Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill regulates the practice of clinical exercise physiology, defined in the bill to include working with individuals who have chronic medical conditions for which exercise training has been shown to have a therapeutic benefit; administering clinical exercise assessments to individuals who have or are at risk for cardiovascular, pulmonary, or other chronic medical conditions; providing individuals with education and instruction based upon medical history, clinical assessment outcomes, and exercise training principles; and developing and implementing exercise training protocols and programs for individuals who have or are at risk for cardiovascular, pulmonary, and other chronic medical conditions for which exercise training has been shown to have a therapeutic benefit. Under the bill, no one may use the title “clinical exercise physiologist” or make similar representations without a license to practice clinical exercise physiology (license). A license is granted by the five-member Clinical Exercise Physiology Affiliated Credentialing Board (board), created in the bill. Under the bill, the board is attached for limited purposes to the Medical Examining Board, which regulates physicians and certain other professions.

Under the bill, the board may grant an initial license to a person who is at least 18 years of age, holds a master’s degree in exercise physiology or a related field, is certified by the American College of Sports Medicine, has at least 600 hours of qualifying clinical experience, and pays a fee. The bill also allows the board, for one year after the requirement in the bill to obtain a license goes into effect, to grant an initial license to practice clinical exercise physiology to certain individuals who cannot satisfy all of the requirements described above but who satisfy certain experience and other requirements.

The bill requires the board to promulgate rules that establish the qualifying degrees and qualifying clinical experience that are required for licensure, a scope of practice for clinical exercise physiologists, and standards for what constitutes unprofessional conduct for a clinical exercise physiologist.

The bill includes provisions for the professional discipline of licensees, which allow the board to take certain actions against a licensee who violates certain prohibitions in the bill.

Finally, the bill also applies certain other laws, such as the law providing for confidentiality of health care records and the health care workers whistleblowers protection law, to licensed clinical exercise physiologists.

Because this bill creates a new crime or revises a penalty for an existing crime, the Joint Review Committee on Criminal Penalties may be requested to prepare a report concerning the proposed penalty and the costs or savings that are likely to result if the bill is enacted.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
