Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill allows for the limited face-to-face sale of certain homemade baked and canned foods without a licensing requirement.

Current law requires food processing plant licenses from the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection for certain facilities at which food is manufactured or prepared for sale through processes such as baking, canning, freezing, and bottling, with specified exemptions. If the food will be sold at retail at the same location as it was manufactured or prepared, a retail food establishment license may also be required.

This bill provides an exemption from the requirement to obtain a food processing plant license or a retail food establishment license for the face-to-face sale of nonhazardous homemade baked goods to consumers by a person who receives less than $7,500 per year from the sale of the food, registers with DATCP, and complies with requirements concerning training, labeling, signage, and documenting sales. A baked good is nonhazardous if it is acidic or has a low amount of moisture and will not support the growth of dangerous organisms. The bill prohibits door-to-door sales under the exemption.

Current law provides an exemption from the requirement to obtain a food processing plant license for the sale of food products, such as pickles, that are prepared and canned by a person at home if certain requirements are met. Under current law, the sales of the canned products must take place at a community or social event or a farmer’s market. This bill replaces that requirement with a requirement that the sales be face-to-face sales to consumers, but prohibits door-to-door sales. Under current law, the exemption applies only if the person receives less than $5,000 per year from the sale of the canned products. Under this bill, the exemption applies if the person receives less than $7,500 per year from the sales. This bill also creates an identical exemption from the requirement to obtain a retail food establishment license for the sale of these canned food products.

The bill also requires DATCP to provide information about the kinds of foods that may be sold without a food processing plant license or a retail food establishment license, about food safety, and about safe storage of baked goods, ingredients, and packaging materials.
