2 use of the term “multiracial” on state forms.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill requires the records and forms officer of each state department and independent agency to review each record and form to determine if that record or form requires a person who completes the form to identify the race of an individual. If the record or form does require race identification, the records and forms officer is required to modify the record or form to include the ability for the race identification to be “multiracial” for those individuals who wish to indicate that they have parents of different races.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:
