the classes are necessary for academic purposes. Current law also permits a school district to include in its revenue limit calculation a portion of the summer class enrollment for such necessary, academic classes and laboratory periods.

This bill permits a school district that provides year-round school to receive state aid for pupils who enroll in interim session classes and laboratory periods offered by the school district if the state superintendent has determined that the classes are necessary for academic purposes, and to include a portion of the interim class enrollment for such necessary, academic classes and laboratory periods in its revenue limit calculation. The bill defines “interim session” to mean a period of time in a school year when school is held by a school in a school district to provide direct pupil instruction.

This bill also permits a school district to receive state aid for and include in its revenue limit calculations a portion of the summer class enrollment and interim session enrollment of high school pupils and pupils in the seventh and eighth grades who complete an online summer class offered by the school district if all of the following conditions are satisfied: 1) the pupil either resides in the school district that offers the online class or is enrolled in that school district through the open enrollment program; 2) a high school pupil receives credit for completing the online class and a pupil in the seventh or eighth grade successfully completes the class; and 3) the school board of the school district that offers the online class has determined that the class fulfills a prerequisite to the receipt of a high school diploma.
