Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill make a number of changes to current law regarding the oversight of elections in this state.

Federal funds

The governor is authorized under current law to accept funds from the federal government and to designate the state agency that will receive the funds. Generally, a designated state agency must expend the funds consistent with federal requirements for accepting and spending the funds. Under the bill, before the governor may disburse federal funds to the Elections Commission, the commission must submit a plan for use of the funds to the Joint Committee on Finance. If the committee does not schedule a meeting to review the plan within 14 days of receiving the plan from the commission, the commission may implement the plan and the governor may disburse the funds. If the committee schedules a meeting to review the plan within 14 days of receiving the plan from the commission, the commission may not implement the plan, and the governor may not disburse the funds, without the committee’s approval.
Federal election guidance

The bill requires state agencies to submit federal election guidance, and communications from the federal government or the Department of Justice related to that guidance, to the senate majority leader, the senate minority leader, the speaker of the assembly, the assembly minority leader, the chairpersons of the standing committees with jurisdiction concerning elections, and the cochairpersons of the Joint Committee for Review of Administrative Rules no later than 48 hours after receiving the guidance or communication. Under the bill, a state agency must not take any action to implement federal election guidance without the approval of JCRAR, except that if JCRAR does not schedule a meeting to review the guidance within 30 days of receiving the it, the state agency may implement the guidance. The bill defines “federal election guidance” as any directive or guidance issued by the federal department of justice or any other executive branch agency of the federal government pertaining to elections, including the times, places, and manner for administering elections in this state.

Registration and voting statistics

Under current law, no later than 30 days after an election, each municipal clerk must submit a report to the Elections Commission and to the county clerk of the county where the municipality is located that provides certain registration and voting statistics. The report must provide the number of voters who voted in the election; the number of voters who registered before election day; the number of voters who registered on election day; the number of voters who voted by absentee ballot; and, generally, the results of the postelection audit to verify election day registrations.

Under the bill, the report that the municipal clerk submits to the commission and the county clerk after each election must also include the following:

1. The total number of registered voters residing in the municipality on the day of the election
2. The total number of voters who registered to vote beginning on the day of the immediately preceding election and ending on the day of the most recent election.
3. The total number of voters voting absentee ballots by mail and the total number of voters voting absentee ballots in person.
4. The total number absentee ballots returned by voters that were not counted and the reasons for why such ballots were not counted.
5. The total number of voters casting ballots at the polling place.
6. The total number of voters casting provisional ballots and the number of such ballots they were ultimately not counted.
7. The total number of defective ballots that election officials recreated, with a separate itemization of such ballots cast by military and oversea electors, damaged ballots, and ballots recreated for other reasons.
8. The location of each residential care facility and qualified retirement home to which the municipality dispatched special voting deputies and the total number of ballots cast by residents of the facilities and homes using special voting deputies.
9. The number of voters whose personally identifiable information on the official registration list did not match the personally identifiable information maintained by the Department of Transportation beginning on the day of the immediately preceding election and ending on the day of the most recent election; a description of each mismatch; and the number of such voters whose registration status was changed from eligible to ineligible.

The bill also requires that, no later than 30 days after each election at which a state or national office is filled, each county clerk submit to the Elections Commission a report that indicates the number of ballots that the county clerk ordered for each municipality and distributed to each municipality for the election; the number of ballots ultimately cast in that election; the number of ballots rejected and the reasons for rejection; the number of unused ballots; any other action that the county performed to reconcile the total number of ballots with the number of votes cast; and an explanation of any discrepancy between the number of ballots ordered and the number distributed and of any discrepancy between the number of ballots distributed and the number cast or rejected.

Under the bill, within seven days after receiving a report from a municipal clerk under current law or from a county clerk under the bill, the Elections Commission must publish the report on the commission’s Internet site in a format that is easily accessible to the public. In addition, the commission must submit each county clerk’s report to the legislature and the Legislative Audit Bureau within seven days after receiving the report. Under the bill, LAB reviews the report and, within 30 days after receiving the report, submits a report to the legislature with its findings and recommendations, including a description of any discrepancies it found and any explanation of those discrepancies it received from local election officials.

Elections Commission legal counsel

Current law requires that all employees of the Elections Commission be nonpartisan. This bill requires that legal counsel for the commission be partisan. Under the bill, the legislative leadership of one of the two major political parties that received the largest number of votes for president at the most recent presidential election appoints one individual to serve as legal counsel and the legislative leadership of the other such political party appoints one individual to serve as legal counsel.

 Archived copy of the registration list **

Under the bill, on the first day of each month, the Elections Commission must archive an electronic copy of the official registration list as it appeared for the previous month and retain that copy for no less than 22 months.

For further information see the local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
