3 recreate 767.481; and to create 767.14, 767.41 (6) (h), 767.805 (4) (am) and
4 767.89 (3) (bm) of the statutes; relating to: relocating with a child who is the
5 subject of a legal custody or physical placement order.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill changes the procedures for relocating a child's residence ^{when} where a court grants any periods of physical placement with a child to both parents and one parent intends to relocate and reside with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent.

Under current law, if the court grants periods of physical placement to more than one parent, a parent is required to provide at least 60 days' written notice to the court and the other parent of intent to move with the child out of state; move 150 miles or more from the other parent; or remove the child from the state for more than 90 consecutive days. If the other parent objects to the proposed action, he or she may file a notice of objection.

Currently, upon notice of objection, the court must refer the parents for mediation or other family court services and may appoint a guardian ad litem. If the dispute cannot be resolved through mediation, the court must appoint a guardian ad litem and may modify the legal custody or physical placement order to accommodate or prohibit the move. Depending on how custody and placement are allocated between the parents, there are a number of factors that the court must consider, including whether modification is in the best interest of the child, when determining whether to modify the legal custody or physical placement order affecting the child.

Under the bill, if both parents are granted periods of physical placement with a child, a parent must obtain a court order before relocating with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent, unless the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other. The bill requires a parent to file a motion to relocate a child's residence and a relocation plan, and requires an initial hearing on the motion to be held within 30 days of filing. If the other parent does not object or appear at the hearing, the court must approve the relocation plan submitted by the parent unless it finds that the plan is not in the best interest of the child. Under the bill, if the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other, a parent proposing to relocate with a child must provide 60 days' written notice to the other parent.

If the other parent objects to the relocation, the court must require a response from the objecting parent, refer the parties to mediation, appoint a guardian ad litem, and set the matter for a second hearing to be held within 60 days. After the initial hearing but before the final hearing, the court may allow a parent to relocate with the child, subject to revision at the final hearing, if the court finds that the relocation is in the child's best interest.

The bill establishes standards for deciding relocation motions, including whether the new placement schedule will substantially change the physical placement schedule, consideration of the factors for legal custody, whether a parent has exercised court-ordered physical placement rights, and whether the relocation is in the best interest of the child. Under the bill, there is a presumption that the court should approve the relocation if the parent's move is related to domestic abuse or abuse of the child.

INS-A

At any time after a motion for relocation of a child is filed, the bill allows the parties to file a stipulated agreement with the court that specifies that neither parent has any objection to the planned move and that sets out any agreed upon modification to legal custody or periods of physical placement. The bill requires the court to incorporate the terms of the stipulation into an order for relocation or revised order of legal custody or physical placement, unless the court finds that the modification is not in the best interest of the child.

4 767.89 (3) (bm) of the statutes; relating to: relocating with a child who is the
5 subject of a legal custody or physical placement order.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill changes the procedures for relocating a child's residence when a court grants any periods of physical placement with a child to both parents and one parent intends to relocate and reside with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent.

Under current law, if the court grants periods of physical placement to more than one parent, a parent is required to provide at least 60 days' written notice to the court and the other parent of intent to move with the child out of state; move 150 miles or more from the other parent; or remove the child from the state for more than 90 consecutive days. If the other parent objects to the proposed action, he or she may file a notice of objection.

Currently, upon notice of objection, the court must refer the parents for mediation or other family court services and may appoint a guardian ad litem. If the dispute cannot be resolved through mediation, the court must appoint a guardian ad litem and may modify the legal custody or physical placement order to accommodate or prohibit the move. Depending on how custody and placement are allocated between the parents, there are a number of factors that the court must consider, including whether modification is in the best interest of the child, when determining whether to modify the legal custody or physical placement order affecting the child.

Under the bill, if both parents are granted periods of physical placement with a child, a parent must obtain a court order before relocating with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent, unless the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other. The bill requires a parent to file a motion to relocate a child's residence and a relocation plan, and requires an initial hearing on the motion to be held within 30 days of filing. If the other parent does not object or appear at the hearing, the court must approve the relocation plan submitted by the parent unless it finds that the plan is not in the best interest of the child. Under the bill, if the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other, a parent proposing to relocate with a child must provide 60 days' written notice to the other parent.

If the other parent objects to the relocation, the court must require a response from the objecting parent, refer the parties to mediation, appoint a guardian ad litem, and set the matter for a second hearing to be held within 60 days. After the initial hearing but before the final hearing, the court may allow a parent to relocate with the child, subject to revision at the final hearing, if the court finds that the relocation is in the child's best interest. Under the bill, if the proposed relocation plan does not affect the existing placement schedule or only minimally affects the existing placement schedule, the court is required to approve the proposed relocation. If the proposed relocation will have more than a minimal effect on the existing placement schedule, the court is required to consider the factors in custody and physical placement determinations. Under the bill, there is a presumption in favor of granting the motion to relocate the child if the objecting parent has not significantly exercised court-ordered physical placement or if the move is related to abuse.

At any time after a motion for relocation of a child is filed, the bill allows the parties to file a stipulated agreement with the court that specifies that neither parent has any objection to the planned relocation and that sets out any agreed upon modification to legal custody or periods of physical placement. The bill requires the court to incorporate the terms of the stipulation into an order for relocation or revised order of legal custody or physical placement, unless the court finds that the modification is not in the best interest of the child.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 767.001 (1) (k) of the statutes is amended to read:

19 767.225 (1) (bm) Allowing a party to ~~move with or remove~~ relocate and reside 20 with a child after a notice of objection has been filed pending a final hearing under 21 s. 767.481 (2) (a) (3).

22 SECTION 7. 767.41 (4) (d) of the statutes is repealed.

23 SECTION 8. 767.41 (6) (h) of the statutes is created to read:

1 767.41 (6) (h) In making an order of legal custody and periods of physical
2 placement, the court shall in writing inform the parents, and any other person
3 granted legal custody of the child, of all of the following:

4 1. That each parent must notify the other parent, the child support agency, and 5 the clerk of court of the address at which they may be served within 10 business days
6 of moving to that address. The address may be a street or post office address.

7 2. That the address provided to the court is the address on which the other 8 parties may rely for service of any motion relating to modification of legal custody or 9 physical placement or to relocating the child's residence.

10 3. That a parent granted periods of physical placement with the child must 11 obtain a court order before relocating with the child 100 miles or more from the other 12 parent if the other parent also has court-ordered periods of physical placement with 13 the child.

14 SECTION 9. 767.481 of the statutes is repealed and recreated to read:

15 767.481 Relocating a child's residence. (1) MOTION; FILING AND SERVING.

16 (a) Except as provided in par. (d), if the court grants any periods of physical 17 placement with a child to both parents and one parent intends to relocate and reside 18 with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent, the parent who intends to 19 relocate and reside with the child shall file a motion with the court seeking 20 permission for the child's relocation.

21 (b) The motion under par. (a) shall include all of the following:

22 1. A relocation plan including:

23 a. The date of the proposed relocation.

24 b. The municipality and state of the proposed new residence.

25 c. The reason for the relocation.

1 d. If applicable, a proposed new placement schedule, including placement
2 during the school year, summers, and holidays.

3 e. The proposed responsibility and allocation of costs for each parent for 4 transportation of the child between the parties under any proposed new placement
5 schedule.

6 2. If applicable, a request for a change in legal custody.

7 3. Notice to the other parent that, if he or she objects to the relocation, he or 8 she must file and serve, no later than 5 days before the initial hearing, an objection
9 to the relocation and any alternate proposal, including a modification of physical 10 placement or legal custody.

11 4. An attached "Objection to Relocation" form, furnished by the court, for use 12 by the other parent if he or she objects to the relocation.

13 (c) The parent filing the motion shall serve a copy of the motion by mail on the 14 other parent at his or her most recent address on file with the court. If the parent 15 filing the motion has actual knowledge that the other parent has a different address
16 from the one on file, the motion shall be served by mail at both addresses.

17 (d) The requirement to file a motion under par. (a) does not apply if the child's 18 parents already live more than 100 miles apart when a parent proposes to relocate
19 and reside with the child. If the parents already live more than 100 miles apart, the 20 parent who intends to relocate with the child shall serve written notice of his or her
21 intent to relocate on the other parent at least 60 days before relocation. Such written 22 notice shall include the date on which the parent intends to relocate and the parent's 23 new address.

24 (2) INITIAL HEARING. (a) Upon the filing of a motion under sub. (1) (a), the court
25 shall schedule an initial hearing to be held within 30 days after the motion is filed

1 and shall provide notice to the parents of the date of the initial hearing. The child
2 may not be relocated pending the initial hearing.

3 (b) If the court finds at the initial hearing that the parent not filing the motion
4 was properly served and does not appear at the hearing, or appears at the hearing 5 but does not object to the proposed relocation plan, the court shall approve the 6 proposed relocation plan submitted by the parent filing the motion unless the court
7 finds that the proposed relocation plan is not in the best interest of the child.

8 (c) If the parent not filing the motion appears at the initial hearing and objects
9 to the relocation plan, the court shall do all of the following:

10 1. Require the parent who objects to respond by stating in writing within 5 11 business days, if he or she has not already done so, the basis for the objection and his 12 or her proposals for a new placement schedule and transportation responsibilities
13 and costs under sub. (1) (b) 4. and 5. in the event that the court grants the parent 14 filing the motion permission to relocate with the child. The parent who objects shall 15 file the response with the court and serve a copy of the response by mail on the other
16 parent at his or her most recent address on file with the court. If the parent filing 17 the response has actual knowledge that the other parent has a different address from 18 the one on file, the response shall be served by mail to both addresses.

19 2. Refer the parties to mediation, unless the court finds that attending 20 mediation would cause undue hardship or endanger the health or safety of a party 21 as provided in s. 767.405 (8) (b).

22 3. Except as provided in s. 767.407 (1) (am), appoint a guardian ad litem for the 23 child. The court shall provide in the order for appointment, however, that if a 24 mediator is ordered under subd. 2. the guardian ad litem is not required to commence

1 investigation on behalf of the child unless the mediator notifies the court that the 2 parties are unable to reach an agreement on the issue.

3 4. Set the matter for a further hearing to be held within 60 days.

4 (3) RELOCATION PENDING FINAL HEARING. (a) At the initial hearing, or at any time
5 after the initial hearing but before the final hearing, the court may issue a temporary
6 order under s. 767.225 (1) (bm) to allow the parent proposing the relocation to
7 relocate with the child if the court finds that the relocation is in the child's immediate
8 best interest. The court shall inform the parties, however, that approval of the 9 relocation is subject to revision at the final hearing.

10 (b) If a court commissioner makes a determination, order, or ruling regarding
11 relocation pending the final hearing under par. (a), either party may seek a review
12 by hearing de novo under s. 757.69 (8). The motion requesting the de novo hearing
13 must be filed with the court within 10 days after the court commissioner orally issues
14 the determination, order, or ruling. The judge shall hold the de novo hearing within 15 30 days after the motion requesting the de novo hearing is filed, unless the court finds
16 good cause for an extension.

17 (4) STANDARDS FOR DECIDING RELOCATION MOTIONS. At the final hearing, the court
18 shall decide the matter as follows:

19 (a) If the proposed relocation only minimally changes or affects the current 20 placement schedule or does not affect or change the current placement schedule, the 21 court shall approve the proposed relocation, set a new placement schedule if 22 appropriate, and allocate the costs of and responsibility for transportation of the 23 child between the parties under the new placement schedule.

1 (b) In cases other than that specified in par. (a), the court shall, in determining
2 whether to approve the proposed relocation and a new placement schedule, use the
3 following factors:

4 1. The factors under s. 767.41 (5).

5 2. A presumption that the court should approve the plan of the parent
6 proposing the relocation if the court determines that the objecting parent has not
7 significantly exercised court-ordered physical placement.

8 3. A presumption that the court should approve the relocation plan if the court
9 determines that the parent's relocation is related to abuse, as defined in s. 813.122
10 (1) (a), of the child, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (b); a pattern or serious incident of 11 interspousal battery, as described under s. 940.19 or 940.20 (1m); or a pattern or 12 serious incident of domestic abuse, as defined in s. 813.12 (1) (am).

13 (c) If the objecting parent files a responsive motion that seeks a substantial
14 change in physical placement or a change in legal custody, the court shall, in deciding
15 the motion of the objecting parent, use the following factors:

16 1. The factors under s. 767.41 (5).

17 2. A presumption against transferring legal custody or the residence of the 18 child to a parent who the court determines has significantly failed to exercise
19 court-ordered physical placement.

20 3. A presumption that the court should approve the plan of the parent
21 proposing the relocation if the court determines that the parent's relocation is related
22 to abuse, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (a), of the child, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (b);
23 a pattern or serious incident of interspousal battery, as described under s. 940.19 or
24 940.20 (1m); or a pattern or serious incident of domestic abuse, as defined in s. 813.12
25 (1) (am).

1 (d) The court shall decide all contested relocation motions and all related
2 motions for modification of legal custody or physical placement in the best interest
3 of the child. The movant bears the burden of proof in a contested relocation motion
4 or a related motion for modification of legal custody or physical placement except in
5 cases involving a presumption under par. (b) 2. or 3. or (c) 2. or 3. In cases involving
6 a presumption under par. (b) 2. or 3. or (c) 2. or 3., the parent objecting to the
7 relocation shall have the burden of proof in demonstrating the proposed relocation
8 is not in the child's best interest.

9 (e) If the objecting parent files a responsive motion that seeks a substantial
10 change in physical placement or a change in legal custody, and the parent proposing
11 the relocation withdraws or otherwise fails to pursue his or her relocation motion or 12 the court does not allow the relocation, the court shall proceed on the objecting
13 parent's responsive motion under s. 767.451.

14 (5) STIPULATIONS. At any time after a motion is filed under sub. (1), if the parties
15 agree that one parent may relocate more than 100 miles away from the other parent,
16 the parties may file a stipulation with the court that specifies that neither parent has 17 any objection to the planned relocation and that sets out any agreed upon
18 modification to legal custody or periods of physical placement, including
19 responsibility and costs for transportation of the child between the parties under a
20 proposed new placement schedule. The court shall incorporate the terms of the 21 stipulation into an order for the relocation or a revised order of legal custody or 22 physical placement, as appropriate, unless the court finds that the modification is
23 not in the best interest of the child.

24 (6) OTHER NOTICE REQUIRED FOR REMOVALS. Except as otherwise provided in an 25 order or judgment allocating periods of physical placement with a child, a person who

SECTION 9

1 has legal custody of and periods of physical placement with the child shall notify any
2 other person who has periods of physical placement with the child before removing
3 the child from the child's residence for a period of more than 14 consecutive days.

4 (7) APPLICABILITY. (a) The requirements and procedures under this section
5 apply to relocations with or removals of a child in any of the following cases:

6 1. Cases that are originally commenced on or after the effective date of this 7 subdivision [LRB inserts date].

8 2. Cases that were originally commenced before the effective date of this 9 subdivision [LRB inserts date], but in which a legal custody or physical placement
10 order is modified on or after the effective date of this subdivision [LRB inserts
11 date].

12 (b) Except as provided in par. (a) 2., the requirements and procedures under 13 s. 767.481, 2015 stats., apply to moves with or removals of a child in cases that were 14 originally commenced before the effective date of this paragraph [LRB inserts
15 date].

16 SECTION 10. 767.805 (4) (am) of the statutes is created to read:

17 767.805 (4) (am) The information set forth in s. 767.41 (6) (h).

18 SECTION 11. 767.89 (3) (bm) of the statutes is created to read:

19 767.89 (3) (bm) The information set forth in s. 767.41 (6) (h).

20 SECTION 12. 767.89 (6) of the statutes is amended to read:

21 767.89 (6) OTHER APPLICABLE PROVISIONS. Sections 767.41, 767.43, 767.451, 22 767.481, 767.57, 767.58, 767.59, 767.71, 767.75, 767.76, 767.77, and 767.78, where 23 applicable, apply to a judgment or order under this section.

24 SECTION 13. Initial applicability.

On this draft, you requested that I remove SECTION 5, leaving the prohibition on removing a minor child of the parties from the state for more than 90 consecutive days during the pendency of an action affecting the family under s. 767.215 (2) (j) 2. However, this prohibition is mirrored in s. 767.117 (1) (c). Therefore, in order to maintain consistency between these two statutes, I also changed the language in SECTION 2 of the bill back to keep the current prohibition on removing a minor child of the parties from the state (rather than from the child's residence) for more than 90 consecutive days. I believe this change is consistent with previous feedback from the State Bar and maintains the intent of the current statutes.

Please let me know if you have any other questions about this draft.

4 statutes; relating to: relocating with a child who is the subject of a legal 5 custody or physical placement order.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill changes the procedures for relocating a child's residence when a court grants any periods of physical placement with a child to both parents and one parent intends to relocate and reside with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent.

Under current law, if the court grants periods of physical placement to more than one parent, a parent is required to provide at least 60 days' written notice to the court and the other parent of intent to move with the child out of state; move 150 miles or more from the other parent; or remove the child from the state for more than 90 consecutive days. If the other parent objects to the proposed action, he or she may file a notice of objection.

Currently, upon notice of objection, the court must refer the parents for mediation or other family court services and may appoint a guardian ad litem. If the dispute cannot be resolved through mediation, the court must appoint a guardian ad litem and may modify the legal custody or physical placement order to accommodate or prohibit the move. Depending on how custody and placement are allocated between the parents, there are a number of factors that the court must consider, including whether modification is in the best interest of the child, when determining whether to modify the legal custody or physical placement order affecting the child.

Under the bill, if both parents are granted periods of physical placement with a child, a parent must obtain a court order before relocating with the child 100 miles or more from the other parent, unless the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other. The bill requires a parent to file a motion to relocate a child's residence and a relocation plan, and requires an initial hearing on the motion to be held within 30 days of filing. If the other parent does not object or appear at the hearing, the court must approve the relocation plan submitted by the parent unless it finds that the plan is not in the best interest of the child. Under the bill, if the parents already live 100 miles or more away from each other, a parent proposing to relocate with a child must provide 60 days' written notice to the other parent.

If the other parent objects to the relocation, the court must require a response from the objecting parent, refer the parties to mediation, appoint a guardian ad litem, and set the matter for a second hearing to be held within 60 days. After the initial hearing but before the final hearing, the court may allow a parent to relocate with the child, subject to revision at the final hearing, if the court finds that the relocation is in the child's best interest. Under the bill, if the proposed relocation plan does not affect the existing placement schedule or only minimally affects the existing placement schedule, the court is required to approve the proposed relocation. If the proposed relocation will have more than a minimal effect on the existing placement schedule, the court is required to consider the factors in custody and physical placement determinations. Under the bill, there is a presumption in favor of granting the motion to relocate the child if the objecting parent has not significantly exercised court-ordered physical placement or if the move is related to abuse.

At any time after a motion for relocation of a child is filed, the bill allows the parties to file a stipulated agreement with the court that specifies that neither parent has any objection to the planned relocation and that sets out any agreed upon modification to legal custody or periods of physical placement. The bill requires the court to incorporate the terms of the stipulation into an order for relocation or revised order of legal custody or physical placement, unless the court finds that the modification is not in the best interest of the child.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 767.001 (1) (k) of the statutes is amended to read:

2 767.001 (1) (k) Concerning periods of physical placement or visitation rights

2 the consent of the other party or an order of the court, relocating and establishing

1 (3) RELOCATION PENDING FINAL HEARING. (a) At the initial hearing, or at any time
2 after the initial hearing but before the final hearing, the court may issue a temporary
3 order under s. 767.225 (1) (bm) to allow the parent proposing the relocation to
4 relocate with the child if the court finds that the relocation is in the child's immediate
5 best interest. The court shall inform the parties, however, that approval of the 6 relocation is subject to revision at the final hearing.

7 (b) If a court commissioner makes a determination, order, or ruling regarding
8 relocation pending the final hearing under par. (a), either party may seek a review
9 by hearing de novo under s. 757.69 (8). The motion requesting the de novo hearing
10 must be filed with the court within 10 days after the court commissioner orally issues
11 the determination, order, or ruling. The judge shall hold the de novo hearing within 12 30 days after the motion requesting the de novo hearing is filed, unless the court finds
13 good cause for an extension.

14 (4) STANDARDS FOR DECIDING RELOCATION MOTIONS. At the final hearing, the court
15 shall decide the matter as follows:

16 (a) If the proposed relocation only minimally changes or affects the current 17 placement schedule or does not affect or change the current placement schedule, the 18 court shall approve the proposed relocation, set a new placement schedule if 19 appropriate, and allocate the costs of and responsibility for transportation of the 20 child between the parties under the new placement schedule.

21 (b) In cases other than that specified in par. (a), the court shall, in determining
22 whether to approve the proposed relocation and a new placement schedule, use the
23 following factors:

24 1. The factors under s. 767.41 (5).

1 2. A presumption that the court should approve the plan of the parent
2 proposing the relocation if the court determines that the objecting parent has not
3 significantly exercised court-ordered physical placement.

4 3. A presumption that the court should approve the relocation plan if the court
5 determines that the parent's relocation is related to abuse, as defined in s. 813.122
6 (1) (a), of the child, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (b); a pattern or serious incident of
7 interspousal battery, as described under s. 940.19 or 940.20 (1m); or a pattern or
8 serious incident of domestic abuse, as defined in s. 813.12 (1) (am).

9 (c) If the objecting parent files a responsive motion that seeks a substantial
10 change in physical placement or a change in legal custody, the court shall, in deciding
11 the motion of the objecting parent, use the following factors:

12 1. The factors under s. 767.41 (5).

13 2. A presumption against transferring legal custody or the residence of the 14 child to a parent who the court determines has significantly failed to exercise
15 court-ordered physical placement.

16 3. A presumption that the court should approve the plan of the parent
17 proposing the relocation if the court determines that the parent's relocation is related
18 to abuse, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (a), of the child, as defined in s. 813.122 (1) (b);
19 a pattern or serious incident of interspousal battery, as described under s. 940.19 or
20 940.20 (1m); or a pattern or serious incident of domestic abuse, as defined in s. 813.12
21 (1) (am).

22 (d) The court shall decide all contested relocation motions and all related
23 motions for modification of legal custody or physical placement in the best interest
24 of the child. The movant bears the burden of proof in a contested relocation motion
25 or a related motion for modification of legal custody or physical placement except in

1 cases involving a presumption under par. (b) 2. or 3. or (c) 2. or 3. In cases involving
2 a presumption under par. (b) 2. or 3. or (c) 2. or 3., the parent objecting to the
3 relocation shall have the burden of proof in demonstrating the proposed relocation
4 is not in the child's best interest.

5 (e) If the objecting parent files a responsive motion that seeks a substantial
6 change in physical placement or a change in legal custody, and the parent proposing
7 the relocation withdraws or otherwise fails to pursue his or her relocation motion or
8 the court does not allow the relocation, the court shall proceed on the objecting
9 parent's responsive motion under s. 767.451.

10 (5) STIPULATIONS. At any time after a motion is filed under sub. (1), if the parties
11 agree that one parent may relocate more than 100 miles away from the other parent,
12 the parties may file a stipulation with the court that specifies that neither parent has
13 any objection to the planned relocation and that sets out any agreed upon
14 modification to legal custody or periods of physical placement, including
15 responsibility and costs for transportation of the child between the parties under a
16 proposed new placement schedule. The court shall incorporate the terms of the 17 stipulation into an order for the relocation or a revised order of legal custody or 18 physical placement, as appropriate, unless the court finds that the modification is 19 not in the best interest of the child.

20 (6) OTHER NOTICE REQUIRED FOR REMOVALS. Except as otherwise provided in an 21 order or judgment allocating periods of physical placement with a child, a person who
22 has legal custody of and periods of physical placement with the child shall notify any 23 other person who has periods of physical placement with the child before removing
24 the child from the child's residence for a period of more than 14 consecutive days.

1 (7) APPLICABILITY. (a) The requirements and procedures under this section
