Relating to: Fees
Comments: Oral or Exhibit No.	Presenter, Group Represented, City and State	Comments/Recommendations	Agency Response
Speaker #1	Patrick Stevens, Wisconsin Builders Association Madison	Objects to the proposed fee for course approvals or requests exemption for non-profit entities. Opposes the change from 5 to 3 years for course approvals. Believes the proposed fee will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Negatively impact builders and builder associations which provide classes at no fee or a nominal fee. • Discourage educational opportunities • Be problematic to the industry in light of the other department fee increases. Contends the implementation of the fee will be passed on to course attendees who as credential holders will be paying twice for the service. Contends that the 5 to 3 year reduction for course approvals will increase the department's workload and suggests the department focus on minimizing reviews as a method of controlling costs. Indicates that Illinois, Iowa and Michigan do not charge fees for the review and approval of continuing education courses.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Speaker #2	J. Scott Mathie, Metropolitan Builders Association Waukesha	Is not clear on the rationale for the proposed fees to review continuing educational course submittals, in that the same program is being funded by credential fees. Contends that the proposed reduction for course approvals from 5 to 3 years, will exacerbate any strain on staff review times. Believes that the implementation of the fee will curtail the organization's approach to provide a substantial amount of educational variety. Suggests the elimination of this proposed fee.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #1 (email)	Mary Ann Schneider, Mid-Wisconsin Home Builders Association Schneider continued	Is against any fees to be levied for continuing education course approvals. Views the proposal as a punishment to those who provide classes for free. Proposes the 501c's be excluded from the fees.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.

		Contends that if implemented, that the fees will be charged backed to members who can ill afford it now.
Written #2	Jill Larson, St. Croix Valley Home Builders Association Roberts	Contends that the need for the continuing course approval fee has not been demonstrated – in that the course review costs have been offset by credentialing fees. Contends the implementation of the fee will be passed on to course attendees who as credential holders will be paying twice for the service. Suggests exempting non-profit organizations from this fee.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #3	Vicki Markussen, LaCrosse Builders Association Onalaska	Registers in opposition to the establishment of fees for continuing education course approvals. Believes the fees to be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Paying twice for the same service. • Negatively impacts non-profit organizations. • Harmful to the diversity of education offered. • Hard for builders to bear in the current difficult economic conditions. • Inconsistent with Illinois, Iowa and Michigan which do not charge fees for the review and approval of continuing education courses. Contends changing the frequency for reviewing courses to every 3 years versus the current 5 years would increase the department’s workload.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #4	Ryan Rugroden, Rugroden Drafting & Design Onalaska	Believes that the proposed fee for the review of programs and seminars shows how out of touch government is with people and their current financial situations. Believes that the fees will hurt the housing construction industry even more. Contends that the association will have to worry about getting enough attendees to offset the cost. Does not believe the fees is needed in the first place, if current costs are being offset by credentialing fees.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.

Written #9 (email)	Mike Vilstrup, Madison Area Builders Association	Objects to the proposed fee for course approvals or requests exemption for non-profit entities. Contends that the fees will have a negative impact on the association's ability to provide courses and will hurt the housing construction industry even more.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #10	David Boetcher, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Madison	Opposes the proposed fee for course approvals. Feels that this creates a new tax that is an unfair burden on their education system. Contends that electrical licensing that will soon be mandatory statewide will substantially increase the department's revenue stream. Indicates that the organization does not charge their members for the classes; views the proposed fee as reducing their ability to offer more classes. Opposes the proposed decrease in the length of courses approvals, contending this would increase the processing burden on the department.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #11	Michelle Dawson, Racine Kenosha Builders Association Sturevant	Objects to the proposed fee for course approvals or requests exemption for non-profit entities. Contends that the proposed fees will hurt the educational benefit offered by the association to its members.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #12 (email)	Diane Montour, Wolf River Builders Association	Requests the department to reconsider the proposed fee for review of continuing education courses. Contends the implementation of the fee will be passed on to course attendees who as credential holders will be paying twice for the service.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #13 (email)	Ron Volz, Tomahawk Log & County Homes	Opposes the proposed fee for course approvals. Contends that the fee will negatively impact the building industry and may be one more factor in discouraging association membership.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #14	Abe Degnan, Degnan Design Builders DeForest	Requests the department not to implement another fee increase for builder education. Contends that the department is already collecting fees for registrations that supplement state coffers.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.

	Degnan continued	Contends that the state was to be responsible for funding builder education. Questions the proposal to increase the department's workload by proposing courses approval be reviewed every 3 years instead of 5 years.
Written #15	Sally Reuling, Headwaters Building Association Minocqua	Opposes the proposed fee for course approvals. Contends that if implemented, that the fees will be charged back to members who can ill afford it right now. Assumes that the department's budget for the upcoming year has already been determined and approved without including revenue from these fees and requests the fees be delayed until the housing industry sees an upturn. Contends that if the association is unable to afford and provide a variety of programs, that members will be placed at a disadvantage in having to travel long distances to fulfill their educational obligations.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
Written #16	Robert Rayburn, Milwaukee Chapter, National Electrical Contractors Association Milwaukee	Opposes the proposed fee for course approvals. Indicates that the JATC is a self-supporting non-profit organization that derives its revenue from contributions made by electrical contractors. Indicates that the JATC is operating at a deficit, and will likely continue to do so for at least a few more years. The costs for course approvals and renewals in the current and future budgets will cause additional economic hardship to the JATC. Indicates that with the exception of the occasional book cost, the Milwaukee JATC does not charge a participant for attending a seminar or course, therefore, the JATC is not in a position to merely pass along the proposed fee to participants. Is sympathetic to the State's desire to raise revenue, however, does not believe this needs to be done at the expense of non-profit organizations and does not believe that it needs to be done through the Safety and Buildings Division which he believes has been operating at a profit.	The proposed fee for the review of continuing education has been eliminated from the draft.
