Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

making authority under the statutes. Once promulgated, these rules remain in effect indefinitely unless repealed (by rulemaking or by legislation) or amended by the agency or suspended by the Joint Committee for Review of Administrative Rules (JCRAR).

This bill requires the expiration of each chapter of permanent rules in the Wisconsin Administrative Code after seven years, unless the chapter is readopted by the agency through the readoption process established under this bill. The bill also requires JCRAR to establish a schedule for the expiration of all existing code chapters that are in effect on the effective date of the bill. Under the bill, in the year before a code chapter expires, an agency may send a readoption notice to JCRAR and the appropriate standing committees proposing to readopt the chapter. If no member of JCRAR or the standing committee object to the readoption, the chapter is considered readopted, and no further action is required of the agency. If a member objects, the chapter expires on its expiration date unless the agency promulgates a rule to readopt the chapter using the standard rule-making process.

Under the bill, JCRAR may also extend the effective date of the chapter set to expire for up to one year to accommodate readoption of the chapter through the standard rule-making process. Finally, the bill requires agencies to avoid the use in rules of words or phrases that are outdated or that are now understood to be offensive or derogatory.

The fiscal impact to the Department of Workforce Development is indeterminate primarily because the department is unable to accurately predict the frequency of objections.

At a minimum, the department would have increased workload to develop required materials for JCRAR review of rules scheduled for expiration under this bill. Additional rulemaking workload, including but not limited to, economic analyses and public hearings, is dependent on the number of JCRAR or standing committee objections to re-adoption of the department's chapters of permanent rules in the Wisconsin Administrative Code.
