Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person is guilty of burglary if he or she intentionally enters a building, a dwelling, or one of a number of other specified places without the consent of a lawful owner or occupant and with intent to steal or commit a felony in the building, dwelling, or other place. A person convicted of burglary may be fined not more than $25,000 or sentenced to a term of imprisonment of not more than 12.5 years, which, as in other cases, includes a term of confinement and a term of extended supervision if the sentence is for more than one year or both. More severe penalties apply if the person commits the offense while armed; if, during the burglary, the person intentionally causes bodily harm to a person lawfully inside the building, dwelling, or other place; or if the person uses explosives to open a depository in the building, dwelling, or other place.

This bill prohibits a person from intentionally entering a dwelling, including a motor home or a trailer, without the consent of a lawful owner or occupant and with intent to cause bodily harm to a person who is legally present there. A person who violates this prohibition may be fined not more than $10,000 or sentenced to a term of imprisonment of not more than six years or both.

Because this bill creates a new crime or revises a penalty for an existing crime, the Joint Review Committee on Criminal Penalties may be requested to prepare a report concerning the proposed penalty and the costs or savings that are likely to result if the bill is enacted.
