

CHAPTER 91.

[Published March 19, 1862.]

AN ACT to amend section seven of chapter 186 of the revised statutes, entitled "of the education of the deaf and dumb."

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Residents of this state not to be excluded by the reception of those from other states.

SECTION 1. Section seven of chapter one hundred and eighty-six of the revised statutes, entitled "of the education of the deaf and dumb," is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "All deaf and dumb persons residing in this state, of the age of twelve years, and under the age of twenty-five years, of suitable capacity to receive instruction, shall be received and taught in said school; and no one of such persons shall be excluded from the privileges and benefits thereof, by reason of the reception of persons from other states or territories."

Repeal.

SECTION 2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SECTION 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Approved March 15, 1862.

CHAPTER 92.

[Published March 19, 1862.]

AN ACT to amend section one of chapter seven of the general laws passed at the extra session of the legislature, commencing on the 15th day of May, 1861, entitled "an act to amend an act entitled 'an act to declare the rights and privileges of such persons as may enroll themselves in the service of the country,' approved April 17, 1861."

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Persons not exempted from civil process.

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter seven of the general laws passed at the extra session of the legislature, commencing on the fifteenth day of May, 1861, is hereby amended by adding to said section the following: "provided, further, that the said section one shall not be so construed as to exempt any person or persons from civil process, who now are or may be hereafter indebted as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee; nor shall said section one be so construed as to exempt any person from civil process who now is or may hereafter be indebted as trustee or fiduciary agent, having or holding in his possession, as such trustee or fiduciary agent, or control, any moneys, goods or other property whatever; and provided, further, that in all actions against persons jointly indebted upon a contract in which an order may have been or may hereafter be made by the court in which said action is pending, staying or suspending the proceedings in said action as to one or more of the defendants in said action, according to the provisions of this act, the plaintiff may proceed in said action the same as if the summons therein had not been served upon said defendant or defendants who may have obtained, or who may hereafter obtain, a stay of proceedings as aforesaid, and as if no appearance had been entered in said action by said defendant or defendants; and if, on the trial of said action, the plaintiff recover judgment, it shall be entered and enforced, as provided in clause one of section eleven [of] chapter one hundred and twenty-four of the revised statutes; and provided, further, that neither this act nor the act to which this act is amendatory, shall be so construed as to exempt from the service of civil process or trial, nor shall said acts in any manner apply to, any person or persons who have heretofore or shall hereafter draw or receive any money from this state contrary to law, either as contractor or officer under the state."

Actions against persons jointly indebted on contract.

Not to extend to contractors or officers under the state.

SECTION 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication.

Approved March 15, 1862.
