Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, the joint survey committee on retirement systems (JSCRS) is authorized to employ a research director and such staff as is required for the performance of its duties. The JSCRS is responsible for submitting to the chief clerk of each house of the legislature a report on any bill or amendment that creates or modifies any retirement system for public employes in this state. In addition, JSCRS must prepare a fiscal estimate for any bill referred to it that creates or modifies any retirement system for public employes. The JSCRS staff also assists the retirement research committee (RRC) in the performance of its functions. RRC is required to review and study retirement benefits offered to public employes by the state.

This bill eliminates the authority of JSCRS to employ a research director and staff and, instead, requires that the legislative council provide staff to assist JSCRS and RRC in the performance of their functions. In addition, the bill eliminates the requirement that JSCRS prepare a fiscal estimate for any bill referred to it that creates or modifies any retirement system for public employes.
