Under current law, DHS is required to create two or three comprehensive opioid treatment programs and two or three additional opioid and methamphetamine treatment programs to provide treatment for opioid, opiate, and methamphetamine addiction in underserved, high-need areas. Current law prohibits these treatment programs from offering methadone treatment, and this bill removes that prohibition.

Tami,

Your example of "...medication-assisted treatment, including medications approved by the FDA for treating opioid addiction." Will work just fine.

Thank you

Subject: RE: 1785/P1

Nathan,

I'm wondering if it "any" would fit better than "all" medications. It could even just say "...medication-assisted treatment, including medications approved by the FDA for treating opioid addiction." If the provision reads "including all medications..." it means that the program is required to provide every last medication approved by the FDA for opioid addiction regardless how expensive or how difficult to obtain. If that is what is intended, then that's fine, but it would be unusual.
