Senator Taylor, with unanimous consent, asked that the Senate adjourn in honor of proclaiming February 2022 as Black History Month. Black History Month provides a deliberate opportunity to reflect on the common humanity underlying all people and to raise awareness and foster respect for the heritage and contributions of people of African descent. This year marks over 400 years since the arrival of enslaved Africans in Virginia. The existence of Africans in North America can be traced back to 1525, and through 1866 the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade is estimated to have ensnared more than 12 million African people, with an estimated 10 million surviving the unconscionable Middle Passage, landing in North America, the Caribbean, and South America. Wisconsin history first references African descendants in a speech given in 1725 by a chief of the Illinois Indians, in which he said, "a negro belonging to Monsieur de Boisbriant" at Green Bay. On February 12, 1926, noted Harvard scholar and historian Dr. Carter G. Woodson founded "Negro History Week," and since then the United States has recognized first Negro History Week and then Black History Month and celebrated the ethnic and racial diversity that enriches and strengthens our nation. Both enslaved and free people of African descent have participated in every aspect of America's effort to secure, protect, and advance the cause of freedom and civil rights, and have stories that are an inspiration to all citizens, that reflect the triumph of the human spirit, and that offer the hopes of everyday people to rise above both prejudice and circumstance and to build lives of dignity. People of African descent or African Americans have made measurable differences in their respective industries, such as: Denmark Vesey—Carpenter and formerly enslaved person. Allegedly planned a revolt against slave owners in Charleston, South Carolina. Founder of the African Methodist Episcopal congregation that would become Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church. Eddie O'Jay—Member of the Radio Hall of Fame, R&B disc jockey and radio personality of WOKY/Milwaukee. Sidney Poitier—Award-winning actor who was the first Black actor to win the Academy Award for Best Actor. Colin Powell—The son of Jamaican immigrants who became the first Black person to be confirmed as the United States Secretary of State. Mr. Powell also served in many other high profile positions including Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, National Security Advisor, and Deputy National Security Advisor. Mr. Abloh was also the chief executive officer of the Milan-based label Off-White, a fashion house he founded in 2013. He was also a graduate of the University of Wisconsin—Madison with a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering. Gerard Randall—Executive Director of the Milwaukee Education Partnership, which aims to enhance the quality of teaching and learning in Milwaukee Public Schools, bring every student up to grade level standards, improve access to higher education opportunities, and advocate for public education. Mr. Randall is the Managing Partner of The Lazarus Group, which provides education and workforce development guidance, strategic planning, and support. He also serves as adjunct professor with the University of Wisconsin—Milwaukee in the Department of Education Policy and Community Studies. Gaulien "Gee" Smith—Milwaukee barber and owner of Gee's Clippers who opened up a vaccination clinic in his barbershop to address vaccine hesitancy and racial disparities in the administration of the COVID-19 vaccine. Because of his efforts, he helped expand vaccine access to many in the greater Milwaukee community. Gee's Clippers is the largest Black barbershop in the state and has served the Milwaukee community for almost 25 years. While acknowledging the work of these leaders, it is equally critical to appreciate, both past and present, the long list of contributions of our fellow citizens; Black History Month gives Wisconsinites an occasion to recognize the significant influence people of African heritage have made, and continue to make, in the areas of medicine, art, politics, human rights, education, sports, law enforcement, and economic development.
