(Section 29.085, Wis. Stats.)

NR 25.01 Measurement of nets. (1) Whenever the size of mesh of any gill net is specified, the size shall be determined by extension measure. The measurement shall be made of meshes irrespective of where the gill net or gill netting is found, whether in the water, on boat, on reel, on dock, or in any other place on land. Extension measure shall mean the distance between the extreme angles of any single mesh, and such measurements shall be taken between and inside the knots with a flexible steel gauge constructed and used as prescribed by the national bureau of standards as hereinafter defined. All measurements of the mesh of gill nets or gill netting shall be made by inserting in the mesh parallel with the selvage, a gauge made of spring steel, free from rust, of a length equal to the number of inches prescribed in this chapter for the mesh measured. The ends of the gauge shall be free of sharp edges or burrs. The gauge shall be straight and shall not be graduated, and any necessary markings shall be placed near the ends of the gauge. The length of the straight gauge, measured parallel with the long edge, shall not at any point exceed nor be less than the prescribed length by more than one-thousandth (.001) of an inch. Its width at any point shall not exceed 9/16 of an inch nor be less than 7/16 of an inch. Its thickness shall be such that when it is set vertically on a solid anvil with its upper end loaded with a dead weight between 7½ and 8½ ounces, the gauge shall deflect at its middle 1/10 of its length. The gauges to be used for measuring the mesh of gill nets or gill netting as provided by this chapter shall be certified and approved by the national bureau of standards.

(2) In gauging a mesh, the flexible gauge shall be held only by the ends and bent between thumb and forefinger, the bent rule shall be then inserted in the mesh parallel with the selvage and with the collapsed mesh, and finger pressure shall be released immediately, not gradually. If the gauge does not straighten out completely under its own tension within 2 seconds after it is released in the mesh, without slipping a knot or breaking the twine, the mesh shall be considered unlawful; and if the majority of 10 or more meshes selected at random by the enforcement officer from any part or parts of the gill net or from the entire gill net or from any gill netting being gauged are found to be unlawful, the gill net or gill netting shall be seized and held subject to the order of the court. The meshes to be gauged shall be at least three meshes removed from the selvage or side lines, shall not be stretched or manipulated in any way prior to or after the insertion of the gauge, and the same mesh shall not be gauged more than once.

(3) Whenever and wherever the size of the mesh of gill nets or gill netting is prescribed in this order it shall be the size of the mesh throughout the entire life of the gill net or gill netting.
