- 1 AN ACT to create 138.25 of the statutes; relating to: allowing individuals to 2 restrict release of credit reports and granting rule-making authority.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Subject to certain exceptions, this bill allows an individual to prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing the individual's consumer report for any purpose related to the extension of credit without the individual's prior authorization.

Under the bill, "consumer report" has the same meaning as "consumer report" under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), which defines "consumer report" as any written, oral, or other communication by a consumer reporting agency bearing on an individual's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living, which is used or expected to be used as a factor in establishing the individual's eligibility for credit or insurance, employment, or any other purpose allowed under federal law. Although a "consumer report" includes communications for purposes other than extensions of credit, the bill allows an individual to prohibit releases of his or her consumer report only for extensions of credit. The bill does not allow an individual to prohibit releases for any of the other purposes included in the definition of "consumer report."

Also under the bill, "consumer reporting agency" has the same meaning as under the FCRA, which defines "consumer reporting agency" as any person who, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, regularly engages in whole or in part in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information or other information on individuals for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties, and who uses any means or facility of interstate commerce for the purpose of preparing or furnishing consumer reports.

The bill prohibits a consumer reporting agency from releasing an individual's report for an extension of credit if the report includes a "security freeze," which the bill defines as a notice indicating that release of the report is subject to the bill. If an individual makes a request by certified mail, provides proper identification, and, subject to certain exceptions, pays a fee, a consumer reporting agency must include a security freeze with the individual's consumer report no later than five business days after receiving the request. No later than ten business days after including the security freeze, the consumer reporting agency must send the individual a notice confirming the security freeze. The notice must include a personal identification number (PIN), password, or other device for the individual to use to authorize release of the consumer report. Also, the notice must describe the procedures for an individual to authorize the release.

To authorize release of a consumer report that includes a security freeze, an individual must contact the consumer reporting agency, provide proper identification and the PIN, password, or other device described above, and specify the time period for which the consumer reporting agency is allowed to release the report. Subject to certain exceptions, the individual must also pay a fee to the consumer reporting agency. The bill requires a consumer reporting agency to release the consumer report for purposes of extensions of credit during the time period specified by the individual, except that a consumer reporting agency is not required to release the report sooner than three business days after the individual contacts the consumer reporting agency. However, a consumer reporting agency may, but is not required, to release a report sooner than three business days if the consumer reporting agency establishes procedures for individuals to contact the consumer reporting agency by telephone, facsimile, the Internet, or other electronic media.

The bill contains exceptions to the above requirements. The following consumer reporting agencies are not required to include a security freeze with a consumer report: 1) check services or fraud prevention services companies; 2) deposit account information service companies; and 3) certain resellers of consumer credit information. However, if a reseller obtains a consumer report about an individual that includes a security freeze included by another consumer reporting agency, the reseller must include the security freeze in any consumer report regarding the individual that the reseller maintains.

The bill also allows a consumer reporting agency to release an individual's consumer report that includes a security freeze to any of the following for the following purposes, even if the individual has not authorized release of the report: 1) certain persons with whom the individual has an account or contract or to whom the individual has issued, or is otherwise personally liable on, a negotiable instrument, for the purpose of reviewing the account or collecting a financial obligation owing for the account, contract, or negotiable instrument or for the purpose of preventing or investigating potential fraud or identity theft; 2) a person who has a legitimate business need for the information in connection with a business transaction initiated by the individual; 3) subsidiaries, affiliates, agents, assignees, and prospective assignees of the foregoing persons; 4) state or local agencies, law enforcement agencies, courts, or private collection agencies acting pursuant to court orders, warrants, or subpoenas; 5) child support agencies acting to enforce child support obligations; 6) the state or its agents or assigns acting to investigate fraud or collect delinquent taxes or unpaid court orders, or to fulfill any other statutory responsibilities; 7) persons administering a credit file monitoring service to which the individual has subscribed; 8) persons who provide the individual with a copy of a consumer report at the individual's request; or 9) insurers authorized to do business in this state who use consumer reports for underwriting insurance; or 10) persons who intend to use the information for employment purposes.

In addition, if an individual has authorized release of a consumer report to a person during a time period specified by the individual, the consumer reporting agency may release the report to any subsidiary, affiliate, agent, assignee, and prospective assignee of that person. Also, a consumer reporting agency may release reports for the purpose of prescreening that is allowed under the FCRA. (Prescreening is a process in which consumer reporting agencies compile lists of consumers who meet specific criteria and provide the lists to third parties for credit or insurance solicitation purposes.)

The bill also does all of the following:

1. Requires a consumer reporting agency to remove security freezes upon an individual's request.
2. Allows a consumer reporting agency to release a consumer report if an individual made a material misrepresentation of fact regarding a security freeze. Before releasing a report, the consumer reporting agency must notify the individual about the misrepresentation.
3. Allows a consumer reporting agency to advise a third party that the consumer reporting agency must obtain an individual's authorization before releasing a consumer report to the third party.
4. Allows a third party to treat an individual's application for an extension of credit as incomplete if the bill prohibits a consumer reporting agency from releasing the individual's consumer report to the third party.
5. Allows a consumer reporting agency to charge specified fees to individuals who request security freezes, authorize the release of consumer reports that include security freezes, or request removal of security freezes. However, the bill prohibits a consumer reporting agency from charging fees to victims of identity theft.
6. If a consumer report includes a freeze, prohibits a consumer reporting agency from making changes to certain information in the report without providing written notice.
7. Allows a consumer reporting agency to collect damages from persons who knowingly violate the bill or federal credit reporting law or who take certain actions regarding consumer reports or security freezes under false pretenses.
8. Requires a consumer reporting agency to provide individuals with a notice describing their rights under the bill whenever the consumer reporting agency is required to provide a notice under the FCRA regarding consumer rights with respect to consumer reports.

Finally, the bill requires the Division of Banking in the Department of Financial Institutions (division) to enforce the bill's requirements. The bill also requires the division to promulgate rules regarding the "proper identification" that individuals must provide to consumer reporting agencies when requesting a security freeze or removal of a security freeze or authorizing release of consumer reports.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

24 "Wisconsin Consumers Have the Right to Obtain a Security Freeze.

ASSEMBLY BILL 912

1 You have a right to include a “security freeze” with your credit report, which will
2 prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing information in your credit
3 report in connection with a credit transaction without your express authorization.
4 A security freeze must be requested in writing by certified mail. The security freeze
5 is designed to prevent an extension of credit, such as a loan, from being approved in 6 your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a security
7 freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information
8 in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any 9 subsequent request or application you make regarding a loan, credit, mortgage, or 10 Internet credit card transaction, including an extension of credit at point of sale.

11 When you request a security freeze for your credit report, you will be provided 12 a personal identification number or password to use if you choose to remove the 13 security freeze from your credit report or authorize the release of your credit report
14 for a period of time after the security freeze is in place. To provide that authorization 15 you must contact the consumer reporting agency and provide all of the following:

- 16 (1) The personal identification number or password.
- 17 (2) Proper identification to verify your identity.
- 18 (3) The period of time for which the report shall be made available.
- 19 (4) Payment of the appropriate fee.

20 A security freeze does not apply to a person or its affiliates, or collection
21 agencies acting on behalf of a person, with which you have an existing account, that 22 requests information in your credit report for the purposes of reviewing or collecting
23 the account. Reviewing the account includes activities related to account 24 maintenance, monitoring, credit line increases, and account upgrades and 25 enhancements.
