Rule Information:

These rules adjust migratory game bird seasons and regulations for 2021 to be consistent with the federal framework for the Mississippi Flyway, current biological information and public input. In general, season frameworks for migratory birds in 2021 are identical to those implemented for 2020. There are two exceptions.

These rules adjust migratory game bird zone configurations. In 2020, the Department gathered public input regarding the reconfiguration of these zones. Public input favored the creation of a new Open Water Zone to allow hunters to take advantage of unique late season opportunities which exist in open waters (waters greater than 500 feet offshore) of Lake Michigan and Green Bay. The creation of this new zone would result in the elimination of the Mississippi Zone. Based on federal deadlines requiring the Department to provide its zone configurations for 2021 prior to this rule being presented for adoption, the Department presented to this proposal to the Natural Resources Board for preliminary approval in April of 2020. The Board approved of the new zone configuration, with recognition that the changes would be included in this rule-making and would not go into effect until the 2021 migratory bird season.

These rules also implement a daily bag limit of 5 Canada geese per day during the “Holiday Hunt” that is offered from December 20 – January 4 in the South Zone. This change responds to public support favoring an increased bag limit during this time.

These rules additionally continue several changes that were in place for 2020, including an earlier duck season start date in the North Zone, a restricted daily bag limit for scaup with dates updated to reflect the 2021 calendar, and an increase in the hen mallard bag limit. These changes were implemented in 2020 based on public support, which continues in 2021.

Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis: No effects on small businesses, their associations, or local governments are anticipated. The department does not anticipate any fiscal impacts as a result of these rules. Following is the department's preliminary analysis.

Economic Impact

Because the hunting season framework proposed in this rule will be very similar to those in place during previous seasons, no economic impacts are anticipated. We do not anticipate that these rules will result in changes in the activities of migratory bird hunters, their expenditures, and the related economic activity. These rules are applicable to individual hunters and impose no compliance or reporting requirements for small business, nor are any design or operational standards contained in the rule.

Fiscal Impact

The department anticipates no fiscal impact resulting from these rules. The department currently annually conducts a number of activities related to migratory bird hunting such as managing department lands, selling licenses, providing law enforcement services, and surveys and related research. The department will continue to conduct the same activities under the season framework proposed in this rule and does not anticipate any new or reduced expenditures.
