Assembly Committee on Education

Testimony on AB 100

March 6, 2025

Good morning, Committee Chair Kitchens and members of the Assembly Committee on Education. Thank you for the opportunity to testify on Assembly Bill (AB) 100 to ensure Wisconsin women's voices are heard today. The "Save Women's Sports Act," covering both K-12 and collegiate athletics, is not new, but it IS urgent and necessary. Parents in my district continue to share their concerns as they watch their daughters compete against biological males.

Organizations like the WIAA and NCAA have taken positive steps to protect women in sports since the President issued his executive order, but we need stronger and permanent safeguards. Enshrining these protections in state law prevents organizations from reversing course and reinstating harmful policies with the stroke of a pen. Women across Wisconsin have worked hard, earned accolades, and deserve to have their Title IX rights protected.

Title IX, signed into law on June 23, 1972, transformed women's sports for the better. Before its passage, female athletes had few opportunities to compete and lacked access to equipment, resources, and scholarships. This law was a game-changer, opening doors and ensuring women could succeed in their own divisions and leagues. Title IX inspired generations of female athletes and created pathways to scholarships and elite competition.

When I first introduced this legislation in 2021, I was told that I was creating a solution in search of a problem. Last legislative session, when I told this committee that I had only been made aware of six different instances where parents had concerns. At that point, I was roundly mocked and dismissed as this wasn't much of a problem according to my detractors.

The fact is that we don't know how many transgender students are on Wisconsin K-12 teams because the WIAA refuses to tell us. However, it only takes one transgender athlete to create difficulties for an entire conference of female athletes.

One thing I think we forget as we consider this sort of legislation is the fact that statistics tell us that one in four women will be sexually abused by the time she becomes an adult. That would make it fairly safe to surmise that on any given girls' sports team, there is more than one sexual assault survivor. As we force these females to share their locker rooms and showers with individuals who are fully physically intact males, we compound their trauma and anxiety, then force them to go out and compete with or against these same individuals. In March 2023, at Sun Prairie High School, a male student claiming to be transgender disrobed in front of freshmen girls in a locker room.

Last session, Paula Scanlan, who is one such survivor shared how and when she and other teammates complained about having to compete against and share a locker room with Will (also known as Lia) Thomas, they were told that they were the problem and would have to find other space to change or shower. See how just one person can upend things for the rest of the team?

These harmful policies continue to threaten to erase years of hard-fought gains. Allowing biological males to compete in women's sports based on "gender identity" is robbing female athletes of titles, scholarships, and even spots on teams. Beyond unfair competition, it is also compromising women's health and safety. As a reminder, biological males have higher bone density, greater muscle mass, and often greater height, putting female athletes at serious risk of injury.

Since I first introduced this legislation, public awareness has exploded. In 2021, few people knew the names Lia Thomas or Riley Gaines. In 2022, North Carolina high school volleyball player Payton McNabb suffered head and neck injuries after a transgender athlete spiked a ball directly at her, leaving her with partial paralysis, chronic headaches, and impaired vision. It ended her college athletic career. In April 2022, a transgender rugby player injured three female athletes. Just last weekend, a California high school boy set the girls national record in both long jump and triple jump for the year. He won the triple jump at that meet by nearly EIGHT feet. In August 2023, Green Bay parents voiced concerns about a transgender athlete leaving bruises and welts on their daughters' arms during practices.

This is happening right here in Wisconsin, violating female students' privacy, dignity, and safety. Are we going to wait to deal with this until schools or organizations get sued for not protecting these athletes?

The public overwhelmingly supports protecting women's sports. A December 2024 Marquette University Law School poll found that 76% of respondents believe transgender athletes should compete based on biological sex. Unlike those who ignore settled science, we can define what a woman is—an adult human female with two X chromosomes.

Major sports organizations are waking up. FINA, the world's top swimming federation, now bars biological males from competing in women's events. The International Rugby League suspended biological males from female competition in 2022. UCI, cycling's governing body, banned male athletes from female divisions if they transitioned after puberty. The NCAA and WIAA also adjusted their policies to prevent biological males from competing in women's sports at both the collegiate and high school levels in Wisconsin.

We can ensure fairness in sports without excluding anyone. Even current and legendary LGBTQ athletes like Nicole Powers, Martina Navratilova, and Caitlyn Jenner agree—it is unfair for biological males to compete in women's sports. Leading doctors and scientists confirm that testosterone suppression cannot erase biological advantages like bone structure, muscle mass, or hand size.

Think about this: if women's basketballs are designed smaller to accommodate hand-size differences, how can we pretend that hormone treatments erase all physical advantages? We cannot go back to a time when women were shut out of sports. At a time when we prioritize mental health and trauma awareness, why are we pushing policies that traumatize female athletes by stealing their opportunities?

BARBARA DITTRICH

This bill is not about hate, exclusion, or transphobia. It's about common sense. This is about fairness. This is about facts. This is about protecting opportunities for women.

I am also working on an amendment to further clarify the locker room policy. It is our right and duty to protect our daughters, granddaughters, and nieces while ensuring that schools can still function efficiently.

Once again, I have provided you with a handout detailing the physiological differences between males and females—differences that no medical treatment or ideology can erase. It is no coincidence that this issue never seems to affect men's sports. Let's take action to protect Wisconsin's female athletes before more opportunities and careers are stolen and more injuries sideline women.

Thank you for your time. I am happy to answer any questions.

On average, men are physically stronger than women.³³

Men have 66% more upper-body muscle than women, and 50% more lower-body muscle.³⁴

There is a 10% performance gap between male and female athletes in most sports and it hasn't narrowed as women train harder.³⁵

Men have higher hemoglobin levels, allowing their body to oxygenate muscles more quickly and efficiently.³⁶

Men have larger hearts and lungs. A larger heart can pump more blood to the body and larger lungs allow for the body's tissues to receive more oxygen.

Testimony in Support of Assembly Bill 100

March 6, 2025

Thank you, Chairman Kitchens and members of the Committee on Education, for holding a hearing on Assembly Bill 100. This bill is important to ensuring the long-term protection of high school girls who participate in sports at school.

I was glad to see the recent policy change by the WIAA that prevents individuals who were born male from competing against girls in high school sports. While we should be supportive of all young people, that support should not result in unfair or unsafe outcomes for our daughters or granddaughters.

Unfortunately, policies meant to ensure fairness and safety in girls' sports have become a political football, and a change in political winds at the national level could result in a reversal of these gains. The policy is also silent about biological males' use of locker rooms that should be safe spaces for girls.

Assembly Bill 100 codifies the WIAA policy change and protects girls' locker rooms. The bill requires the governing bodies of a school that operates or sponsors athletic teams or clubs to designate the teams based on the sex of the participating students and prevent biological male students from using locker rooms designated for female use. This applies to public school boards, independent charter schools and private schools that participate in a parental choice program.

In recent years, instances of biological males competing in female sports and denying them the opportunity to compete on a fair playing field have become prominent in the news. However, an incident at a Sun Prairie school in 2023 in which a male student exposed himself to four freshman girls in their locker room, triggering a U.S. Department of Education Title IX investigation, raises further concerns about the ability of girls to feel safe and secure in their locker rooms.

This issue garners broad agreement among the public, which isn't always the case today. A December 2024 Marquette Law School poll found that 76% of respondents believe athletes should compete on teams that match their biological sex at birth, a 6% increase from a similar poll conducted by Marquette in 2023.

Moms, dads, grandparents and society as a whole overwhelmingly agree that biological girls should play against other biological girls. We can approach these challenging issues with empathy and support while ensuring fairness for girls in high school athletics. Thank you again for your consideration of Assembly Bill 100.

Assembly Bill 100
Public Testimony
March 6, 2025

Thank you to Chairman Kitchens and members of the committee for holding this public hearing on Assembly Bill 100.

Assembly Bills 100 and 102 will preserve gender-specific sports categories at the high school and collegiate level, based on the athletes' biological sex, while allowing for the creation of co-ed sports teams. This will ensure that all athletes have equal access to athletic opportunities and fair recognition based on their talents and efforts.

Over 50 years ago, Title IX brought fairness and opportunity to organized sports, which are built on the principle of fair and safe competition. The movement to open female sports to biological males raises legitimate concerns about the inherent physical advantages that males tend to possess. These include differences in muscle mass, bone density, metabolism rates, and lung capacity, which are already emergent by early adolescence. This disparity increases the risk of injury and threatens to diminish the achievements of biological women if traditional gender-specific sports categories are not preserved. Indeed, this has already happened, as you will soon hear in further testimony from people affected by this policy.

Allowing biological males into female sports largely defeats the purpose of Title IX, and changing this arrangement becomes a serious matter when it limits opportunities for female athletes to succeed and advance in their chosen sports.

This legislation has broad bipartisan support in the public. In my 2023 summer survey, I asked constituents the question, "Should someone who is born a biological male be allowed to participate in girls' sports?" An overwhelming 73% of respondents said, "No." This aligns with current public polling in Wisconsin and nationwide.

In today's debate about inclusion in athletic competition, we cannot ignore concerns related to fairness, physical advantage, and the preservation of opportunities for female athletes.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this proposed legislation. Representative Dittrich and I would be happy to take any questions you may have.

Date: March 6th, 2025

Good afternoon Chair Kitchen, Ranking Member Hong, and Members of the Assembly Committee on Education.

I am Senator Melissa Ratcliff and I am the mom of a transgender son. While I appreciate the opportunity to speak about my opposition to Assembly Bill 100, I think this bill is ridiculous.

For a moment, let's imagine a world in which this Committee, the Assembly Committee on Education, that this was hearing about bills that would reduce class sizes, increase reimbursement for special education costs, assist in recruiting and retaining great teachers, invest in mental health services, or support rural schools. All of these are great things that our schools really need.

Now back to the unfortunate reality though. We are NOT talking about improving schools. We are focused on yet another bill that is NOT about education at all. It's about negativity and bullying kids. AB 100 takes a page out of the Trump administration's hateful crusade against the LGBTQIA+ community. It maliciously and intentionally creates manifest harm to some of the most vulnerable students in our schools: our transgender and nonbinary athletes.

The message of this bill is clear: that some of our children should be excluded because of their gender identity. It's about bullying an extremely small portion of our kids to conform to societal norms. It's not about protecting girls. It's about excluding children from sports teams – teams that are supposed to be about inclusion and working together and accepting each other's differences.

Now ask yourself: How would the ban on transgender athletes this bill proposes be enforced? By forcing educators to ask invasive questions and conduct physical exams? Which students will be "checked?" Maybe those who do not look like or dress like other athletes? We don't know. The bill does not address any of that. Why? Because this is not a serious piece of legislation. It is a tool to politicize children – children who already face so many difficulties – for adults to bully and politicize children for political gain.

Make no mistake about it: the reason we are seeing this bill back yet again is not because it is the right thing to do, but because it is the Trumpian thing to do. The Trump administration's war on the LGBTQIA+ Community is emboldening legislators in Wisconsin to ramp up their hostile attacks in line with Trump's hateful agenda. And against children no less!

This bill will never become law in Wisconsin because the Governor will veto it, again, when it gets to his desk. But in the meantime, this bill creates division, punishes children who have done nothing wrong, and contributes to the atmosphere of chaos, fear and mistrust that Trump and his Wisconsin minions seek to sow. This bill causes me great personal sadness as well: it treats my son as if he is a threat and his existence is something that can be legislated away.

I stand with my son and all trans and nonbinary young people. Their courage and perseverance inspire me to keep fighting for the rights, love, and support they deserve. This bill should not pass. Thank you again for the opportunity to speak in support of our children and against bullying.

Date: March 6, 2025

Dear Chairman Kitchens and Committee Members,

As a member of the Wisconsin State Legislature and Assembly Committee on Mental Health, I am submitting my testimony in opposition to Assembly Bill 100. I ask that this testimony be shared with all members of the committee, and be entered into the committee record for this bill.

This bill requires every educational institution that operates or sponsors an interscholastic, intramural, or club athletic team or sport to designate the team or sport based on the sex of the participating students, with "sex" defined as the sex determined at birth by a physician and reflected on the birth certificate. It is even further discriminatory towards transgender girls by denying them the opportunity to participate in girls' sports. At a time when anxiety and stress levels in youth are at consistent highs, it seems irresponsible to deny young people the opportunity to participate in athletics unless they compromise who they are.

Studies show that sports benefit the mental, emotional, and social health of children because it lowers stress levels, raises self esteem and confidence, and can even increase cognitive performance and creativity. It also improves physical health by increased fitness, bone health, and overall quality of life. We should be focusing our efforts as a legislature on setting our children up for success and creating safe environments for them, not denying them opportunities to build healthy habits, increase their empathy, leadership, perseverance, teamwork skills, and connect with their peers. All students should have the ability to participate in sports, and this bill categorically excludes transgender girls and impacts all students' ability to participate in co-ed athletic activities.

The removal of the ability for schools to have co-ed teams takes away the unique experience that students have and enjoy across the state. These teams in particular foster mutual respect, friendship, and can even break down harmful stereotypes. Again, it is irresponsible to eliminate participation in any programs that set children up for lifelong success.

WISCONSIN STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Karen DeSanto

40TH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT

This bill has also been previously introduced last session as Assembly Bill 377. During that session, members of this committee heard hours of testimony from kids, parents, teachers, and coaches across the state sharing their perspectives on how harmful this bill is. They will share again this session how the bill is ostracising to members of the LGBTQ+ community and especially young people who are already particularly vulnerable. I want to emphasize the fact that the reintroduction of this bill alone has negative impacts as well.

A recent national survey by the Trevor Project found that 91% of LGBTQ+ young people in Wisconsin reported that recent politics negatively impacted their well-being. In addition, 72% of LGBTQ+ young people reported being bullied because of their sexual orientation and gender identity, and 45% of transgender and nonbinary young people reported that they or their family considered leaving Wisconsin for another state because of LGBTQ+ politics and laws.

It should be our focus and duty as a legislature to collaboratively strengthen the state and make it a better place to live for all Wisconsinites, most especially our children. Instead, we are spending our time on a bill that places an undue burden on LGBTQ+ young people to advocate for themselves and negatively impacts mental health across the state.

Thank you for your consideration. This bill is deeply harmful, dangerous, and unnecessary, and if AB 100 comes before you in a vote, I ask that you vote no.

Sincerely,

Chair Kitchens, Vice-Chair Goeben, and Honorable Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Wisconsin appreciates the opportunity to provide testimony in opposition to Assembly Bill 100.

Plain and simple, excluding trans students from participating in sports teams consistent with their authentic gender identity is harmful and discriminatory. Bills like AB 100 are part of a nationwide coordinated effort to deny transgender people their freedom, safety, and dignity. Anyone paying attention can see that the ultimate goal of legislation like this is to push transgender people out of public life altogether. In just the first two months of 2025, over 450 anti-LGBTQ bills have been introduced in statehouses across the country.¹ To be clear, transgender people have always existed and they always will. School board members, state legislators, and the President of the United States do not get to decide that they don't.

Federal courts have consistently found in favor² of transgender student-athletes challenging state-level bans on their equal participation consistent with their gender identity, and others have likewise rejected claims that the participation of transgender student-athletes unjustly denies opportunities to cisgender women and girls.

Transgender students participate in sports for the same reasons other young people do: to challenge themselves, express themselves, and be part of a team. Excluding transgender students from participation just deprives them of opportunities available to their peers and sends the message they are not worthy of a full life.

² A bill with similar provisions to AB 377 was signed into law in Idaho in March 2020. The ACLU, ACLU of Idaho, Legal Voice, and Cooley LLP filed a lawsuit, and a federal judge issued a temporary injunction blocking implementation of the Idaho law in August 2020, reaching the "inescapable conclusion that the Act discriminates on the basis of transgender status." The court further held that given the small percentage of people who are transgender and the extensive discrimination that transgender people face, "it appears untenable that allowing transgender women to compete on women's teams would substantially displace female athletes." Hecox v. Little, No. 1:20-CV-00184-DCN, 2020 WL 4760138, at *27 (D. Idaho Aug. 17, 2020). The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the injunction, finding the Idaho law barring transgender athletes from participating in student athletics likely violates the rights of transgender students under the Equal Protection Clause of the U.S. Constitution by discriminating on the basis of sex and trans status. Hecox v. Little, 104 F.4th 1061 (9th Cir. 2024). See also B.P.J. v. West Virginia State Bd. of Educ., 98 F.4th 542 (4th Cir. 2024) (blocking a West Virginia law banning transgender student-athletes from playing on teams consistent with their gender identity); Tirrell v. Edelblut, No. 24-cv-251-LM-TSM, 2024 WL 4132435 (D.N.H. Sept. 10, 2024) (blocking enforcement of a New Hampshire law banning transgender girls from playing on school sports teams).

Transgender athletes' participation is nothing new. Trans people of all ages have been participating in sports consistent with their gender at all levels for years, including at the Olympics since at least since 2004 and in the NCAA since at least 2011. With close to 20 years of clear policies for inclusion of women and girls who are transgender in women's events at the highest level of sport around the world, there has been absolutely no categorical dominance by women and girls who are transgender anywhere.

Sports governing bodies created existing transgender sports policies for a population that is exceedingly small, and one that already lacks representation in sports due to exorbitant social and socioeconomic disadvantage. For youth, advantage comes largely from proximity to privilege.³ The average parent of a child in youth sports spends $883 per single season of participation.⁴ Meanwhile, disparities faced by the transgender community begin at a young age and impact all facets of life including sports access. Transgender youth are 9 times more likely to experience homelessness and associated poverty.⁵ Sixty-eight percent experience bullying in middle school and high school.⁶ In 2015, 22% of transgender women surveyed stated they were bullied so badly in school that they dropped out.⁷

Without supportive services to help transgender students navigate these additional challenges, it's tougher for them than their peers to make it through class, let alone onto a soccer field. Efforts to ban transgender girls from participating in girls' sports jeopardize their mental health, physical well-being and ability to access education opportunities comparable to their peers. Participating in sports results in positive outcomes for students — better grades, greater homework completion, higher educational and occupational aspirations, and improved self-esteem.⁸ We should want that for all Wisconsin students.

We urge committee members to think deeply about the realities of enforcing the ban proposed in AB-100. Do we want to live in a state where little girls are forced to answer invasive personal questions about their bodies and face humiliating physical inspections of their private parts by adult strangers? Every student is at risk under this bill. Any player could be targeted with questions about their gender — whether that's from an opposing team or a teammate who is upset they lost out on playing time or didn't make a team.

Effective solutions to promote sporting fairness and equity do exist, like ensuring equal pay and opportunity for women's leagues and providing equal funding for athletic programs at less wealthy public schools. Targeting transgender women and girls is not one of them.

TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF ASSEMBLY BILL 100
ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION
THURSDAY, MARCH, 6, 2025

Thank you, Chairman Kitchens and committee members, for the opportunity to testify on Assembly Bill 100. My name is Sam Krebs, and I am the legislative director for Wisconsin Family Action which supports this bill.

Quite simply, women and girls deserve privacy, safety, and equal opportunities in athletics.

While to some this appears to be a political hot button issue, to most people, this is a common-sense issue. A 2024 national Marquette University Law School poll found that 76% of respondents preferred transgender athletes to compete on teams that match their sex at birth, rather than the gender they identify with.¹

People around the country and the world are asking how many girls will have to be exploited or injured until we wake up.

Assembly Bill 100 will restore common sense to girls' sports and put a stop to the dismantling of sex-based protections for girls in K-12 athletics.

First, women's spaces deserve privacy and protection.

Women and girls have a right to a private, biologically female only spaces, and this is especially true in cases of women's locker rooms.

Policies that do not acknowledge this basic truth can have some hideous consequences. Just ask Jen McDougal, a Virginia mother, who is now speaking out after she and her nine-year-old daughter were exposed to a naked registered child sex offender in a public school's girls' locker room.²

Second, girls' sports deserve safety and fair competition.

When a male asserts rights on the basis of gender identity and even when he claims to be legally female, it is not the same as him being biologically female.

Biological men are bigger, faster, and stronger than women. We don't need studies to tell us there are different levels of fast twitch, power, and explosiveness that come naturally with being a male. (Although there are plenty to back this point up.)

Polling data from Gallup indicates a similar response.

² White, Kaylee McGhee. 2025. "Virginia Mother Slams Policy That Allowed Registered Child Sex Offender Into Her Daughter's Locker Room." IWFeatures. February 25, 2025. <https://www.iwfeatures.com/profile/virginia-mother-slams-policy-that-allowed-registered-child-sex-offender-into-her-daughters-locker-room/>.

And sadly, we have examples of how that plays out in competition like Payton McNabb. In September 2022, high school volleyball player Payton McNabb was severely injured during a match when a transgender opponent's spike struck her in the head, resulting in a concussion, brain bleed, and permanent whiplash.

From women's national soccer teams to Serena Williams to Riley Gaines, we can see plenty of real-world examples of how male and female biology are different in competition. It's not bigotry to recognize biology.³

Some may assert that cross-sex hormones level the playing field; however, there is a body of research which offers evidence of the male advantage, even after years on cross sex hormones.

Reem Alsalem in a report to the United Nations wrote, "Pharmaceutical testosterone suppression for genetically male athletes — irrespective of how they identify — will not eliminate the set of comparative performance advantages they have already acquired.... The testosterone levels deemed acceptable by any sporting body are, at best, not evidence-based, arbitrary, and asymmetrically favor males."

Additionally, researchers at the Karolinska Institute and University of Manchester concluded that after one year of treatment "the physical advantage enjoyed by biological males over females is only minimally reduced when testosterone is suppressed...Furthermore, the reductions observed in muscle mass, size, and strength are very small compared to the baseline differences between males and females in these variables."⁴

Finally, women's opportunities are being unfairly taken away.

According to a United Nations report presented in October 2024, over 600 female athletes have lost nearly 900 medals to transgender competitors in more than 400 competitions across 29 sports as of March 30, 2024.⁵

Biological male athletes have specific attributes — including higher testosterone, bone density, muscle mass, and cardiovascular capacity — that result in the loss of fair opportunity for female competitors.

Women have sex-based rights that are predicated on having a female physiology not some feminine appearance or any illusion that allows a male to be recognized as a female by a mere declaration.

Wisconsin has the chance to do the right thing and protect girls' and women's sports. Now is the time to be fair to the girls and women who work hard to hone their athletic talents so they can excel in the sport or sports of their choice. Thank you for your attention and thoughtful consideration on this proposal.

³ An interesting comparison of male vs female strength comes in a comparison of powerlifting. A website called Strength Level provides powerlifting strength standards which compares one-rep max lifts in bench press, squat and deadlift (conventional or sumo) with other lifters at a similar bodyweight. Their strength standards are based on over 134 million lifts entered by Strength Level users. Male lifters lift significantly higher weights across all levels compared to similar weight female lifters. For example, at the "elite" level, male lifters at 180 lbs. bodyweight can deadlift 1,236 lbs., while female lifters at the same weight can lift 838 lbs.

Good morning to the members of the Assembly Committee on Education. I am Abigail Swetz, my pronouns are she/her, and I am here as the executive director of Fair Wisconsin, Wisconsin's only statewide LGBTQ+ civil rights and political advocacy organization. I am also here as a former middle school sports coach, a current mom, and an athlete and fan of women's sports. Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony in opposition of Assembly Bill 100.

Fair Wisconsin opposes this bill because it is bad for trans girls, because it is bad for all girls, and because sports should be about teamwork and life lessons in collaboration.

This bill would negatively impact trans girls, and our trans youth in Wisconsin need encouragement to participate in sports, not the opposite. The Youth Risk Behavior Survey, administered by DPI in partnership with the CDC, delves into physical health by asking students to share the number of days in the past week that they have been physically active for at least an hour. In 2023, for cisgender youth (youth whose gender identity matches their sex assigned at birth), that number was 4.2 days of exercise in the past seven days. For trans youth, it was 2.7 days. I have included this data analysis in my submitted testimony.

We know from study after study that physical activity is good for physical and mental health, and we know from the YRBS that like other youth, trans students who play sports report a stronger sense of school belonging and improved well-being compared to their peers who do not play sports.

This bill would also negatively impact all girls. Examining trend data on girls' participation in sports from 2011 to 2019, the data indicates that states with trans-inclusive sports policies held steady in participation, while states with bans on trans athletes saw a decrease in girls' participation in sports after enacting bans. This was determined through an analysis of national YRBS data done by the CDC that was cited in an article by the Center for American Progress, but when I clicked on the citation link to find a graph to share with you, the CDC gave me a "page not found" error due to the scrubbing of trans-related content from federal agency websites.

Fair Wisconsin also has serious concerns about the implications this bill has on the privacy and safety of all girls. While there are numerous processes established by this bill detailing how to litigate if a trans athlete does play in sports, there is no mention of any processes that would be in place to guarantee that enforcing this bill would not invade the privacy of all girls and would not require them to answer invasive questions about their bodies or subject them to physical exams. I ask the committee to consider this omission, especially as experiences in other states with similar legislation point to this bill becoming an invitation for people to question the gender of any female athlete they choose, for whatever reason they choose. Considering this, I'm not surprised that participation in girls' sports in states with trans athlete bans has gone down.

We all want sports to be fair, for athletes to be safe, and for kids to have the opportunity to learn important values like perseverance, dedication, and most of all, teamwork. To that end, we should be encouraging all kids to play sports instead of passing legislation that would actually depress participation in girls' sports.

As a middle school coach, the focus is always on access to playing and building a close-knit team that supports each other. I had the luck of coaching middle school ultimate frisbee, so I got to talk about the "spirit of the game" a lot because ultimate frisbee is a self-refereed sport and the "spirit of the game" is how we all worked together to follow the rules and reach consensus on calls. The best part of self-refereed sports is that the rulings are made by the people closest to the game - the athletes and the coaches - and that is something I also appreciate about how sports regulations are usually handled, by local sports associations close to the coaches and players. I very much disagree with the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association's recent ruling against trans female athletes participation in sports. I also think the WIAA, with a Board of Control made up of school district staff, is a more appropriate governing body to make any decision about regulations for school sports, not politicians in a legislature.

For all of these reasons - the negative impact on trans girls, the negative impact on all girls, concerns about enforcement, and the need for sports regulations to be determined by sports associations - Fair Wisconsin urges you to vote no on AB 100. Although to be honest, I don't think any of those is the most important reason to vote no. The most important reason is the smile on the face of the 14-year-old trans girl running out onto the soccer field, because at its core, we all know that youth sports is not about scoring the most goals. It's about the joy of playing the game.

Thank you.

WISCONSIN CATHOLIC CONFERENCE

TO: Representative Joel Kitchens, Chair
Members, Assembly Committee on Education

FROM: David Earleywine, Associate Director for Education

RE: Support for Assembly Bill 100, Designating K-12 School Sports by Sex

The Wisconsin Catholic Conference (WCC), the public policy voice of the Catholic bishops of Wisconsin, appreciates the opportunity to offer testimony in support of Assembly Bill 100.

This bill impacts public schools, private schools participating in a parental choice program, and independent charter schools by requiring that any interscholastic, intramural, or club athletic teams or sports designate the athletic team or sport based on the sex of the participating pupils. The bill defines “sex” as the sex determined at birth by a physician and reflected on the birth certificate. The bill also requires the educational institution to prohibit a male pupil from participating on an athletic team or in an athletic sport designed for females. The bill requires educational institutions to prohibit a male student from using a locker room designated for females. Lastly, the bill requires the educational institution to notify pupils and parents if it intends to change a designation for an athletic team or sport.

As Catholics, we believe that every human being is made in the image and likeness of God and is deserving of dignity, respect, and compassion. We know every person is born biologically and genetically either male or female. The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops explained that “Consistent with the Catholic Church’s clear teaching on the equality of men and women, we reaffirm that, in education and in sports as elsewhere, policies must uphold human dignity. This includes equal treatment between women and men and affirmation of the goodness of a person’s body, which is genetically and biologically female or male.”¹

And we affirm, as Pope Francis has written, that “[t]he acceptance of our bodies as God’s gift is vital for welcoming and accepting the entire world as a gift from the Father and our common home, whereas thinking that we enjoy absolute power over our own bodies turns, often subtly, into thinking that we enjoy absolute power over creation.”²

The Church recognizes that sports can impact the whole human person. As Pope Francis has said, “The Church is interested in sport because the person is at her heart, the whole person, and she recognizes that sports activity affects the formation, relations and spirituality of a person.”³ Recently, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) echoed this sentiment, stating that “[a]thletics not only provide valuable educational opportunities, fostering discipline, teamwork, and personal growth, but they also serve as a celebration of the human body as a gift from God.”⁴

However, while every person should be given the opportunity to take part in sport, it does not follow that every team must be open to all who wish to join, especially when basic fairness and dignity are at stake. As the USCCB wrote,

In education and in sports, we must seek to avoid anything that debases human dignity, including rejection of a person’s body or unequal treatment between men and women. This has particular relevance in athletics, where male competition in activities designated for women and girls can be both unfair and, especially in high-contact sports, unsafe. It is true that some women have excelled in these events with men. But any time a policy facilitating such male competition takes an athletic opportunity away from a female, it is a loss for basic fairness and the spirit of Title IX.⁵

The USCCB also emphasized that “In further recognition of the inherent dignity of the human person, the Church stands firmly against all unjust discrimination, including against those who experience gender discordance, who are equally loved by God. Students who experience gender dysphoria bear the full measure of human dignity, and they therefore must be treated with kindness and respect. Similar to their peers, those students must be assured the right to participate in or try out for co-educational activities in accord with their biological sex.”⁶

We know that some will feel hurt by this legislation. Even as we support this bill and urge its passage, we ask everyone to treat one another with charity and dignity. How do we accomplish this? First, we must will the good of the other. To love like Christ means to desire the good of the individuals in our lives: walking with them, listening to them with empathy, and accompanying them with compassion and truth. Second, we must avoid the extremes. We must not dogmatically assert that biological sex is the end of the conversation, while ignoring the pain of the person in front of us; nor must we reject biological reality in the false hope of relieving pain.⁷ Finally, we must uphold the truth. We must both affirm God-given biological sex and condemn unjust discrimination in all its forms. True compassion knows no other way.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify today.

End Domestic Abuse WI
1400 E Washington Ave.,
Suite 227
Madison, Wisconsin
53703

To: Members of the Senate - Committee on Education
Date: March 6th, 2025
From: Jenna Gormal, Public Policy Director
Re: Opposition to AB 100

Chairperson Kitchens and Members of the Committee, thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony in opposition of AB100. My name is Jenna Gormal, Public Policy Director, representing End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin (End Abuse), the statewide voice for survivors of domestic violence and the membership organization representing local domestic violence victim service providers across Wisconsin's 72 counties.

Domestic violence is a complex issue with many contributing factors. Banning trans girls from sports may not seem related to domestic violence, however, it is rooted in similar societal norms.

Rigid gender norms that dictate how people should look, act, and behave based on gender, creates an environment where power imbalances thrive. Excluding trans girls from sports enforces the idea that there's a "right" way to be a girl, which is grounded in stereotypes of femininity, and masculinity, and marginalizes anyone who does not conform—whether in sports or relationships.

Laws that target trans girls and push them out of public life, including sports, normalize their dehumanization. This can exacerbate feelings of isolation and alienation - risk factors for domestic violence - which, in turn, increases the risk for depression, anxiety, and feelings of worthlessness.

Transgender youth already face high rates of family rejection, violence, discrimination, and suicidality. A 2023 study of Wisconsin youth found transgender students reported over twice the risk of bullying, skipping school due to feeling unsafe, and feelings of not belonging at school compared to their cisgender peers. Transgender students also faced greater risk of anxiety and reported two to three times the risk of depression, self-harming behavior, considering suicide, planning suicide, and attempting suicide compared to cisgender students.

When we send the message that some children do not deserve equality or rights, that they should not exist, it helps society perpetuate violence against those vulnerable children. When a young person is discriminated against or rejected, they will often look for validation in their peers or a dating partner, making them more likely to enter unhealthy and abusive relationships.

Marginalized groups are at an increased risk for experiencing DV in general, since abusive people capitalize on existing social vulnerabilities to wield control. For trans youth, this can show up as abusers weaponizing existing homophobic and transphobic stigmas, discrimination, and lack of education around trans people, to perpetuate their control. Studies show that 50% of trans youth were raped or assaulted by the person they were dating. The existing isolation young people experience continues to make reaching out for help even more difficult if they find themselves in an abusive situation.

Creating an inclusive and supportive school environment for kids, regardless of gender identity, helps cultivate empathy, respect, and compassion, and challenges the mindset that violence is ever acceptable in any relationship.

Parents of trans kids already fear for their children's safety, which is demonstrated in the below testimony submitted on behalf of a family who does not feel safe publicly identifying themselves due to violence and discrimination that is perpetrated against trans people:

"We are the proud parents of two strong, brave, and kind daughters. They play, laugh, argue, create, and love each other fiercely. They love digging in the dirt, making art, building with legos, dressing up, jumping on their trampoline, riding their bikes, and taking care of their dog. One of our daughters is transgender and one of our daughters is cisgender. They both deserve to live in a world where neither faces discrimination or exclusion based on gender identity or biological sex. And this proposed bill is a shameful act of discrimination and exclusion: any attempt to exclude certain people is bullying. Those of you involved in the creation and proposal of this bill should be ashamed of yourselves. You are perpetuating violence against children. To the trans youth and trans community, we say this: we will never stop fighting for your rights. We are tireless. We will not be stopped."

This testimony illustrates the life of two young girls living in Wisconsin and corrects the narrative that to oppose this legislation is sexist. This bill does not do anything to protect girls – it actively harms them.

When we send the message that certain people don't deserve equality or basic rights, it can normalize mistreatment and violence against them. We must not allow Trans children to be attacked and targeted. Please oppose this unnecessary and harmful legislation and allow young people to live and be who they are.

If you have any questions about End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin's position on this issue, please contact me at jennag@endabusewi.org.

RE: In opposition to WI AB100 - Designating athletic sports and teams operated or sponsored by public schools or private schools participating in a parental choice program based on the sex of the participants.

Dear Honorable Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to WI AB100, which seeks to impose statewide mandates restricting athletic participation based solely on sex assigned at birth. Wisconsin has a long-standing tradition of local control in education, recognizing that communities are best positioned to make decisions that serve their students' needs. This bill undermines that principle and threatens to erode the trust and autonomy of local school districts in fostering inclusive and supportive environments for all students.

In the Shorewood School District, we understand the critical role that school sports and activities play in students' development. Athletics provide not only physical benefits but also foster teamwork, self-confidence, and a sense of belonging. Restrictive policies that exclude transgender and non-binary students from participating in sports consistent with their gender identity run counter to evidence-based best practices and guidance from major medical and psychological organizations, including the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Psychological Association. These organizations affirm that inclusive athletic policies benefit all students and do not compromise competitive fairness.

Research consistently demonstrates that transgender and non-binary students face higher rates of mental health challenges, including anxiety, depression, and suicidal ideation. When schools and communities adopt inclusive policies that affirm students' identities, these risks decrease significantly. Restricting transgender students from participation sends a harmful message of exclusion and discrimination that directly impacts their well-being and sense of belonging.

Furthermore, Wisconsin's commitment to local control means that school boards—elected by their communities—are best equipped to determine policies that serve their students. This bill represents an overreach that disregards the ability of local school boards to make decisions in the best interest of their students and communities. Simply put, WI AB100 does not reflect the values we uphold in Shorewood.

I urge you to oppose this bill and instead support policies that affirm Wisconsin's commitment to local control and evidence-based approaches to student inclusion and support. Ensuring that all students have access to athletic opportunities is not only beneficial—it is essential to ensuring that every child in Wisconsin has the opportunity to thrive.

Thank you for your leadership and service to every student in Wisconsin.

Sincerely,

Testimony

To: Members of the Assembly Committee on Education
From: Wisconsin Coalition Against Sexual Assault (WCASA)
Date: March 6, 2025
Re: Assembly Bill 100
Position: Oppose

The Wisconsin Coalition Against Sexual Assault (WCASA) appreciates the opportunity to offer this written testimony for your consideration. WCASA is a hybrid organization: functioning both to support member Sexual Assault Service Providers (SASPs), while advancing the anti -sexual assault movement in the state and nationally.

Transgender girls participate in college sports for the same reasons as everyone else: to improve overall health and fitness, to be part of a team, and to foster friendships and sense of belonging. Furthermore, studies have demonstrated the benefits of girls participating in sports, including enhancing leadership skills and self-confidence¹. When we tell transgender girls they cannot play girls' sports, they are deprived of these important experiences and all the lessons they can teach.

Ensuring girls' athletics is on a level playing field is an important goal. That is why laws like Title IX have been so important when it comes to girls' sports. If we want to meaningfully support girls' athletics at the K-12 level, we should focus our efforts on increasing investment in women's coaches and strengthening Title IX to protect female athletes from harassment and abuse. Banning transgender girls from participating in sports does nothing to address these issues.

However, this legislation compounds the discrimination transgender people already experience in their daily lives and sends a dangerous message that they are not welcome on sports teams. For example, transgender people experience higher rates of bullying, anxiety, and depression², all of which will be exacerbated if they are not allowed to participate in sports because of their gender identity. Additionally, transgender women and girls face discrimination and violence that make it difficult to stay in school. For example, 22% of transgender women who were perceived as transgender in school were harassed to such an extent that they had to leave school because of it.³ These data contradict the notion that transgender girls have an unfair advantage when participating on women's sports team. Finally, forcing transgender girls to participate on teams that do not align with their gender exposes them to range of serious negative impacts. This includes gender dysphoria and continually being mis-gendered, which increases the risk of suicide, self-harm, and bullying.

Transgender people are also disproportionately impacted by sexual violence, as nearly half of all transgender adults report experiencing sexual assault⁴. Those rates are even higher for Black and Native American transgender people, who thus experience intersecting discrimination and violence related to race and gender identity/expression⁵. Furthermore, this bill is rooted not just in transphobia, but also anti-Black racism, as the main cases cited by proponents of similar legislation across the country involve two young Black women athletes in Connecticut. Black women in sports have long been subject to racist depictions about their femininity or have been accused of cheating in an effort to keep them from competing. Instead of focusing efforts on preventing transgender athletes from participating in sports, we would be better served by ensuring they are treated with dignity and respect by welcoming them K-12 sports teams.

Finally, this legislation is a solution in search of a problem. Openly transgender athletes are exceedingly rare, with fewer than 10 competing at the NCAA level.⁶ In Wisconsin, there were only four transgender women playing WIAA competitive sports, according to the Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators.⁷ For all the reasons stated above, WCASA opposes AB 100, and we urge this committee to take no further action on this legislation. Thank you for your consideration. If you have any questions, you can reach me at ianh@wcasa.org.

Testimony in Favor of Assembly Bill 100

March 6, 2026

Chairman Kitchens and Members of the Assembly Committee on Education: Thank you for the opportunity to testify today in favor of Assembly Bill 100. My name is Luke Berg, and I am an attorney with the Wisconsin Institute for Law & Liberty.

Fifty years ago, Congress enacted Title IX to equalize athletic opportunities for girls. That legislation has been a resounding success, such that millions of girls now participate in sports during their K-12 years. But what Title IX achieved is being undermined and undone by policies that force female athletes to compete against boys claiming to be girls. The bill before you preserves competitive fairness and safety by limiting girls' sports to girls.

The reality is that boys have significant physical advantages over girls. The science on this is well settled¹ and confirmed by common sense and recent experience. Since we began this experiment of allowing boys to compete against girls, there have been more and more examples of the unfair advantages boys have. Riley Gaines, the swimmer from Kentucky, and Selina Soule, Chelsea Mitchell, and Alanna Smith, track runners from Connecticut, are just a few prominent examples of girls losing out on championships to biological boys.

Achieving competitive success in sport takes an enormous amount of dedication and effort. Imagine how girls must feel to put in all that hard work, only to lose to a male athlete with biological advantages. It's not just disheartening; it also undermines the recognition—and the future opportunities tied to success—that they rightfully deserve. Worse yet, watching this happen to others disincentivizes the next generation of female athletes from even putting forth the effort.

This is also a safety issue. To give just one example, Payton McNabb, a high school volleyball player from North Carolina, was severely injured by a transgender male athlete who spiked the ball in her face much harder than any of her female opponents could have. She suffered a concussion, brain bleed, partial paralysis, and vision loss. Many girls who face male competitors are being forced to forfeit their matches to protect themselves.

I would hope this would be a bipartisan issue. According to a recent New York Times poll, nearly 80% of Americans—including almost 70% of Democrats—believe that transgender, male athletes should not be allowed to compete against girls. And half the states have already enacted laws like the one before you.

In short, forcing girls to compete against boys is unfair, unsafe, and unjust. I would strongly encourage the Committee to support the bill.

WISCONSIN COUNCIL OF CHURCHES
COURAGE. JUSTICE. HOLY IMAGINATION.

To: Committee on Education
From: Rev. Breanna Illéné, Director of Ecumenical Innovation and Justice Initiatives, Wisconsin Council of Churches
Re: Testimony in opposition to Assembly Bill 100

The Wisconsin Council of Churches (WCC) is a network of Christian churches and faith-based organizations committed to working together across our many differences to promote collective good. We connect 23 Christian traditions, which have within them approximately 2,000 congregations and over one million church members. Exercising holy imagination, we help one another make courageous choices that lead toward peacemaking, social and economic justice for Wisconsin's most vulnerable residents, the vitality of the church, and the well-being of our neighbors.

As a Council, we have adopted a Statement on Nonviolence that reminds us that "Faithfulness to its mission requires the Church to speak out against violence, minister to its victims, and work tirelessly to reduce the level of violence in society." We come here today to decry the violence in AB 100.

Transgender individuals are unnecessarily under attack, and this legislation is just one of many items currently before our state legislature that cause undue harm to a marginalized community. This bill empowers those who practice hate speech and hateful action. Both are spiritually harmful. We believe that transgender students are children of God who deserve a dignified existence and full inclusion in all parts of school life, including participation in sports.

While it may seem strange to have a group of churches and people of faith speaking on sports, the reality is that we share some commonalities. Sports teams, just like our churches, are meant to be shared spaces to bring people together and build people up. They create community and provide outlets for health, wellness, and collaboration. This bill fails to do any of those things and does quite the opposite. It creates needless division and punishes our young people simply for being who they are in the world.

Our faith teaches that God is relentless in pursuit of well-being for the world and its inhabitants. As Christians, we are called to facilitate communities of well-being, and public policy that does not harm. In this spirit of love and accountability, we reject AB 100 on its merits, and we ask this body to do the same.

Thank you for your time.

Regarding AB100

To the Assembly Committee on Education:

Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

Mark 12:31

Imagine your daughter comes home from a track meet sobbing. Her team won, but someone on the other team accused her of being transgender. They demand she be expelled from the team.

True or not, this type of exclusion hurts all students' right to equally play sports. This bill would require the gender police to investigate your daughter's sex. Young girls deal with enough pressure to look and act a certain way. Adding more stress to girls in sports is unnecessary and cruel.

My name is Tessa Price. I am a substitute teacher in Madison. I often work with students with special needs at public schools. The Equal Educational Opportunities Act (EEOA) requires every state to provide equal educational opportunity to every person.

Sports are part of the education provided by schools. They serve as team building spaces, exercise, and ways to bring people together from any background.

AB100, which demands segregating by sex at birth, discriminates against a tiny minority of youth who are already vulnerable.

These students have rights like any other. In 2020, the US Supreme Court decided In Bostock v. Clayton County that the protections against sex discrimination laid out in Title VII of the Civil Rights Act protects against discrimination based on gender identity. In this way, segregating sports by sex is itself sex discrimination.

There is no proof of any advantage in sports by sex, alone. Height, weight, and hormones are much more demonstrative. There is no evidence of danger from trans people being included in sports. These claims are fabricated by lobbyists whose job is to fight against all LGBT people.

Instead, we can work for a future of understanding and inclusion in sports. We can celebrate the beauty of diversity. We can make sure that every student has the opportunity to play sports in schools. AB100 is an overreach of the state government into the classroom. I urge committee members to vote AGAINST AB100.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY & TRANS STUDENTS IN WISCONSIN SCHOOLS

Our team's past research indicates the number of students identifying with transgender and other gender-expansive identities has expanded with greater information, dialogue, and acceptance. More than 4% of grade 9-12 students participating in Wisconsin's 2023 Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS) indicated they were transgender (trans) or questioning their gender identity. This brief describes differences in the reported physical activity of trans and questioning youth with their cisgender peers.

KEY TERMS

- TRANS: Wisconsin students indicating their gender is transgender or questioning.
- CISGENDER: Wisconsin students indicating their gender is cisgender.

The Physical Activity and Wellbeing of Wisconsin Trans Youth

In our analysis of over 300,000 Wisconsin high school students who took the 2019, 2021, and 2023 Youth Behavior Risk Survey, trans and other questioning youth are less likely to report being physically active when compared to their cisgender peers. As illustrated in Figure 1, trans youth report that they were physically active for at least 60 minutes for an average of 2.7-2.8 days out of 7 days prior to taking the survey. Cisgender youth report being physically active for 3.8-4.2 days, depending upon the year. In sum, trans and questioning youth report 1-1.5 fewer days of exercising compared to cisgender youth.

The Importance of School-Based Athletics for Wisconsin Trans Youth

Leading medical, education, and health organizations have consistently highlighted the positive impact of transgender youth's involvement in sports in position and issue statements, including the American Academy of Pediatrics, National Federation of Athletic Associations, American Medical Association, Association for Applied Sports Psychology, American Academy of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, National Athletic Trainer's Association, and American Psychological Association. Research on the benefits of athletic participation for transgender K-12 students reveals that sports play a significant role in enriching their educational experiences (Clark & Kosciw, 2021). In addition to improving cardiovascular health, strengthening muscles, and enhancing overall fitness, regular exercise through athletic participation can reduce stress, anxiety, stress, and depression (see McQuillan, Eckes, et al., 2022 for review). High school athletics foster greater school belonging, communication, cooperation, teamwork, and other valuable life skills. Like other youth, transgender students who play sports also report a stronger sense of school belonging and improved well-being compared to peers who don't play school-based sports (Clark & Kosciw, 2021).

Written Testimony: AB100 (Designating athletic sports and teams based on the sex of the participants)

Members of the Education Committee:

Thank you for accepting my written testimony in lieu of personal attendance. I am writing in favor of the advancement of AB100 through committee.

The promise of Title IX, signed into federal law in 1972, is the protection of women's and girls' rights to unfettered access to equal opportunities in education and in sports. Our nation has intrinsically understood that the definition of "woman" and "girl" was constant and unchangeable – inherently female in every way imaginable, and one of only two sexes in all of creation (the other, obviously, being male). For decades, as with for the entirety of human existence (for God created mankind as "male" and "female"), our nation has demonstrated clear understanding of basic truth and observable biological fact. However, truth, fact, and common sense have come under attack on this topic, culminating in the Biden administration's horrendous Title IX Final Rule taking effect in August, 2024 that obliterated the lines of male and female to institute radical gender ideology into our laws.

While we now have remedies in progress at the federal level, we need to establish these protections through legislation at the state level. We cannot wait for the federal gears to finish grinding to protect the girls and women of our state. I'm thankful that Representative Dittrich and the rest of this bill's co-sponsors are acting swiftly to secure the rights and protections of our girls.

We don't need boys or men showering with girls in our public schools, as we've seen in Sun Prairie. We don't need to risk the safety of our girls on the diamond, the court, or the field of play. We should not restrict scholarships or recognition opportunities for our girls and young women in deference to a boy or young man who is confused, or possibly delusional, or simply wants to get cheap wins based on general physical advantages. Simply put, this wrong needs to be made right as quickly as possible for the sake of our state's sanity.

The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletics Association has clearly demonstrated that they're not serious about changing their policies on this front. It's time for the Assembly, the Senate, and Governor Evers to demonstrate the courage and common sense to clarify this through legislation so we never descend into this pit again. Thank you for advancing this bill; in doing so, you are protecting our girls and their access to equal opportunities in their sports and private spaces.

Please pass AB100 through committee as soon as possible. Thank you!

Sports are such an important part of life. The lessons learned from fair competition and teamwork, starting at a young age, are a foundation for success in life. In addition, learning that you may not always come out on top in any competition is an important life lesson. For as long as we can remember, there has been a separation in sports based on biological sex. This has not been for mere convenience. It is based on differences that exist between the biological sexes, and those differences have been known and universally accepted for millennia. Males have a higher percentage of muscle mass, higher testosterone levels, larger lung capacity, and are taller, heavier and faster on average. This gives them a huge advantage in competitions not separated by sex. A transgender female (i.e., a male who believes he is female after hormone and/or surgical treatment) maintains that distinct advantage over biological female athletes. This is simply unfair. If that transgender female went through male puberty, the transgender female has the muscular, bone, circulatory and other advantages that testosterone causes. Lia (Will) Thomas was nationally ranked 462nd among male swimmers while on the men's swim team at the University of Pennsylvania. After transitioning, the 6'4" Thomas won an NCAA Women's National Championship. Due to this, true biological females missed their deserved honors on the podium of national champions. In 1998, Serena and Venus Williams both lost challenge matches to the 203rd ranked male tennis player, Karsten Braasch. Each lost despite playing as hard as she could, and it was not even close. Braasch said he was not playing as hard as usual because he wanted to keep it "fun" and still win.

As physicians, we know a person's sex is determined by their chromosomes. Within that framework, there are many differences. A female can have some more masculine characteristics, as a male can have more feminine traits. This does not mean they are not female or male: they are just who they are. There are many awesome female athletes in middle school, high school and college. We need to protect them and their spaces. Many of us thrive on competition, but that competition must be fair. Please keep separate sports for males and females based on biological sex.

Sincerely,
David Spika, MD, and Karla Spika, MD

We all learned as children that there are two genders, male and female. This was confirmed to all my physician colleagues and me in medical school. No scientific discovery since then has changed this fact.

Individuals can see themselves as a different sex than their birth sex, but given that every single cell in their body is that of their birth sex, unfortunately for them, they cannot change their gender—no matter how they dress, what medicines they take, or what surgeries they undergo. So in essence, the term “transgender” is a misnomer.

Therefore, someone can make believe they have changed genders, but to require everyone else to play along with this belief is unscientific and nonsensical. This causes harm to both the “transgender” person and to those forced to accommodate and facilitate the behavior. This is especially true in the private personal setting of a school locker room. This harm has already happened in many locker rooms and restrooms around the country.

Some gender confusion is normal during development, and most even more severe cases resolve without treatment. Support and compassionate direction toward the truth are what these young people need. They do not need encouragement to further indulge in falsehoods. Such encouragement is not compassion at all. On the contrary, it only increases their confusion and suffering, which is cruel.

Let's take care of our precious youth, including both those who are confused about their gender and those who are not.

With respect,

Scott T. Weslow, MD

I am Dr. Daniel Koster, President of Physicians for Freedom. I submit these written remarks along with those of four of our members because our patient responsibilities prevent us from speaking in person.

To many people, it is absurd or unbelievable even to debate questions like whether males can truly become females, or compete in sports with the opposite sex after transitioning. The universal truth of sex differences set at conception and guiding development of every cell, organ and human (not to mention all animals and plants!) seems too obvious even to question. We see with our own eyes the frustration and unfairness of elite women swimmers losing to Lia (nee Will) Thomas. We see the barbarity and pain of biological males sending female opponents to the hospital in contact sports, or even volleyball. Yet we see so called experts, and media, and some fellow citizens nodding along approvingly, apparently unaware of the madness of it. Out of compassion and a decent desire to be good and fair, we question ourselves. We ask, "What have I missed? What do I have wrong?" And we keep silent.

To figure it out, we turn to experts. PFF and others with expertise are eager to provide all the information we can. Not here, as time does not allow, but here we do assert:

- that advocates of "gender affirming care" – including authorities like the AMA, American Academy of Pediatrics, American Psychological Association – are wrong;
- that gender is "assigned at birth" is wrong;
- that adults help kids by encouraging them to question their sex is wrong;
- that parents endanger their kids' by questioning transition is wrong;
- that males who transitioned can safely and fairly compete with female athletes is wrong;
- that children in pain and confusion are capable of making the best lifelong decisions -
- decisions which forever mutilate and sterilize them -- is wrong.

My name is Dr. Ray Schneider. I am the father of three daughters who played sports. I'm also the uncle of three nephews the same ages as my daughters. All of them played sports at a high level throughout grade school and high school. Having watched my daughters and nephews compete in sports, it is clear that there are differences in the physical ability between biological males and biological females. If, as a society and as a state, we allow biological males to compete in female sports, we will be doing untold harm to our children. Some say that hormones and surgeries can eliminate these sex differences, but scientific evidence, real life experience, and common sense all prove that they are wrong: Profound differences remain.

Girls' sports have come a long way in the last 40 years and have empowered girls to compete and experience the benefits of competition and the rewards of hard work in sports and in all of life. The psychological harms that girls would experience losing to biological males would lead girls to drop out of sports, wiping out all we have gained in the last 40 years. Boys also will be irreversibly harmed by the hormones, drugs and surgeries. On top of all this, it's just plain unfair.

This is one of the most important decisions of our time, and I don't think it requires a lot of discernment to get it right. No one is saying that transgender males or females cannot compete in sports; they have every right to play sports and should. The only reasonable and fair way to legislate this issue is for boys and girls to play sports based on their biological sex. Anything else will cause serious harm to our children and massive legislative confusion moving forward.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ray Schneider III

Hello, I am Autumn Fournier. I am one of the many young girls who experienced rapid onset gender dysphoria during the covid-19 pandemic- heavily influenced by trans activism on social media like most everyone before and after me. But I am not here to strictly talk to you about MY experience, I am here to talk to you about many experiences and horror stories that I have seen, heard, and told myself. When I was 12 i was horribly depressed, hated myself, hated my body, and hated my mind. I saw activism on the internet and thought "maybe that is what is wrong with me". So, when medical professionals and teachers heard this they immediately encouraged my social transition. If I went down that line for the rest of my life I would have been ruined. Many young women and girls are mutilated by the harmful gender ideology pushed by our modern radical idea of inclusion. "Inclusion" that ruins lives, breaks apart families, and sets back the triumphs of classic feminist ideals. Gender in itself is a box, a box that women have been trying to get out of for ages. When a woman or man is too feminine, too masculine, androgynous in his or her ways. That is okay, that is what women have been fighting for for years. There is no right or wrong way to be a man or a woman, it is a prerequisite that is decided long before we have a consciousness. Teaching school age children that you might be born a man and be a woman, or you were born a woman and be a man is a horrifying ideology. Can you imagine being told you might be born in the wrong body, the only body you have, one of the only things you cannot change, is wrong? That is horrifying. Instilling the fear that someone might have to rely on horrific surgeries and drugs to be who they really are, instead of telling children that no matter what you are like, you are perfect, you don't need to escape yourself. The rate of people transitioning has gone up 5000% since 2015, there is studies coming out that prove that the trans suicide rate is almost doubled after surgery, and there are studies that say a large majority desist from gender dysphoria if not socially or medically transitioned. The unfortunate truth in this ideology is that it is crumbling a generation of young men and women who are just a little more unique than their peers. Please, for the good of our society, save our youth from mutilating their bodies and destroying their minds.

Thank you,
Autumn Fournier

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lori Severson. I am a lifelong Madison resident, and I am a mother of three. My middle child is Transgender, and she is thankfully 20 years old so this bill would not affect her. But this bill would affect my neighbors, my friends, my youngest daughter's softball teammate as one example of many, and the dynamics of our public schools, which informs our entire community.

I am writing and I am here to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because all children, all people should have equal access to sports. It is widely understood that participation in sports is key to youth development. Physical activity, teamwork, developing soft skills, building confidence - so much is learned and experienced through sports. When transgender youth are supported, they show significant increases in self-esteem and general health. Being a kid is hard enough. We don't need politicians making it even harder for kids who are transgender. Preventing transgender kids from participating with their peers in sports would legally ostracize them, denying them physical activity, social outlets and the ability to be a part of a team is discriminatory and teaches other children and society at large that bullying, and harassment is ok, that separate but equal is ok, that hating others is ok. This is wrong. This is dangerous. And I urge you to vote no.

If passed, this bill will cost lives. At a time when LGBTQI youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

Sincerely,

Lori Severson

Good Morning,

I'm here to urge you to vote "No" on Assembly Bill 100. I'm a former adapted physical education teacher and recently received my doctorate from UW-Madison with my research focused on health promotion and health equity. My personal experience lead me to spend my life's work making physical activity accessible for all. As a child, I endured relentless bullying in school. This, along with other personal struggles, resulted in severe mental health difficulties, including suicidal ideation. One thing played a major role in why I'm still standing here today; participation in school sports. Because I had an outlet in gymnastics and color guard, I was able to process my emotions and find a sense of self worth that has carried me through life's hardships. Trans youth often face bullying on a much larger scale than I did. These children who find sports find more than just a group to be a part of. They find safety, confidence, and joy that every child deserves. This bill deprives them of these benefits of school sport participation. Even worse, the bill promotes discrimination likely to increase the emotional and physical violence these students already face. Ultimately, if this bill passes, trans youth will die, either due to the mental health impacts of discrimination or decreased safety at school. This bill has no real benefit to the people of Wisconsin. Please vote "No" on AB100, you'll be saving children's lives.

Thank you for your consideration,

Dr. Heather Katz

100

Honorable Members of the Committee on Education,

My name is Christopher Forgie have been a resident of Brookfield for over a decade with my wife and two children. I am here today to strongly oppose Wisconsin Assembly Bill 100, which aims to undermine the rights and well-being of transgender, intersex, and gender nonconforming students by preventing them from fully participating in interscholastic athletics in a manner consistent with their gender identity.

All students should have the opportunity to participate in school sports free from discrimination based on sex, including gender identity and transgender status. No young person should be scrutinized, judged, or excluded for their body shape, size, or gender expression. Playing sports is a major part of growing up, and everyone deserves the chance to play.

The latest scientific research is clear: trans women and girls do not show any advantage over cisgender girls and women, even at elite levels. For young people playing for fun, community, and life lessons, there is no scientific reason to scrutinize their bodies or exclude them—they simply deserve equal opportunities to play.

This bill does not protect women and girls in sports but instead targets transgender youth, exacerbating their marginalization. I urge the Committee to reject Wisconsin Assembly Bill 100 to protect the rights and well-being of all students in our schools.

Thank you for your consideration.

Christopher Forgie

Testimony in Support of AB 100

Hello, my name is Scarlett Johnson, I am here today representing Moms for Liberty-Wisconsin to urge your support for Assembly Bill 100—a bill to protect girls' sports in our K-12 schools. This legislation is a critical step toward ensuring fairness, safety, and opportunity for our daughters as it upholds the promise of Title IX, enacted in 1972 to ensure equal opportunity for women and girls in education, including athletics.

For decades, Title IX has been the bedrock of female athletic achievement, leveling the playing field our daughters rely on. Today, that promise is under threat. AB 100 aligns with President Trump's executive order, "Keeping Men Out of Women's Sports," signed on February 5, 2025, which recommitments the federal government to Title IX's original intent. Today, I'll present the facts, the stakes, and the overwhelming public support for this common-sense measure.

Let's start with fairness. Biological males competing in girls' sports don't just tip the scales—they shatter the playing field our daughters deserve. Based on a now defunct study in Journal of Sporting Cultures and Identities in 2015, one that included a sample size of only 8 participants—none of whom were actual athletes—athletic governing bodies began to loosen standards and allowed men in women's sports.

In a far more robust 2021 study, Hilton and Lundberg in Sports Medicine concluded that even after testosterone suppression, men retained advantages in muscle mass, strength, and skeletal structure (e.g., larger bones, greater lung capacity) from male puberty—traits not fully reversed by estrogen therapy. Another LANDMARK study by Roberts et al. (2021) in the British Journal of Sports Medicine analyzed U.S. Air Force personnel and found that men, after two years of hormone therapy, still vastly outperformed women. These findings highlighted that while testosterone suppression reduces some gaps, it doesn't eliminate all physiological differences like bone density or muscle fiber composition.

A 2023 update by World Athletics, informed by Hilton and Lundberg's work and broader biomechanical analyses, banned transgender women who had gone through male puberty from elite women's track and field events, citing persistent advantages in power and speed metrics. Similarly, FINA (now World Aquatics) in 2022 barred transgender women from elite swimming unless they transitioned before age 12 or Tanner Stage 2 of puberty, referencing studies showing retained strength and cardiovascular capacity post-transition. These decisions represent a growing consensus among some scientists that male puberty provides lasting advantages. For example, males may gain a 10-50% increase in muscle strength, and their larger hearts and lungs allow them to deliver more oxygen to their tissues, which enhances endurance. Additionally, males tend to be taller, have broader shoulders, and possess denser bones, which offer better leverage according to Lundberg's research. Hormone therapy does not fully mitigate these advantages.

These differences are not opinions; they are facts rooted in human biology. Over 40 peer-reviewed long-term studies (some of which I have linked in my testimony) indicate that even after testosterone suppression, males still maintain a significant advantage in strength and power over females. This issue is not about inclusion; it's a rigged game our daughters can't win.

The evidence is clear: over the past four years:

900 titles and medals have been awarded to males competing in all-female athletic categories in America.

In Pennsylvania, 69 female athletes have lost their placements to males.

In Connecticut, two transgender girls claimed 15 state titles between 2017 and 2019, denying victories to biological girls. That number has more than doubled since then.

Last week, a male high schooler in CA out-jumped female triple-jump competitors by 8 feet—not an achievement, but an outrage. Last year in Ohio, just seven males, even after hormone therapy, dominated girls' events.

And here in Green Bay parents and girls at Southwest High School raised alarms when a transgender-identifying biological male was allowed to try out for the girls' volleyball team. Many demoralized girls suffered bruises, welts, and injuries during summer practices with this powerful male athlete—yet the district dismissed their safety concerns and this male was not only allowed on the girls varsity team, but could shower and change with the girls.

This is insanity. Here it's not just fairness at stake—it's safety. When a biological male with greater size, speed, and strength collides with a girl on the field or court, the risk of injury spikes. Our daughters shouldn't have to fear for their well-being to chase their passion. And beyond safety, there's opportunity. Titles, Trophies, scholarships, and lifelong memories are being stolen—not by skill or grit, but by biology they can't outrun.

Yet there's hope. Last weekend, at the USA Track and Field Open Masters Championships in Staten Island, teenage girls took a stand. Camden Schreiner, a biological male who'd broken women's records for years, lined up for the 400-meter race. But every female competitor refused to run. They walked away from the charade—and I say, good for them. That courage should inspire us here today.

This legislation (AB 100) clearly states that girls' sports are for girls, period. Public opinion supports this view. A January 2025 New York Times poll found that 79% of Americans oppose males competing in women's sports, including 94% of Republicans, 67% of Democrats, and 64% of Independents. Locally, a Marquette University Law School poll from October 2024 revealed that 72% of Wisconsin adults reject the participation of males in girls' athletics, with only 22% in favor. This issue transcends partisan lines; regular people recognize that all-female categories in athletics is fundamentally about fairness, and the only fear female athletes and their parents have is for their physical and psychological safety. This is valid, not extreme.

Our daughters aren't pawns in a social experiment—they're competitors with hopes and dreams worth protecting. AB 100 doesn't deny anyone the chance to compete; it ensures everyone competes on a level field, in categories that respect biological reality.

Opponents may argue that so-called "transgender" athletes represent a minority, but their rarity does not negate impact. If just one girl is affected by the inclusion of a biological male in girls' sports, that is one too many. So I ask you: Will you let our daughters' victories be erased, their safety compromised, their futures dimmed? Please pass AB 100. Protect girls' sports. Give Wisconsin females the opportunity they've earned—not just to compete, but to win. Thank you.

Much of the effort to protect women's sports is happening at the state and local levels. That's why parents play such a crucial role; they are a significant defense against setbacks like what occurred on Monday in the Senate. Regardless of what happens in Washington DC, we must speak out to safeguard the basic rights of women and girls and work to restore common sense to our laws. We are not going to win every fight, but we sure are going to stay in the fight. Thank you to all the parents and grandparents who are in the arena. We salute you.

We won't rest until every young woman and girl is able to:

 Enjoy her sport without having to worry about facing a male in her locker room*

 Not worry about being forced or pressured to use incorrect pronouns when speaking to a male teammate, or*

 Compete on a level playing field, without losing a competition or opportunity to a male athlete*

Fight. Fight. Fight.

There is a growing body of research examining whether testosterone suppression in males at birth who “transition” to female eliminates the athletic advantages typically associated with male physiology. Several studies suggest that while testosterone suppression reduces some aspects of physical performance, it does not fully equalize the advantages derived from male puberty, such as greater muscle mass, bone density, and other structural differences. Below, I'll summarize key findings from relevant studies based on available scientific literature up to March 6, 2025. Note that I'm focusing on longitudinal studies and reviews that directly address this question, avoiding speculative or anecdotal claims.

One prominent study published in Sports Medicine in 2021 by Hilton and Lundberg reviewed the effects of testosterone suppression on muscle mass and strength in transgender women. The analysis found that after 12 months of testosterone suppression (typically to levels below 10 nmol/L, as required by many sports policies), the loss of lean body mass, muscle area, and strength was only about 5%. This modest reduction suggests that the muscular advantage developed during male puberty—often cited as 10-50% greater than female peers depending on the sport—is only minimally diminished. The study concludes that this retained advantage could remain significant in competitive contexts where small margins determine outcomes.

Another longitudinal study, published in the British Journal of Sports Medicine in 2021 by Roberts et al., examined U.S. Air Force personnel undergoing gender-affirming hormone therapy. Before treatment, transgender women outperformed cisgender women by 31% in push-ups, 15% in sit-ups, and 21% in 1.5-mile run times. After two years of testosterone suppression, push-up and sit-up differences disappeared, aligning with cisgender female averages. However, run times remained 12% faster than biological women, indicating that some advantages—likely tied to skeletal structure or cardiovascular capacity—persisted despite hormone therapy. This study suggests that while some performance metrics adjust, others tied to prior testosterone exposure do not fully equalize.

A 2022 study in Transwoman Elite Athletes further explored this issue, noting that anatomical differences like height, bone length, and hemoglobin levels (which affect oxygen delivery) are not reversed by estrogen therapy or testosterone suppression. Even when testosterone levels are suppressed to female ranges (<2 nmol/L), these structural advantages—developed during puberty—can persist for years, if not indefinitely. The study argues that in elite sports, where winning margins are often less than 1%, these residual advantages could be decisive.

Additionally, research on androgen-deprivation therapy in non-athletic populations (e.g., men with prostate cancer) supports the idea that muscle mass and strength decline slowly and incompletely after testosterone suppression. Studies show that exercise can mitigate muscle loss, suggesting that highly trained athletes might retain even more of their pre-suppression capacity. While not directly about transgender athletes, this evidence aligns with findings that active individuals lose less muscle mass (e.g., Lundberg, 2022), reinforcing the notion that suppression alone doesn't erase prior advantages.

Critically, these studies highlight that testosterone is not the sole factor in male athletic advantage. Over 3,000 genes influence muscle differences between sexes, and skeletal features like wider shoulders or narrower pelvises—set during puberty—remain unaffected by hormone therapy. Policies requiring only 12 months of suppression (e.g., IOC guidelines) may underestimate these lasting effects, as evidenced by the consistent finding of retained performance gaps in running and strength-based tasks after longer periods.

However, the data isn't unanimous. Some research, like Harper's 2015 study on transgender runners, suggests that after testosterone suppression, race times slow to match age-graded norms for biological women, implying no advantage. BUT THIS STUDY ONLY SAMPLED EIGHT PARTICIPANTS, and focused on non-elite athletes!

Olympics:

The IOC's approach to transgender participation has evolved significantly over the past two decades, driven by a mix of emerging studies, advocacy, and pushback from various stakeholders. Initially, in 2004, the IOC adopted the "Stockholm Consensus," allowing transgender athletes to compete in their affirmed gender category if they had undergone gender-affirming surgery and maintained hormone therapy for at least two years. This was based on limited data at the time, largely assuming surgery and hormone treatment negated any prior male athletic advantage.

By 2015, the IOC loosened these requirements, influenced by early studies suggesting hormone therapy alone could level the playing field. A key study informing this shift was by Joanna Harper (published in 2015 in the Journal of Sporting Cultures and Identities), which examined eight transgender women runners. Harper found that after a year of testosterone suppression, their performance aligned more closely with cisgender women's times, suggesting no inherent advantage remained. This small study, despite its limited scope and self-reported data, was pivotal in the IOC's decision to drop the surgery requirement and set a testosterone threshold of 10 nanomoles per liter (nmol/L) for transgender women, maintained for at least 12 months prior to competition. The policy reflected a growing sentiment that inclusion should take precedence, supported by the idea that testosterone was the primary driver of athletic differences between sexes.

However, this framework faced criticism as more robust research emerged, challenging the assumption that hormone therapy fully erases male advantage. A 2021 study by Hilton and Lundberg in Sports Medicine reviewed existing literature and concluded that even after testosterone suppression, transgender women retained advantages in muscle mass, strength, and skeletal structure (e.g., larger bones, greater lung capacity) from male puberty—traits not fully reversed by estrogen therapy. Another study by Roberts et al. (2021) in the British Journal of Sports Medicine analyzed U.S. Air Force personnel and found that transgender women, after two years of hormone therapy, still outperformed cisgender women in push-ups and sit-ups, though running times converged more closely. These findings highlighted that while testosterone suppression reduces some gaps, it doesn't eliminate all physiological differences stemming from male puberty, like bone density or muscle fiber composition.

The tide began turning as sports federations and public sentiment reacted to high-profile cases, like transgender swimmer Lia Thomas winning an NCAA title in 2022. This prompted a reevaluation of policies, with critics arguing the IOC's 2015 rules prioritized inclusion over fairness. In November 2021, the IOC issued a new "Framework on Fairness, Inclusion, and Non-Discrimination," shifting responsibility to individual sports federations to set eligibility rules based on "robust and peer-reviewed science." This pivot was partly a response to mounting evidence and pressure, though the IOC didn't explicitly cite specific studies in the framework. Instead, it acknowledged past policies might have caused harm and avoided mandating testosterone limits, leaving room for stricter rulings.

Subsequent studies further influenced specific sports to restrict transgender women's participation in women's events, effectively barring those who transitioned after male puberty. A 2023 update by World Athletics, informed by Hilton and Lundberg's work and broader biomechanical analyses, banned transgender women who had gone through male puberty from elite women's track and field events, citing persistent advantages in power and speed metrics. Similarly, FINA (now World Aquatics) in 2022 barred transgender women from elite swimming unless they transitioned before age 12 or Tanner Stage 2 of puberty, referencing studies showing retained strength and cardiovascular capacity post-transition. These decisions reflected a growing consensus among some scientists that male puberty confers lasting advantages—e.g., a 10-50% edge in muscle strength, per Lundberg’s research—that hormone therapy doesn’t fully mitigate.

These policies, while rooted in scientific research, have sparked significant controversy and ethical debates. Critics argue that such regulations are discriminatory and infringe on the rights of transgender athletes. They also point out that the scientific evidence is often inconclusive, with many studies showing that transgender athletes can perform at elite levels even after hormone therapy. The World Health Organization (WHO) has expressed concerns about the potential for abuse of hormone therapy in sports, but also emphasizes the need for a balanced and evidence-based approach to the issue.

The controversy surrounding transgender athletes in sports is a complex one, involving issues of fairness, equality, and the integrity of competition. On the one hand, there is a strong argument for allowing transgender athletes to compete in their preferred gender, as this is a matter of basic human rights and dignity. On the other hand, there is a concern that allowing transgender athletes to compete in elite sports could give them an unfair advantage, particularly in power and speed metrics. This is where the scientific research comes in. While some studies suggest that transgender athletes can perform at elite levels even after hormone therapy, others suggest that they may still have some advantages, particularly in muscle strength and cardiovascular capacity. The challenge is to find a way to balance these competing interests and ensure that the sport remains fair and competitive for all athletes.

One of the key challenges in this debate is the lack of consistent and reliable data. Many of the studies that have been conducted on transgender athletes are small and have methodological limitations. This makes it difficult to draw definitive conclusions about the effects of hormone therapy on athletic performance. Additionally, there is a need for more research on the long-term effects of hormone therapy on health and well-being. While hormone therapy can help to feminize transgender women, it can also have side effects, such as changes in bone density and cardiovascular health. These factors must be taken into account when making decisions about the eligibility of transgender athletes for elite sports.

As the debate continues, it is clear that a balanced and evidence-based approach is needed. This means that decisions about the eligibility of transgender athletes should be based on the best available scientific evidence, while also taking into account the principles of fairness and equality. It is also important to ensure that transgender athletes have access to the same resources and support as their cisgender counterparts. Only by taking a holistic and inclusive approach can we ensure that all athletes have the opportunity to excel in their sport.

Dear Committee Members,

I am unable to attend the hearing on Bill 872 Saving Girls Sports k-12, therefore, I am submitting my written testimony.

As a parent and/or grandparent one of our primary responsibilities is to ensure the safety and wellbeing of our family – along with many other responsibilities of being a parent. When we send our children and grandchildren to school we are entrusting the schools to ensure their safety and wellbeing; however, that does not seem to be the case in today's society.

By allowing biological males who identify as a transwoman to compete in female sports and to enter bathrooms and locker rooms where it used to be safe for our girls, it exposes our female children to possible physical and social emotional harm, up to and including trauma. This is not acceptable to most parents.

A few facts:

In March of 2021 the American College of Pediatricians published a paper titled Sex Is a Biological Trait of Medical Significance – here is an excerpt for purposes of today's discussion...

In humans, primary sex determination occurs at fertilization and is directed by a complement of sex determining genes on the X and Y chromosomes. This genetic signature is present in every nucleated somatic cell and is not altered by drugs or surgical interventions.

Pediatricians do not “assign” an infant's sex; they announce it based upon the physical reality of the infant's body before them. This growing movement to deny the physical reality of sexual dimorphism requires a dangerous dismissal of both science and medical ethics, one that will cause severe harm to individuals and society at large if embraced.

In a document from Stats for gender.org they published the following:

A systematic review of 24 studies concluded that while male-to female transitioners (transwoman) do experience a decrease in muscle mass; values for strength and muscle area in transwomen remain above those of biological women, even after 36 months of hormone therapy.

In another study it stated testosterone's role in athletic performance is well-documented. Males typically have higher testosterone levels during puberty, leading to greater muscle development and skeletal advantages (e.g., larger lungs, broader shoulders). Critics argue that hormone therapy doesn't fully reverse these effects. A 2021 review in Sports Medicine noted that while transgender women's muscle mass decreases with testosterone suppression, it often remains higher than that of cisgender women for years, if not indefinitely.

I fully support LRP 872 which applies to K-12 Schools, ensuring fair competition and opportunities for girls in public and private school athletics. I agree that there are only 2 sexes, male and female. I support not allowing biological males to compete with biological females.

Dear Committee Members,

Unfortunately I am unable to attend the hearing on Bill 880 Saving Girls Sports in our Universities. I am submitting this as my written testimony.

Recent polling shows that a vast amount of Wisconsinites oppose allowing biological males to compete in female athletics. This isn't about politics, it is about common sense.

Females deserve a level playing field. I urge you to support and pass LRB 880 and protect ALL female athletes at Universities from enduring what Riley Gaines and Peyton McNabb have experienced. We should be protecting females from the physical and mental trauma of having to compete against men. I have two young adorable grandchildren that I hope will be safeguarded from this when they grow up and attend college and play athletics. This is about right versus wrong. Please show that you care and want females protected.

Thank you,

Assembly Committee on Education
C/o Representative Kitchens, Chair
Re: Written Testimony, Assembly Bill 100 (2025-2026 Legislative Cycle)

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jake Krueger, and I am a constituent of Assembly District 21, State Senate District 7, and a proud high school mathematics educator. I am here today to voice my opposition to Assembly Bill 100, otherwise known as the “Transgender Sports Ban.”

Being a math teacher, I have the privilege of teaching statistics and probability to my students, and I’d love to share some statistics with you today. One example that I give in class is your chances of being born a twin; that’s about a 4% chance. Another example is the probability of getting struck by lightning in your lifetime; according to the National Weather Service, that’s about a 0.006% chance. We’re also coming up on Saint Patrick’s Day, so it feels especially relevant here: you have a 1 in 10,000 chance of finding a four leaf clover; that’s a 0.01% chance of finding some extra luck this month.

As fun as those statistics may be, the reality is that the statistics surrounding our transgender athletes are much more grim. A recent report from the Trevor Project, a nationwide LGBTQ+ advocacy group, tells us that in the State of Wisconsin alone, 44% of our transgender and non-binary young people considered suicide in the past year. Moreover, because of the way transgender students are actively not supported— and in some cases, actively discriminated against, as in this bill— the report tells us that in the past year 12% of our transgender and nonbinary young people have attempted suicide in the state of Wisconsin. Let me say that again: twelve percent of transgender and nonbinary young people— or forty-two children— in Wisconsin attempted suicide last year— that means that a transgender student had a higher chance of trying to kill themselves than being a twin, than getting struck by lightning, than finding a four leaf clover. We are failing our students.

One of my great privileges as an educator is being an advisor and a facilitator for the Gender and Sexuality Alliance (or GSA) at my school. Every time that we meet, the students blow me away with their grace and poise and their ability to talk about difficult topics. We recently met to discuss the local athletic association’s decision to change their policy on transgender athletes, and one of our transgender students described her experiences as a trans girl in our school. She spoke about how she feared that people would judge her, that people would treat her differently, that she wouldn’t even be allowed to try out for the sport she so desperately wanted to play. A student like her should be worried about classes and friends and her upcoming prom, not whether or not she’s going to get transphobic hate spewed at her on the soccer field. We are failing our students.

The proportions of transgender athletes in high schools can be hard to accurately track due to student privacy concerns, but organizations like Harvard, USA Today, and the NCAA themselves have all estimated that the percentage of transgender athletes in K-12 is less than 0.002% of all student athletes. Even organizations that prop up bills like AB 100 admit that they can only find less than 10 instances of transgender athletes competing in sports according to their gender identity and not their birth sex. There are more students attempting suicide in Wisconsin than transgender athletes in K-12 sports! And yet we are spending taxpayer time, energy, and money passing legislation that disproportionately affects our most vulnerable students. We are failing our students.

At my school, we prioritize relationship building above all else when it comes to students. I would never want any of my cisgender students to feel singled out or discriminated against in my classroom. I put in time and effort to make my room feel safe and comfortable for those students. So why are we not doing the same for our transgender students? Why can’t they also feel comfortable in school? In the locker rooms? On the soccer field? We are failing our students, and we cannot sit by and do nothing about it. We are failing our students and we need to fight back against transphobia like this bill that unfairly discriminates against them. I encourage you to vote down this bill, and support our transgender students. Thank you.

Testimony for AB 100

Chairman Kitchens, esteemed committee members, I'm the Reverend Hannah Roberts Villnave, and I serve as one of the ministers at the Fox Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship up in Appleton, WI. I'm here today to voice my vehement opposition to Assembly Bill 100.

I'm a born and raised Wisconsinite and proud graduate of the Racine Unified School District. Now that my daughter is a kindergartner in the Appleton Area School District, I hope that as she grows, she takes advantage of the opportunities to learn about teamwork, discipline, and perseverance through participating in team sports at her schools. But I also want all of her peers, regardless of their genders, to have the same opportunities. And that means letting trans kids play sports with other kids of their same gender.

As a Unitarian Universalist minister, I believe that all people of all genders are reflections of the divine image, created in beautiful complexity and imbued with inherent worth and dignity. I teach my kids that, too. And I teach them that public school is a place where everyone gets to learn and grow and thrive. For trans kids that means getting to play sports with peers of the same gender. This impacts a very small number of athletes directly, but the message of discrimination inherent in this bill rings loud and clear to trans and queer kids across our state.

I urge you to oppose Assembly Bill 100 and let every kid play.

Dear Wisconsin assembly members on education,

My name is Ryan. I've been living in Madison for the past 5 years. I'm a PhD student at UW-Madison studying biomedical data science. I'm also a transman (meaning that I was assigned female at birth and have since transitioned to male) and an avid participant in sports. These days, I mainly play soccer and hockey. In light of this bill's intention to "keep men out of women's sports", it is ironic that this bill would require the 12th grade version of me to play on the girls' soccer and hockey teams.

Growing up, sports were an integral part of my childhood. At a young age, I began aligning myself with the boys' during sports whenever possible, playing with the boys during soccer at recess and joining the boys when our PE class was separated. However, I was still made to play on the girls' teams during organized sports. Although my teammates were supportive, I never quite fit in, and I never felt like I belonged on those teams. It wasn't until I officially came out as transgender and began playing on boys' and mens' teams that I truly felt comfortable and like I belonged. Playing sports, and specifically playing sports on the team aligned with my gender identity, has been a lifeline for me, and this bill aims to take that away from Wisconsin children.

This bill affects youth sports, so let's consider the goals of K-12 sports. When you enroll your 7 year old in soccer, you're probably hoping that they'll develop friendships, build their confidence, and get some of their wild energy out. When you encourage your high schooler to run track, you're probably hoping that they'll learn teamwork, discipline, proper exercise techniques, and healthy physical habits. This bill will take all of that away from trans youth. Trans youth are already one of the most vulnerable subpopulations of our children. In addition to the turmoil of childhood and adolescence that all youth face, trans youth are experiencing gender dysphoria, social stigma, ostracization from their peers, and all too often mistreatment from adults in their life. And now this bill wants to take away one of the social and emotional outlets that trans youth have by banning them from sports.

And for what? To protect fairness in youth sports? There will always be unfairness in sports due to biological differences. There was a boy in my high school who was 7'6"; without a doubt that gave him an advantage on the volleyball team. One of my elementary school friends hit puberty early; in 4th grade he was five feet tall with a mustache. Not coincidentally, he dominated in soccer, even playing on the junior olympics team for several years. Why is it that these cis kids were celebrated and praised for their uniqueness while trans kids are demonized for theirs? If fairness in youth sports is truly something that the legislature wants to address, then why don't we make sure that all children have access to adequate nutrition and reduce economic inequality so that youth have the same athletic training opportunities? This bill is simply a slightly-veiled opportunity to attack transpeople. And devastatingly, its harm is focused on trans youth.

These are the main points that I would like to make, but I'll also note that this bill will affect cis youth too. The bill requires that all scholastic athletic teams are expressly designated as either male or female. Right now, many sports in elementary school are mixed gender, and some sports like ultimate frisbee continue to have competitive mixed gender leagues through adulthood. The way this bill is written, these mixed gender youth sports would all be discontinued.

Please vote no on AB100 (as well as the 3 other anti-trans bills currently under proposal). The many benefits of youth sports should be available to all Wisconsin children.

Additionally, after hearing testimonies today about AB103, I would to address a point of disconnect during the testimony today. Representatives backing this bill have been claiming that if a student comes out as transgender to their teacher, the teacher is not required to out students to their parents. And in the strictest sense that is true. However, it is only true if the teachers do not use the student's preferred name or pronouns. Let's think about how this situation would play out. If a student comes out to their teacher as transgender, and asks the teacher to use a different name and pronouns, the teacher's only options are (1) to out the student to their parents in order to use the student's preferred name and pronouns or (2) continue using the incorrect name and pronouns against the student's request. I can tell you that it would have been incredibly hurtful if, after building up the courage to come out to a teacher, they continued to use the incorrect name and pronouns.

The first person that I came out to (other than myself), was my high school soccer coach, who was also a counselor at my school. This wasn't because I didn't trust my parents or thought they would respond negatively. It was because, as other people discussed, I wasn't ready to come out to my parents. I cared so profoundly about my relationship with my family, that I needed to work through these ideas on my own, and with a trusted adult, before bringing it to them. It is so valuable for students to have a place that they can safely explore their identities - including trying different names and pronouns - while retaining autonomy about when and how to come out to their parents.

Thank you,

Ryan Moreno

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY & TRANS STUDENTS IN WISCONSIN SCHOOLS

Our team's past research indicates the number of students identifying with transgender and other gender-expansive identities has expanded with greater information, dialogue, and acceptance. More than 4% of grade 9-12 students participating in Wisconsin's 2023 Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS) indicated they were transgender (trans) or questioning their gender identity. This brief describes differences in the reported physical activity of trans and questioning youth with their cisgender peers.

KEY TERMS

- TRANS: Wisconsin students indicating their gender is transgender or questioning.
- CISGENDER: Wisconsin students indicating their gender is cisgender.

4.7% of students identify as TRANS OR QUESTIONING

The Physical Activity and Wellbeing of Wisconsin Trans Youth

In our analysis of over 300,000 Wisconsin high school students who took the 2019, 2021, and 2023 Youth Behavior Risk Survey, trans and other questioning youth are less likely to report being physically active when compared to their cisgender peers. As illustrated in Figure 1, trans youth report that they were physically active for at least 60 minutes for an average of 2.7-2.8 days out of 7 days prior to taking the survey. Cisgender youth report being physically active for 3.8-4.2 days, depending upon the year. In sum, trans and questioning youth report 1-1.5 fewer days of exercising compared to cisgender youth.

The Importance of School-Based Athletics for Wisconsin Trans Youth

Leading medical, education, and health organizations have consistently highlighted the positive impact of transgender youth's involvement in sports in position and issue statements, including the American Academy of Pediatrics, National Federation of Athletic Associations, American Medical Association, Association for Applied Sports Psychology, American Academy of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, National Athletic Trainer's Association, and American Psychological Association. Research on the benefits of athletic participation for transgender K-12 students reveals that sports play a significant role in enriching their educational experiences (Clark & Kosciw, 2021). In addition to improving cardiovascular health, strengthening muscles, and enhancing overall fitness, regular exercise through athletic participation can reduce stress, anxiety, stress, and depression (see McQuillan, Eckes, et al., 2022 for review). High school athletics foster greater school belonging, communication, cooperation, teamwork, and other valuable life skills. Like other youth, transgender students who play sports also report a stronger sense of school belonging and improved well-being compared to peers who don't play school-based sports (Clark & Kosciw, 2021).

Amy Scott - Testimony in support of LRB 872

Good morning. My name is Amy Scott and I am the proud mother of three sons. Although I do not have any daughters to call my own, I come here today in support of this bill that would protect Wisconsin girls and women in sports.

It is patently obvious and part of everyone's everyday lived experience that biological boys and girls are physically different in ways that are reflected in their ability to perform in sporting events. Studies and expert opinions show that biological males who undergo puberty retain several physical advantages over biological females which include greater muscle mass, bone density, and cardiovascular capacity...even after testosterone suppression. This creates an uneven playing field in sports where strength, speed, and endurance are critical.

There are young women who work for years and years to get to a level of high achievement in a sport, only to have their accomplishments overshadowed by a biological boy who "transitions" late in life. Can you imagine your daughter, friend, niece, or sister being passed over for a medal, a trophy, or a scholarship by a biological boy who is just stronger, and therefore is recognized as the winner? This happening would not only potentially affect that girl's mental health, but in the case of scholarships or high stakes sports such as the Olympics, their whole life.

There is a very famous example of this actually happening. Riley Gaines is a woman who had been swimming from a very young age and she became a twelve time all American swimmer. In 2022 she tied for 5th place in the 200 yard freestyle championship with Will Thomas who was a biological male and had swam as a man in men's events for 3 years prior. Despite the tie, when it came time to hand out the trophies, the NCAA said they only had one trophy and gave it to Will (who had changed his name to Lia) instead of Riley. Will Thomas also took the first place trophy in the 500 yard freestyle event, unfairly preventing biological women from claiming the trophy.

Allowing biological boys to compete against women is also a safety hazard. North Carolina Volleyball athlete Payton McNabb suffered a neck injury and a concussion, partially paralyzing her right side and ending her athletic career, after a trans athlete spiked the ball at her head. What are the options for girls who are forced to compete with trans women who are much stronger than them? In many cases, their only option is to forfeit or risk severe injury. Our girls deserve better than this.

As I watched the President's joint address to congress this week, I saw so many democrat members wearing pink in supposed support of women even though not a single one of them voted to protect girls and women in sports. That doesn't make sense to me at all. I hope that this Wisconsin legislative body will do more than just wear a certain color in an effort to protect our girls and actually do the right thing. This bill is not only filled with common sense, but it's imperative to pass it to protect the mental and physical health of our girls.

Even though I don't have any daughters of my own yet, I often think and pray about my future daughters in law. They're out there somewhere and I'm so proud that I can tell them someday that I fought for them and their daughters and friends. For those of you here today who are like me and maybe don't have girls playing in sports right now, I urge you to also think of the future of our girls, their mental and physical health, and common sense. I hope we can reach across the aisle on this very important issue and do what's right to protect women and girls. Thank you for your time.

Hello members of the Committee on Education,

My name is Isko Lee ~~Drake~~. I'm here as a trans athlete. I'm a queer, trans-masc person who uses they/he pronouns, and I want to start by sharing with you what it's like to live as a trans person in today's world.

It begins every day, just like anyone else. But for me and many others, there's a difference: We wake up in a world that often feels like it doesn't want us to exist, let alone thrive. It's a tough reality to face, being told repeatedly that you don't belong, that you're a threat, that you're not "real." But I can assure you, I am real, and I am here.

Some days, the weight of it all is overwhelming. The hate, the judgment, the cruel words, and the constant fear of what others might do to me—it can feel suffocating. I've been in situations where I feared for my safety, where I was on edge, looking over my shoulder, just trying to make it through without harm. In those moments, I've questioned myself—my worth, my place, my right to even be seen as a person. But through all of it, I've learned that the hatred from the world doesn't define who I am. I define myself.

Now, let's rewind to my prime playing days in high school. I had the honor of playing with incredible athletes and even more incredible people. My teammates were kind, compassionate, and supportive in ways that most people don't get to experience. To this day, they still correct others, even their loved ones, on my pronouns and name. We may not be in each other's lives anymore, but that respect and kindness continue to resonate with me.

Back then, I was a good player, but over time, I gradually became a mediocre one at best—not because I was transitioning, but for other reasons. What struck me most, however, was that my teammates didn't care about my identity. They cared that I was still trying, still giving it my all, even if I wasn't playing like I used to. They still cheered for me. My coach still trusted me on the field. My friends continued to stand by me.

I also had the opportunity to play in college. I don't like to think about my time in college—it was a dark period for me. My mental health wasn't in the best place, and I was grappling with PTSD, anxiety, depression, and a sense of deep despair. But when I do think back to the good times of my college days, I think about my team—the people who had just met me yet were willing to help me figure out how to cover a new tattoo so we could all go tubing down the river. The team accepted me for who I was. They knew my pronouns, they knew my gender identity, and most importantly, they knew I was doing my best for them and for myself.

Every time I step back onto the field or touch a soccer ball, I reflect on how this sport shaped who I am today. If I didn't have soccer, if I didn't have that outlet, I honestly don't know if I'd still be here. Even in my darkest moments, when it feels like the world is against me, I find strength in those small, quiet victories. Now, these moments are when I'm able to help someone. These moments are when I time my whole day out right. These moments are when my mind is at peace, and I'm just happy to be alive. All the way back to the moments when I land a perfect cross that leads to a goal, or at least creates an opportunity to put pressure on the other team. The moments when I connect with my teammates. These moments will remain with me; these moments make up who I am. These moments, when I look in the mirror and see not an athlete, but a person who has survived.

I've been told that my body isn't "right," that my identity is "fake." But what I know now is this: my body is mine. My identity is mine. I am not defined by the hate of others; I am defined by the courage it takes to show up, day after day, despite it all.

To every trans athlete out there, hear me when I say—you are enough. You are worthy of every win, every moment, every chance to be who you are. You are valid. You are seen. We are not going anywhere. We are not hiding in the shadows. We are stepping into the light and taking up space, no matter how loud the world tries to silence us.

Let people play sports. Let them have this outlet. Let them chase their passions, their drive, and their joy, just like everyone else.

James Foster
Testimony in Opposition to AB100 and AB103
March 6th, 2025

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is James Foster. I have lived here in the Madison area for most of my life, and I am the father of a six-year-old enrolled in Madison public schools. I am testifying today on how the passage of AB100 and AB103 would do real harm to my child.

About a year ago, my kid told me that they don't feel like either a boy or a girl. That they feel like a "They." They have been absolutely consistent on this point.

Now, I need you to understand who my kid is. They are kind. They love art and soccer and Yahtzee. They find the kid in class who is lonely, and try to make friends. They aren't a threat to anyone. Nobody needs to be protected from them.

My kid is brave, way braver than I was at six. They are happy to correct adults, to explain who they are when they get misgendered. My kid honestly doesn't understand why the world sees them as a girl. And luckily, so far, nobody has bullied them about who they are.

I'm sure you will hear a lot of testimony today about the literal effects of AB100 and AB103. I want to talk about the message that their passage would send.

AB100 tells my kid that who they feel they are is invalid. That they need to be either a boy or a girl. That the world is divided into two immutable groups, and they belong to neither, that they belong nowhere.

AB103 tells my kid that someone else - their school, their government, their parents - gets to tell them who they can be. I don't know if any of you have kids, but that really doesn't work. It doesn't change them. All it does is make them ashamed of who they are.

Together, these bills tell the world that my child is something to fear, to ostracise, or to ignore. They invite shame, they encourage bullying. They are cruel bills.

I firmly believe that anyone who enters public service does so to make the world a better place, by their understanding. The power and responsibility invested in you, as public servants, is awesome. Please don't use that power to hurt my child. They need your protection, not your cruelty. Please vote against the passage of these bills.

Thank you for your time. I hope you will consider my testimony in the spirit of compassion.

Benjamin Lebovitz (he/they) balebovitz@wisc.edu

WI Resident: 53703

Chair Kitchens and Members of the Assembly Committee on Education, thank you for your attention today.

I am here to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, and I appreciate the chance to discuss these significant issues. As a National Board-Certified Teacher and a Ph.D. student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where I focus on the role of adults in supporting trans youth in education, I bring both my professional experience and academic focus to this discussion.

While I assume no direct ill will, I specifically raise that this piece of legislation, even as a proposal that stands little chance of becoming law in the current legislative cycle, victimizes an especially vulnerable group of youth in our community, causing indirect harm (Nath et al., 2024). Trans students who are accepted by at least one adult report lower odds of attempted suicide in the last year (Price & Green, 2023). This legislation removes a foundational mechanism of support offered to these students: calling them by their name. My colleagues and I find that compared to their cisgender peers, when feeling depressed, anxious, or suicidal, trans youth are more likely to seek support from adults in schools than their parents (McQuillan et al., 2024). We published this peer-reviewed, open-access work in the Pediatric Journal of the American Medical Association late last year using data that reflects a representative sample of over 100,000 high school students from our state and are happy to share it today.

Second, I want to address the exclusionary athletic bill associated with AB100. My research, drawing on responses from over 300,000 Wisconsin high school students through Wisconsin's Youth Risk Behavior Survey, demonstrates that trans students already participate in physical activities much less than their cisgender peers. This bill does not serve the health and well-being of our considerable population of trans and gender-expansive youth, who make up about 4%, or one in every twenty-five students, in our schools.

Last, I note with reference to AB100 that most school information systems do not currently record or display students' pronouns by default. This piece of legislation could lead to significant but unintentional legal consequences. For example, when you see names like "Robin" or "Lindee," which we have represented here today, or names like "Alex," "Same," or names with which one is simply unfamiliar, there's a real risk of making incorrect assumptions about an individual's gender. Schools seeking to comply with this bill may choose to print or provide students' pronouns, especially because the lack of definition of the word "consistent" used in the bill may be reason for overcompliance. I would remind the committee that students' pronouns, especially if tied to other bio-demographic data, are considered an aspect of student identity clearly defined under federal privacy protections; this bill may inadvertently lead to violations of such law.

I remind the committee that the federal circuit court overseeing the state of Wisconsin (along with Indiana and Illinois) has repeatedly affirmed court rulings (Whitaker v. Kenosha Unified School District No. 1, 2017, Doe v. Mukwonago Area School District, 2023; Doe v. Elkhorn Area School District, 2024) that find 1) a school's interest in preventing physical, psychological, & educational harms to transgender students outweigh school's interest in protecting the privacy interest of other students and 2) discrimination based on gender identity is sex discrimination & denying a student access to facilities or recognition because they are transgender discriminates against them based on sex. While a legal case you've likely heard about today did find a school district violated parental rights under the state constitution, this decision from a Wisconsin circuit court (T.F. v. Kettle Moraine School District, 2023) has limited applicability across the state, applying only to Waukesha County. A separate decision in the wider federal court (Parents Protecting Our Child, UA v. Eau Claire Area School District, 2024) found that parents who did not have trans students did not have standing and could not be "harmed" by the school district's policies regarding the affirmation of trans youth in school.

Beyond the dubious (at best) legality these bills would force schools to navigate comes a considerable administrative burden. Implementing these changes would require substantial adjustments in school record-keeping systems, training for staff on new policies, and ongoing management to ensure compliance. The mechanisms defined by the bill for considering changes to nicknames and pronouns would require additional time and careful administrative attention in a system that already overburdens individuals with bureaucratic efforts that take time away from focusing on instruction. This administrative complexity, coupled with the potential for increased legal challenges and the need for clear and consistent updates to stay aligned with legal understanding, makes these bills not only legally precarious but also practically burdensome for educational institutions.

I urge the committee to table these bills. As these proposals stand, they are poised to do more harm than good, particularly to one of our most vulnerable groups of youth. Thank you for considering my perspective and the evidence I shared today. Please ensure this information is included in the record of this committee hearing.

Thank you for your time, and I look forward to any questions.

hospitals, 17.3% at children's psychiatric hospitals), and 23.0% of beds were in hospitals specializing in pediatric care.

Across states, the median number of pediatric inpatient psychiatric beds per 100 000 children was 15 and ranged from 0 in Alaska to 75 in Arkansas (Figure). Higher statewide median household income ($r = -0.42$; $P = .003$) and higher percentage Hispanic population ($r = -0.37$; $P < .009$) were associated with fewer beds per capita. The percentage rural population ($r = 0.21$; $P = .15$), percentage minority racial groups ($r = -0.16$; $P = .28$), and Medicaid expansion status (Wilcoxon rank sum, $P = .34$) were not associated with beds per capita.

Discussion | US pediatric inpatient psychiatric bed capacity did not change from 2017 to 2020, but capacity varied substantially by state. Despite increases in pediatric mental health emergency visits,⁶ bed availability has not increased. Over 90% of pediatric inpatient psychiatric beds were in urban areas, raising concerns about access for rural children. Attention is needed to ensure national pediatric inpatient psychiatric capacity is sufficient to meet population mental health needs and that resources are equitably distributed. Study limitations include the self-reported nature of AHASD data and inability to assess need for inpatient services using this data source. Important next steps include identifying factors in geographic variability in bed capacity and assessing differences in quality of inpatient services by hospital type and location.

HEALTH AND THE 2024 US ELECTION

Transgender Adolescent School Climate, Mental Health, and Adult Social Support

Despite well-established health disparities between transgender and cisgender youth,¹ state bills restricting gender-inclusive school supports and health care have dramatically expanded since 2019.² While parental support for transgender youth strengthens healthy development,³ unsupportive parents contribute to suicidality and homelessness.⁴ This study examines (1) whether school climate and health gender inequities hold in Wisconsin, a politically contested state without nondiscrimination or bullying legislative protections for transgender youth, and (2) gender differences among adolescents who sought help when depressed or anxious.

Methods | The 2021 Wisconsin Youth Risk Behavior Survey (WI-YRBS) collected data from September to December 2021 for 92 316 high school students with valid responses in our main outcomes of interest (eAppendix and eTables 1 and 2 in Supplement 1). We tested for statistically significant differences in transgender vs cisgender students' health risks and support using Poisson and multinomial logistic regression, accounting for the complex, multistage sampling design with WI-YRBS-provided sampling weights and cluster robust standard errors. The relatively large cross-sectional sample of transgender youth ($n = 3957$) facilitated additional robustness checks with models that included covariates, a conservative

Sampling weights provided by the Wisconsin Department of Instruction were used to account for the complex sampling design of the survey. The frequencies are reported for adult social and emotional support (A) and who students talk to when depressed or anxious (B). The reported frequencies include students who said that (1) they had least 1 adult in school that they can talk to if having a problem, (2) aside from their parents, they have 5 or more adults they feel comfortable seeking support from if they have an important question in their life, (3) an adult in their life always or most of the time tries hard to meet their basic needs, and (4) they always or most of the time get the kind of help they need when they feel sad, empty, hopeless, angry, or anxious.

transgender categorization, exclusion of potentially inaccurate observations,⁵ and stratification by race and ethnicity. We followed Strengthening the Reporting of Observational Studies in Epidemiology (STROBE) reporting guidelines and received approval from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and New York University institutional review boards.

Results | School Climate and Mental Health. Compared with cisgender students, transgender students reported higher risk of bullying (adjusted relative risk [aRR], 1.96; 95% CI, 1.84-2.08) (Table), skipping school because of feeling unsafe (aRR, 2.45; 95% CI, 2.18-2.76) and not belonging at school (aRR, 2.70; 95% CI, 2.51-2.90). Transgender students faced greater risk of anxiety (aRR, 1.54; 95% CI, 1.51-1.57) and reported about 2 to 3 times the risk of depression (aRR, 1.95; 95% CI, 1.89-2.01), self-harming behavior (aRR, 2.77; 95% CI 2.68-2.87), considering suicide (aRR, 2.89; 95% CI, 2.75-3.05), planning suicide (aRR; 3.01, 95% CI, 2.84-3.19), and attempting suicide (aRR, 3.29; 95% CI, 3.03-3.58) compared with cisgender students.

Adult Support. Transgender youth reported a greater likelihood of identifying at least 1 adult in school they could talk to compared with cisgender peers (aRR, 1.39; 95% CI, 1.31-1.47), but a lower likelihood of seeking help from 5 or more adults (aRR, 0.39; 95% CI, 0.35-0.44), identifying adults who helped with basic needs (aRR, 0.89; 95% CI, 0.87-0.90), or finding help when needed (aRR, 0.54; 95% CI, 0.49-0.60) compared with cisgender peers (Figure and Table). More cisgender youth reported not feeling depressed or anxious (18.6%) than transgender youth (1.4%). Among students who felt depressed or anxious (Figure and Table), transgender students sought help from parents (aRR, 0.25; 95% CI, 0.20-0.32), friends (aRR, 0.73; 95% CI, 0.61-0.87), and siblings (aRR, 0.50; 95% CI, 0.39-0.67) and reported uncertainty about who to seek help from (aRR, 0.70; 95% CI, 0.58-0.85) less than adults in schools when compared with cisgender students.

Discussion | These novel findings suggest that schools serve as sites for both victimization and support for transgender youth. While YRBS design issues limit some inferences (eg, cross-sectional sample, exclusion of adolescents not enrolled in school), Wisconsin transgender students reported poor school climate and health concerns, which is consistent with past research¹ and adds to a small but growing state-based literature. Importantly, we leverage the Wisconsin YRBS's recent, unique adult social support items to reveal that adults in schools play a differentially greater role, and parents play a smaller role, when depressed or anxious transgender vs cisgender youth seek help. When situated in the literature discussing social supports as buffers to suicidality, depression, substance abuse, and other health risks,^{1,4} our study exposes the danger of restrictive education laws when school supports fill a critical need for transgender youth.

COMMENT & RESPONSE

Prioritizing Data Privacy and Security in Pediatric AI

To the Editor We read with great interest the article by Handley and colleagues,¹ which discussed the safe and equitable use of artificial intelligence (AI) in pediatric care. The authors timely and insightfully discussed the path of AI's integration into pediatric clinical settings. We thought highly of their emphasis on engaging end users and stakeholders, which ensures algorithm evaluation and implements robust monitoring strategies. However, we believe that there is still room for a more in-depth consideration of data privacy and security, which is a crucial aspect that warrants specific attention when addressing AI in pediatrics.

As a special group, children are inherently more vulnerable to data breaches and misuse. Existing research shows that children are 3 times more likely than adults to be targeted by cyberattacks.² The unique vulnerability is compounded by the

My name is Virginia Kamp. I grew up in Appleton, Wisconsin, did my Bachelor's Degree here at UW-Madison, taught for nearly a decade in Wisconsin schools, and am currently a stay at home mom to two young children in Wauwatosa in Assembly District 13. As someone who cares deeply about Wisconsin schools and Wisconsin kids, I am here today to strongly urge you not to move forward with bills AB100 and AB103.

As a young teenager in Appleton, Wisconsin, I knew I was gay the way your lungs know to breathe air. It was not a choice, it was simply who I was. I didn't even have a word for it until I overheard some students at my middle school telling anti-gay jokes. I simultaneously learned who I was, and also that it probably wasn't a safe idea to tell anyone.

Every Trans person that I know would say that they feel the same way about being Transgender, that it is ingrained in their being, but that recognizing it within themselves can be a scary and lonely realization. If these bills were to pass, I fear that we would see a serious increase in self-harm and suicide among our young people.

I hope that is enough for you to put a stop to these bills. But in case it isn't, let me also speak to you as a former educator. Before I took a step back to raise my two young children, I was a classroom teacher for over 11 years, mostly at public charter schools here in Wisconsin. Like most of the teachers I know, I went to teach in the classroom because I have a strong belief that every child deserves to have a safe place to learn and the ability to meet their fullest potential.

I am deeply concerned that these two bills will make it harder for teachers to do that. DPI's 2022 Workforce Analysis showed that we are already losing four out of every ten teachers within their first six years in the profession. Teachers want to make their students feel safe at school, and if these bills pass, I fear that we will lose even more good teachers.

It was not easy growing up gay in Wisconsin, and I can't imagine it's easy for Trans kids growing up today. But I came back to raise my kids in this state because most of the Wisconsinites I know prize kindness and neighborly love above partisanship. Today I ask you to do the same. Please stop these bills, and keep Wisconsin a great state to raise all children.

To the members of the Assembly, Representatives Dittrich, Behnke, Jacobson, Kreibich, Maxey, O'Connor, Tusler, and Mursau ~~on~~ AB103 and AB100:

These bills to amend parts of statutes 118 actively add additional challenges to the already complicated lives of transgender youth. As a non-binary person raised female, I always knew I was different - that I didn't fit in with my assigned gender. Forced interaction with people who did not see me for who I was only entrenched internalized self-hatred and led to mental health issues it took over a decade to cope with. These bills promote internalized transphobia - self-hatred no child should have to endure.

Not all children's parents are affirming of their identities, which is why I take particular issue with AB103. School is often the only safe place for children whose parents deny how they identify. Teachers and classmates should have the liberty to choose to support their transgender community members regardless of parental approval. To support this point, here is a quote from an article from the National Library of Medicine written in 2023, "...internalized transphobia was significantly associated with greater depression and anxiety. ... Only lower perceived parental support was associated with greater depression and anxiety across all steps of the regression models." Putting such emphasis on the sex someone was assigned at birth denies their lived experience - how they have come to know and understand themselves. Along with AB100, being forced to use accommodations that do not align with these children's lived experiences only promotes self-hate, isolation, and discrimination.

Let children who identify as a specific gender, regardless of their sex assigned at birth, use the facilities that align with their lived experience. Anti-transgender laws like these proposed today have caused up to a 72% increase in suicide attempts among transgender youth across the US. Let's work to protect and validate the experiences of all our community members.

Del Hansen
Madison, WI

Dear Members to the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Elise, and I have been a citizen of Wisconsin for most of my life. My childhood was spent in the North woods just over the Michigan border, then high school and college in central Wisconsin, before finally moving to Madison three years ago. This is my home, and I am terrified that it is about to end up on the wrong side of repeating history.

To explain why I oppose assembly bills 100 and 103 I'd like to take us back to June 28th, 1969. In the years prior, the government enacted anti-lgbt laws and policies that violated people's civil rights based on their sex and identity. Laws that started like these ones. In 1969, law enforcement regularly raided lgbt friendly establishments, and arrested anyone in drag and women not wearing feminine clothing. In this particular instance, officers took suspected trans folk to a bathroom to have their genitals "inspected". Additionally, women who were frisked were groped and assaulted. These are the events that led to the Stonewall riots, and our increasing fight to protect our basic rights to our own bodies.

However, assembly bills 100 and 103 would be a massive step backwards and affect the most vulnerable population, our youth. These laws are touted as protection, but what kind of protection opens up the very real and historically verifiable risk that if a student doesn't look and conform exactly to your idea of gender then a coach might ask them to prove it? It is no business of the state of Wisconsin what genitals a student happens to have in their pants, nor to create laws dictating if they can throw a ball around because of it.

Youth who are trans and other members of the lgbt community already face enough. Research has shown that they are several times more likely to commit suicide. A rate that drastically drops when they are given support instead of being ostracized. Up to forty percent our nation's homeless youth are part of the lgbt+ community. A stat I know all too well, as it was my biggest fear when I started questioning my own orientation. Bills like this do irreparable harm to an already vulnerable generation, and are a gross government overstep into our civil liberties. For the sake of our youth's mental and physical well being, I urge you all to vote NO on both bills 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Elise Celarier

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Alex Hatheway, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 12 years. My children go to Madison schools and I myself am an educator.

I urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly 103. I oppose these bills because as an educator, I know that students need to be respected and treated with dignity in order to learn and thrive. Regardless of the intent of these bills, they will harm the dignity of students.

I want to devote my testimony to AB103. What's in a name? As an ESL (English as a Second Language) educator, I have taught students from all over the world. I know that to pronounce a student's name correctly is to honor their culture and identity, and I feel that trans students' identities should be honored in the same way. Not all of my students used the names they grew up with however. Some chose English names that they felt matched who they were inside. For them, their new name was a chance to express their individuality. As teachers, we should honor the expression of our trans students. To not use a student's chosen name is to deny them expression and to do so because their name does not match their "biological sex" is discrimination. I know what a difference using the right name can make in a student's day. Many times, I have seen the light in my students' faces when I get their names right and their crestfallen expressions when I get it wrong (of course I correct myself). Please help teachers make our classrooms places full of lit up faces and not crestfallen ones. Let us show our students we value their individuality, their expression and their identities. Let us use our students' chosen names (and pronouns).

To the members of the committee on education:

My name is Julia Jones, my pronouns are she/her, and I live and work in Madison. As a mental health counselor who specializes in working with queer youth, I am personally and professionally opposed to Bill 100 and Bill 103.

Trans children are loved and valued members of our community and by excluding and misgendering them our schools would cause harm and distress to these children. Trans youth need safe spaces where they can learn, play, socialize, be included, and be themselves just like any other kid. Schools are where kids spend most of their day, and are therefore a very important safe space. Without gender affirming safe spaces trans children can experience anxiety, depression and are at increased risk of suicide.

90% of LGBTQ+ young people said their well-being was negatively impacted due to recent politics. 54% of transgender and nonbinary young people found their school to be gender-affirming, and those who did reported lower rates of attempting suicide, according to The Trevor Project. As one of your constituents I ask you all to vote against these proposed bills.

Hello Committee Members,

Thank you for hearing our testimonies today. My name is Karen Polnitz, I am a resident of Madison, a queer woman, an educator, a mother, and I am here today to request your votes in opposition of AB 100 and AB 103.

As a teacher and mother, it has been my great honor to bear witness to moments of youth experiencing gender euphoria. The Trevor Project defines gender euphoria as "satisfaction or joy caused when one's gendered experience aligns with their gender identity". The sense of comfort my student felt when we found gender neutral pronouns they could use to describe themselves in Spanish class, the joyful ease with which another student refers to himself as a "dude" and the glimmering sparkle in my daughter's eye when she puts on a princess dress. These are the experiences we should be fighting for our children and students to have.

AB 100 and AB 103 will not only keep kids from experiencing euphoria but quite directly place them in positions of discomfort, fear, and danger. We know that our trans and nonbinary beloveds experience bullying at high rates and those who are not supported in living authentically are at increased risk of suicide. Preventing gender diverse youth from having their identities supported with a simple acknowledgement of their correct name and pronouns and being able to play on their correct sports teams will increase both of those harmful scenarios. According to The Trevor Project, 90% of LGBTQ+ young people are negatively affected by recent politics surrounding their identities. Even the proposal of policies such as these proposed today are negatively affecting our children. 45% of transgender and nonbinary youth report that their families have considered moving to another state due to anti-LGBTQ+ policies in the last year. Is this what we want for Wisconsin? To create dangerous conditions for youth that drive families away?

I want to trust that all on the committee do not wish harm upon our children. AB 100 and AB 103 will undoubtedly cause harm to our children and I strongly urge you to vote against them. Please reject the lies about trans people. Our trans and nonbinary youth continue the lineage of gender diverse ancestors from Indigenous cultures around the world and we must protect and support them. Please use your vote and your voice to stand up for all Wisconsin youth. Thank you for your time today.

With respect,

Karen Polnitz

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am here to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students from using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 35 years, Madison for almost 20 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I have held director-level positions at multiple pharmaceutical companies in Madison and my husband is an associate for a Wisconsin-based engineering firm. We also contribute to our community, volunteering at our children's school and coaching. If these bills are passed, we are considering leaving Wisconsin.

My child is 9 years old, identifies as non-binary, and uses they / them pronouns. They realized their gender identity on their own at the age of 7 and communicated their preferred name and pronouns to me and their dad. Until then, there had been no discussion of gender identity in our household. My child does karate, swims, plays football and basketball, all of which are co-ed, and have not required that they identify with either gender binary. If required to participate in sports based on their gender assigned at birth, they will choose not to participate. My child more closely identifies as trans when forced into the gender binary. Participating based on their gender assigned at birth would put my child at odds with their sense of self and put them in a situation where they would face more discrimination and bullying. Legislators are counting on our trans children to not to participate in sports. Why should our trans children forego affirmation of self to participate in school athletics alongside their peers? We know the benefits of participation in sports. We know the benefits of self-affirmation. Our trans children deserve equal rights.

My child is intelligent, both intellectually and emotionally, kind, respectful, and happy. They are supported by their family, their school, and their community. There is no evidence of mental illness as some would lead us to believe. My child is strong and capable, and the only issue that breaks them is when their preferred name, pronouns, or gender identity are intentionally not respected. My primary purpose as a parent is to ensure the well-being of my child. These laws could damage my child's mental health, creating issues that are not otherwise there when their authentic self is fully expressed and respected. What damage has been done by allowing trans children to participate in sports and school based on their gender identity? My child transitioned between school years at the same elementary school and continued to have the same experiences with their classmates after their transition. Children naturally adapt and accept; it's when hardheaded adults interfere that we see any issues. Why are our legislators seeking to discriminate against a minority of minorities? There is nothing positive to be gained by either of these bills. These bills are on the wrong side of history.

Sincerely,
Kristin Dodd

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am here to oppose bills AB100, the proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, the bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 7 years, and I have two children, a 6-year-old and a 3-year-old. Our youngest child told us a few months ago that she is not, in fact, a boy, and we worry what school will be like for her if these bills pass.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an equal and inclusive education, free from harassment and discrimination. To restrict a small minority of students from playing sports is to rob them of the enriching life experience that team sports provide to non-trans children without any such restriction. And to prohibit the use of a student's preferred name and gender pronouns is to create an unsafe space for them, where they will not feel free to be themselves and will therefore struggle to learn and thrive.

While I am not trans myself, I have heard the experience of being forced to be closeted as a trans person described as feeling like your life is simply a tv show¹ and they are just a character that they are watching, unable to fully live as their full self, forced to disassociate to survive. I know that this is not a life any of us would want for our children. I ask the committee members to oppose these bills and thereby continue to create an open-minded safe space for all students.

Sincerely,
Stephen Kerr

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am here to oppose bills AB100, the proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, the bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I am a Madison, Wisconsin resident and professor of human development and family studies at UW-Madison. I have a PhD in Developmental Psychology. Until recently, we have assumed that we had a 6 year old girl and a 3 year old boy. A few months ago, our youngest told us that in fact, she was a girl. This is not something we were expecting and it totally caught us off guard. Upon her insistence, we now call her she and she lives her best life wearing dresses growing out her hair. It has become apparently clear that she is a much happier and well adjusted kiddo living as a girl.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an equal and inclusive education, free from harassment and discrimination. To restrict a small minority of students from playing sports is to rob them of the enriching life experience that team sports provide to non-trans children without any such restriction. And to prohibit the use of a student's preferred name and gender pronouns is to create an unsafe space for them, where they will not feel free to be themselves and will therefore struggle to learn and thrive.

A study from 2020 found that 82% of transgender youth had considered killing themselves and 40% had attempted suicide. Studies also show that when children have supportive environments, these statistics are dramatically reduced. To us, and to our family, this is not about ideology or politics. It is about life and death. We are offering our child a supportive and affirming environment to be the person she told us that she is, and we just want to send her into a school that honors her identity and keeps her alive. I know that everyone here cares about children and wants them to live long and healthy lives.

I ask the committee members to oppose these bills and thereby continue to create an open-minded safe space for all students.

Sincerely,
Margaret Kerr

To the members of the committee:

I am a transgender educator, and I would have been a transgender athlete during high school had my school not made the decision to ban me from being allowed to participate in gym classes, sports teams, and the use of bathrooms. Now, over ten years later, these bills are asking me to perpetuate that violence. I am against bills AB100 and AB103. After reading AB100 and AB103 I have questions about the enforcement of both bills.

1. Title IX allows girls on boys teams if no girls teams exist for them, how would this bill affect that?
2. If the definition of sex, as written in this bill, is based on a physician's decision at birth, are intersex people banned from all sports? Or must they provide documents that inaccurately describe their birth sexes?
3. Under line 2(a) of bill AB100 schools are required to designate athletic teams based on the sex of the participating pupils; is this making co-ed sports unlawful? How do we address the increased costs of disbanding co-ed teams in order to create sex segregated teams? Many schools may have to end important sporting programs if they can't afford two separate teams.
4. Are these bills claiming that those designated female at birth are inherently less capable than, or inferior to, those designated male at birth?
5. Legal name changes are financially prohibitive, and especially for pupils in rural areas who cannot access traveling to the courthouse for a hearing. This leaves working class and rural students at a disadvantage. Are the writers of this bill implying their acceptance of this fact?
6. With a requirement for both parents to be notified and to approve of a name change, how should schools approach situations where there is an abusive or estranged parent? This places schools in the position of having to make complicated legal decisions with no clear guidance, opening them up to potential lawsuits.
7. Line 4(c) of bill AB103 has an allowance for nicknames so long as they are a shortened version of the students first or middle name. How should schools approach girls named Charlotte wanting to be called Chuck? Boys named Samuel going by Sammy? Students who are called by their last names? Students with nicknames that have nothing to do with any of their given names or a gender identity, but who use those names in their daily life? Do they need an affidavit or a legal name change to be allowed to use a nickname like 'Junior'?

These bills put students at risk of financial, mental, emotional, and physical harm. When we have as many as 2 to 3 of every 5 transgender students attempting suicide before their 18th birthday, this bill will have blood on its hands.

Thank you.

Regarding Assembly Bills 100 and 103
March 6, 2025

Greetings members of the assembly and public, my name is Dr. Samantha Bosco, I am a WI resident here in Madison and I work as a postdoctoral researcher at the University of Wisconsin. I am testifying about Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which seek to compel all public and private educational institutions in WI to enforce a completely false ideology of binary gender and immutable sex expressions, through government overreach in school sports and curtailing inclusive language to aid with social transitioning for trans youth in educational settings.

First, these bills are flat out discriminatory and dangerous. AB100 singles out trans women and girls, forcing them into places that will increase the risk of bullying and demoralization¹. AB103 discriminates against trans youth from using inclusive language, and makes them prove that they are not “sex offenders”, “fraudulent”, or “infringing on the rights of others”. And yet you can so hypocritically then go and infringe on the rights of trans youth. These bills will be vetoed and defeated in the courts, you are wasting our time and tax dollars.

In the case of AB100, how would you enforce this when discrepancies arise? How would you verify that a student’s birth certificate matches their anatomy or karyotype²? The doctors first designated it by visual inspection, does that mean school administrators will be visually inspecting student’s genitals? Is that not a sex offense and sexual abuse?! Is that not an infringement on the rights of WI students?!

If you truly want to help women’s sports, perhaps you could propose legislation to correct the funding discrepancies that actually favor men’s sports^{3,4} rather than waste taxpayer dollars on an estimated five, yes f-i-v-e trans middle and highschool athletes in this entire nation⁵.

Lastly, I speak to you today as someone with a PhD in agricultural sciences and who has taught biology at an Ivy League University. It is plain to see that both of these proposed bills are based on factually incorrect ideas about “biological” sex as only existing in a binary⁶.

You see, Something about me that often gets a lot of attention is my curly red hair. Did you know that 2% of the earth’s population has red hair? You can probably think of several... Did you know that about that same percentage of people on earth are born with, or later develop, intersex characteristics that do not fit into either male or female categories. In fact more than “two genders”, did you know that there are 30 genetic variations in human sex chromosomes⁷?

There is ample evidence of transgender youth successfully socially transitioning in the United States during the earth 20th century⁸ and records of trans people happily existing in medieval Europe⁹. Today, evolutionary biologists understand that across the animal kingdom, sex is not binary, but multivariate¹⁰. Learn from history. Trust the science. Nature is queer.

We, the public, are broadly aware that your goal is to limit the ability for trans youth to exist in public life and therefore reduce possibilities of becoming trans adults.

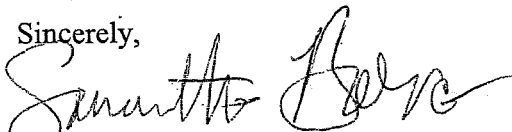

We, the public, know that this is discriminatory and genocidal in nature. And, as a proud trans adult myself, who despite growing up in the 90s and 00s in a world with virtually no social support, I persisted and flourished. And all the trans youth in WI today will too persist, flourish, and one day become trans elders. You can't stop us.

And so members of the Assembly, open your eyes. We, the public, are awake to the truth and your efforts to obfuscate it.

It is time to end the anti-american, subversive, and harmful sex-binary lunacy!

Vote "No" on assembly bills 100 and 103!

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Brent Mecikalski, and I am a resident of Appleton, Wisconsin. I've lived in Wisconsin my entire life, 32 years, and my spouse and I are excited to start a family in the next few years.

I'm writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a proud Wisconsin educator, I am opposed to this bill because it will directly harm the LGBTQ+ students who I work with every day. This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their own identity and instead gives it to those in positions of power within the school. No one should be allowed to tell another who they are. Aren't we all guaranteed 3 basic fundamental rights: life, liberty, and (most importantly) the pursuit of happiness?

Sincerely,
Brent Mecikalski

Regarding Members of the Assembly Committee on Education, AB100

3/6/2025

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jessica Ross and I am a constituent from Madison. I have lived in Wisconsin for 7 years. There are so many great things about the state of Wisconsin and because I care about our communities, I would like to testify against Assembly Bill 100 and urge you to vote no.

When I was in school, I played on a lot of sports teams. These were some of my best memories from middle and high school. Playing on these teams taught me and my peers about teamwork and building an accepting community. We learned to support and uplift members of our team in a way that made the difficulties of school and growing up much more bearable. I think this opportunity should be available to all youth without adults policing students' assigned sex at birth.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community. This bill will harm our trans and cis students alike. No student should have to endure such scrutiny when all they want to do is play a sport with their peers.

I hope that, by voting no on this bill, the members of the assembly will stand up and protect our trans students. There are much more important things for the Committee on Education to focus on that could improve the quality of education for our students: providing free and nutritious school lunches, expanding access to school services, supporting teams rather than trying to tear them apart with legislation that's based in a false dichotomy of sex, as defined in this bill.

Please vote no on Assembly Bill 100 and against any other anti-trans legislation in the future. These bills harm all Wisconsinites. Thank you for your consideration.

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

My name is Harper DePagter and I am from Brown Deer, WI 53223. I am writing to express my opposition to AB 100 and AB 100. I am a transgender woman educator who taught social studies and science to 5-12th graders. Two weeks ago I lost my teaching position in part of the attack on DEI and transgender individuals. Wisconsin already has a teacher shortage so why are we trying to make it worse? Instead of focusing on improving our education in our schools like our reading and math scores, the elected officials of the Assembly and Senate take it upon themselves to target an extremely small minority group of people and make their lives more difficult.

Lessons can be learned from social studies teachers and the attacks on minority groups in American history. An example is the Declaration of Independence when women, freed blacks, and Native Indigenous people were left out of the identifying as "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." Then when the Constitution was written once again women, freed blacks and Indigenous people were left out of the Constitution to have any rights. It has taken several movements and Constitutional Amendments to start to establish Constitutional rights for minority groups. Each time in American history when a minority group of people is "noticed" by the majority, the majority has the power to create laws to restrict and make the minority group of people's lives more difficult. How is it that we still have not learned from our past and continue to make the same mistakes over and over again? We are ALL human beings. The Constitution says "We the people," transgender men and women are people, or like I say to all my students we are ALL humans.

Transgender humans want to be like any other human being. They have emotions and feelings just like a cis human. In AB 100 it states "Sex" means the sex determined at birth by a physician and reflected on the birth certificate." I have taught science and unless each physician performs a DNA test to determine the actual chromosomal sex, the physical appearance at birth can be deceiving because there are intersex humans. "Intersex is a general term used to refer to individuals born with, or who develop naturally in puberty, biological sex characteristics that are not typically male or female. That is, a person with an intersex condition is born with sex chromosomes, external genitalia, or an internal reproductive system that is not considered typical for a male or female." Examples of chromosomal intersex are XXX, XXY, and X. The expression: don't judge a book by its cover resonates in this context.

As a transgender woman, I wish I had the opportunity to grow up as my authentic self in a safe space; however, growing up in Oostburg Wisconsin, which is a small rural Christian community it was extremely difficult to be my authentic self. I hid for almost 30 years and I caused severe microaggressions on myself because I lived in fear of the hate I would receive. When I came out in 2022 to my family who still live in Oostburg, I received the worst hateful things said to me by my mother, father, brother, sister, and grandparents. I wasn't accepted. I was cast out of the community. I was still human and I was just trying to live as my authentic transgender self and be joyful but for some reason, the beliefs they had were to hate me and attack me because I am different. The Wisconsin State Assembly and Senate are no different than my family attacking me with hateful messages. It is also no different than what the federal government is doing. There is no unity in these bills to make Wisconsin better when it focuses on such a small minority of people. Invest in our future by investing in our families, education, mental health, and our economy. Do not create a problem where there is no problem because then nothing gets accomplished for the people of Wisconsin. There are working lower-class families who are feeling the effects of the Trump administration tariffs and what does this Wisconsin Legislature focus on, AB 100 restricting transgender girls from participating in girl's sports and AB 103 legal name change with pronouns. Nothing in the bills addresses restricting transgender boys from not participating in boy's sports. AB 100 is unconstitutional because it only focuses on only half the population of a minority group. AB 103 violates Title VII.

I have heard from both sides of the aisle of government overreach and the guilty party only has to look in the mirror. Why is the government and politicians so concerned with someone else's life and what they are called based on pronouns? I find it a little hypocritical that the Trump administration and Republicans wants Americans to call the Gulf of Mexico now the Gulf of America. Well, Gulf America is now its chosen name and we can't do that because that is considered DEI. See how ridiculous it sounds out loud when one gets that nit-picky about a name and pronouns. As a teacher who just wants her students to recognize me as a human being trying to be my authentic self and do the job she loves to be called Ms. D., I am not in the classroom to indoctrinate the students, if I was going to do that, I would have indoctrinated all students to complete all school work on time and never get off task. I loved my students and I loved teaching. The real issue has been creating problems for teachers and not letting them do their jobs. Students trust their teachers and teachers provide safe places for students. When I came out in 2022 as a transgender teacher I created a safe place for students; however, colleagues and community members had a different view of me. I was sexually harassed at the school I worked at in 2022 and I was blamed for the sexual harassment. The administration said it was my fault. Once again, they wanted to put the fear into the community that I was a groomer and predator in the classroom. Hateful words were spoken about me that were completely untrue. It's one thing to be an adult and hear these words but imagine a teenager who is transgender who might have to hear these same words said to them. Of course, none of you will ever know what it is like to be transgender. I encourage you to have a conversation with a transgender individual. Actually, have eight different conversations with them before voting on the bill because that is how many times it takes to make an impression on someone.

Transgender people should not see their rights restricted like all other racial, ethnic, and cultural groups and women before them who had to fight for over a hundred years for their rights. It is 2025 and we should be better than its 1789 restricting rights because someone is different. Only the guilty party needs to look in the mirror. Right now AB 100 and AB 103 are bills looking for negatives in a positive and you will get electrocuted. What I mean by that is this, There is always a positive in a negative, but if you look for a negative in a positive you will get electrocuted. These anti-transgender bills are exactly that, looking for a negative thing in positive individuals and trying to make their lives miserable. There are way better solutions than these two bills; however, what we call in education for those in the Wisconsin Assembly and Senate; are those in a fixed mindset and not a growth mindset. Remember this, the Constitution says "We the people," meaning We the humans and we are ALL humans. Treat others how you would like to be treated because I'm pretty sure if the shoe was on the other foot and your majority rights were being restricted you would be upset too. I leave you with this thought to think about as you cast your vote. If these bills pass, I Harper DePachter will be running against you for your seat in 2026. I will not stand for this and I as a transgender human being, I have rights, and if the government does not protect my rights; then I have the right to do something about it by running for office myself and beating you and ousting those that do not uphold the Constitution and my rights. Thank you for taking the time for my testimony.

To the members of the Assembly:

My name is Anna Kraft and I'm a resident of Milwaukee, WI, 53207. I am contacting you in opposition of Assembly Bill 100. I am a licensed professional counselor and I provide outpatient counseling services to gender diverse people. I have received specialized training in promoting the wellness of gender diverse groups, including youth. A key protective factor to support the mental health and reduce the risk of suicide of gender diverse youth is having supportive environments where youth can present as their authentic selves. Youth spend a majority of their time in educational settings. Athletic teams are significantly beneficial for youth to gain social skills, build resilience, develop peer connections, enhance their physical wellness, and build community connections. By restricting youth to athletic teams and locker rooms based on sex assigned at birth, you are effectively denying all these benefits of athletic teams to gender diverse youth. Furthermore, forcing youth to utilize locker rooms and join athletic teams based on their sex assigned at birth contributes to clinically significant levels of gender dysphoria, reduces safety, and discourages diversity among youth. I implore you to promote the safety and wellness of our gender diverse youth by opposing assembly bill 100.

Sincerely,

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I oppose Assembly Bill 100. Relying on the sex identified on the birth certificate will lead to problems. Many chromosomal irregularities (intersex conditions) do not reveal themselves until puberty, so the sex assigned at birth does not predict their physical characteristics post-puberty.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Holly Kingsbury, and I am a resident of Milwaukee. I've lived in Wisconsin for 32 years, and have been serving children in my community for the last 15 years, 7 of which were as a school psychologist for Milwaukee Public Schools. Additionally, I am a mother of a pre-school aged daughter.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am strongly opposed to this bill because it denies the personhood, identity, and rights of trans children. Trans children have just as much right to play a sport as any other child, and in cases of sports teams divided by gender (most) - they must be allowed access to participate on teams corresponding with their gender identity. To deny these children this right is harmful, hateful, and also creates confusion, misunderstanding, and sends hateful messages to trans students' peers and their community to see them forced to play on a team that does not match their gender identity. Wisconsin law absolutely needs to allow space for all children to have gender-affirming spaces and labels in their schools.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

Sincerely,

Good afternoon,

My name is Amelia McConnell, and I live at 102 Club House Dr Unit 2, Oregon, WI 53575.

I firmly oppose bill AB100, and any bill that deems it to discriminate because of gender and sexuality. All kids, regardless of age, sex assigned at birth or gender expression, deserve joy, safety, and the ability to move their bodies freely and preserve their mental health. More and more, kids and their families can't afford private paths to team sports. I know my family cannot afford $1,000-dollar club leagues and I am not alone. Kids deserve access to what they need, that's part of why public education was built.

Attempts at limiting access to sports, and encouraging school districts and school boards to monitor and control student activities like this, are a waste of taxpayer dollars and a misuse of your time as leaders within our state. All kids deserve your support and they deserve to feel like their elected leaders are working for them. ALL of them.

Stop this bill in its tracks.

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Robyn Hietpas and I am a resident of River Falls, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 36 years and my child goes to River Falls schools. Thank you for this opportunity to share my testimony.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite and a parent, I am opposed to this bill because it threatens the well-being of trans, nonbinary, and gender expansive children in our schools and community.

Education-based athletics is founded on a commitment to equitable, inclusive, and welcoming learning communities for all students. All students, including transgender students, deserve the chance to participate in activities like sports, which offer valuable lessons in teamwork, leadership, and self-discipline, and contribute to both physical and mental well-being.

Banning transgender students from sports is harmful and undermines progress towards inclusivity. It is discriminatory under Title IX. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin. Please vote NO on Assembly Bill 100.

Sincerely,

TO: Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Marcia Flaherty, retired educator and resident of Sun Prairie, 53590. I am writing for 3 reasons: 1) I have a trans sibling and strongly support her rights and freedoms 2) I feel called to testify as an active member of Reconciling Ministries at our United Methodist Church. 3) I believe there is a fairness issue inherent in the Bill that is a disservice to those who aren't trans as well as those who are.

My concern regarding AB100 is perhaps not the reason most often expressed. I believe there are physical differences between athletes who are trans and those who aren't. These physical differences can provide unfair advantages that raise questions of equity and fairness. However, I don't believe the answer is to deny trans athletes from having the right to compete. Rather, I propose consideration be made to have trans athletes compete with other trans athletes.

Prior to 1960, athletes with disabilities either didn't have opportunities to participate in athletics or they were somehow expected to compete with more able-bodied athletes. We now proudly hold Paralympics in high regard as its own realm of athletic competition. Why not give the same respect to trans athletes? We are a society that greatly values sports and athletic programs for young children through adulthood. Athletics is well-researched for not only the physical benefits, but social and mental health as well. Why deny any humans the benefits that athletics can provide?

I respectfully urge you to vote no on Bill 100. I also ask that you consider a third alternative that would allow opportunities for more students to be involved in athletics.

Sincerely,
Marcia Flaherty

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My Name is Nile Merton and I am from Washburn WI. I am opposed to AB 100. I am a volunteer fire fighter and in years past I have coached cross country, nordic skiing and distance track. I have had the privilege of coaching a trans athlete and I can honestly say he brought nothing but positivity, dedication, and an honest and hard work ethic to the team. Always looking out for younger athletes and giving them one on one attention.

From my experience having trans athletes on the team only enhanced the experience for the other athletes. They were accepted by their team mates and contributed just as much if not more to the betterment of the sport.

I believe secluding trans kids from doing what they love is not only egregious but extremely short sighted and based on fear. You only lose out by not including.

Thank you for your time.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Nick Neumann, and I am a resident of Sun Prairie. I've lived in Wisconsin for 25 years until 2012, and now again for the last 7 years and grew up playing sports through Madison School & Community Recreation, and at Madison East High. The lessons of sportsmanship and teamwork I learned through sports were invaluable for my development.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it is based in hate and discrimination. This bill only serves to harm children.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To the Assembly Committee on Education

I am Rev. Dr. Julia Burkey of Madison, Wisconsin and I oppose AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns). My Christian values teach me that youth and children having the support to flourish in body and spirit is essential for a life well lived. Banning trans children from K-12 sports is death-dealing discrimination and I ask that you prayerfully consider pushing against this moment of discrimination and supporting trans youth in playing sports, as well as using proper pronouns and names to reflect the truth of each individual.

Targeting Trans kids is the awful fad of the moment- a hateful way of targeting such a small population of vulnerable young people who are just trying to live their lives. From a faith based perspective, every human being, no matter their gender (race, ethnicity, economic status, sexuality) deserves fairness and an opportunity to thrive. Every human being is made in the image of God- even and especially trans youth. Even if you don't agree with their choices, it is still our duty in Wisconsin to create opportunities for all people to thrive. Executive orders are not laws and the banning trans kids from playing sports is a very sad and unfair thing to do. I prayerfully ask that you reconsider your choice and use this moment to go against the grain to support all people, including trans kids.

FORGE has been serving Wisconsin trans and nonbinary individuals, families, and communities since our founding in 1994. We began our support group for parents of trans children and youth in 2015. Since then, we have worked with more than 100 Wisconsin families, with children ranging in age from 3 to well into their 30s. Some families came to us when their children were in their early teens and have stayed with us until those "children" are in college or beyond. Others were with us only long enough to get answers or referrals for their immediate needs of supporting their children, and then they moved on.

We discussed a few trans athletes in the group over the years. (I say it that way because the youth may well have been participating in sports without it coming up at the parents' support group.) NONE of those athletes were the best in their sport. They simply loved moving their bodies, working with their teammates, and competing. Like all of their teammates and teams they were playing against, what made them good (or not so good) at the sport they were playing were practice, enthusiasm, coaching, parental encouragement, and their love of the sport.

Playing sports is GOOD for kids. It helps both their physical and mental health. It teaches teamwork, communication skills, hard work, and how to win and lose gracefully.

It harms kids – both trans kids and non-trans kids – when youth are banned from playing sports altogether or are forced to play on a team that doesn't match how the whole school perceives them – i.e., someone everyone knows as a girl being forced to play on the boys' team, or vice versa.

Please vote down Assembly Bill 100. It will not benefit anyone, and will only be destructive.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Grace Lucas and I am a resident of Outagamie County. I've lived in Wisconsin my entire life - 32 years - and have built a strong community with my partner.

I implore you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. I am opposed to this bill because it undermines the rights of students and families by limiting their ability to make personal decisions about identity, privacy, and how they express themselves in a school environment. It risks infringing on personal freedoms by allowing authority figures to make decisions that should be left to the individual and their family.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another simply because they hold a position of authority within the school. No one should have the right to dictate who someone else is.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Dr. Mariessa Robles, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 3 years. I am a licensed clinical psychologist, former Boys & Girls Club youth programming specialist, and former athlete.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a psychologist, I am opposed to this bill because sex assigned at birth is not a reliable way to designate participation in sports and this specifically targets transgender youth. Sex assigned at birth by a physician, only using visual tests, does not capture the complex biological makeup of a person or their capabilities later in development. Sex assigned at birth also does not give any indication for what kind of pubertal changes an adolescent can be expected to move through, as a marker on a birth certificate does not always match the sex hormones the body will produce.

Based on my training and experiences in providing psychological services to youth and their families, I also believe this bill will bring harm to kids of all genders and sexes that are participating on athletic teams, by the nature of exclusion and discrimination. This bill unnecessarily detracts from the overall spirit of athletics and sports for our youth in an attempt to exclude a very small number of kids from playing with their peers. This sends harmful implicit messages to ALL of our youth about their own capabilities, bodies, and value to the school/community. Sports are very important developmentally for youth to learn about teamwork and persistence, to develop camaraderie, to have positive relationships with adult leaders, to experience fun and play, and to build confidence in one's skill and physical ability. We must protect every child's opportunity to participate without excluding any other.

Sincerely,

Good morning,

I'm reaching out today in opposition of AB100. I am a resident of Pewaukee, WI. I have 2 children ages 15 and 12. My youngest plays competitive soccer and my oldest participates in local theater troupes in Waukesha County. My oldest is also Transgender.

Bills like AB100 limit a community's ability to make decisions for themselves. I urge you to vote NO on this bill and leave the decisions up to each school district and athletic organizations on whether or not to allow transgender athletes to compete on their teams and be in the locker rooms that align with their gender identity. This gives parents of Transgender kids the opportunity to seek out accepting places for their kids to participate, and it allows the communities to review concerns specific to their area.

Segregating transgender kids from their peers creates an environment that perpetuates continued fear and hatred for the transgender community and bills like this one allow that fear to impact policy. Transgender kids make up less than 1% of Wisconsin's youth population. Of that 1% even less participate in organized sports. To the best of my research, there are no documented cases of misconduct by a Transgender youth in a locker room and no documentation that supports the claim that Transgender girls are at such an extreme advantage over their biological peers that it would make their participation on Wisconsin sports team unfair to other teams.

Take a U13 girls soccer team as an example. The team requires 11 kids to take the field all at the same time. A transgender girl on a team with 10 other biological girls is not going to single-handedly be responsible for her team winning games. She can't play the goalie, fullback, midfield, and forward all at the same time. This transgender girl is still an important part of the team, and her participation is integral to the team's success, but a 'biological advantage' doesn't exist. Maybe the transgender girl is faster than someone (or even the fastest out of everyone), or maybe she is the tallest, or has the most goals. But, someone on the team would be that or have that regardless of their biological sex. My daughter's soccer team has biological girls that are a foot taller than she is, and some girls that run faster than she does. But, that doesn't exclude them from participation. Kids don't run with their genitals and their genitals don't make them taller- their genetic makeup does which is true of every human on the planet. Consider the same argument for other sports like hockey, lacrosse, basketball, and softball. These sports all require multiple kids on the field or court at the same time. Each individual brings their own skill, but they still have to work as a team to win. A transgender girl on one of those teams doesn't give their team more of an advantage than another team who has a biological female who is an all-star at their sport.

Also, there are other ways to address transgender kids in locker rooms without passing a blanket bill that BANS a transgender child from a public space. Each team and parent can talk about this when the situation arises- which is a very small percentage of the time since there are only 1% of kids in Wisconsin who are transgender and even less of that number play sports. Let the teams decide on their own what is most comfortable for those involved. Maybe the transgender child changes first or last. Maybe everyone comes with undergarments already on so that none of them are exposed to each other. Maybe everyone changes at home and comes to the locker room already dressed. I played soccer for my high school team. In our locker room the girls turned away from each other when changing and we didn't take showers or get fully undressed. After practice most didn't shower at the school- we went home and changed/showered. I'm not sure what goes on in locker rooms today, but I would be pretty shocked if girls were walking around stark-naked. I expect what would be seen is probably more modest than what would be worn on the local beaches. But, just as I'm asking you not to make a blanket law, I cannot make a blanket assumption about what happens or doesn't happen in all locker rooms for all sports across the state. That is why each of the school districts and athletic organizations should be responsible for their own policies.

There is no need for a blanket bill calling for the exclusion of all transgender kids from all sports.

Thank you for your consideration.

My name is Sammi LaFleur, I live in Manitowoc Wi, 54220 and I am writing to oppose Assembly Bill 100. I have grown up playing school sports and they help create a sense of community and belonging that is hard to find elsewhere. This bill is discriminatory, compromises the health of children, and brings about a multitude of privacy concerns. This bill will negatively affect trans children and alienate them from their community. Although they are not the only group that will be negatively affected by this bill, every single child is put at risk by enforcing this bill. Any child's gender could get brought into question for any reason including someone simply being angry that they lost a game. This will force young girls to answer invasive questions about their bodies and even having to participate in physical inspections of their private parts by total strangers. This will cause irreversible harm to them and restrict many youth from participating for the simple fear of having to partake in these violations. Being able to play school sports allowed me to meet so many other youth that I would not have otherwise met. They set me up with many valuable skills including the ability to work well with others, especially individuals outside of my normal friend group. This bill targets and affects all youth and will bring about many violations and discriminatory practices.

I appreciate your time and hope you take the above into consideration,
Sammi

Abby Frank Taylor | Regarding AB100 | March 6, 2025

My name is Abby Frank Taylor, and I'm a concerned resident here in Madison. I'm writing today to express my grave concern about AB100 and the ways in which it will impact trans youth in Wisconsin. Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent, and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

School sports are supposed to be fun and enriching to the students participating in them. By not allowing kids to participate in the sports team that best aligns with their identity (not the identity decided upon by the school district administrators), we are stripping these students from the ability to pursue activities that make them joyful and connected to their peers.

The idea that trans athletes pose a threat to school sports is based on misinformation, not in fact. Trans athletes represent a tiny fraction of competitors, and their inclusion has not negatively affected women's sports. If "safety" is our presumed goal here, then inclusive policies make safety possible for all youth. Fear-mongering and policies excluding trans youth are statistically proven to increase mental health struggles and feelings of exclusion and loneliness. Our trans kids deserve better. They deserve to be included and supported following their interests and skills.

Not to mention it makes me hugely uncomfortable to rely on school administrators to identify and pronounce the gender of their students. This opens a door that is invasive and has the potential to impact all students, not just trans students. Where does the line get drawn around who is questioned about their identity, medical background, etc.?

I feel the need to voice my concern about this issue, because it feels, frankly, like lawmakers bullying children. The last thing kids need when they are finding themselves is to have adults and systems tell them they are something they are not.

I strongly urge this body to not move AB100 forward and allow trans youth to play on the sports team that best aligns with their chosen identity and gender. We must not be our kids' bullies.

Thank you for your consideration.

I am a licensed marriage and family therapist in the state of Wisconsin and I personally treat Members of the LGBTQ community. Therefore, I know first hand the impact a bill like this can have on our LGBTQ youth.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this Bill because it is a total overreach of government into the personal lives of kids and families in Wisconsin. No government body has the right to determine the identity of a human being and it is creepy and disgusting that our government officials are so obsessed with the bodies of children and how they identify. Moreover, in my professional experience, this type of legislation increases distress and mental health symptoms for kids and teens who simply want to play sports with their peers.

I oppose ANY legislation that requires notifications to be given to families or anyone inside or outside the school or district regarding a person's identity as it is never a guarantee that community or family will be safe or supportive of the individual. It can take years to feel safe revealing this information and the choice to tell others how one identifies should be a right guaranteed to all individuals, not a legislative issue.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and safely walk through the developmental process of self understanding and awareness. This bill instead gives it to another person just because they are in a position of power in the school district. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Fallon Morrissey, and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 13 years now, and I am proud to be finally considered a "true Wisconsinite" by my most discerning "born & raised in Kewaskum" friends. I chose to build my life in Wisconsin, away from my family and support network, because I love this state, its values, and most importantly, its people. I am truly so proud to be a Wisconsin resident, and I think that is important context for the rest of my testimony.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I believe that it goes against the true, Wisconsin values of "minding your own business" and "trusting your neighbors." While I've only been a Wisconsin resident for 13 years, I have lived in the Midwest my entire life. It was only when I moved to Wisconsin that I understood true community. We look out for our neighbors, shovel their sidewalks if they're older, drop off their mail when it gets misdelivered, share waves and smiles when we see each other, compliment each others' gardens, but what we don't do is get into each other's business. I believe that decisions on pronouns and identities are personal decisions.

Frankly, I think it's silly for this to even be a discussion. The truth is, regardless of what you think this bill will accomplish, the only true outcome will be further alienation and ostracism towards a group of students that are already feeling excluded and singled out. You can legislate away their right to self determination when it comes to how they fill out paperwork, but you cannot legislate away their personhood. Trans people and trans children will exist whether the State Assembly of Wisconsin recognizes them or not. This bill is nothing but fear mongering and bullying, and I refuse to participate in the charade that has been concocted. Beyond that, it goes against the core Wisconsin value of minding your own business. A value that I take very seriously.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

Dear Members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

Please include this testimony as the official bill of record.

My name is Alenna Beroza and my pronouns are she/her/hers. I am a Midwesterner, born and raised, and currently a medical student in Milwaukee. I write to you today not only as a student, but as an individual whose life has been profoundly shaped by athletics in strong opposition to AB100. For most of my life, I was a student-athlete, competing at the collegiate level in track and field at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. My experiences in athletics have significantly impacted the person I am today, and I believe they offer valuable insights into the importance of holistic development in education.

From a young age, my passion for sports was evident. Growing up loving Big Ten football, I aspired to play the game myself. Despite facing resistance and bullying as one of the few girls participating in youth football, I persevered, ultimately becoming the first girl in my league to play on the boys' youth football team. I'm not sure I would have made it through the season without the support of my team and coaches who made me feel welcomed and included from day one. While my football journey didn't continue, the lessons I learned about resilience, teamwork, and pushing beyond perceived limitations were invaluable. These experiences directly contributed to my success at UW-Madison both on and off the track.

Although I never achieved the accolades of an NCAA champion or Olympic qualifier, I now understand that those titles were never the true measure of my success. The essence of my athletic experience was about personal growth, striving for excellence, and building meaningful relationships with teammates and coaches. It was about pushing my limits, both physically and mentally, and discovering the strength and resilience I never knew I possessed.

Youth sports are about building character, developing discipline, learning to work as a team, and discovering one's own potential. They teach children the value of hard work, perseverance, and resilience in the face of setbacks. These are life skills that extend far beyond the playing field and are crucial for success in all aspects of life, including academics, careers, and personal relationships.

Furthermore, youth sports provide a safe and supportive environment for children to grow and develop. They offer opportunities for mentorship and guidance from coaches and older athletes, fostering a sense of community and belonging. For many children, these experiences become lifelong passions and friendships.

I am deeply concerned about the potential negative impacts of the proposed AB100 which would amend Wisconsin Statute 118.13. These changes will actively discriminate against transgender youth, denying them the fundamental right to participate in youth sports alongside their peers causing lasting impacts on their physical and mental health and wellbeing. Such policies are targeted discrimination and in direct opposition to supporting the health and wellbeing of Wisconsin children.

I urge the committee to prioritize policies that support and strengthen youth sports programs. This includes ensuring equitable access for all children, providing adequate funding for school-based and community-based programs, and supporting the development of qualified coaches. Investing in youth sports is an investment in the future of our children and our communities.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Alenna Beroza

Robin Pegau
Regarding AB100
March 5, 2025

To Whom it May Concern,

I'm Robin, a Verona resident and member of the queer community. My day-to-day work involves doing all I can for ensuring everyone, regarding gender identity, sex, or sexuality, is respected and have everything they need to be in good health. I am testifying on AB100, which would require schools restrict sports based on a student's sex assigned at birth.

Growing up, I learned that being a girl did not limit what I could do. When I played sports as a kid, teams were not split between boys and girls. They didn't have to be, we kept pace with each other and together, we learned athleticism, sportsmanship, and grit. This bill spits in the face of that, saying a child's skills don't matter as much as a letter on their birth certificate.

We should all be encouraging students to learn the skills sports teach us rather than taking our time to decide who gets to play where. They want to play! We ought to be supporting that! Tell our students they are all capable, that they all can strive both to be the best people and teammates they can be, and to improve their skills on and off the field.

Additionally, the language specifically banning students assigned male at birth from using girls' locker rooms? It's so blatantly one-sided and hateful that I'm shocked anyone would be willing to admit to harboring such sniveling cruelty in their hearts. The transgender women I know and love are all far kinder and more beautiful souls than any sponsor of this bill could dream of being. If you think my words are harsh, then perhaps you shouldn't be trying to legislate people out of life. You would never last an hour in a transgender person's gym sneakers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Committee on Education Members:

My name is Amanda Terlizzi, and I am from Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, 53226. I am writing to express my opposition to Assembly Bill 100: An Act to amend 118.13 (1); to create 118.132 of the statutes; Relating to: designating athletic sports and teams operated or sponsored by public schools or private schools participating in a parental choice program based on the sex of the participants.

The proposed legislation requiring school sports teams to be designated solely based on the sex assigned at birth of participants poses serious risks to the mental well-being of student-athletes, fails to recognize the distinction between sex and gender, and infringes upon fundamental human rights. At a time when LGBTQ+ individuals, particularly transgender and non-binary youth, are facing increasing marginalization, such a policy contributes to their erasure and actively harms their well-being. Research has consistently shown that transgender youth who are affirmed in their gender identity experience lower rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidality. On the other hand, policies that force students to compete in a category that does not align with their gender identity can lead to increased mental distress, social isolation, and a decline in overall well-being. By enacting legislation that excludes transgender and non-binary students from participating in teams that match their gender identity, the state would be actively contributing to the mental health crisis among LGBTQ+ youth. Such exclusion sends a harmful message that these students do not belong, increasing the risk of self-harm, dropping out of sports, and disengagement from school altogether. Rather than protecting student-athletes, this legislation exacerbates harm.

This bill fails to acknowledge the well-established distinction between sex and gender. Sex is assigned at birth based on

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education, AB100 discriminates against those who are not clearly defined as either being male or female at the time of birth to play in school sports. Asexual people fall under this category. There is NO evidence to suggest that transgender or asexual athletes are a threat to other girls. To believe so is to show ignorance and bigotry.

Kelley Robinson, the president of Human Rights Campaign, said it best: "Every child should have the opportunity to experience the simple joys of being young and making memories with their friends. But bills like these send the message that transgender kids don't deserve the same opportunities to thrive as their peers simply because of who they are."

May I remind you, that this bill discriminates against CHILDREN, one of our most vulnerable populations and resources. A similar bill did not pass at the federal level. ALSO physicians are not the only ones who can assign sex at birth in Wisconsin. Nurses can too. Will this language take away nurses' rights to this function? Will it lead to a change in the Nurse Practice Act?

In addition, this bill threatens educational institutions that may see no problem with giving transgender and asexual children the opportunity to play sports with possible fines, loss of accreditation, or possible lawsuits.

I am asking you to vote NO on AB100. This bill is badly written and discriminates against CHILDREN. ALL children should have the opportunity to play sports, make friends, have bonding experiences, and have the opportunity to become adults who will become contributing members of society.

RE: Assembly Bill 100 – designating athletic sports and teams operated or sponsored by public schools or private schools participating in a parental choice program based on the sex of the participants

My name is Rev. Douglas Clement, my pronouns are he/him/his, and I am an ordained United Methodist pastor serving in the state of Wisconsin. I am writing in opposition to the proposed AB 100.

Growing up, I was taught that being a Christian and being an American meant embracing the wide diversity of thought, practice, and personhood that exists in our communities. I remember learning how Jesus told us we were to “love one another” (John 13:34) and how, as people living in the United States, we had the right to “live, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness”. While there have certainly been times when we haven’t always lived up to these ideals, the act of striving for them (and of believing they should be for all people) were (as I understood it) fundamental to who we are.

As a United Methodist, I am part of a tradition and a movement that has fought throughout our history to make this a reality. Our own Social Principles call us to “condemn all attempts to deny individuals their basic rights or freedoms or to strip human beings of their inherent dignity and worth” and to “reject within the church and wider society any act of discrimination, hatred, or violence directed against individuals or groups based on national origin, tribal affiliation, ethnicity, age, gender identity, disability status, economic condition, sexual orientation, religious affiliation, or any other factors.” (§163, The United Methodist Book of Discipline, 2020/2024). Which is why I feel compelled to speak out against these bills.

AB 100 seeks to amend statute 118.13, carving out from the broader “...no person may be denied admission to any public school or be denied participation in, be denied the benefits of or be discriminated against in any curricular, extracurricular, pupil services, recreational or other program or activity...” an exception to bar transgender students from participating according to their gender identity. By singling them out because they are transgender, this bill gives credence to the falsehood that they are somehow “dangerous” and “unsafe to be around”. It gives space for hateful rhetoric, for bullying behavior, and for discriminatory practice. In fact, it requires it (by prohibiting these individuals from participating in athletics and other extracurriculars according to their gender identity).

There are multiple instances, both in scripture and in the history of our nation, where we have witnessed the consequences of our failure to include and care for those on the margins. As the Apostle Paul observed in his letter to the churches in Corinth, we are all members of one body (i.e. community). “If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it.” (1 Corinthians 12:26). Yet, rather than encouraging this kind of relationship and community-building, proposed AB 100 creates further division among young transgender folks and their peers (at a time when they are most in need of such relationships), and puts them at greater risk for lasting harm.

The truth is, our brothers, sisters, siblings who are transgender are made in the image of God, same as you or me. They deserve the same love, acceptance, and affirmation. They deserve the same chance to be able to share their skills, talents, and passions. And they deserve to participate with their peers according to their gender identity.

I ask you to give them the same opportunities that have been afforded to generations of young folks. Vote “no” on AB 100.

Hello, my name is Kristen Whitson, and I'm here today to speak in strong opposition to Assembly Bill 100. First of all, I grew up and received a world class education in Oconomowoc, WI where I was raised and taught to affirm the value, worth and rights of every human being. I am disappointed to see the area's representative now espousing rhetoric so contrary to what I KNOW is and should be taught in Oconomowoc.

The number of trans student athletes who would need to use a locker room corresponding with their affirmed gender identity is vanishingly small. And yet, we're here wasting taxpayer time and money to discuss a bill that will certainly be vetoed but which forces a "debate" about the rights of trans kids out loud, in the building of their state government.

So since we're here, let's state the obvious. Organized sports activities for kids build confidence, teamwork, healthy social networks, healthy physical activity, and a myriad of other mental, physical, and emotional benefits. What do you when you tell trans kids they have to use a locker room opposite of what they know themselves to be is tell them that their full, true, authentic identities are not welcome on the field or the court. You deny them the gift of growing up with affirmation, support, and encouragement for their real selves. I'm here specifically because my teachers in Oconomowoc encouraged my full self every step of the way, from kindergarten to high school graduation, and every student deserves the gift of adults who believe in them so fully.

I do not believe that any of the sponsors of this bill actually believe this transphobic drivel. I think you're looking for favor, power and money from a corrupt, anti-American administration - you are selling your constituents and their kids out for the evil that is exclusion, and for NOTHING. You will neither accomplish your goal in passing this bill, nor will you stop the LGBTQ+ family from protecting and fighting for trans kids. They deserve full, authentic and affirming lives - full stop.

Thank you:

Dear Members of the Assembly and Committee on Education,

My name is Alexa Stampfli and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 28 years and I personally have friends in the trans community here.

I am writing to you to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because being in sports should not be a scary place for anyone, including people in the trans community who are just trying to live their lives in peace and acceptance.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Sincerely,

Alexa Stampfli

To the Assembly Committee on Education (Wisconsin State Legislature):

I oppose Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban). All students in Wisconsin schools deserve to live their authentic gender identity. This includes playing on sports teams and using locker rooms consistent with their authentic gender identity.

I stand with Wisconsin citizens to demonstrate we value, care and love our trans youth.

Sincerely,

To The Members of the Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Evelyn Gildrie-Voyles. I live at 202 Farley Avenue, Madison, WI. I am a preschool teacher and the mother of two sons both who attended Madison Public Schools. One participated in sports including his middle school Ultimate Frisbee team which included both girls and boys on the same team. I am writing in opposition to AB 100. If this bill was law when my son was in middle school, he would not have had the experience of playing on a coed sports team. My son learned a lot about teamwork and respecting everyone's abilities and gifts on that team. But ultimately this bill is not about keeping young men from learning about the strength and determination of young women, it is about denying the right of transgender athletes to play as their authentic selves. It is about denying trans women and trans girls the right to belong and benefit from playing with a sports team of their peers. This bill singles out trans women in its specification that male players can not play on female sports teams when it does not make the same specific statement that female players can not play on male sports teams. The assumption in this bill is that all women are weak and less than and have to be "protected" from men. This bill does nothing to protect women. It hurts women. Firstly because transwomen are women. But it also hurts cisgender women and girls. Any girl athlete who is too strong, too good at her sport, wins too much is likely to be challenged as not being a real girl. We have already seen this happen. in Utah, a highschool student was secretly investigated to make sure she was not transgender because she won too much. In Madison, a girl's club soccer team faced accusations of having male members because the girls were too good at soccer. This bill will only increase this kind of accusation.. A boy who is good at sports is considered gifted. A girl who is good at sports is accused of being a boy.

I am opposed to AB 100 and ask that you oppose it as well.

With Gratitude,
Evy Gildrie-Voyles

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years, have served the community as a special education teacher. Today I am writing on my own behalf as a private citizen..

I strongly oppose this bill because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a safe and caring educational experience free from harassment and discrimination.

I am especially concerned about enforcement of a law that bars transgender youth from playing sports or using locker rooms that align with their gender. There is no way for this to be enforced without humiliating children.

Sincerely,

Regarding AB100 – Restrictions on Transgender Athletes

03/06/2025

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is jamie wohlgamuth, I have lived in Wisconsin for 16 years, and I am a parent of two children, one of whom has benefitted greatly from a supportive school environment that has allowed them to explore their gender fluidly and safely. I am testifying today in strong opposition to AB100, a bill that would restrict transgender athletes, particularly trans women and trans girls, from participating in sports teams designated for girls and women based on their assigned sex at birth.

My child was able to thrive in an environment where their gender exploration and fluidity were respected. They were supported by peers and educators who acknowledged their pronoun changes and name adjustments without judgment. The inclusive, accepting atmosphere at their school helped them feel safe and empowered to express their true self. They are currently identifying with their sex assigned at birth, and I fully recognize that this understanding would not have been possible without the safe, nurturing environment provided by their school.

AB100, however, seeks to take away opportunities for transgender athletes to participate in sports that align with their gender identity. This bill perpetuates harmful exclusion and marginalization. My child, like many others, has benefited from the freedom to explore gender without fear of discrimination. Passing this bill would not only harm transgender athletes but would also set a dangerous precedent for the future of inclusive and respectful school environments.

This bill infringes upon the rights of transgender students to live authentically and be treated with dignity and respect. Transgender people—especially transgender children—should have the same opportunities to participate in school activities, including sports, as their gender-conforming peers. I am appalled to live in a state whose motto is “Forward” when we are creating laws that are so clearly regressive and harmful to a vulnerable community.

I urge the committee to oppose AB100 and consider the consequences of enacting laws that restrict basic freedoms and perpetuate discrimination against transgender individuals. Instead, I encourage you to champion policies that foster inclusivity, acceptance, and the ability for all children—regardless of gender identity—to fully participate in all aspects of school life.

Thank you for your time and for considering my testimony.

jamie wohlgamuth

Dear AB 100 Committee members,

I oppose AB 100 and ANY anti-LGBTQ+ current or future legislation.

I have been with my "same gendered" spouse for the better part of 36 years. We have three children. Dee is a career nurse, I am a teacher.

We were forced to marry in Canada in 2003 because the United States legally discriminated against us and is still attempting to discriminate against LGBTQ+ people.

I have been teaching for 34 years. Two days ago, I received an urgent message from my beloved home state of Wisconsin that a hearing on anti LGBTQ+ legislation is being held. 48 hours ago. I am faced with a gut-wrenching decision to prepare for an absence, which if you know any teacher is no easy task, to stand up for the rights of my family, students, friends, and community against those attempting to dehumanize, discriminate and oppress. Stand up against those who would go against scientific facts regarding human sexuality and gender variants, every medical and mental health association, experts in education, the Girl Scouts of America, and the entire LGBTQ+ community.

The degree of immorality and abuse of power in all these actions, on short notice, targeting a historically oppressed community devastates me. I am deeply embarrassed by your inhumane actions and utter disregard for LGBTQ+ people.

You are elected officials representing ALL of the people. I expect you to honor your oath and do so.

Schools nationwide are dedicated to teaching standing up against bullying, including STAND UP against bullying against LGBTQ+ people. STAND UP against discriminating legislation and other members, citizens and funding who aim to cause harm to an extremely vulnerable community.

Statistically, we are 10% of the general population, transgender people even less at 1.6% of the United States population. In addition, as you already know, we are also more susceptible to violence, anxiety, depression, substance abuse and suicide. This is my family, my students and my community you have been waging war and legislating against. LGBTQ + people will continue to die by these actions you are taking.

As a lifelong physical educator, I see the harm caused by those that bully, disregard, humiliate, harass and dehumanize others. I do not allow it. I also see the grave harm in denying access to sports for our transgender students. If a student is intelligent and brave enough to share who they are and participate in sports that is what they should be allowed to do. Our conduct towards transgender people is deadly, 82% of transgender people have considered suicide and 40% have attempted to do so. That is on everyone of us, especially those in power that allow these types of deadly laws to be enacted in the first place. Those transgender individuals that are able to access life-saving care are significantly medically monitored and pose absolutely no threat to "girls and women" in the locker room or playing field of any kind AND they are our girls and women who need the most protection. They only care about trying to survive in a world that doesn't understand, refuses to understand, or doesn't care to understand. That is the toll you allow to occur by not standing up for transgender people. They are no threat, you are. They are just trying to SURVIVE.

The time, money, and energy you are wasting on this topic is also disgusting. There was 1 known transgender athlete in our community that I have lived my entire 56 years, 0 known athletes in my professional career of 34 years. There are less than 10 known NCAA collegiate athletes. To allow all of this for the most monitored EXCEPTIONALLY RARE athletes who must show they have received care for at least a year so they can even participate is nothing more than bigoted transphobia. Invest in our communities so we can all thrive and stop violating our constitutional rights, dehumanizing, and legislating against all LGBTQ+ people.

STOP IT! YOU ARE KILLING US. STAND UP FOR US. STOP AB100 NOW and in turn STAND UP FOR US by proposing supporting care, systems, funding and strengthened legal protections.

To the members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

We strongly oppose the passing of Assembly Bill 100. Trans children deserve the right to live and play as everyone else, without the constant fear and threat of overregulation. Spending your valuable time and energy drafting legislation that is solely focused on controlling and humiliating such a tiny percentage of population is an insult to your constituents. We would strongly urge you to work on legislation that would actually improve the lives of all Wisconsin residents, not ostracize a few.

Sincerely,

Opposed

To the respected Representatives of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Hal M. DeLong, and I am a resident of Assembly District 10. As I am unable to attend this hearing on Assembly Bill 100 in person, I wish to submit this testimony to be delivered in my stead. I vehemently oppose these alterations and additions to state statutes, and I humbly ask that you reconsider your support for this bill.

I have less to say directly to Assembly Bill 100 than I do to Assembly Bill 103, but a threat to some of us is a threat to us all as I see it and I am thus compelled to say something against both pieces of legislation. I am not an athlete nor have I been one beyond a strictly recreational level, so I have no story of my own to illustrate my opposition to Assembly Bill 100. Nonetheless, I am still transgender, and I am deeply familiar with the experiences of others in my community. My trans peers in athletics are not looking for a leg up in competition- rather, like all the trans students who merely wish to better express themselves in regard to name and pronouns, they wish to be treated equitably. I will not deny that the matter of transgender athletes at any level is anything less than deeply nuanced. In regard to questions around hormone usage alone, for instance, there has been much debate surrounding existing limits used by governing bodies of various sports at professional levels. Yet despite how convoluted some of these discussions may seem, there are points of increasing consensus: for example, it would be unfair to force a transgender man taking testosterone to match the levels of non-transgender men to play in a women's league, even if he was assigned female originally. Conversely, it would be unfair to place a transgender woman taking estrogen and antiandrogens to match the levels of non-transgender women in a men's league, even if she was assigned male at birth. While relatively few transgender youth are on hormones, for those that are, these points are just as true. They should not be barred from the teams they are best suited for, even if that team does not align with the gender they were assigned at birth.

Much like with names, these debates around athletics are already hurting transgender and non-transgender people alike. The truth is, with or without any treatments, transgender athletes are not really different from many of their fellow athletes who aren't transgender. There is already so much natural variety in athletes who are not transgender in regards to hormone levels, build, and the like, and trans people fit somewhere within those parameters too. But defining those parameters for gender-segregated sports is where difficulties for all can emerge. Among professional runners, for example, many women who are not transgender have been found to be 'in violation' of hormone levels seen as acceptable for women, even though they are women and those are their natural hormone levels. Again, these women are not transgender- but these policies hurt them all the same and keep excellent athletes quite literally out of the running.

It is impossible to impose sanctions on transgender peoples' place without imposing limits that may affect us all. Where do you draw your lines around what you call 'manhood' and what you call 'womanhood' without leaving behind some of your non-transgender peers? How many trans people might fall within those lines when you do accommodate all of your non-trans peers? Some of you on this Committee may have daughters, nieces, or granddaughters who compete in athletics in this state. Would it upset you to see them left unable to compete because their natural hormone levels are 'too high' for someone else's arbitrary definition of what makes a woman? I expect that it would, and you would be right to be upset. But that is the kind of scenario that already occurs at higher levels for talented women athletes who were once at the level of your non-trans daughters, nieces, and granddaughters, all in the name of excluding transgender athletes from competition. Exclusion is a barrier to equity, and if that is indeed what you want to see in sports, this is not the way to bring it about.

Frankly, I am not sure how this testimony will be delivered to you, but I humbly thank you for listening or reading this far. From one Wisconsinite to another, I hope you deeply consider what I have shared with you here today. I want to change this state for the better just as much as you do- and it is only fair to me as a voter and as a person that I can express my concern and opposition to legislation that would fail to help this state become a better place for all of us who live here.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Hal M. DeLong

Testimony for the Record
Submitted to the Assembly Committee on Education
For the Public Hearing of Assembly Bill 103
03/06/2025
Hailey Connors
Bachelors of Social Work Student

I want to thank the chair, Representative Kitchens, vice-chair, Representative Goeben, and each of the members of this committee for the opportunity to participate in this hearing, and for the attention to the topic of the rights of queer, transgender, nonbinary, and other LGBTQ+ youth in Wisconsin schools. Particularly those students who wish to participate in school sports.

My name is Hailey Connors and my pronouns are she/they. I am a lifetime resident of Wisconsin. I live in between my hometown Evansville, WI and my college town, Whitewater, WI. I am a Bachelor's student of Social Work at the University of Wisconsin- Whitewater, and beginning this summer I will be a Master's student of Social Work pursuing my education and credentials to become a school social worker. I have every intention of spending my career in our great state supporting students, families, and communities to the best of my ability, and I am here to speak in opposition of Assembly Bill 100.

As a former participant in school athletics I think it is a shame that there be any discussion of restricting the participation of any student in school sports. The number of students participating on teams that do not align with their sexual identity is already incredibly low. In addition to this, transgender kids are disproportionately affected by violence, poor mental health, and suicidal ideations. According to the 2023 Wisconsin Youth Risk Behavior Study, LGBTQ+ students were the highest self reporting group experiencing anxiety at 79%, depression at 63%, and self-harming at 46%. One student responding to this survey said, "It's really hard to be Transgender and gay in this state, I will always feel uncomfortable and unsafe here. No matter whether in school, in the store, or on the streets, I feel I'm always going to get judged or worst hurt". If the legislature takes a stance that intends to promote the exclusion of these children it would be a grave mistake. Children participating in sports, especially team sports, benefit greatly. This is why student participation is promoted and encouraged. This encouragement should extend to all children. There is an inherent risk of injuries in sports, but I do not believe that this risk would be greater by allowing transgender girls to participate on girls teams. These risks are already mitigated through rules and regulations of school sports. The conversation should focus on the unique strengths of these girls and the skills they would bring to any team.

I am asking the committee to empathetically look at these proposed rules. Trans girls do not wish to harm other athletes. They wish to participate with their peers, be a part of a community, and become assets to their teams in the same way other student athletes do. Wrestlers are restricted by weight class, and already compete against competitors of opposite genders. Basketball players are called for fouls and can be removed from games for playing in manners that could injure another. I ask each of you to consider the sports that are deemed dangerous, remember that safety is already a priority, and trust that safety regulations will continue to be effective in promoting safe and healthy play. I also ask that each of you ponder the harm this exclusion could cause these children who are already likely being excluded by their peers and communities at a disproportionate rate.

Athletics were an outlet for me, and helped me manage my own mental and physical health problems. As a school social worker I would want to encourage all students to find their own outlets and interests. Limiting these marginalized students would cause undue harm, and because of this I am asking each of you to vote in opposition to Assembly Bill 100.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Chelsea Beiler, I'm a resident of the city of Milwaukee. I've lived in Wisconsin for my entire life, and I have strong ties to the local LGBTQ+ community through gay and transgender friends and family.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. This bill is discriminatory against a minority group that is currently facing extreme attacks from many groups that use fear mongering and scare tactics to turn the public at large against them, including our current federal administration. Transgender and gender non-conforming people are not a threat, and are subject to more harassment than their cisgender peers, up to and including hate crimes. This bill will only further that harassment by teaching children that it is okay, and even required, to isolate transgender people from their peer groups and deliberately other them.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Sincerely,

Chelsea Beiler

Roam Wilde
Regarding AB100
March 6, 2025

My name is Roam Wilde and I am a resident of the Town of Grant. I've lived in Wisconsin for 13 years. I am a property owner and farmer.

I am testifying about Assembly Bill 100 and how excluding transgender children from sports affects my community.

I would like to talk about my personal and familial issues related to this subject matter, however, the current administration has made it very clear that we no longer have freedom of speech; nor the freedom to pursue happiness simply by being who we are without the threat of persecution and the loss of our rights. It is not safe to even talk about the personal impact here without threat of persecution. This is precisely why we need bills like this to not go through.

The children of Wisconsin deserve to participate in sports, regardless of how they identify. They should be able to have a variety of learning opportunities and not be taught to fear and discriminate against their transgender peers. Assembly Bill 100 subjects children to unnecessary torment and restrictions that are only aimed at discrimination and demoralization of transgender children for merely wanting the opportunity to play sports with their peers. And it can open up the state to lawsuits if people interpret it to mean they can subject every little girl to a genital inspection to prove their gender.

Teaching hate in our schools does not uplift Wisconsin. We need to teach acceptance. Transgender children are rarely on hormones and do not have a physical advantage in sports. They are more likely to be targeted in locker rooms, rather than target others. If you are really worried about locker rooms, then create locker rooms with more privacy and individual changing spaces. There are far more predatory adults working in schools than trans children with malicious intent. We should be working to protect transgender children, not targeting them. We should be teaching acceptance, not hate.

I would like to thank you, Members of the Assembly Committee on Education, for your time reading my testimony. Your consideration of these matters and solutions is appreciated.

Testimony Against AB100 – Trans Athletes in Sports

Dear Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan,

Thank you for the opportunity to testify today, and my apologies for not being able to be here in person. I am writing to oppose AB100, relating to designating athletic sports teams operated or sponsored by public schools or private schools participating in a parental choice program based on the sex of the participants.

I am sure that many people testifying against this bill have already discussed how it would harm trans students, so instead, I would like to use this time to discuss how this bill negatively impacts cis students as well. Proponents of this bill would have you believe that it is intended to “protect women’s sports,” but as a cis woman myself who plays women’s sports, I argue that this bill actually hurts women’s sports.

For the past seven months, I have been learning to play roller derby here in Madison. Doing so has been well beyond my comfort zone; I was certainly more of a theater kid in high school than an athlete. However, in spite of my fears, I signed up. My roller derby league has many trans women on the team, and from my very first practice, they were there to offer advice, demonstrate what to do, and support me. They were welcoming and kind, and they made me feel included from the start. I cannot imagine going to practice and not having them there—I value them as people and as teammates. When I picture the effects of this bill, I feel great sadness for the trans women who are told they cannot play a sport they love, but I also feel great sadness for the other girls on the team, who are having their beloved teammate taken away from them.

This bill is demeaning to all women. It is based in a flawed understanding of biology and in fearmongering. I also deeply question whether the proponents of this bill truly care about women’s sports. If you truly want to improve things for women athletes, then I would encourage you to instead dedicate your time to advancing legislation that would actually support them, such as increasing funding for women’s sports at all levels of education. According to the U.S. Department of Education, 87 percent of NCAA schools offered disproportionately higher rates of athletic opportunities to male athletes compared to their enrollment.¹ Many families are also unable to afford to participate in sports, which can be costly. Some families are unable to transport their students to and from practices and games. Furthermore, inequitable education funding also means that wealthy suburban schools tend to have better athletic programs than rural or city schools. With so many barriers to girls' and women's participation in sports, it seems clear that this legislation is meant to hurt trans students, not actually support women's sports. It does nothing to address the biggest barriers to women's sports and instead targets trans women—who are actually underrepresented in women's sports.

I should not need to say this, but if it helps you to hear this directly from a cis woman: I do not need “protection” from trans women. This bill would not protect cis girls—it would rob them of their teammates.

I urge you to vote against this bill. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Johanna Schmidt

Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Willa Brucaya, and I am a resident of Belleville, Wisconsin. I was born and raised in Wisconsin, and have spent most of my adult life here. I treasure this state as my home and the place that I feel most connected to in the world.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. I am opposed to this bill because it seeks to divide the people of our state, to promote fear and misunderstanding, and to discriminate against an already vulnerable minority - one that needs our help, not further harassment and discrimination.

Sports should be a place where kids go to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another, despite differences - but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth - a small and vulnerable minority who simply want the right to exist - is abhorrent, and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

As a devoted Wisconsinite,

Statement by Chris Mosier
Founder, Transathlete.com before the Senate Education & Health Committee in opposition to AB100

Members of the committee:

My name is Chris Mosier and I am a professional athlete and founder of Transathlete.com, the leading resource for policy on transgender people in sport. I am urging you to oppose AB100.

I am a transgender man, but long before I understood and could tell others I am transgender, I grew up playing girls' and women's sports. Sports was how I found my friends, community, and social life. Sport was an essential part of my upbringing, teaching me about goal setting, communication, determination, perseverance, leadership, and supporting others. In high school, when I struggled with understanding my place in the world, sports saved my life. And my participation in sports as a high school athlete shaped me into who I am today.

Transgender students participate in sports for the same reasons other young people do: to challenge themselves, make friends, and be part of a team. The opportunity to participate in sports results in positive outcomes for all students – better grades, greater homework completion, higher educational and occupational aspirations, and improved self-esteem. Excluding trans students from participation deprives them of opportunities available to their peers and sends the message they are not worthy of the same experiences as their classmates.

Youth sport is a part of our educational system and should be accessible to all. Policies for high school athletes should keep the education goal of sports in mind: the policies should prioritize access and participation for all youth, regardless of how they identify, and should support their growth as students and people.

When bills like AB100 pop up, we see that they aren't linked to any problem in women's sports, or any real documented threat to women in sports; instead, they are linked to stereotypes and myths about transgender people and driven by hate groups and politicians whose missions are to erase trans folks from public life.

Let me clear about the damage this bill, and even this conversation will have: when government officials, lawyers and lobbyists publicly debate the validity and worth of our existence as transgender people, the worth of athletes – of people – like me, it sends a dangerous message to young people that there is no safe or supportive place for them in this world. It also sends a message to people who are not transgender that they can and should ignore the basic humanity of transgender people in Wisconsin.

Trans youth are not a threat to sports or your state, but transphobic laws are. I urge you to oppose AB100.

To the members of the Assembly on Education,

My name is Jesse Goyette. I am a constituent from Cedarburg, zip code of 53012-1967. I strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100. It is unfair to target and discriminate against any child who wishes to participate in school activities. I am a 23 year old college student and part time worker. I also happen to be transgender. I have spent most of my life in Wisconsin. There is an insignificant number of trans kids in athletics that are being harassed by conservative ideology. Hateful people are seeking to exclude them because they do not agree with their personal decisions.

We oppose banning Transgender children in K through 12 from participating in sports.

We have had firsthand experience with a friend's transgender child since age 2. This child who was biologically a male, began to pretend to be a girl by taking a T-shirt and wrapping it around her head to imitate long hair. She continued to exhibit other characteristics associated with little girls.

She was allowed to wear little girls clothing only in her home as her parents feared she would be harassed in kindergarten and preschool. At age 4, she expressed negative feelings about her male body and questioned why God made her a boy.

This young child would comment on her mom's coordinated outfits. As time passed, we began to realize she had a heart and soul of a girl in a boys body.

Her father related a story about her first time being in public in a fairy princess costume at Halloween. She was as radiant, and vibrant, and as happy as he had ever seen her.

These children are no different than any other child who wishes to be included in the community. Their heart and soul knows they are female. They do not get up in the morning and simply decide to be a little girl for the day.

We have watched this child participate in team sports with cis gender girls in her female community. Today we see a happy teenage girl interacting well with her cis gender friends and team mates. No one observing this activity would be able to identify her as a transgender girl.

This child does not even wish to identify as a transgender girl. She firmly believes and states she is a woman.

Kids learn a lot of important life lessons in sports: leadership, confidence, self-respect, advocacy and what it means to be part of a team. When we tell transgender girls that they can't play girls' sports they miss out on this important childhood experience and all the lessons it teaches.

It can be hard to understand what it means to be transgender, especially if you've never met a transgender person. And it's common to have questions at first. But we can all agree that transgender kids should be treated with dignity and respect, just like everyone else. Transgender athletes have for many years been beneficial parts of teams throughout Wisconsin.

Transgender and nonbinary youth athletes play sports for the exact same reasons as other students their age: Staying healthy, being part of a team, fostering friendships, and developing social skills—all lifelong benefits of playing a sport

We welcome legislation and policy that would proactively work to improve the health, well-being, and safety of transgender and nonbinary youth and send a clear and unequivocal message that they are seen, loved, and welcomed in all aspects of their community.

Thank you considering our request.

RE: Assembly Bill 100

I'm Rev. Julie Wilson (she/her) Lead Pastor of Bethany United Methodist Church in Madison. I'm writing against AB-100. Like many of you, I have questioned at what age children are capable of understanding questions regarding identity. And, after many conversations with parents and grandparents I have come to realize they too have agonized over these decisions. No parent takes lightly the responsibility of protecting their child. They want what is best for their child and much thought, prayer and counseling goes into any decisions regarding gender identity. Once I listened to their stories, I realized that children are not making a decision, they are simply being their true selves. Parents shared how they watched their child struggle daily trying to be someone they weren't. When parents finally allowed their child to accept their unique identity their world changed. Their child was happier. Their mental health improved. They succeed in school and in life.

Allowing students to participate in sports is good for their mental and physical health. No child or parent is going to go through the pain and struggles of transition simply to play a sport. However, participating in sports is a way for children to enjoy life and the comradery of a team. Coaches and team members can be mentors and friends. In a world where loneliness and isolation is an epidemic, allowing children to find a place they belong is critical. I have listened to concerns about the safety of other players and the size advantage a trans participant might have on their teammates. However, these fears are unwarranted. Children come in all shapes and sizes. There is no evidence that trans children might be larger than their teammates. In fact, it's quite the opposite as they may actually have lower testosterone levels than other females on the team. Quite simply these children just want to enjoy their childhood and have all the same opportunities as their friends.

My faith tells me that we are to love God and to love our neighbor as ourselves. Loving my neighbor means that I see them, I hear them, and I listen to their stories. It means that God loves them, and God cares about them deeply. I urge you to listen to children, parents and grandparents. I urge you to hear their stories and I urge you to allow children to enjoy sports and the confidence and friendship participation brings. I urge you to vote no on AB-100. Thank you.

I have lived in Wisconsin since 1992; I have two children, ages 4 and 7, who are in public school in Wisconsin, and I am opposed to this bill, because I feel it would negatively impact the lives of my children and their friends.

Many studies have shown that trans athletes have no inherent advantage over those assigned female at birth. AB100 is a terrible bill born out of fear. The vast majority of those who play sports in high school and college will never receive remuneration from it, but do so for the love of the game and for the companionship being on a team brings. Many times I have heard adults even in their sixties and seventies reminisce about the teams of their youths! For trans youth, who are more at risk of depression and suicide, this kind of comradery can only be a positive. Trans children deserve to be treated with dignity and compassion, and this bill does nothing of the sort. Both of my kids have a close friend who's nonbinary; this bill, by defining them out of existence, would basically put an end to their ability to participate in team sports. I would rather see sex-segregated sports come to an end than I would see this bill go into effect.

Thank you for your attention in these matters.

To the members of the Assembly on Education,
We urge you to vote no on Assembly Bill 100.

Sports at this level should bring students together and give them a sense of all belonging to a team. This bill does the exact opposite, while trying to address a non-issue. Please imagine if your grandchild was the one being excluded and all they want to do is play on a team. This bill will cause harm. Why not work so that there are bathroom and locker facilities so all can feel safe and welcomed. Our transgender youth should be supported!

Surely there are more pressing educational issues (funding levels, achievement gaps, teacher retention, curriculum, etc.) than this bill in search of a problem which will only continue to divide us.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jocie Luglio, and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 25 years and owned my home for 20 years.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it is unnecessary and harmful to my community.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Kayla Petrie, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for my entire life, I attended all of my schooling here and currently own a small business.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I want every Wisconsin student to feel safe inside a locker room. I think the measures to enforce this bill will require unnecessary scrutiny of our students, trans and not.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years. I have served as an educator, youth soccer coach, girls basketball coach, and youth mountain biking coach, and family member to gender-diverse youth, and I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose this bill because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to play and fully participate in their school sports in an inclusive environment free from harassment and discrimination. Transgender and nonbinary youth athletes play sports for the exact same reasons as other students their age: Staying healthy, being part of a team, and fostering friendships—all lifelong benefits of playing a sport.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Sol Kelley-Jones and I write to you today as a parent, an educator and a proud Wisconsinite who has had the privilege of knowing, working with, and loving many transgender young people in our community for the past 20 years. I am deeply concerned about Assembly Bill 100 and its attack on transgender young people simply trying to participate productively in their school communities through engaging in athletics on teams that align with their gender identity. When discussing this bill last night at dinner, my 1st grader was deeply troubled, asking "But why would they do that? That is so mean, kids just want to belong!" Yes, kids just want to belong. This mean-spirited, divisive legislation targets some of our most vulnerable community members - transgender youth – and sends a dangerous message to kids across Wisconsin that our leaders are more interested in targeting already marginalized members of our school communities rather than working towards policies that nurture the health and safety of ALL of our precious young people.

At a time when we should be focusing our efforts on building a Wisconsin where all students can thrive and feel belonging - whether that is through participation in athletics or simply feeling safe to exist in their home state - this legislation with its hate-filled rhetoric would have an incredibly harmful, and even life-threatening, impact on many in our community.

I ask you to strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100 and stand strong for a Wisconsin that is affirming of the worth and dignity of all of our young people, and were, as my child says, all kids will know they belong.

Thank you for your leadership,

Sol Kelley-Jones

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
My name is Sophia Svetnicka, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for over 20 years total and I am a cisgender female, assigned female at birth. I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because sports have been such a unifying aspect in so many people's lives. It's a place to come together, not to exclude. As a female athlete both growing up and now, I wouldn't be who I am today without my teammates who shaped me and grew alongside me, especially my trans femme teammates. Looking back on youth sports, I learned about inclusion, self-care, teamwork, community, and competitiveness- all of which would be tainted with what this bill is trying to shift. Everyone deserves a space to play the sports they love, in the way that they love it. Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To Rep Kitchens, Rep Goeben, and the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Tony Panciera, I live in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 53211. I am opposed to the passage of AB 100.

I am a business owner and have the pleasure of working for clients across our community in Southeastern Wisconsin. I do small scale carpentry, woodworking, and cabinetry. I have clients that are queer. I have clients that are trans. I have people in my community with children who are trans. AB 100 and other bills attempting to define anyone who is intersex or trans out of existence, do not change the scientific and social realities that these people exist (<https://open.lib.umn.edu/evosex/chapter/8-7-variations-in-human-sex-differentiation/>). These bills DO succeed in perpetuating the idea that these people are a threat to others and ostracizing them further. They also succeed in preventing opportunities for trans kids to participate in meaningful social activities. Trans people are 4x more likely to be victims of violent crime. (<https://williamsinstitute.law.ucla.edu/press/ncvs-trans-press-release/>). More than 40% of transgender adults in the US have attempted suicide (<https://williamsinstitute.law.ucla.edu/press/transpop-suicide-press-release/>). To think that they only turned to self-harm as adults is asinine. I can hardly think of something that could help a struggling kid more than finding a passion and sense of team/community and having an outlet for that, like sports.

I aim to focus my life on loving others and my community, as Jesus did. Attempting to put up barriers for kids feels like a particular type of hatred. I cannot imagine that Jesus would have supported this type of law or behavior, with the parable of the Good Samaritan coming to mind. You do not have to know someone or understand someone to be kind and loving. I strongly encourage you to act out of love and vote against AB 100.

Sincerely,

Tony Panciera

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Erika Marin-Spiotta and I am a resident of Dane County. I've lived in Wisconsin for 16 years.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it is discriminatory and promotes a culture of fear of trans people, and especially, children. As a cisgender woman, an educator, and mother of two, I want my children and students to grow up learning acceptance and love, not fear and hate. I want my children and students to learn to fully embrace who they are, whomever they may grow up to be, and to fully embrace their peers on their journeys of self-discovery and acceptance.

As we see from professional sports, policing of gender disproportionately targets women and people of color, creating further discrimination. Although these types of bills and policies are framed in a context of protecting women, we know that sex and gender discrimination hurts all women, and creates unsafe and threatening environments for women, in the classroom, in the locker room, on the court, in the field, and on the track.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another.

This bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such discrimination and hatred in my community or anywhere else.

Sincerely,

Erika Marin-Spiotta

Thank you, chairman and education committee

My name is Tom Truttschel and I'm the proud husband of my wife Lori for 36 years and three beautiful daughters ages 27,30 and 33.

I am a very proud high school girls lacrosse coach, who happens to be the longest standing coach in the state with 17 years in high school coaching. I spent 12 years as head coach at Arrowhead high school and I'm in my third year as Head Coach at Oconomowoc high school.

I started the first girls club lacrosse program called Lake country badgers in 2008. Over the course of these years, I've had the blessing of coaching thousands of girls. While at Arrowhead our team battled for 10 conference championships and went to nine state title games, while winning eight of those games. In 2018 I was nominated and inducted into the US lacrosse Hall of Fame.

All three of my daughters went on to play college women's lacrosse. My middle daughter Payton played in the national championship and one in triple overtime. She and her teammates would've been devastated to lose because of a competitive advantage to a transgender biological young man.

Even one loss during the season due to our girls playing against a transgender biological boy could eliminate a dream that these young women work so hard to achieve.

When you see the eyes light up of grade school girls, watching their idol, varsity player hoping and working towards dreams of someday to becoming as successful as them, it is very inspiring.

No girl should have their dream taken away from them because a biological boy was allowed to play against them, and because of their physical advantage, it could take away from individual goals or team goals.

Also, over the years I've witnessed a number of injuries that include concussions caused by sticks to the head and balls hitting athletes in the head. Today's female high school lacrosse athlete can typically get high top speed at about 65 to 70 mph, while boys are capable of throwing at a speed of 100 mph plus.

The risks of safety are significant when putting the physical nature of a boy into this girl sport and many others.

My belief is that biological boys should be playing on the boys teams, as there are in most sports options for transgender, biological boys to play on a boys high school, and or college team.

I also believe because we preach practice like you play, that biological boy should not be practicing with biological girls, because there's even a higher propensity for injury because of the quantity of reps and intensity that we encourage our athletes to practice with.

The girls that I have coached, do not want to play with biological males that turn transgender.

Furthermore, they do not want to be exposed to male genitalia in a locker room setting. There has been a lot of talk about mental health today coming from the LGBTQ and transgender families.

The mental health of girls that do not want to be exposed to this locker room environment, safety, and fairness on the field is equally as important.

I am in support of AB100 because of these points.

Thank you for your time,

Coach Tom Truttschel

To the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Robyn Schultz. I live in the City of Milwaukee, where an important aspect of my life involves serving as President of the Southeast Wisconsin chapter of Pride at Work, the AFL-CIO's LGBTQ+ constituent group. It is partly in that capacity that I would like to submit testimony on the matter of Assembly Bill 100, a bill that I strongly oppose. I am not a parent, educator or lawyer. I'm merely a stagehand and a labor leader with some stakes in the many communities I live and operate in.

I have been living a transgender experience for my entire life. It was only much later in life that I was able to come to terms with this and come out as the person I am. Looking back, there were so many indications that I was not actually the boy I was identified and raised as, even as a participant in junior league sports of a couple flavors. Looking back, I can hardly believe that I survived to be here to talk about this today, or that I have to deliver this testimony against this bill, which we all can agree will not come to be law.

Those of us that were fortunate enough to have opportunities to participate in athletics shared many experiences that continue to hold value later in life. I was involved with teams of varying degrees of success, both as a team and as an individual on a team. Those experiences were important and taught my teammates and I valuable lessons about individual and shared effort, bringing our personal bests, helping the others on the team, celebrating our victories and learning from our losses. These experiences shaped many of us who are here on some level. Depriving some of our most vulnerable of the opportunity to participate in these important shared experiences, as this bill is attempting to do, especially under some pretense of fairness or other unfounded claims of inherent advantages, seems like a pointless and hurtful use of the modest resources available to the players, coaches, fans and officials involved with these sports.

A long time ago, I played little league baseball. It was technically open to all, but girls didn't play hardball, at least not then or in that league, except for one young lady who did. She had an arm, and got the spot I was training for and hoping to claim as pitcher. It was disappointing when she got the nod, but I recognized that it was a result of her efforts, not some inherent advantage from development. She faced some taunting, from other players and parents, as well as her female peers. Nonetheless, she persisted and was successful. As we played together, I realized that no matter what I did, she was going to have an edge over me, which taught me some small lessons about the importance of effort, respecting women, working with what we had for the good of the team and just a little well-deserved humility. Her performance got her the spot she sought on the team that by some accounts she had no business being on.

A couple years later, in junior high, I was awarded an MVP award for my contributions to a basketball team I played on. I was proud of that. I was far from the biggest, fastest or strongest kid on that team. As the new kid in that school, I struggled to find a way to fit in, but I earned that award, through persistence and a commitment to contributing to the success of that team, and found a place in that community. The experience made a big difference in how my peers and I interacted off the court almost as much as it impacted how we worked together on the court. We all learned from each other. We became pretty adept at playing off of each other's strengths, and covering for each other's weaknesses. These are valuable skills that I apply frequently in non-athletic situations on a regular basis.

Fast forward a couple years, and I'll tell you that I was not particularly proud to get clobbered in some one on one play by an early girlfriend who excelled at the game. It didn't stop me from trying, but soon I knew that no matter what I did, she'd be able to outperform me on the court. She had talent, and did the work, and whatever gender I was, she earned every victory through her efforts, talent and will. I am certain that in spite of any talent or developmental advantages I may have had, there was no need to protect the team from me, as there is no way that I would have done well enough to earn a spot.

All of these experiences were formative and important. All of them were opportunities to learn and teach, to take some responsibility for my actions and performance, and to encourage or cajole my teammates to do the same. All of us were accountable to each other, our classmates and fans, our families and our coaches. All of these experiences involved some wins and some losses, some failures and some successes which we all got to contribute something to and take something from.

This bill stands to take away opportunities such as these from a group of young people that are more isolated than average; people that face challenges that few have to experience, challenges that are hard to imagine or explain; people that really stand to benefit from finding a way to connect to their peers, build places for themselves in their communities and see results from their efforts.

This bill is not about fairness or equity or any other important notion. This bill is discriminatory and makes clear, that in the opinion of its authors, anyone who does not conform to standard gender models or roles does not deserve the chance to develop into the best person, teammate or community member that they can hope or aspire to be.

I hope that these words make it a little harder for you to vote in support of AB100. I encourage you to consider the importance of your decision before you commit to any action that limits opportunities for anyone like this bill will do should it pass.

Thank you for your time and consideration of my thoughts.

Respectfully,

Robyn Schultz

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing in opposition of AB 100. I have lived in Wisconsin since 2nd grade, and I have never been much of an athlete. I played volleyball, did gymnastics (briefly), swam, and was about average in my gym classes at the local YMCA. I was a shy kid, and was always anxious about changing in front of the rest of the kids. I cannot imagine how much worse it would have been if I had been forced to use the wrong locker room. My gym classes already had a sexist division, where the teacher would "allow" what he called "girl push-ups", would only softballs underhand to the girls (as opposed to throwing baseballs overhand for boys), and other divisions across gender lines. In reality, no gender was inherently better at sports than another. Kneeling push-ups are a variation that some people find easier to do while building strength for traditional push-ups. Forcing the gender divide even further with this bill would impact all students, trans or cis, intersex or perisex. Kids should be able to play sports without fear of being persecuted or forced into violating examinations to prove a gender.

What kind of message does it send to children to support a bill that would so grossly invade their privacy?

I urge you to show your support for all students and oppose this bill. Let kids play sports.

Dear Members of the Assembly and Committee on Education,

My name is Alexa Stampfli and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 28 years and I personally have friends in the trans community here.

I am writing to you to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it creates hate towards people being themselves with no harm, specifically people in the trans community who are just trying to live their lives in peace and acceptance.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

Sincerely,

Alexa Stampfli

To the Members of the Senate Committee on Bill 100,

I have been an educator for 17 years. I taught 4th and 2nd grade in public schools in Delaware and Milwaukee before becoming an instructional coach in the Madison Metropolitan School District. I am now an adjunct professor at Madison College, teaching aspiring educators. I vehemently oppose Bill 100, which would exclude transgender students from participating on interscholastic, intramural, or club sports teams and accessing locker rooms consistent with their identified gender in k-12 schools.

There is nothing more important than schools being places of belonging for all students. If students do not feel a sense of belonging, they quite literally cannot learn. When we feel cared for, our brain is flooded with neurotransmitters and hormones like oxytocin, which tell our pre-frontal cortex, the thinking part of the brain, that all is safe. When the brain feels safe, it is able to take on new learning. When humans don't feel safe, stress hormones like cortisol flood the brain and divert blood from the pre-frontal context to the amygdala. When the amygdala is activated, our brains prepare for fight or flight - absolutely no learning can happen under those conditions. If we exclude trans students from participating in sport teams consistent with their gender identity, then we are making schools unsafe places for them and literally preventing them from learning.

Even more disturbing, if we deny our students the right to participate in school sports, we are denying their humanity at school. Sports foster a strong sense of belonging and social engagement, and allow children to feel a part of a team and challenge themselves. These proposed laws discriminate against trans youth in ways that compromise their health, social and emotional development, and safety. They also raise privacy concerns. Enforcing these bans would be horrible for all women and girls. It would require girls as young as four to answer invasive personal questions about their bodies and face humiliating physical inspections of their private parts by adult strangers. There are disproportionally high rates of suicide risk and poor mental health among transgender and nonbinary youth, due to the stress and mistreatment they experience in an anti-transgender society. Data indicate that 82% of transgender individuals have considered killing themselves and 40% have attempted suicide. How could anyone possibly support a bill that will make it even harder for transgender youth to feel safe at school, knowing these heartbreaking statistics?

Every student is at risk under this bill. Any player could be targeted with questions about their gender - whether that's from an opposing team or teammate who is upset they lost out on playing time or didn't make a team. It's not good for anyone.

Schools should do everything they can to make sure all youth, including transgender youth, feel loved and accepted and politicians should not be making it harder for them to do so. Every student deserves the freedom to be themselves in school.

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lexa Van Fleet, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for #27 years and had the privilege of running track and cross country in middle and high school. Now as an adult, I love going on runs in this beautiful state.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill "X". As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because trans rights are human rights. According to the Journal of the American Medical Association, researchers "found that transgender and nonbinary youth who received gender-affirming care had 73% lower odds of suicidality"(2022).

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

I strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100. As a parent of a trans daughter I find the introduction of this legislation extremely harmful to the mental health of trans youth. Every child deserves the opportunity to participate in youth sports but this bill would prevent trans kids that opportunity. Or are you suggesting that a trans girl should play on the boys team? How well do you think that would go over? She would feel extremely uncomfortable in the locker room and be subjected to more potential bullying. It certainly would not foster a feeling of being part of a "team". The same would happen if it were a trans boy in a girls locker room. These kids are not harming anyone by living who they authentically are. They deserve the same opportunities as everyone else.

As far as Assembly Bill 103 goes, it is such a ridiculous waste of time and taxpayer resources! What name a person chooses to be called should be of no concern to the schools. If Roberta asks to be called Bobby, does anyone make a fuss? Of course not, because that is what they prefer. It's what makes them comfortable in school and helps them learn best. People feel good when they hear their name, it gives them a little dopamine hit. Once someone has chosen to transition and chosen a new name, people continuing to use their previous name can be upsetting. If schools want kids to feel safe and be able to learn, they can start by calling the kids whatever name they ask to be called. This should be common sense and not something that needs to be legislated.

As far as pronouns are concerned, the use of these pronouns is here to stay. They are being used in a variety of situations, including corporate workplaces. When kids learn to use them in school, it's just part of regular language now. Get over your fear of them and get used to it. He, she, they, them are all PEOPLE and all deserve to be treated with RESPECT!

According to The Trevor Project, 85% of trans and nonbinary youth say that ongoing political attacks are detrimental to their mental health. That doesn't even touch the daily battles they face. Their website states that last year in Wisconsin, 44% of them seriously considered suicide! That is almost half!!! Wisconsin needs to do better for these youth. If you do not know any transgender youth then I strongly suggest you get to know some and what they and their families have been going through.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Maddie and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 23 years, grew up going to public schools here, and identify as non-binary.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill "X". As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it creates scrutiny around the sex of minors which is extremely inappropriate, and does not have a scientific basis for its assertions. There are scientific studies that can be consulted to create appropriate guidelines around trans athletes' participation in sports for youth at the age of puberty and beyond, but blanket legislation like this that has no basis in science will only create exclusion and discrimination of trans girls AND scrutiny of the sex characteristics of cisgender girls with XX chromosomes and F on their birth certificate who are deemed "too masculine". Children before the age of puberty should be able to select which teams they feel comfortable playing on.

As someone who grew up as a girl running cross country and track & field at a WI public high school myself in the 2010s, I would not have wanted trans girls on HRT or puberty blockers to be prevented from running alongside me. I personally know young trans kids who left the sport entirely while I was there, out of a feeling that they didn't belong, and they lost this very important hub for community and personal development that sports can be, something that should be available for all kids.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers.

Sincerely,

MB

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Kimberly Bannigan. I live at 516 Kent Road, Poynette.

As a long time Wisconsin resident and retired educator, I oppose both of these bills.

Assembly Bill 100 does not address a current need in Wisconsin and would do more harm to students who are already at risk. Participation in sports can benefit students in so many ways, yet you would place another barrier in the road for students who don't fit into your neat categories. There is not a rush of male students trying to get the upper hand in sports or gain access to locker rooms by identifying as females. These ideas are manufactured out of fear and hate and we can do better as a state. It is far better to allow ALL students access to the best schools can offer.

(I also find it puzzling that AB 100 proposes to prohibit male pupils from using the locker rooms designated for females, but not the opposite.)

Assembly Bill 103 is also not required. Not only does it make extra work for school boards, it seeks to remove local control and do harm to students. School districts and boards should be allowed to meet the needs of their communities without this type of useless overreach by our legislature. As for students, school is sometimes a safe place where they can find support. That support is not meant to displace parents or guardians, but it is a sad fact that many students with questions about their identities can't rely on adults at home. An even sadder fact is that it might also put them in harm's way. That's where school employees can and do step in. WE KNOW that misgendering causes real harm to real people and we shouldn't ask educators to do this.

I ask you to consider the harm that both of these bills will do to Wisconsin students and the messages they send. I have seen firsthand how the lack of understanding and access can hurt students and family members. Why do this further harm? I urge you to return to legislative business that impacts Wisconsinites in a positive way . . . protecting natural resources, ensuring access to broadband, fully funding education, addressing shared revenue shortfalls, providing healthcare and housing, fair wages . . .

You can't legislate trans or non-binary people out of our world.

Thank you for your consideration,

Kimberly Bannigan

Dear Committee,

I am writing testimony regarding AB 100 as a Board Member of the LGBT Center of SE WI. This bill will irreparably harm transgender youth I am tasked with protecting and uplifting. This bill is nothing more than an attempt to exclude, humiliate, and erase transgender students from school sports and spaces where they should feel safe and included. It sends a cruel and dangerous message: that trans youth don't belong, that their identity is up for debate, and that their participation in school activities comes with extra hurdles and scrutiny that no other student has to face.

Trans kids join sports teams for the same reasons as everyone else—to build friendships, challenge themselves, and be part of something bigger. But instead of supporting all students, this bill forces trans youth to the sidelines. Worse, it puts every student at risk. It opens the door for invasive, humiliating gender policing, where any athlete—no matter their gender—could be questioned about their body, forced to prove their identity, or even subjected to degrading physical examinations just to play the sports they love.

This isn't about fairness. If it were, lawmakers would be focused on real issues in youth sports, like funding, coaching support, and access to opportunities for all athletes. Instead, they're targeting a small, vulnerable group of kids for political gain.

Let's be clear: No child should have to defend their identity just to play a game. No student should be singled out, humiliated, or excluded because of who they are.

We must stand up against this bill and every other attack on trans youth. Trans kids deserve the same opportunities as their peers—to play, to compete, and to be part of a team. Every child deserves to feel like they belong.

Dear Assembly Education Committee:

I am writing in opposition to Assembly Bill 100. I grew up in Wisconsin. I graduated from Platteville High School and the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health. I am a proud Wisconsinite, physician and parent of a transgender child.

The definition of a person's sex as defined in this bill is limiting and does not include people who are intersex (born with both male and female genitalia) or transgender individuals who have transitioned with hormones or surgery and are determined by their physician as being of a sex different than listed on their birth certificate. Some states do not allow changing of sex on a birth certificate. This bill excludes a very small portion of students in our school system who would benefit from participation in sports and promotes transphobia.

What is the value of team sports in our schools? How does this bill contribute to learning teamwork, good sportsmanship, discipline, practice, acceptance and working together for a common goal if it excludes students who don't fit your definition of sex.

My child was on the boys soccer team as a Freshman and Sophomore in high school, but was afraid of backlash so did not join the girls soccer team. It was a big loss and very sad to see. Why put students through this pain? There is harm in excluding students. What is the harm in including these students? Why is there such a fuss over an incredibly small percentage of student athletes? What happened to the adage, "It doesn't matter if you win or lose, it is how you play the game." This bill puts the perceived notion of winning ahead of good sportsmanship.

This bill may also put female athletes in harm's way if their sex is questioned. This has happened in Utah when a complaint was filed against a winning female athlete by 2nd and 3rd place finishers prompting an investigation that determined the athlete was indeed female. This caused severe emotional distress to the athlete. I do not want to see our female athletes being investigated if they do not look feminine enough.

This bill promotes fear, hatred and bullying of transgender students and female students who do well but don't look feminine enough.

The WIAA has already reversed its policy for transgender athletes. This bill is unnecessary and potentially harmful.

Please do not move this bill forward. Instead please find ways to encourage good sportsmanship in our schools so all can play in the game..

Thank you,

Lynn R Verger, MD

To Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Grayce Payne and I'm a concerned Madison resident. As a Wisconsinite and a proud member of the LGBTQ+ community, I oppose Assembly Bill 100 because I know how important participation in school sports is to developing a strong sense of community, belonging, and respect and to prevent trans youth from having that same access to community, belonging, and respect is abhorrent.

The passage of this bill creates a scenario in which children will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers, which will spur further alienation for and incite violence against an already isolated and marginalized community. Trans children deserve to play on sports teams that align with their identity and to deny them that is to deny them a safe environment to thrive and grow. I want trans youth to find the same joy in playing youth sports as I did growing up and passing this egregious bill will actively prevent trans children from experiencing the joy and camaraderie that they so rightfully deserve.

I hope you will join me in opposing this bill and putting a stop to the continued proliferation of anti-trans rhetoric by voting "No" on Assembly Bill 100.

Sincerely,

Grayce Payne

My name is Jamie Blessing. I am a resident of Madison, WI and have lived in the state for 15 years. I am testifying with regard to AB 100, and vehemently urge you to vote against this discriminatory legislation.

Throughout my time in middle and high school, team sports were a huge part of my life. They gave me an outlet to focus my energy and fostered constructive relationships. All students deserve access to these types of experiences.

Sports should be an avenue for youth to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and acceptance. This bill would create a scenario where people are taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers.

In the international arena, we have already seen that this type of transphobic policy subjects trans- and cisgender women and girls to invasive questions, exams and procedures. We have also seen that women of color bear the brunt of this scrutiny. This bill will cause harm to many students in addition to the transgender youth it specifically targets.

The way this bill aims to codify discrimination is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community. Thank you for taking the time to ready my testimony and acting with consideration for the well-being of our state's students.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB100 (transgender athlete ban) and AB103 (preferred name/pronoun ban).

I oppose these two bills as the proud parent of a transgender 14 year old girl who thrives socially as a K-12 climber in our local community and would be deeply bereft without such opportunities. I am a Madison resident, have lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and intend for my family to continue to live here for many more years to come.

If passed, these bills will do enormous harm to our youngest and most vulnerable constituents. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

In my view, it is well beyond the role of the state to dictate this level of rigidity over policy for children so young.

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Marta Swanson, and I am a resident of the City of Appleton. I've lived in Wisconsin for my entire life, 20 years. I grew up in Wisconsin elementary, middle, and high schools and now attend UW-Madison as a junior studying biochemistry and dance studies. Wisconsin as I know it, values inclusion and community, coming together to support and love those around us.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a proud Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it unjustly excludes and discriminates against transgender children. As someone who participated in sports throughout my childhood and teenage years, I know firsthand how valuable these experiences are. Being on a team helped me build friendships, develop confidence, and grow as a person. In high school, I joined my school's diving team with little experience. It helped to push me out of my comfort zone, redefine what I thought my capabilities were, and even feel empowered. I wasn't the best athlete but being a part of that team and challenging myself physically and mentally in this new sport was invaluable to my development as a 14-year-old trying to navigate growing up. I cannot imagine what it would have felt like to have that experience stripped away from me simply because of who I am, because my identity does not abide by what some people view as acceptable. No child should be denied the chance to participate, grow, and belong because of who they are.

Sports should teach teamwork, resilience, and respect—not exclusion and discrimination. This bill sends the harmful message that transgender youth do not belong, creating an environment of fear rather than acceptance. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Emily Dufner, and I am a resident of Oregon, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for over 33 years, I received my degree in Biomolecular Engineering from the Milwaukee School of Engineering and I have worked both in the public and private sectors, most recently in STEM with a focus on developing treatments for challenging diseases and conditions.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill "AB100". As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it does not focus on improving the learning or experience provided to youth in sports, but rather seeks to exclude and discriminate against a minority group. According to a 2022 poll by the Williams Institute School of Law, approx. 1.4% of US youth ages 13-17 identified as trans, and in Wisconsin approx. 1.75% of youth ages 13-17 identified as trans; statistically these numbers are then even smaller for the percentages of youth involved in sports.

Traditionally, rules regarding who is eligible to participate in youth sports have been set by the local sports association – which had the ability to make an individualized determination specific to the student, their age group, and demands of the sport – but in the last five years, state legislatures have enacted wholesale bans instead. In addition to transgender youth being excluded, cisgender (non-transgender) girls in states with these bans have been accused of violating the bans because other players or their parents believed they were too talented, too strong, or too tall to be girls - and the harassment they have faced has in some cases made it impossible to continue to play. In short, opening the door to this type of discrimination in youth sports will likely have more widespread consequences, and in the end it is at the expense of young athletes.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Kelsey Foster (she/her). I am a lifelong Wisconsin resident, and I write today in opposition to Assembly Bill 100. First let me state my unequivocal support of transgender people across Wisconsin, especially the youth, who are amongst the most vulnerable people in our communities. The kids being targeted by this needlessly divisive bill just want to play sports with their friends and teammates, like so many of us did when we were young. In fact, some of the athletics I took part in when I was younger were not split up by gender at all. As a cisgender girl, I practiced and competed against other kids of my age or grade level in less conventional sports like archery and horseback riding, with no division by gender, and no one was ever harmed by it. We had fun while learning new skills, how to work in teams, how to gracefully handle defeat - all the things any young person does, of any gender, in any sport. I want all the youth of Wisconsin to have the same opportunity, without worrying that someone will be asking for their birth certificate or inspecting their genitals first.

As a final note, let me also express my disapproval at the time and taxpayer money being wasted on this bill. We have actual problems in the state of Wisconsin that our elected representatives could be addressing. Please, stop targeting kids and get back to work.

Thank you.

My name is Noah Reinkober, and I am a resident of Milwaukee. I've lived in Wisconsin for 28 years, my entire life, and I'm a queer person who loves my family, friends, and community members, especially the ones who are transgender.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I believe it is nothing more than writing bigotry and discrimination into our laws. We're living in a time where trans people are under attack in every aspect of their lives and the fact that this bill targets trans children, in particular, is reprehensible. I also question how this bill would even be enforced. If sports will be based around the physical sex of the participants, who will be the ones to determine this and how will they determine it? In my opinion, it creates a situation where the privacy of children could be grossly violated by sports officials, all in the name of excluding their trans peers.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Dana Dahhan, and I am a resident of Dane County. I've lived in Wisconsin for 9 years, and I hope that this state will remain as welcoming for transgender students and their families as it has been for me.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I believe that transgender and non-binary youth are due dignity equal to their cisgender peers and are entitled to participate in club athletic teams and sports which match their gender identity. Transgender and non-binary students have the right to play sports just like their fellow cisgender students and to restrict the abilities of transgender youth to participate fully in sports teams and clubs is a specific form of discrimination.

All kids should be free to play sports and receive all of the social, physical, and mental benefits from fully engaging with their peers and in pursuing athletic excellence. It is discriminatory to exclude and otherwise marginalize transgender youth from participating in sports at such critical developmental moments in their lives. I appreciate the support of those who stand in opposition of this bill.

My name is Ann Wingate, I am a constituent from Madison, WI, zip code 53713. I am writing today in opposition to AB100 that will exclude transgendered children from all K-12 school sports - whether interscholastic, intramural or clubs, in public, charter and private schools. This is discrimination!

As a recently retired psychotherapist (05/24) I can attest to the mental health importance for children to feel accepted and included in their school environment and in the community. Our country places a high value on sports. All children should have the opportunity to experience the sense of belonging and social connection that being a part of a sports team provides. All children should be able to enjoy experiencing positive physicality by engaging in sports and mastering new skills, both physical skills and the intra-personal skills that come from playing on a sports team. This includes male children, female children, and children who are transgendered. I can refer you to a National Geographic issue devoted to the study of children who are transgendered, published January 2017, for more information on the existence of transgendered children and their needs.

Committee on Education I implore you to not choose discrimination toward transgendered children in WI schools. Such discrimination would be unfair, unjust and harmful to these child and adolescent athletes.

Sincerely,
Ann Wingate

Regarding 2025 Assembly Bill 100

March 5, 2025

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Crystal and I am a concerned resident of Madison. I currently work as a software developer, but only a year ago, I was a student.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. I am opposed to this bill because fostering an inclusive athletic environment creates a much better experience for everyone. In high school and college, I played ultimate frisbee competitively—both on and against teams that included trans women and nonbinary people. I cannot say that their presence provided any significant competitive advantage or disadvantage, but I can say that for trans people, it is incredibly important to be able to participate in sports along with everyone else.

By participating in sports, youth can learn how to play on a team with people from different backgrounds. This bill will take that away, creating an environment of fear and divisiveness instead—a situation that is completely unsafe for trans youth. Additionally, the bill impacts not only trans people, but would eradicate the existence of co-ed, mixed gender, and open participation teams—many of which I played on and can speak highly to the importance of. This bill is incredibly unfair to trans youth and does not uphold the principles of sports, and I will not stand for it.

Study after study shows no evidence of biological advantage of a transgender kid over a cisgender kid enough that it would negatively impact the outcome of a sports game. These kids want to play a game with friends. They use a private stall to get dressed or they arrive at games & practices ready to play. There is no transgender kid that was offered a sports scholarship over a cisgender kid.

Could you focus on making sure our kids can go to school free from gun violence instead?

I don't believe politicians should interfere with the life, liberty, & pursuit of happiness, of transgender kids & their families. Stop harassing them. It's just poor legislation.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Mary, and I am a resident of Dane county. I've lived in Wisconsin for 2 years and I'm a cis woman, trans-ally that believes that all humans deserve equal rights. My trans friends are some of the most loving and caring individuals I've met in Wisconsin.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it is harmful to our youth as they navigate learning who they are. And it is disgraceful for adults and people in power to tell anyone who they are or should be. Why do we want to instill hate and fear and division in our youth vs. acceptance, love, and kindness?

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

Sincerely,

Mary

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Shauna, and I've been a resident in Madison, WI for 14 years. I've always worked in public service and as a public librarian I've partnered with several organizations which provide support to LGBTQ+ youth.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it would harm transgender youth, their peers, families, and educators. Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jenni, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for my whole life.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it is attempting to "fix" something that isn't a problem to begin with, and instead it will harm innocent kids.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to have fun. This bill is in complete opposition to those goals and instead creates a scenario in which people will be taught to discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets children is abhorrent, and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To the members of the Committee on Education,

My name is Elias Ayre from La Farge, WI 54639. I am writing to oppose Bill 100.

I participated in youth sports year round for my entire childhood. I learned to work with people of all different backgrounds, how to regulate my emotions when the stakes felt high, and how to really invest myself in a goal and group.

Banning sports for trans kids is not trivial. It would be taking away a part of life that many deeply need. Being a trans kid is hard enough. Depression, self-harm and suicide rates are much higher than their cis peers. Sports are an outlet they deserve to have.

This wide-sweeping ban does not take into consideration whether chromosomal sex gives an advantage in the particular sport.

Moreover, segregating trans kids does not help the non-trans kids. Making friends with people who may seem different at first is an important skill, especially in our increasingly divided society. To teach cisgendered children to fear trans children so young is a disservice to all of our youth.

Please support the social, emotional, and physical wellbeing of all Wisconsin children by opposing Bill 100.

Sincerely,

Elias Ayre

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Elizabeth Kuchinka and I reside in Washburn, WI 54891 and I am writing in opposition to AB100. My daughter is transgender attending public school. This bill would be detrimental to her and our family. Participation in sports is not just about competition and winning. Inclusion and community that kids experience is as if not more important to learning about life. Taking this away from hundreds of students is just cruel.

It is my feeling the sole purpose of bills such as this are to humiliate and ostracize marginalized groups who just want the same rights as others.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Heather Katz, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for six years and I earned a PhD from UW-Madison focused on Health Promotion and Health Equity.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because my research and teaching experience is focused on accessible physical activity for all students, and Wisconsin children deserve to reap the benefits of a physically active lifestyle. Lifelong physical activity often starts with sports in schools.

Sports should be a place where youth can learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another, but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community. Sincerely,

AB 100: ANTI-TRANS SPORTS BILL : K-12

My name is Claire Busse and I strongly oppose Wisconsin bill AB 100. This is a bill that would exclude transgender students from participating in sports teams consistent with their authentic gender identity.

Sports programs are generally considered to be part of the educational opportunities offered by schools. As such, sports programs are subject to civil rights laws. Excluding transgender students from participating, is unfair and discriminatory.

In addition, sports offer both physical and psychosocial benefits. This includes but is not limited to: reduced risk of depression, higher confidence and self-esteem, reduced risk of suicidal thoughts and tendencies, and improved life skills. Belonging to a community and feeling social connection is critical for young people. Let's let the kids play!

It is general knowledge that if people truly wanted K-12 sports to be "fair" and "safe", that height and weight limits would be implemented. We don't do this because it is general knowledge that sports is not about winning. Sports is not about being the tallest or the strongest or the best. It is, rather, more about having fun and making personal improvements over time. It is about learning to challenge yourself as well as learning to win with class, and lose with grace.

Please do not allow bill AB 100 to pass.

Let's let the kids play. Let's continue to teach kids to be part of something bigger than themselves. Let's continue to teach kids how to be supportive and kind. Let's continue to learn through sport and use it as a force for positive growth.

Thank you for your time,

Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Sincerely,

Shane Gurno, concerned Constituent and supporter of trans kids and people

Testimony for Assembly Bill 100

Attn: Sen. Cory Tomczyk (R-Mosinee), Rep. Scott Allen (R-Waukesha), Assembly Speaker Robin Vos (R-Rochester)

My name is Emma Botcher and I live in Menomonie, zip code 54751. I am a masters-degree holding helping professional and counselor working in my community for several years.

I strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100, which strips the ability of transgender children from participating in school-sponsored team sports in roles aligning with their gender identity. It seeks to assign physical sex-based destinations for sports, effectively seeming to eliminate co-educational teams. It specifically targets children who were born male from participating in "female-designated" sports according to arbitrary sex classification by a physician and that which is on a birth certificate (section 2, line b). This omits the reality of students who may be intersex whose physicians state as such and whose birth certificates reflect this state of sexual developmental reality. Similarly, it dismisses the reality of non-binary youth, defined as those who do not assign themselves to a dimorphic gender category such as "girl" or "boy".

It completely eliminates the possibility for transgender girls to participate in sports or be in the same locker rooms of "sex-designated" girls, which gives them an unfair chance at participating in the sport they wish. Those advocating for this bill to be passed may see this as a non-issue, as "they can play in the boys' teams", but this brings forth a number of concerns. The student is forced to risk harm to their mental, emotional, social, and physical wellbeing. A transgender girl forced to play on an all-boys team may not be harmed by her teammates directly, but her self-esteem and self-identity will struggle if forced into the incongruent environment. Boys on an opposing team may see her and decide to bring her harm on the playing field, on the sidelines, or on social media before, during, or after the game.

Transgender youth suffer when they do not have the positive peer relations that sports may bring, which can aggravate already-present mental health symptoms that are higher in these youths due to social and government pressure from their families and communities to adhere to gendered norms.

What if a child does not wish to disclose their sex-designation? Will school staff force them to undergo a sex-check at the locker room door and risk assaulting the child? Do you even know how many transgender children play sports? The number is most likely miniscule compared to the larger participating student body. Who cares about whether transgender students are playing sports? Do you have personal testimony or some weeping mother at your feet, begging you to not allow the fourth-place transgender girl who beat her own daughter in the rankings to continue competing for her own vanity prize?

Allow transgender children to play on the teams they wish. Wanting to restrict children from school sports by sex-designation accomplishes at minimum another hoop for frustrated parents to jump through as they sign up their children for sports and at worst harms and perhaps kills transgender youths.

To the members of the Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Katie Steen and I am a resident of Madison, WI 53704. I am opposed to AB100. I believe that all people deserve quality education and educational environments where they feel safe and valued. Many of my loved ones and children of my family and friends are transgender. I am also a health practitioner and I am committed to increasing the health and well-being for all people in Wisconsin.

This bill would not only affect students' ability to participate in physical activities that promote health, but would also communicate to them that they are not safe to be themselves at school. Research shows that policies like this dramatically increase suicidality in transgender youth. Transgender youth, like all youth, deserve fundamental human rights and access to healthy activities and safety in their schools.

For these reasons, I urge you to oppose this bill and commit to supporting health and well-being in our schools, as I know this is a fundamental shared value of the Committee on Education. Thank you for reading and considering my testimony.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Kristi Hill and I am a resident of Outagamie County, a mom to a great teenager, and a school counselor to our future generation. I've lived in WI for 47 years and am proud of our great state.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on assembly bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite I am opposed to this bill because I am greatly concerned about the mental health of our youth and the high suicide rates of students who don't feel their identity is supported. It hurts no one to allow youth to be who they believe they are. Unfortunately, data shows that when youth feel their identity is not supported, suicide rates increase. We cannot afford to lose one WI child.

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their own identity and instead gives that power to another; simply because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be able to tell anyone who they are. I teach the kids that they are the expert on themselves and I'm in no position to tell them how they should identify.

Best,
Kristi Hill

To the members of the Committee on Education, and Representatives Dittrich, Knodl, Allen, Armstrong, Behnke, Brooks, Callahan, Donovan, Duchow, Goeben, Green, Gundrum, Gustafson, B. I am writing today to voice my opposition to Assembly Bill 100, which seeks to ban transgender children and youth from participating in activities that have been so important to primary and secondary education, and a proven benefit to all children: school-sponsored sporting activities. The benefit to children who participate in organized team sports is great: they make friends, learn how to communicate and work toward a common goal, learn sportsmanship and (we hope) ethical practice regarding rules and – ultimately – civil behavior in a system. In other words, children learn tools that contribute to good citizenship when they participate in sports.

99.98% of high school athletes who participate in school sports never go on to professional competition. Most of them don't go to State or National competitions; most don't earn athletic scholarships. Quite frankly, most of them probably aren't even very good at the sport – though they are all, of course, the pride of their families and the light of their parents' and guardians' lives. Why in the world do so many kiddoes compete when they're not even very good? Well, the vast majority of these kids benefit from simply having been part of the team.

I have seen the way the children in my life have built confidence and gained friends, developed leadership skills and also just had FUN by participating in sports. I can't say any of them have been the fastest, biggest, or strongest kids their school teams. And I trust their coaches to keep an eye on the best position for each kid based on their size and skill; they don't put any kid in dangerous situations.

The vanishingly small number of trans kids should not be denied that benefit, particularly when that population also suffers from disproportionate rates of suicide and self harm (see Scientific American, "Trans Girls Belong on Sports Teams"). The State of Wisconsin should not waste money and time to address an issue that would prevent a small number of students from competing in high school sports – and, in the process, further endanger their lives.

I urge the Legislature to address more important issues, and stop endangering the lives of trans people by stoking the fires of hatred and exclusion with legislation like this.

My name is Madsen Zimbric and I am a resident of Rib Mountain (54401), where I was born and raised, and to which I returned after receiving my tertiary education and becoming a biologist at the University of Michigan, where I research the microbial communities that live in the lungs of children with genetic lung diseases remotely.

I am writing in opposition to AB 100, which in an apparent effort to bar at most a handful of children from participating in athletics, denies all Wisconsin youth the opportunity to participate in co-educational sports.

While I was not the most athletic child, my parents knew the value of physical activity and insisted that I participate in sports. I learned the value of hard work and effort through discomfort through my experiences on my co-ed middle school cross country team. Like many less popular sports, there were only a handful of students of each sex willing to spend our time after school running hill sprints.

If this bill passes and sports are required to be single sex, it is inevitable that schools will not be able to afford to field separate teams for many sports that they currently run co-educationally, both financially and in terms of coaching staff. I doubt John Muir Middle School would have considered a team of 2 female cross country runners worth the resources. Girls' teams are more likely to be on the chopping block for limited participation.

To exclude a tiny number of children from sports (are there any?), this bill would deny thousands of girls the same opportunities for growth, learning, and healthy recreation that I had.

The Wausau area was a good place to grow up, in part because of the ample athletic opportunities I had as a girl. Please protect girls' sports and withdraw AB 100.

Thank you,
Madsen Zimbric

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Kaitlyn Moorhead, and I am a resident of the City of Fitchburg. I've lived in Wisconsin for 3 years and I have peers and family members being harmed by the anti-trans legislation that is spreading across the country.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I have participated in both women's and intramural sports throughout my childhood and adult life, and I have seen that they are a place to build community and foster relationships among peers. To prevent trans youth from building these communities in their desired teams is to abandon them to bullying, harassment, and assault by telling them they do not belong in the world of sports – and it would deprive cisgender youth a chance to build connections with new people. Much of the reasoning for this bill revolves around a fear of cis men participating in women's sports and harming women in the process. As a woman athlete, I can assure you that I have played with countless trans athletes over the years and never once felt like I was the one who needed defending. More often, it was my trans peers who faced harassment and assault for merely existing on my team.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I write in opposition to AB 100 which will be taken up by the committee on Thursday, March 6, 2025.

This bill has been developed by a group of anti-equality legislators who seek to violate the rights of trans youth and their families.

Medical research has overwhelmingly shown that biological gender does not accurately represent the gender identity of all human beings. Indeed, sexuality is much more an expression of identity that runs across a spectrum. Nature is beautiful and complex, and we should respect its diversity instead of punishing members of society for their gender expression.

As a Christian, I have studied the Bible and have established that it has the same teaching for all sexual identities and genders: treat one another with dignity, equality, and respect as each is created in God's image--love on another.

As a retired educator and gay man, I know the detrimental effects that denying people their rights can have on psychological and social development. Trans youth should be guaranteed the opportunity to realize their gender expression and participate in sports according to their gender identity. I played sports in high school. It was an important part of my social, psychological, and physical development. Joining a team helped me to feel like I belonged. Imagine yourself as a trans youth. Your identity is questioned at every turn. Playing sports is one way that you can gain a sense of belonging and do something bigger than yourself. You are part of a team. And now members of the state Legislature have drafted a bill to take away your freedom and further isolate you in your school setting. How would you feel?

I encourage the members of the Assembly Education Committee to side with trans youth and their families and vote against AB 100 and not let it get out of committee.

Thank you for your time!

To the members of the Assembly Education Committee:

I'm writing to ask you to vote against AB100. Like many of these anti-child bills proposed in states around the nation, AB100 proposes to use the full force of the state to hurt and discriminate against an extremely tiny minority. Discrimination against vulnerable children should not be the goal of any legislation.

Given that there are probably fewer than a handful of Wisconsin children against whom this law would be used, this is really a "solution" in search of a "problem." Trans children are not a problem.

As we see in classrooms, Girl Scout troops, clubs, church youth groups, and sports teams around the state, most Wisconsinites hold deep beliefs in fairness and equal opportunity. These school and community spaces have found ways to welcome trans children into full participation and membership. The state Assembly should be supporting these efforts to include all children, rather than writing laws to enforce discrimination.

Forward in Wisconsin values,

Jennifer Morales

To the members of the Committee on Education,

I am writing in regards to AB 100 in vehement opposition. The United States is facing a mental health epidemic and our transgender community members have always lead the polls when it comes to individuals prone to suicide and self harm. Even if this is not an experience that personally affects you or your loved ones, this is an experience that effects an estimate 1-2 million American adults (not to mention youth).

There is nothing inherently moral, or immoral, about gender dysphoria nor gender expression and the efforts that this county has made to tamp down and other some of our most persecuted minorities, purely out of unfounded fear, is disappointing; it will come back to haunt you if you choose to be on the wrong side of history. These are not terrorists that need to be squashed, these are my (our) dearest friends and family.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I trust that you will make decisions that prioritize the health and rights of transgender and gender-diverse youth.

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Amelia Hansen, and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 26 years and I am a biology graduate student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. I am testifying to oppose Assembly Bill 100.

Based on actions that other states have taken to take away trans people's rights, we know that this bill only serves as a stepping stone for banning trans healthcare altogether, which is in direct opposition to scientific literature and the most recent WPATH standards of care.

This bill is not based on science and sense, but fear and prejudice. Numerous peer reviewed studies have shown the life-saving effects of trans healthcare, and the minimal to non-existent advantages of trans athletes in competition with their cis peers. All this bill will do is isolate and vilify a vulnerable community.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Thank you for reading my testimony, and please oppose Assembly Bill 100.

To the members of the Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Anna Spiekerman. I am a resident of Monona, Wisconsin (zip code 53716) and I am submitting this written testimony in opposition of AB100.

I am a lifelong resident of Dane County. I attended public schools in the Madison Metropolitan School District and played varsity girls tennis all four years of my attendance at Madison East High School. I believe in the power that high school sports have to bring people together, overcoming their differences and working toward a shared goal. Playing tennis with teammates who each brought their own lived experiences and viewpoints made our team stronger as a whole. This bill is not written in that spirit of athletic comradery.

I encourage you to focus your time and energy creating legislation that builds connections and fosters learning within school communities rather than drafting exclusionary legislation.

Thank you,
Anna Spiekerman

Hello,

My name is Megan Spielbauer Sandate, and I am a queer Madison resident. I am testifying to state my opposition to AB100 and make clear why I think that moving this legislation forward will be harmful to all students but particularly trans and nonbinary students.

School is meant to be a safe place for students, and this bill directly contradicts this goal. Students should be able to be their most authentic selves at school. This bill would negatively impact queer students, particularly trans and non-binary students. Students should be able to determine what gender means to them and what sports team they play on.

TERFs, or Trans-Exclusionary Radical Feminists' ' have pushed a terrible narrative about trans femme people, making them out to be predators and somehow "stealing" from cis women when they participate in "femme-designated" activities. This bill with its specific provision about prohibiting "male" students from participating in "female" or "women's" sports is a perfect example of how trans femmes are being targeted in anti-trans legislation and popular media. Additionally, designating activities, including various sports, as "women's sports" is based on misconceptions around gender and an over-commitment to outdated gender roles. Second, numerous studies have shown that trans athletes have minimal to non-existent advantages to their cis peers, so the idea that trans athletes will dominate all sports because they are trans is unfounded.

This is why I encourage you to strike down this bill. This bill is not rooted in science but fear and hatred. Politicians and others are scapegoating and vilifying the trans community in order to push an agenda of "family values" or morality. There is nothing moral about forcing people to claim a gendered identity that is not their own. Students should be able to play sports and participate in their schools in a fashion that is honest to who they are.

Thank you,
Megan Spielbauer Sandate

To the members of the Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Anna Spiekerman. I am a resident of Monona, Wisconsin (zip code 53716) and I am submitting this written testimony in opposition of AB100.

I am a lifelong resident of Dane County. I attended public schools in the Madison Metropolitan School District and played varsity girls tennis all four years of my attendance at Madison East High School. I believe in the power that high school sports have to bring people together, overcoming their differences and working toward a shared goal. Playing tennis with teammates who each brought their own lived experiences and viewpoints made our team stronger as a whole. This bill is not written in that spirit of athletic comradery.

I encourage you to focus your time and energy creating legislation that builds connections and fosters learning within school communities rather than drafting exclusionary legislation.

Thank you,

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education

March 5th, 2025

My name is Amelia Hansen, and I am a resident of Madison, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for 26 years and I am a biology graduate student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. I am testifying to oppose Assembly Bill 100.

Based on actions that other states have taken to take away trans people's rights, we know that this bill only serves as a stepping stone for banning trans healthcare altogether, which is in direct opposition to scientific literature and the most recent WPATH standards of care.

This bill is not based on science and sense, but fear and prejudice. Numerous peer reviewed studies have shown the life-saving effects of trans healthcare, and the minimal to non-existent advantages of trans athletes in competition with their cis peers. All this bill will do is isolate and vilify a vulnerable community.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Thank you for reading my testimony, and please oppose Assembly Bill 100.

Sincerely,

Amelia Hansen

To the members of the Committee on Education,

I am writing in regards to AB 100 in vehement opposition. The United States is facing a mental health epidemic and our transgender community members have always lead the polls when it comes to individuals prone to suicide and self harm. Even if this is not an experience that personally affects you or your loved ones, this is an experience that effects an estimate 1-2 million American adults (not to mention youth).

There is nothing inherently moral, or immoral, about gender dysphoria nor gender expression and the efforts that this county has made to tamp down and other some of our most persecuted minorities, purely out of unfounded fear, is disappointing; it will come back to haunt you if you choose to be on the wrong side of history. These are not terrorists that need to be squashed, these are my (our) dearest friends and family.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I trust that you will make decisions that prioritize the health and rights of transgender and gender-diverse youth.

My name is Rachel Niesen, and I am a resident of Dane County. I've lived in Wisconsin for 31 years and I am a licensed psychotherapist who has been working in Madison with adults, youth and families for 6 years. I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it would be detrimental to the well-being of Wisconsinites of any and all genders. Being a part of a sports team is a unique and important space for developing emotional and relational skills and for having important developmental experiences such as the experience of belonging to a group or something bigger than oneself. Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. Written Testimony: AB 100

My name is Catherine Yu – I am a sister, a daughter, a member of the LGBTQIA+ community, and a concerned Madison resident. I am testifying about how Assembly Bill 100 is a direct attack on our community and our students.

As someone who used to work in the Madison Metropolitan School District (working with students from kindergarten to 12th grade), I've seen firsthand how important advocacy for student autonomy and safety is. I've directly seen how my choice to affirm a student's gender identity helped that student feel safer in my classroom and more confident in themselves.

AB 100 directly infringes on this feeling of safety and belonging for our students. Trans youth are already at greater risk and a bill like this directly harms them even further by defining them by their assigned sex at birth (furthering their dysmorphia and encouraging transphobia in the community) and prohibiting trans athletes from participating in sports designated for their gender identity. It also further puts trans students in harm by preventing them from using the locker room/restroom aligned with their gender identity (this could lead to increased bullying, increased body dysmorphia for the student, etc). Furthermore, if this bill is passed, I am extremely concerned about how this would be implemented (especially around the use of locker rooms/restrooms). This would be an extreme violation of student privacy and will lead to problematic and harmful situations. There have been numerous instances where people were accused of being transgender but were revealed to be cisgender. You cannot presume someone's assigned sex at birth nor can you assume someone's gender identity as there is no one way to look like a girl/woman or boy/man.

If you truly care about our students and our community, you will vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. If you truly want to create a safe school community where ALL students can thrive and grow in confidence, you don't take away their autonomy and freedom – you support their individuality as a human being and provide protections for the marginalized members of our community. A safe school does not police a student's use of a locker room/restroom that aligns with their gender identity as a safe school would recognize the increased risks to bullying, depression, and suicide in this level of policing.

Thank you for reading my testimony, your consideration on these matters is very much appreciated.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Noah Reinkober, and I am a resident of Milwaukee. I've lived in Wisconsin for 28 years, my entire life, and I'm a queer person who loves my family, friends, and community members, especially the ones who are transgender.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because I believe it is nothing more than writing bigotry and discrimination into our laws. We're living in a time where trans people are under attack in every aspect of their lives and the fact that this bill targets trans children, in particular, is reprehensible. I also question how this bill would even be enforced. If sports will be based around the physical sex of the participants, who will be the ones to determine this and how will they determine it? In my opinion, it creates a situation where the privacy of children could be grossly violated by sports officials, all in the name of excluding their trans peers.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Kelsey Foster (she/her). I am a lifelong Wisconsin resident, and I write today in opposition to Assembly Bill 100. First let me state my unequivocal support of transgender people across Wisconsin, especially the youth, who are amongst the most vulnerable people in our communities. The kids being targeted by this needlessly divisive bill just want to play sports with their friends and teammates, like so many of us did when we were young. In fact, some of the athletics I took part in when I was younger were not split up by gender at all. As a cisgender girl, I practiced and competed against other kids of my age or grade level in less conventional sports like archery and horseback riding, with no division by gender, and no one was ever harmed by it. We had fun while learning new skills, how to work in teams, how to gracefully handle defeat - all the things any young person does, of any gender, in any sport. I want all the youth of Wisconsin to have the same opportunity, without worrying that someone will be asking for their birth certificate or inspecting their genitals first.

As a final note, let me also express my disapproval at the time and taxpayer money being wasted on this bill. We have actual problems in the state of Wisconsin that our elected representatives could be addressing. Please, stop targeting kids and get back to work.

Thank you.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Emily Dufner, and I am a resident of Oregon, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin for over 33 years, I received my degree in Biomolecular Engineering from the Milwaukee School of Engineering and I have worked both in the public and private sectors, most recently in STEM with a focus on developing treatments for challenging diseases and conditions.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill "AB100". As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it does not focus on improving the learning or experience provided to youth in sports, but rather seeks to exclude and discriminate against a minority group. According to a 2022 poll by the Williams Institute School of Law, approx. 1.4% of US youth ages 13-17 identified as trans, and in Wisconsin approx. 1.75% of youth ages 13-17 identified as trans; statistically these numbers are then even smaller for the percentages of youth involved in sports.

Traditionally, rules regarding who is eligible to participate in youth sports have been set by the local sports association – which had the ability to make an individualized determination specific to the student, their age group, and demands of the sport – but in the last five years, state legislatures have enacted wholesale bans instead. In addition to transgender youth being excluded, cisgender (non-transgender) girls in states with these bans have been accused of violating the bans because other players or their parents believed they were too talented, too strong, or too tall to be girls - and the harassment they have faced has in some cases made it impossible to continue to play. In short, opening the door to this type of discrimination in youth sports will likely have more widespread consequences, and in the end it is at the expense of young athletes.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Marta Swanson, and I am a resident of the City of Appleton. I've lived in Wisconsin for my entire life, 20 years. I grew up in Wisconsin elementary, middle, and high schools and now attend UW-Madison as a junior studying biochemistry and dance studies. Wisconsin as I know it, values inclusion and community, coming together to support and love those around us.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100. As a proud Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it unjustly excludes and discriminates against transgender children. As someone who participated in sports throughout my childhood and teenage years, I know firsthand how valuable these experiences are. Being on a team helped me build friendships, develop confidence, and grow as a person. In high school, I joined my school's diving team with little experience. It helped to push me out of my comfort zone, redefine what I thought my capabilities were, and even feel empowered. I wasn't the best athlete but being a part of that team and challenging myself physically and mentally in this new sport was invaluable to my development as a 14-year-old trying to navigate growing up. I cannot imagine what it would have felt like to have that experience stripped away from me simply because of who I am, because my identity does not abide by what some people view as acceptable. No child should be denied the chance to participate, grow, and belong because of who they are.

Sports should teach teamwork, resilience, and respect—not exclusion and discrimination. This bill sends the harmful message that transgender youth do not belong, creating an environment of fear rather than acceptance. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB100 (transgender athlete ban) and AB103 (preferred name/pronoun ban).

I oppose these two bills as the proud parent of a transgender 14 year old girl who thrives socially as a K-12 climber in our local community and would be deeply bereft without such opportunities. I am a Madison resident, have lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and intend for my family to continue to live here for many more years to come.

If passed, these bills will do enormous harm to our youngest and most vulnerable constituents. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

In my view, it is well beyond the role of the state to dictate this level of rigidity over policy for children so young.

My name is Jamie Blessing. I am a resident of Madison, WI and have lived in the state for 15 years. I am testifying with regard to AB 100, and vehemently urge you to vote against this discriminatory legislation.

Throughout my time in middle and high school, team sports were a huge part of my life. They gave me an outlet to focus my energy and fostered constructive relationships. All students deserve access to these types of experiences.

Sports should be an avenue for youth to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and acceptance. This bill would create a scenario where people are taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers.

In the international arena, we have already seen that this type of transphobic policy subjects trans- and cisgender women and girls to invasive questions, exams and procedures. We have also seen that women of color bear the brunt of this scrutiny. This bill will cause harm to many students in addition to the transgender youth it specifically targets.

The way this bill aims to codify discrimination is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community. Thank you for taking the time to ready my testimony and acting with consideration for the well-being of our state's students.

To Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Grayce Payne and I'm a concerned Madison resident. As a Wisconsinite and a proud member of the LGBTQ+ community, I oppose Assembly Bill 100 because I know how important participation in school sports is to developing a strong sense of community, belonging, and respect and to prevent trans youth from having that same access to community, belonging, and respect is abhorrent.

The passage of this bill creates a scenario in which children will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers, which will spur further alienation for and incite violence against an already isolated and marginalized community. Trans children deserve to play on sports teams that align with their identity and to deny them that is to deny them a safe environment to thrive and grow. I want trans youth to find the same joy in playing youth sports as I did growing up and passing this egregious bill will actively prevent trans children from experiencing the joy and camaraderie that they so rightfully deserve.

I hope you will join me in opposing this bill and putting a stop to the continued proliferation of anti-trans rhetoric by voting "No" on Assembly Bill 100.

Sincerely,

RE: Assembly Bill 100

Dear Assembly Education Committee:

I am writing in opposition to Assembly Bill 100. I grew up in Wisconsin. I graduated from Platteville High School and the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health. I am a proud Wisconsinite, physician and parent of a transgender child.

The definition of a person's sex as defined in this bill is limiting and does not include people who are intersex (born with both male and female genitalia) or transgender individuals who have transitioned with hormones or surgery and are determined by their physician as being of a sex different than listed on their birth certificate. Some states do not allow changing of sex on a birth certificate. This bill excludes a very small portion of students in our school system who would benefit from participation in sports and promotes transphobia.

What is the value of team sports in our schools? How does this bill contribute to learning teamwork, good sportsmanship, discipline, practice, acceptance and working together for a common goal if it excludes students who don't fit your definition of sex.

My child was on the boys soccer team as a Freshman and Sophomore in high school, but was afraid of backlash so did not join the girls soccer team. It was a big loss and very sad to see. Why put students through this pain? There is harm in excluding students. What is the harm in including these students? Why is there such a fuss over an incredibly small percentage of student athletes? What happened to the adage, "It doesn't matter if you win or lose, it is how you play the game." This bill puts the perceived notion of winning ahead of good sportsmanship.

This bill may also put female athletes in harm's way if their sex is questioned. This has happened in Utah when a complaint was filed against a winning female athlete by 2nd and 3rd place finishers prompting an investigation that determined the athlete was indeed female. This caused severe emotional distress to the athlete. I do not want to see our female athletes being investigated if they do not look feminine enough.

This bill promotes fear, hatred and bullying of transgender students and female students who do well but don't look feminine enough.

The WIAA has already reversed its policy for transgender athletes. This bill is unnecessary and potentially harmful.

Please do not move this bill forward. Instead please find ways to encourage good sportsmanship in our schools so all can play in the game..

Thank you,

Lynn R Verger, MD

Dear Committee,

I am writing testimony regarding AB 100 as a Board Member of the LGBT Center of SE WI. This bill will irreparably harm transgender youth I am tasked with protecting and uplifting. This bill is nothing more than an attempt to exclude, humiliate, and erase transgender students from school sports and spaces where they should feel safe and included. It sends a cruel and dangerous message: that trans youth don't belong, that their identity is up for debate, and that their participation in school activities comes with extra hurdles and scrutiny that no other student has to face.

Trans kids join sports teams for the same reasons as everyone else—to build friendships, challenge themselves, and be part of something bigger. But instead of supporting all students, this bill forces trans youth to the sidelines. Worse, it puts every student at risk. It opens the door for invasive, humiliating gender policing, where any athlete—no matter their gender—could be questioned about their body, forced to prove their identity, or even subjected to degrading physical examinations just to play the sports they love.

This isn't about fairness. If it were, lawmakers would be focused on real issues in youth sports, like funding, coaching support, and access to opportunities for all athletes. Instead, they're targeting a small, vulnerable group of kids for political gain.

Let's be clear: No child should have to defend their identity just to play a game. No student should be singled out, humiliated, or excluded because of who they are.

We must stand up against this bill and every other attack on trans youth. Trans kids deserve the same opportunities as their peers—to play, to compete, and to be part of a team. Every child deserves to feel like they belong.

it is a simple act to see a child for who they are, and many agree that it takes a brave child to insist on being seen for their truest selves even when it can cost them so much. while I do not refute their bravery, I also know that often these children do not themselves believe they are brave - they simply have no other choice. to not be who they are openly and fully would cost them even more - their sense of self, their hope for a future, their feelings of safety and bodily autonomy, their self-determination, their agency, I could go on for pages. across the country children are being denied the right to access medical treatments that would affirm their existence and alleviate much personal suffering. so why also take away the small, every day ways they can simply be seen and uplifted until they reach an age when they have those medical choices available to them? why refuse to use their pronouns, their new name, why refuse them to use a toilet, why turn them away from the sports that bring many enrichments into an athlete's life? (I mean, why are any sports, but especially childrens', even separated by sex anyway - but I digress)

why take that away from any child, trans or not? why risk wisconsin families losing their children to depression, suicide, or other such atrocities that can happen to children who are repeatedly put into these positions? trans children deserve a future, and they also deserve a present.

thank you

Written Testimony: AB100 (Designating athletic sports and teams based on the sex of the participants)

Members of the Education Committee:

Thank you for accepting my written testimony in lieu of personal attendance. I am writing in favor of the advancement of AB100 through committee.

The promise of Title IX, signed into federal law in 1972, is the protection of women's and girls' rights to unfettered access to equal opportunities in education and in sports. Our nation has intrinsically understood that the definition of "woman" and "girl" was constant and unchangeable – inherently female in every way imaginable, and one of only two sexes in all of creation (the other, obviously, being male). For decades, as with for the entirety of human existence (for God created mankind as "male" and "female"), our nation has demonstrated clear understanding of basic truth and observable biological fact. However, truth, fact, and common sense have come under attack on this topic, culminating in the Biden administration's horrendous Title IX Final Rule taking effect in August, 2024 that obliterated the lines of male and female to institute radical gender ideology into our laws.

While we now have remedies in progress at the federal level, we need to establish these protections through legislation at the state level. We cannot wait for the federal gears to finish grinding to protect the girls and women of our state. I'm thankful that Representative Dittrich and the rest of this bill's co-sponsors are acting swiftly to secure the rights and protections of our girls.

We don't need boys or men showering with girls in our public schools, as we've seen in Sun Prairie. We don't need to risk the safety of our girls on the diamond, the court, or the field of play. We should not restrict scholarships or recognition opportunities for our girls and young women in deference to a boy or young man who is confused, or possibly delusional, or simply wants to get cheap wins based on general physical advantages. Simply put, this wrong needs to be made right as quickly as possible for the sake of our state's sanity.

The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletics Association has clearly demonstrated that they're not serious about changing their policies on this front. It's time for the Assembly, the Senate, and Governor Evers to demonstrate the courage and common sense to clarify this through legislation so we never descend into this pit again. Thank you for advancing this bill; in doing so, you are protecting our girls and their access to equal opportunities in their sports and private spaces.

Please pass AB100 through committee as soon as possible. Thank you!

Women's Declaration International

Testimony of Kerri Bruss
Before the Assembly Committee on Education
Wisconsin Assembly Bill 100
March 5, 2025

NEITHER SUPPORT NOR OPPOSE

Thank you for the opportunity to provide written testimony with respect to AB 100. My name is Kerri Bruss. I reside in Waukesha County, Wisconsin. Women's Declaration International (WDI) is a global, nonpartisan group of volunteer women dedicated to protecting women's sex-based rights. Women's Declaration International USA, Inc. (WDI USA) is its U.S. chapter. WDI is based on the Declaration on Women's Sex-Based Rights, which has 39,000 signatures globally. Our interest in this bill is based on Article 7 of the Declaration, "Reaffirming women's rights to the same opportunities as men to participate actively in sports and physical education," an Article that is consistent with Article 10 (g) of the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), as well as with the Title IX Education Amendments of 1972.

In recent years, there has been an incursion of men and boys into women's and girls' athletic competitions on the basis of so-called "gender identity," a linguistic mechanism by which men and boys claim the identity of women and girls. This claim has no basis in observable material reality, and has resulted in such horrifying absurdities as a man repeatedly punching a woman in her face at the 2024 Olympics.

The provision of single-sex sports is necessary if women and girls are to have opportunities that are on a par with those of men and boys. As Eric Vilain, a professor of human genetics at UCLA and consultant to the IOC medical commission has noted, "We separate men and women into categories because we want women to be able to win some competitions. There is a 10% to 12% difference between male and female athletic performance." Significant differences in the average bone density, heart size, lung volume, hemoglobin levels, and muscle development of men and women, among other physical differences, result in men being able to generate higher speed and power during physical activity. Even after two years of testosterone suppression, males retain physical advantage over females, especially when it comes to speed.

If sex segregation in sports continues to be eroded, more and more women and girls will lose their spots on teams and podiums to males. This is in direct opposition to Title IX, as well as common sense and the principles of fairness in athletic competitions. It is fairness – a level playing field – that must prevail over arguments about the inclusion of males as females, if women's and girls' sports are to exist as legitimate competitions.

Unfortunately, AB 100 provides that sex "means the sex determined at birth by a physician and reflected on the birth certificate." Given that birth certificates can be changed after birth, and that some states allow an X to designate sex instead of M or F, AB 100's proof of sex provision is insufficient to exclude males from female sports. If it were sufficient in this respect, WDI USA would support the bill. I urge you to amend it accordingly.

Subject: FW: Please reject AB 100 and AB 103

Dear Representative Kitchens,

My name is Kristy Bark, I am a Wisconsin constituent living here in Madison, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103, currently proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and AB 103 are clearly designed to act as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US, and they do nothing but alienate transgender kids and make life less safe for them.

As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against both AB 100 and AB 103. As a Christian, I am appalled that we would try to use the power of the Legislature to be cruel to a small, minority population. A 2024 study (linked below) showed that anti-transgender laws cause up to 72% increase in suicide attempts among transgender and nonbinary youth. Passing anti-trans legislation is not pro-life.

I am not at all concerned about trans athletes playing sports. I am VERY concerned about the health and safety of trans kids - I want them here in the world, I want them to feel seen and included (just as I want my own kids to feel seen and included).

Please reject these cruel and unnecessary bills.

Sincerely,
Kristy Bark

Representative Kitchens,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 47 years, have served our community as a healthcare worker, foster parent and community volunteer, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all students, have the right to a supportive, caring, equal education free from harassment and discrimination.

Targeting children—who are just learning who they are—is unethical and teaches all children that their community in Wisconsin does not support its children for who they are. Trans and non-binary youth have a very high suicide rate (Four-times increased risk compared to cisgendered youth) —and trans youth of color are even more at risk (upwards of 33% increased risk). We need to do all we can to help all children survive their childhood and thrive—and limiting them from sports and using the correct names/pronouns is only going to hurt them. Using the correct names/pronouns and allowing them to participate in sports that align with their gender identity does not harm anyone —and is life-saving for trans and non-binary youth. It is time to stand up and oppose these harmful bills. Please do the right things and save lives!

Dear Representative Kitchens,

My name is Laura Riley, and I am a lifelong Wisconsin resident living in Madison. With a Master's in Higher Education, I am deeply committed to supporting all students.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

AB100 fosters exclusion rather than teamwork. Sports should teach young people cooperation and acceptance, not fear and discrimination against their trans peers.

AB103 disregards a fundamental right: the ability to be called by the name one chooses. Every person deserves that dignity—just as you and I expect to be addressed by our chosen names and titles.

I urge you to recognize the humanness of every person and oppose these harmful bills.

Dear Representative Stroud Education Committee Member Chair Representative Kitchens:

I am a constituent of Assembly Representative Stroud. My address: Dana Churness, 86495 Lenawee Rd, Herbster, WI 54844.

I am writing to register my strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. As you know, these bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender. They eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with.

This amounts to no less than State sanctioned discrimination. As the parent of a gender diverse child, who will be impacted directly by the trans athlete bill, I can speak personally to the harm that these bills cause. (Even by merely being introduced and considered.)

1 in 3 trans kids will attempt suicide by the age of 18. Bills such as these will create an even more hostile environment for our children to have to learn in. This is absolutely unacceptable. The attack on trans youth, initiated by unconstitutional Executive Orders and enforced by bills such as these amounts to ruthless, heartless bullying behavior by grown adults who should know better.

We are not asking you to believe in something that you don't. We are asking that you kill these bills which will actively harm (physically and mentally) our children.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Dana Churness

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is David Tupper and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 3 years and been a proud scientist at numerous laboratories. Throughout my time here I have met so many wonderful people from all different backgrounds.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it strives to sow division over such a minority of the population. I have met numerous trans youth in my times here volunteering in the theater community. They deserve to feel included rather than targeted.

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

Dear Representative Kitchens:

My name is Brian Wallace, and I reside near Oshkosh, WI. I was unable to attend today's hearing in Madison on Assembly Bill 100, but I write in full support of this bill. I am an Associate Professor in Kinesiology at a UW System university, with B.S. and M.S. degrees in Exercise Science, and a Ph.D. in Biomechanics (and another M.S. in Engineering). I have authored or co-authored approximately three dozen peer-reviewed scientific studies in Exercise Science and related areas. I was born and raised in Wisconsin, and competed in interscholastic athletics as a youth. Due to my education and training, I may offer a unique perspective.

Scientists in my general academic field of study, including myself, investigate sports and exercise performance and injury risk and incidence from participating in sport and exercise. Due to the inherent physical, biochemical, and biomechanical differences between boys/men and women/girls, many studies have gender* as the "controlled" variable (otherwise known as an independent variable). For example, I was the principal investigator on a study that reported the biomechanical differences (e.g., forces and motions) of how young men and young women perform differently doing a cutting task similar to a short-stop stopping after retrieving a ground ball. Unsurprisingly, I found that women moved in a way that made them more susceptible for knee injury. Many studies have reported similar findings between boys and girls and men and women with different types of athletic movements. One particular study reported that hip strength (a predictor of knee injury) is greater in boys, and as boys and girls proceeded through puberty these strength differences related to body weight increase. In practice, this means that as boys physically mature they gain strength accordingly which helps them control their body better during sport, while this similar proportional strength increase does not occur in girls.

By now you are likely aware of the many studies that have reported basic physiological differences between boys/men and girls/women, and these do not mitigate with hormone replacement. Bone density, strength, body composition and anthropometrics, etc. In every instance, on the aggregate, boys/men have physical traits that are advantageous for sport. Some want to pretend these differences don't exist, or are irrelevant. The insanity of this position reveals itself with every accumulating instance of girls being denied opportunity and accomplishment, or even suffering injury by a male. Just within the past week a male athlete won the California state triple jump championship by 8 feet, which is about 15% higher than the WIAA girls state record!

The WIAA recently adopted a policy that prohibits males from competing in girls' sports. However, it allows males to compete against girls in practice, possibly taking up a roster spot (many sports have limited rosters due to jersey availability or other factors) and denying a female athlete participation opportunities in practice. Injury risk is also a possibility. In fall 2023 WLUK Fox 11 in Green Bay did a story on a trans-identified volleyball player at a Green Bay public school. When interviewed for the story, the parents of female players stated that their girls came home with injuries inflicted upon them in practice by the male unlike anything they had ever experienced competing against other girls. The WIAA policy also allows males to “receive all other benefits applicable to student-athletes who are otherwise eligible for practice.” On its face, this policy allows males to share locker rooms, showers, and hotel rooms with girls, and the girls affected have no say in the matter. Ignoring that this may violate current Federal directives, it is just plain wrong.

After tripping over themselves to adopt policies that aligned with President Biden’s 2024 Title IX Rule, school districts in Wisconsin have been slow to respond to President Trump’s Executive Orders and existing directives from the Department of Education. This law is essential to force state school districts and the WIAA to provide girls with all of the opportunities that Title IX requires be provided.

Sincerely,

Brian Wallace, Ph.D.

* Note: Until recently, “gender” was used synonymously with “sex” in scientific papers in my field of study, but due to woke virtue signaling some journals now require authors to use “gender” and “sex” according to their rigid definitions.

To the members of the Senate Committee:

I am writing to express my concern and opposition to bills AB100 and AB103. I have family members who have been and are experiencing first hand what it's like to live in a country where their teenage child is being persecuted and condemned. I've witnessed so many mean spirited politicians over the past few months who seem to revel in degrading these young people publicly. We must be better human beings than this.

Please do not allow these bills to pass. This is another example of an issue that needs to be decided at the local level.

Dear Chair Kitchens,

Thank you for your service to our great state, and for the opportunity to submit thoughts regarding AB 103, and AB 100.

Speaking from the experience of one school board member to a former, I would ask that you focus on legislating real change that can help the districts in your area and around the state. I know you care about our kids.

Given the current state of affairs both in the state and at the federal level regarding education and education funding, I respectfully request that you and your committee work to address current issues that can make the lives of all Wisconsin students better; rather than on bills that are from a national mandate, override the local control (that you appreciated as a board member), or have already been addressed through collegiate or state organizations like NCAA or WIAA.

For example, the disparity in special education funding and reimbursement is the single most important issue for districts around the state. We also have child care, early childhood education, and literacy challenges in all counties of Wisconsin. Consideration of sum sufficient special education funding, fully funding early childhood education (4K), public-private partnerships, wrap-around care, and teacher training would go much farther in helping all Wisconsin families.

Additionally, how many students in Sturgeon Bay are receiving free and reduced price lunch or the community eligibility provision? How many students benefit from Title dollars? How would changes to Medicaid impact your students and constituents? How many of your students benefit from Pell grants, UW schools, or the technical college? These are all at risk at the federal level. What are you and your committee working on for these contingencies, are you considering what would happen if these programs all come back to the state?

There are some simple things that could be done by your committee legislatively that could help all school districts. For example, changing the start date for public schools to be commensurate with private schools, making the payment structure for school districts to have more state funding at the beginning of the budget cycle rather than at the end (to avoid short-term borrowing), and revising the seat time requirement so districts can innovate in delivery of career and technical education. These are all low hanging legislative fruit that will benefit all.

I respectfully ask you to focus on the many issues that can make real, positive change for kids and families in the communities you serve.

Sincerely,

Lauri Asbury

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education and Committee on Colleges and Universities:

I am writing to strongly oppose AB 100 and 102. I am very concerned about the fair and nondiscriminatory treatment of transgender people in our schools and universities. As an educator and parent, I demand that all Wisconsin youth be respected and cherished for their full selves. Discriminatory efforts like these make the journeys of young people more difficult than they need to be.

Thank you,
Kelly Walker

As a lifelong citizen and taxpayer of the state of Wisconsin, I want to express my strong opposition to assembly bills 100 and 103. Why would our state legislate an attack on our most vulnerable children?

I have friends who celebrated when their transgender child reached adulthood healthy and reasonably happy without self harm or any of the other disasters that threaten children just trying to become their true selves.

Even with supportive parents, these children are assaulted daily from all sides and many don't make it. The statistics I found said 82 percent of transgender people consider suicide and 40 percent attempt it, mostly youths.

With this legislation, assembly bill 103, you want to make it illegal for their teachers or counselors to offer any recognition or support at this crucial time in their lives. If they have no support from family or at school, they are no less trans. They are just even less likely to survive, to grow up with a sense of self worth. Allowing them to be called whatever gender or name they identify as doesn't take away any rights from the parent. It just acknowledges that the child is a thinking feeling human being who deserves some respect.

As for bill 100, legislating to prevent the tiny number of trans female athletes from participating in their chosen sport, what is so frightening? Provide a reasonable accommodation of private changing and shower space. Figure out a relatively fair handicapping scale. Figure the average difference between boys' and girls' scores in a particular sport. If the trans female athlete is willing to play with that uniform handicap added to the challenge, let them play!

This legislation is small minded and harmful. We should be better than this. Every child deserves to be themselves. Protect trans kids. Don't abandon them.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Adam Donahue, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident in Madison, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed to the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. Trans kids are not "problems" to be prohibited. In my experience of playing in athletic activities with other people, I never found any trans athletes to hold any notable advantage over cisgender male or female athletes. They should be allowed to choose their identity and not be barred from competitions in the gender they identify with.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Thank you,
Adam Donahue

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing as a psychologist and concerned citizen of Madison, WI to oppose in the strongest possible terms the bills AB100 and AB103. It is unconscionable that the State of Wisconsin is considering stripping transgender and non-binary children of their right to an educational experience that upholds their wellbeing and dignity.

The research is clear that when childrens' identities are respected by the institutions that serve them, they are able to flourish. Conversely, the consequences of discriminatory policies, such as AB100 and AB103, have clear negative consequences for affected children, including increased rates of negative peer interactions, deleterious mental health outcomes, and increased rates of suicidality.

Instead of using trans/non-binary children as political pawns to distract from the very real problems facing Wisconsinites, the legislature should consider fulfilling its intended role of finding and implementing solutions to the real issues of the day, which include rising income inequality, erosion of civil liberties, and dissolution of the social safety net that has historically protected all Wisconsinites.

Sincerely,

Jaime Lam, PhD

To the members of the Assembly,

I'm Julia Richard writing from Milwaukee WI, 53212, and strongly oppose the bills AB 100 and AB103. I am a mental health professional and can say from professional experience how much of a negative impact these bills will have on the mental health of our youth who are already very vulnerable. I've lived in Wisconsin my whole life and feel most scared for its future when extreme conservative Ideas like these try to take away rights of the people in my community. Please consider this testimony when making such an argument that effects the lives of everyday children.

My name is Tina Meister and I am speaking in strong opposition to bill AB100 & 103. I am here because the most beloved person in my life is trans. I am here because not too long ago I was sitting in the back of classrooms next to kids who knew their parents well, and that's precisely why they were scared. They were scared because they knew that they were entirely dependent on these adults who were the only ticket to their survival, no matter the cost, and some of them did put their survival on the line.

It's frustrating to me that my government hasn't managed to fulfill the basic needs of student's physical and mental wellbeing in their public education system, but is instead devoting time and resources producing bills to police children's bodies and safe personal expression.

Access to extracurricular activities should be the right of every child, no matter their gender presentation. I am alarmed and saddened to imagine the further exclusion and ostracization of children based on such an invasive and harmful bill. Children's sports are, fundamentally, about teaching our children teamwork, inclusion, and diversity of ability. What message are we sending to our kids when we strictly categorize and exclude a child based on information that, frankly, our schools should not be in the business of regulating? The emotional harm of forcing children to change in rooms they do not feel comfortable points to a solution more focused on gender-inclusivity and neutral options, not regulating and maintaining records of children's assigned sex.

I would also encourage the committee to probe what is really being prevented by Bill 103; to imagine the difficult situation in which a child is approaching a teacher requesting to be called a name and/or pronouns that make them feel more comfortable, that their parent does not know about.

I see this bill's biggest impact on children, already made vulnerable in a home that rejects their identity, perhaps even in circumstances that would threaten their physical safety, made to be further ostracized by the only remaining support network they may have access to. This bill is not a matter of parent's rights. Parents do not have the right to every thought in their child's head or to control their every exertion of selfhood both in the home and outside the home; a child's personhood is not the right of a parent to control.

I believe every parent dreams that their child will trust them enough to share their most important and deep senses of selfhood. I believe many of the parents in this room have fostered that very relationship of trust with their children, but these parents do not reflect every child's situation. Unfortunately many children have already had to learn the hard lesson that their voice and true self must be hidden in exchange for physical or emotional safety. I request that this bill not be passed, in order to preserve children's safety and wellbeing within their school systems. Thank you for your consideration and time.

To all the members of the Assembly Committee on Education, I oppose the bills in consideration, AB100 and AB103. It is unacceptable to pass bills that infringe on our constitutional rights. Is it not free speech to use any pronouns of our choosing? Not to mention pronouns are simply a part of grammar that have always existed, there is no defense for this. Additionally, again banning transgender athletes or any restrictions against them on the basis of their PERSONAL orientation is again, an infringement of basic constitutional rights, specifically, the first amendment. This is not a debate of opinions, it is not a debate on "nature" and what is "natural" or not. This is not a debate, because people's freedoms and therefore lives, are at stake, and if we can deny freedoms to some groups, what is stopping the opposition from denying freedom to everyone? We cannot let our transgender youth be hurt. They too are valued members of society and are human beings just like the rest of us. My name is Sierra Divine-Scott, I am a senior at East High School and am attending University of Wisconsin Milwaukee in the fall. I live in Madison, 53704, I oppose bills AB100 and AB103 and demand that we protect our children's unalienable rights.

To the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing today to express my opposition to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

Growing up when and where I did, the LGBTQ+ community was not visible or supported. I know that this did great harm to those within and alongside this community. Harm that in some cases resulted in death, and other psychological harm that still isn't resolved to this day. Schools should be places where our younger community feel safe, protected, and given space to be who they are and see who they will become. Bill 100 and 103 puts not only our trans youth at risk of irreparable harm, it does a great disservice to our communities, and our state as a whole.

With care,

Marla Sanvick
Milwaukee, WI 53208

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

Thank you for reading my testimony against both AB100 and AB103. My name is Blair Mosner Feltham. I live in Madison (53704). I am a long-time public school worker -- this is my 13th year working in public schools. I am also an elected member of the Madison Metropolitan School Board. Today, I write to you as an individual with experience in public schools, expertise in adolescent development, and a hope to see our state have a bright future.

The reason I am against these bills is because I don't think they support my hope for our state to have a bright future. These bills are both repressive, seeking to curtail the rights of individual children. I think in general, a bill that limits a child's expression of who they are or might be is probably a mistake. When you think about the future you want to live in, I wonder if you imagine that future as one where all children are forced by law to subscribe to particular ideas about who they are, or one where children's exploration and expression are protected by law.

Sometimes I hear that these repressive laws are necessary because, somehow, trans children are a threat to other people. That couldn't be further from the truth. Not only are trans children generally much more endangered (including by bills like this, which stigmatize them) than children who are not trans, their transness is not a threat to others. It is not true that trans athletes are damaging the sports experiences of non-trans students. I think that hateful, socially corrosive forces have manufactured this fear of threat, and I think they use the relative numbers of trans people to non-trans people to do it. I think members of this Committee should be skeptical of claims that a very small group of people who are themselves vulnerable are a threat to the whole and should think critically about why this issue is taking center stage when there are so many more pressing issues for children generally (including inadequate state funding for schools) and for girls in particular.

As for the question about school and student names and pronouns, the purpose of this bill is not to protect parents' rights--that claim is false rhetoric. The purpose of the bill is to tell young people and the people who serve them that being trans or wondering about who you are is a bad thing. Wondering about who you are, exploring, and experimenting are part of human development. Of course parents have rights, but I do not believe it is the right of the parent to say who the child is. Do you know the poem by Kahlil Gibran? It's beautiful and beautifully set to music by Sweet Honey in the Rock. Here's an excerpt:

"[Your children] come through you but not from you
And though they are with you yet they belong not to you

You may give them your love but not your thoughts
For they have their own thoughts
You may house their bodies but not their souls
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow

Which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams
You may strive to be like them
But seek not to make them like you
For life goes not backward, nor tarries with yesterday"

Being trans is a wonderful way to be. Trans people, in making room for themselves, make more room for the rest of us. I know that there are people out there, maybe including you, who don't understand it or think it's weird, but the fear and distaste some people have about trans people is manufactured in order to repress and control all of us. This is an old manufactured fear, but it is not innate and it is not helpful for our state moving Forward to a brighter future.

Discomfort and danger are different things, and I urge you not to pass laws that are based on your personal discomfort.

Thank you,

To the members of the Assembly committee on Education,

I am writing to you to voice my opposition to two bills: Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

Assembly Bill 100 is the latest step by lawmakers to discriminate against transgender people in our community. Transgender athletes make up less than a tenth of a percent of highschool athletes, and there is no research to prove that transgender students outperform or in any way receive greater recognition than other students in highschool sports. A transgender sports ban does NOT make sports safer for female athletes, who are much more likely to be endangered by their coaches and medical personnel than their fellow athletes. How would this ban be enforced, a genital inspection? The thought of such should make any reasonable person sick.

I was a student athlete, and I believe welcoming anyone interested into sports creates a better environment for all. It is apparent that transgender individuals have become the latest scapegoat for politicians to draw ire against for their own political gain. This hate has no place in Wisconsin. By banning transgender students from sports, you would be opening the gateway for further discrimination and erasure of transgender people. I oppose Assembly Bill 100.

Assembly Bill 103 would take away individual liberties and free speech. An administration is in power now that champions free speech, yet bills like this keep getting pushed to censor the rights of the individual. Referring to a student by their chosen name and pronouns hurts no one and makes the student feel more validated and welcomed in their classes. Many students live in abusive situations at home, and informing their legal guardians about their chosen pronouns or names could lead to more abuse, neglect, or even suicide. I support youth counseling, therapy, and any actions possible to make students feel welcome and included at school. This is how you can improve students' mental health. A teacher who feels they have the right to disrespect the identity of a student does not belong in Wisconsin schools. I oppose Assembly Bill 103.

Let it be known that I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Thank you for your consideration.

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing today in opposition to bills AB 100 and AB 103. I am a social work professor and mental health researcher and a parent. While Republicans declare themselves to be for small government and personal liberty, they have taken aim at trans people's rights to normally engage in day to day life and define themselves in their day to day interactions. As a mental health researcher, I'm concerned about the effect of anti-trans legislation, as a 2024 article in the journal Nature Human Behavior (State-level anti-transgender laws increase past-year suicide attempts among transgender and non-binary young people in the USA, by Lee, Hobbs, et al) has found that the introduction of state-level anti-trans legislation increases the risk of suicide attempts in transgender youth. At a time when youth suicide rates are already higher than the historical average, we must take every possible step to avoid the irreparable harm of bills such as AB 100 and AB 103.

Regarding AB 100 - it is an example of governmental overreach, with no public benefit. Rep Dittrich stated that approximately "a half dozen" transgender youth are involved in school sports in Wisconsin. Creating legislation that is targeted at less than 10 youth in the entire state is inappropriate and harmful. This also violates the privacy of youth athletes, by aggressively questioning by their presenting gender.

Regarding AB 103 - youth should have the freedom to define themselves and how they wish to be addressed. Parents do not own their children and school districts should honor their right to choose how they are acknowledged and addressed in the school room. Schools should work to make sure all youth are accepted by their school communities, not create barriers against self expression. There is no one harmed by a student being able to make choices regarding how they prefer to be addressed.

Thank you for your time,
Dr. Jane Hereth

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education, I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 67 years, worked in healthcare for 44 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equal, inclusive, caring education free from harassment and discrimination.

Committee on Education
Capitol Building

Subject: Opposition of AB100 and AB103

To the Committee on Education:

Thank you for taking the time to read my letter.

I am writing to express my opposition to legislation regarding student name and pronoun use (AB100) and gender-based restrictions in school sports (AB103). These bills impose unnecessary and harmful restrictions on students and infringe on personal and parental rights while also creating exclusionary and hostile environments for transgender, non-binary, and potentially gay and lesbian youth.

Both bills strip students of individuality and uniqueness and disregard their fundamental right to be unique. While it has been a while since I attended elementary, middle, or high school, it was awkward for all of us. Schools often represent safe spaces for youth. It is a space where we can find adults to confide in, grow our circle of friends, and experience all the weirdness of growing up. Forcing schools to effectively out a small population of students removes the safety net provided by schools. It ruins the trust of instructors, principals, and administrators. These policies are not in place to protect students but to discriminate against them. There is nothing supporting student well-being in these bills. Forcing children to withhold their identity leads to poor mental health, poorer grades, and poor overall well-being.

Restricting sports to "biological sex" ruins intramural sports and team building at large while creating exclusionary environments. What is crucial about sports is that they allow people to participate in athletics, which affirms and builds confidence regardless of identity. Athletics also provide mentoring, leadership, discipline, and personal growth opportunities. If the fear is trans or non-binary youth sharing locker rooms and bathrooms with cisgender youth, the remedy is simple: Gender-inclusive locker rooms and bathrooms make those spaces safer for all.

Moreover, we are discussing a student body comprising 0.6-1.5% of the teen population. The LGBTQ youth of Wisconsin is fragile and tender and needs any support they can find. They feel more awkward than their peers. My students know I may not recall their names, but my goal as an educator is to see them for who they are and not what they are. When we start seeing youth for who they are, their confidence blossoms.

These bills do not serve the best interests of Wisconsin students. They contribute to stigma, discrimination, and harm against a vulnerable population. I urge you to oppose these measures and focus on policies that better support our students and educators. We must ensure our schools are welcoming, inviting, and inclusive learning environments.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will oppose these bills and advocate for policies supporting Wisconsin students and educators.

Sincerely,
Laura Schade Stroik

To the members of the Assembly Committee

My name is Mack, I live in Eau Claire, zip code 54701. I strongly oppose bills AB100 and AB103. Excluding trans students from participating in sports teams that align with their gender identity and requiring all Wisconsin school boards to adopt policies regarding a student's legal name and pronouns in official school records is discriminatory and pernicious to students' learning environments.

These bills violate students' privacy and create unsafe learning environments. Requiring written authorization from a student's parent/guardian to refer to a student by their preferred pronouns and requiring notice of a name or pronoun change request be provided to a student's parent/guardian violates trans students' privacy. No child should be required to answer invasive questions or undergo physical inspections of private parts by adult strangers.

I identify as trans myself. People like me deserve to have childhoods just like any other. Schools should be a safe space for ALL students, including trans students. Trans children are not a threat and deserve to be protected and included as any other child. Trans people have always existed and always will. Being trans is not a choice or an ideology. Passing AB100 and AB103 is a blatant attempt to make trans youths' lives more difficult, to make them feel excluded and unsafe at school.

I ask that you please, do NOT support these bills.

Thank you

Honorable members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Ashley Jolly, and I am a counselor working in Janesville, Wisconsin at Empowered Therapy LLC. I am writing to you today to speak on behalf of the mental health and well-being of all students, particularly transgender and nonbinary youth, who are directly impacted by policies AB100 and AB103 which aims to restrict students' choice of name and gender use in schools and limit their participation in sports. I firmly oppose AB100 and AB103 and hope that you will do the same.

As a mental health professional, I work with young people every day. I see the devastating effects of rejection, isolation, and systemic barriers to identity affirmation. Research is clear: when transgender students are supported—when their names and pronouns are respected and they are allowed to participate fully in school life—their mental health outcomes improve significantly. Conversely, when they face restrictive policies, their risk of anxiety, depression, self-harm, and suicide increases. A study published in the Journal of Adolescent Health found that using a trans student's chosen name in affirming environments reduced suicide risk by over 56%.

School should be a place where every student feels safe, valued, and able to learn. Forcing educators to police names and pronouns, or banning students from sports teams that align with their identities, sends a message that some students don't belong. This is not just a political issue—it's a crisis of mental health and human dignity.

Policies that target transgender youth do not protect anyone; they harm some of our most vulnerable students. Instead of placing unnecessary restrictions, we should be fostering environments of belonging, where every student has the chance to thrive. As legislators, I urge you to listen to the mental health professionals, the educators, and most importantly, the students themselves. Their well-being and lives depend on it.

Sincerely,

Ashley Jolly

Dear WI State Assembly Committee on Education,

I'm writing to voice my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills discriminate against trans people and deepen the harm for them and put arbitrary restrictions on the freedoms of people.

Don't discriminate.

Don't prevent people from living their lives.

Wisconsin doesn't need you spending time on things that are not problems. These bills are based on made-up problems, false, and ridiculous reasoning. Do your job and focus on solving the real problems that are impacting our state.

Trans people belong everywhere.

Sincerely,
Kathryn H Thompson (she / her)

Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin resident, I am strongly opposed to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. This legislation targets a minority group for no other reason than to be cruel and scapegoat rather than focus on real issues that the people of Wisconsin need to have addressed.

Every student deserves to feel comfortable and safe in their learning environment, whether that be participating in sports or being addressed how they choose.

Thank you.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Kristy Bark, I am a Wisconsin constituent living here in Madison, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103, currently proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and AB 103 are clearly designed to act as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US, and they do nothing but alienate transgender kids and make life less safe for them.

As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against both AB 100 and AB 103. As a Christian, I am appalled that we would try to use the power of the Legislature to be cruel to a small, minority population. A 2024 study (linked below) showed that anti-transgender laws cause up to 72% increase in suicide attempts among transgender and nonbinary youth. Passing anti-trans legislation is not pro-life.

I am not at all concerned about trans athletes playing sports. I am VERY concerned about the health and safety of trans kids - I want them here in the world, I want them to feel seen and included (just as I want my own kids to feel seen and included).

Please reject these cruel and unnecessary bills.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly or Senate Committee on AB100 and AB103,

My name is Heaven Goldbeck and I am concerned about the consequences of AB100 and AB103. If these were to pass, it would be detrimental to all children, not just the ones they target. We tell kids to treat everyone fairly, to respect everyone, and these bills push the opposite. I have lived in Wisconsin my whole life. I have several people in my life who identify as trans and nonbinary, through all of which I have seen how life saving equality can be to them. Using the right pronouns and being included in spaces like sports and school activities. If these types of bills were to pass here, this would be incredibly detrimental to our trans youth here in Wisconsin. If we say we care about our children, we need to respect and protect them ALL. For these reasons, I do not support AB100 and AB103. I hope you consider testimony when making your decision on these topics. Thank you.

2025 Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 address no cognizable harm and will inflict needless harm on innocent students. Furthermore, decisions on who plays in what sports league and what children can be called at school and in school records are best made by the athletic organizations, the school boards, and the students themselves, not the state legislature. For these reasons I oppose both bills.

Dear Representatives,

I am a Wisconsin resident of Madison. I am submitting written testimony AGAINST Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting today, March 6, 2025.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans-athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. As such, they promise absolutely no benefit to anyone, but do promise to alienate and endanger transgender children.

As your constituent and a steadfast voter, I implore you to vote against these hate-filled bills. If you vote for them, you are inviting violence into the lives of innocent Wisconsinites. Please uphold your commitment to serve the good of all who call this great state home.

Sincerely,
Lailah Shima

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 13 years and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination.

Gendering sports hurts all of us. Sports was the way I was able to connect with my dad who was a man of few words but was always ready to throw a ball with you in the backyard. Those are some of my most cherished memories with my dad so when I had the opportunity to play baseball through the local community center the summer before 5th grade, I jumped at the chance. When I went to sign up, we were told that in spite of me being 10 years old because I was a girl I would have to start with T-ball and play with 5 year old boys. If I was a boy, I would have been able to play baseball with boys my own age. Since I wanted to improve my skillset, I opted to play softball with girls my age instead of baseball. This was short lived since a couple summers later when I was 12 years old, the softball team changed their uniforms from the same uniform the boys playing baseball wore - pants and a jersey to shorts and a sleeveless v-neck. I'm almost six feet tall so the shorts barely covered my backside and I'd need to wear a sliding pad to actually play the sport. That with the comments grown men made about how good I looked in those short shorts was too much for a young child to continue enjoy the sport. I quit and haven't played softball since.

Today I enjoy playing basketball, kickball, and volleyball in co-ed rec leagues but am still disappointed by the negative experiences I had as a child around gender segregated sports. Everyone deserves to be respected and treated with dignity and to have the opportunity to learn valuable lessons sports instill about teamwork and community. I hope that you all will take these important lessons and focus on policies that support and uplift our children like funding public schools and addressing mental health provider shortages instead of promoting discrimination of our children.

Thank you for your time.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Christina Jones, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Monona, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills because I care about trans kids in my community and I want them to feel safe, loved and respected at school, as all children should.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Christina Jones

To the members of the Assembly,

My name is Kailea Saplan. I have lived in Madison (currently 53704) since 2016, when I moved here to attend the prestigious University of Wisconsin, Madison as a graduate student. I study learning and educational design.

I am emailing to say that I oppose AB100 and AB103.

I could speak against these bills as a non-binary (aka trans) adult who has found immense joy and peace in my identity. But I would rather speak against it as an educator.

Schools are places of learning; we learn about math, science, and the arts, but we also learn about ourselves, who we are and who we want to be. Developmentally speaking, it's important for young people to try on new ideas and identities in a safe and supportive space.

That way, they can step into the world as adults with a stronger sense of who they are and what they want to do. These bills do not allow for nuance, understanding, or safety for any student. They push gender queer and questioning students to hide and possibly make unsafe choices.

They prohibit non-trans students from learning about and navigating space with people who are different from them, leaving them ill-prepared for the real world.

The bottom line is we all care about student safety. Let's find a way to support trans and non-trans youth with legislation that does not effectively single out and discriminate against one of these populations. Please do not support these bills.

Thank you for your time.

Regards,

Kailea Saplan

University of Wisconsin, Madison

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103 that take away the rights of transgender people to live happily in society and participate in sports as teenagers. As a cisgender woman and a former high school varsity athlete from Port Washington, Wisconsin, I can tell you that the genitalia of my teammates were not among my many high school concerns. I was a lot more concerned about the mental health of my teammates, a common challenge for transgender people. There is research that shows that teens who get gender affirming care have better mental health than transgender people who wait until they are adults--I have attached the scientific study here.

Just because a competitor was born male doesn't mean they're going to be better than every girl on the team. This bill totally ignores the complexity of the biologic picture and the variation of human ability, in addition to the mental health of transgender students being forced into a role that doesn't fit them. It ignores the fact that transgender girls on hormone replacement therapy are likely to perform similarly to other girls on the team--and if they're better, it might just be because they're great athletes, not because they're transgender. There were plenty of girls that were significantly better than I was, and plenty that were worse, and transgender kids can fall anywhere on that spectrum just like anyone else. Additionally, the risk that boys are going to put up with the daily intolerance and fear that transgender people contend with, the changes of hormone replacement therapy, not to mention the legislature trying to systematically strip their rights away, in order to win at girls' sports is frankly laughable.

The huge administrative burden you'd be putting on kids, families, and school districts with AB103 is also completely unnecessary and functions only to strip the rights away from kids who are coming to terms with who they are as they become teenagers. Making families go through a formal legal name change before you will call kids their preferred name and pronouns is ridiculous. If all my life I've been called Joey but in high school I request that my friends and teachers call me Joe, nobody requires me to fill out a million forms and pay money and go through a waiting period at court and publish it in the newspaper and then allow the principal to decide if anyone can call me Joe. But if I want to be called Jo, that's different? And the insinuation in this bill that people wanting to change their names might be sex offenders or changing their names to "interfere with the rights of others" is just ugly bigotry.

Transgender people are people. They have a long history in many cultures all over the world, and they have always been here with us, it is just that now we are seeing them. Legislating bigotry is not going to make them go away. It is not going to make transgender kids decide they aren't transgender after all.

Support our kids. Vote against AB100 and AB103.

Sincerely,
Erin Lemley
Madison, WI 53704

This is my testimony for Madison meeting on two Trans bills on 3/6/2025.

My husband and I were on a trans journey with our son when he was in high school. Being transgender is not a choice and is not an ideology. Our son and all transgender people are real and are human beings! They deserve acknowledgement and respect for being their authentic selves!

Their lives are difficult enough without laws being introduced that say trans athletes cannot participate in any sport they choose. None of us know how important a sport can be to a school age child or teen.

And about pronouns. YES! They are important! Finally when a person has the courage to come out as their authentic self, they need to be acknowledged for who they are, and our language does a majority of that through pronouns. As unique as every person is, and to reduce genders to only two, is not respectful nor intelligent. Scientifically, it even borders on the ridiculous!

Thank you for reading this.

Ruth Granger-Wellens

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 14 years. I am a parent of two young girls, both of whom are involved in club sports, and an active member of a Lutheran church. I am writing on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of children and youth, have the right to participate fully in school without fear of harassment or discrimination.

My daughters have both been on girls' sports teams that include both trans and straight girls. They both have classmates and friends who use pronouns and names different from the ones they were given when they were born. In all cases, interactions with those teammates and classmates have been about being a team or a peer together—typical kids...building skills, learning lessons, and having fun together.

In all their years of playing and learning together, there has never once been an instance of harm done because cis and trans girls were playing together or because cis and trans kids were expected to use each others' preferred names and pronouns. On the other hand, I know many stories of kids whose sense of belonging, safety, and ability to learn has been damaged because they were prevented from being part of a team that matched their gender identity or outed at school or repeatedly called by a name different from the one they'd choose. These bills are based on adult prejudices, not kids' realities or the preponderance of data and evidence—and they have no business becoming law.

Let kids play. Let kids learn.

Sincerely,
Christa Olson

To the members of the Senate Committee on Education:

I am writing to you today as a woman on behalf of her chosen family. When I think of trans kids, I see them as my own, and I view it as my sworn duty to protect them. A dear friend of mine has a daughter, Lily, who is currently in school, and I know she already struggles due to the way some of her peers see and treat her. These bills would put her in a position to never be treated or seen as who she truly is, and I genuinely believe they would put her life, as well as those of many other children, in grave danger.

I implore you to oppose AB100 and 103. I am terrified of the slow slide we're seeing in the bills being passed and proposed in this country; I am a transplant to Wisconsin, and I am proud to call it home. I want to be able to stay here, and I want my other transgender kin and myself to be safe. Bills like this are a senseless attack on people like me and like Lily, who just want to live our lives in peace like anyone else. I thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

Please reject Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Transgender children and young adults are under attack at a time when what they really need is to be nurtured and supported. Our transgender kids need to grow up with healthy acceptance and celebration for the beautiful beings that they are. They need to express their authentic selves in school and in the community. Diversity is our strength and compassion is the way.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Katie Gilbert, and I am a school psychologist residing in Fitchburg. In my work at school, one of my roles is to help students feel safe and welcomed in expressing themselves and their identities. The AB100 and AB 103 bills would affect that work detrimentally as I no longer would be able to ensure that students' are being honored in their identities and feel safe in spaces at school. I have firsthand witnessed the comfort and joy that students in the LGBTQ+ community have felt when their names and pronouns are used, as well as comfort in knowing that they can access all opportunities and safe spaces that other students can. These bills would most definitely have a negative impact on students' belonging, mental health, and safety and security in our schools.

Please consider my statement, as well as the many opposing testimonies, when considering the harm that passing these bills may do to our children and youth.

Sincerely,

Katie Gilbert

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As not only a voter and born and raised Wisconsinite, and as an educator, I am strongly against the introduction of bills AB 100 and AB 103.

Targeting this vulnerable population of school children is completely inconsistent with the values of our state and a complete abdication of the responsibility you all have to be our ethical and moral leaders. This is a solution without a problem. Transgender children are not a threat to our society. This was a made up "problem" created for political gain. If you really cared about school children you would protect them from school shootings, not from pronouns.

I urge you to stay true to the good caring values of Wisconsin and not give in to fear mongering and hate.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 12 years, have served the community as a physician during my time and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination. As ultimately we should understand the mental health consequences of exclusion especially among marginalized populations.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 7 years and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, caring and non-judgemental education free from harassment and discrimination. As the mother of a child at Crestwood Elementary, I am teaching them to respect and support their classmates' choices of identity and self-expression, in addition to treating everyone with care and compassion for their individual differences and struggles.

We know several children whom this would directly affect in a negative and harmful way to their self-expression, confidence and safety, but it would affect all children as we teach them how to treat their fellow person through our example (and laws). Please do not pass these bills. We do not want this and we will continue to fight for the rights of all children.

Sincerely,
Katherine (Katie) Spencer

To the Committee on Education:

The scientific evidence has shown that, based on many chromosomal, hormonal and psychological factors, gender identification and sexual orientation occur across a spectrum. Furthermore, scientific research has shown that alignment with an individuals beliefs regarding their gender and sexual orientation will reduce the likelihood of victimization, anxiety, depression, and suicidal ideation.

I talk with people daily who are struggling to live productive lives due to the stigma and trauma they have experienced in our society related to their gender and sexual orientation. Our societal history of judgement and recrimination toward people who are different or do not fit in has caused the downward spiral of poverty, addiction, and deaths of despair we are seeing today.

Please start leading with compassion for ALL people!

Vote against Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

Kind regards,

Dr. Amy Schoenoff, DNP, PMHNP-BC, APNP

To the members of the Assembly:

My name is Erica Krug and I live in Madison, Wis. My zip code is 53714.

I am writing in opposition to AB100 and AB103.

I have lived in Madison, Wisconsin my entire life and my professional career has been dedicated to public service and supporting youth through my roles as an educator in Madison Metropolitan School District, a member of Madison's service industry, and now as Farm to School Director for a local nonprofit organization. My husband is also an English teacher at a Madison high school and has a transgender sibling.

We need to stand up for our LGBTQ+ youth and do everything we can to protect their rights and make sure they feel safe in schools. Stop the attack of the most vulnerable, and start putting your energy on issues that actually matter and protect our children, like funding our public schools, supporting legislation for Healthy School Meals for All, and gun reform.

Thank you,

Erica Krug

Dear Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Alex Shah, and I live in Milwaukee, 53210. I appreciate the opportunity to voice my position on AB100 and AB103.

I encourage you to vote NO on AB100, the bill that would ban trans athletes from competing on sports teams that align with their gender identity. This bill affects such a small minority of people and does not protect anyone. No athlete is changing their gender identity to have a better chance at winning. These kids are already going through enough trying to survive in a society that disproportionately targets them for discrimination (like AB100), without having the option to play in a sport that would bring them joy stripped away from them. Also, how will this be enforced? Genital checks? Are you going to tell a biological female girl with masculine features that she can't play because she doesn't look enough like a girl? This is harmful to kids and does nothing but further disenfranchise an already persecuted minority who are just trying to live normal lives.

As for AB103, people should be called what they want to be called. They should be called by the pronouns they want to be called. It is insane that this is even being debated. I was born a man and identify as a man and go by he/him. It would be uncomfortable to be referred to as "she/her" on a regular basis because that's not who I am. Rejecting someone's preferred pronouns is profoundly disrespectful and doing it through legislation is truly despicable. This is a cruel bill that does not help any kids, it only harms kids who are already in the minority.

We are better than this in Wisconsin. Please vote no on both of these bills.

-Alex

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

Our community, who loves and cares for our queer and trans children through all ways they explore self expression and identity through learning and playing, vehemently reject the draconian and transphobic intent of AB 100 and AB 103.

My name is Autumn and I'm a long time resident of Madison. I'm a caring neighbor in the Bay Creek neighborhood, public library worker, UW-Madison alumni, and a part of the deeply rooted queer and trans community here.

Frankly, I'm fucking angry that our youth have to deal with this legislative violence. They should be able to play, learn, develop friendships, make art, try softball or soccer or swimming (to be a part of a team, fuck your late capitalistic competitive trip) explore their community, live--live without the constant fear of becoming scapegoats for your deranged version of freedom and safe communities. You don't care about their safety. Live to become teenagers, young adults, parents, elders. Instead, you're asking them to make a case for why they should exist. You're dragging them into these shameful legislative halls and sacrificing them. You don't deserve their trust or their faith. You're wasting their time and literally taking their lives.

I don't want to see another bill unless it's overwhelming in support of kids being able to freely express themselves and participate in their childhood without fear of erasure or violence from their peers. Actually, the parents of their peers. You're trying to own something that can't be bought: imagination. You're trying to control something that should be immovable and sacred: the dignity to be exactly who we are. God created us exactly as we are, trans and beautiful and complex and bold and brave and also with the right to just be.

I don't want to see another bill about children unless it's about increasing their access to nourishing food, supporting their literacy, creating more green spaces to play, ensuring their cultures are reflected in their education, encouraging their imaginations to flourish, ensuring they aren't gunned down in the classroom, they have a healthy climate to care for in the next generations. That's what we want to see. That's what matters.

All power to the people. God, Goddess, whatever you give your faith to--the people--bless all our kids in all their brilliances and expressions of who they are. Let them become.

Ever,

Autumn

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 40 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a dignity-affirming and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Laws like these do not protect girls' and women's access to sport. Instead, they create greater inequality and fail to address actual barriers to access like a lack of resources, lack of training, and lack of investment in women coaches. Additionally, this creates an othering for transgender boys who also feel like they do not have a place.

And they are a 'solution' in search of a problem: 23 states had athletic inclusion policies that allow transgender youth athletes to play alongside their peers—providing for a level playing field and protecting transgender youth from discrimination. These policies made it possible to create pathways to participation for aspiring athletes. Furthermore, major athletic associations such as the NCAA, the International Olympic Committee, and USA Gymnastics had instituted policies that allow transgender athletes to participate professionally and were not able to be shown to cause irreversible harm such as the rhetoric and legislation like this does for the mental health of our students, families, and supporters.

Local schools across the nation had created policies that protect transgender youth and ensure a level playing field for all students—and they worked. Blanket bans on transgender student athletes undermine those local efforts.

We need our lawmakers to pay attention to issues that matter—not look for ways to make life harder for transgender and nonbinary youth. We welcome legislation and policy that would proactively work to improve the health, well-being, and safety of transgender and nonbinary youth and send a clear and unequivocal message that they are seen, loved, and welcomed in all aspects of their community.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I oppose AB 100 and AB103 and strongly urge you to vote no on both bills.

The bills represent non-solutions to non-problems.

They target and scapegoat our transgender youth.

The bills are unacceptable and immoral.

Please take the time and make the effort to learn more about established science and medicine relevant to these critically important issues.

To paraphrase Federal Judge Herson, who noted recently regarding a lawsuit targeting young trans people, the evidence is "unfounded" and "lacks clinical experience or research qualifications" ... to support proposed policy changes.

"Transgender people and their supportive parents and families are good and decent people who deserve the freedom to be themselves and to thrive", as PFLAG stated in a related comment.

Vote no on AB100 and AB103.

Thank you.

To the members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 13 years. I've taught in our great state's public schools and currently work at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equal, and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination. Trans rights are human rights and politicians that pass laws inhibiting human rights are always on the wrong side of history.

Sincerely,
Nathaniel Liedl

Dear Wisconsin Legislators,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, both of which seek to impose harmful restrictions on transgender and nonbinary students in our schools. These bills are not just unnecessary — they are dangerous.

AB100, which would force school sports teams to be designated solely based on biological sex, blatantly excludes transgender students from participating fully in school life. AB103, which would require schools to get parental permission before using a student's preferred name and pronouns, places vulnerable children at further risk, especially those who may not have supportive homes.

There is clear, established research showing that transgender and nonbinary youth face significantly higher rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidal ideation than their cisgender peers. However, studies have also shown that simply respecting a trans student's preferred name and gender identity drastically reduces these risks. According to research published in the Journal of Adolescent Health, using a trans youth's chosen name reduces depression symptoms by 71% and suicidal thoughts by 34%. Denying that basic respect — especially in a place where students are supposed to feel safe, like school — only compounds the isolation, distress, and hopelessness that so many trans youth already face.

Schools should be a safe haven where all students are valued for who they are — not spaces where identity becomes a battleground for political agendas. These bills not only harm individual students, but they also send a cruel message to all LGBTQ+ youth in Wisconsin that their identities are invalid, unwelcome, and subject to government control.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103 and instead work toward policies that foster inclusivity, understanding, and compassion in our schools. All students — including transgender and nonbinary students — deserve to feel safe, respected, and supported.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Dear Representatives,

My name is Elly Hazard and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

These bills are trans athlete bans and restrict name and pronoun changes for trans youth. There has been a wave of anti-trans legislation sweeping our country and putting people in danger.

I implore you to vote against these bills. Trans people have every right to exist fully and peacefully as members of our society. We know that restricting trans' youth ability to access care and express themselves results in harm, and even suicide.

Please acknowledge your trans constituents and vote against these bills.

Thank you,
Elly

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

Please reject Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Transgender children and young adults are under attack at a time when what they really need is to be nurtured and supported. Our transgender kids need to grow up with healthy acceptance and celebration for the beautiful beings that they are. They need to express their authentic selves in school and in the community. Diversity is our strength and compassion is the way.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Sontvedt

To the members of the Assembly Committee

My name is Haley, I live in Madison, zip code 53703. I strongly oppose bills AB100 and AB103. Excluding trans students from participating in sports teams that align with their gender identity and requiring all Wisconsin school boards to adopt policies regarding a student's legal name and pronouns in official school records is discriminatory and pernicious to students' learning environments.

These bills violate students' privacy and create unsafe learning environments. Requiring written authorization from a student's parent/guardian to refer to a student by their preferred pronouns and requiring notice of a name or pronoun change request be provided to a student's parent/guardian violates trans students' privacy. No child should be required to answer invasive questions or undergo physical inspections of private parts by adult strangers.

I am not trans, but I have people in my life who are. They deserve to have childhoods just like any other. School should be a safe space for ALL students, including trans students. Trans children are not a threat and deserve to be protected and included as any other child. Trans people have always existed and always will. Being trans is not a choice or an ideology. Passing AB100 and AB103 is a blatant attempt to make trans youths' lives more difficult, to make them feel excluded and unsafe at school.

I ask that you please, do NOT support these bills.

Thank you

My name is Lauryn Branham, and I am a long time Wisconsin and Madison resident, who has been heavily involved in the support of our community and its education, especially for the children within it.

I am writing today in strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which would impose harmful restrictions on transgender students in our schools. These bills do not protect children—they isolate and exclude them, sending a message that some students are less worthy of respect and participation than others. As someone who values fairness, dignity, and inclusion, I cannot stay silent while legislation is introduced that targets vulnerable children simply for being who they are.

While my wife and I do not yet have children, we plan to in the future, and we want them to grow up in a state that values inclusivity, fairness, and respect for all students. We also have close friends who are transgender, and I have seen firsthand the struggles they face simply trying to exist in a world that too often refuses to acknowledge their identities. During my time volunteering in after-school programs, I worked with young children from diverse backgrounds, each of them trying to figure out who they are and where they fit in. Schools should be places of growth, support, and affirmation, not places where students feel rejected or forced into rigid categories that do not reflect their true selves. These bills would tell transgender children that they do not belong, that their identities are not valid, and that they cannot participate fully in school life unless they conform to something they are not.

I am compelled to speak out because I cannot stand by while legislation is passed that actively harms children—children who already face higher rates of bullying, mental health struggles, and even self-harm. These bills would further isolate transgender students by excluding them from sports, restricting their ability to be called by their chosen names and pronouns, and reinforcing policies that allow others to dictate their identities. This is not about fairness in sports or administrative consistency; it is about control over marginalized students' lives. No child should have to prove their identity through bureaucratic hurdles, seek approval from school administrators, or be denied participation in activities that bring them joy and connection.

Instead of policies that alienate and exclude, we should be focusing on creating school environments where all students feel safe and accepted. I urge the committee to support initiatives that affirm and protect transgender students, including clear policies against discrimination, access to gender-inclusive sports teams, and processes that respect students' names and pronouns without placing unnecessary barriers in their way. Schools should be places of learning and community, not of exclusion and shame.

Thank you, members of the committee, for taking the time to consider my testimony. I urge you to reflect on the impact these bills will have on transgender youth and their families and to reject legislation that does nothing but make life harder for already vulnerable students. I appreciate your time and consideration and hope you will choose to stand on the side of inclusion, dignity, and respect for all Wisconsin students.

Dear the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lori Messany and I live in Baraboo, WI 53913.

I am completing this written testimony to protest three anti-trans bills introduced by Republican state assembly representatives. AB 100 known as the Anti-Trans Sports bill (K-12), AB 102 known as the Anti-Trans Sports bill (College), and AB 103 known as Denying Preferred Names and Pronouns in School are all deeply rooted in transphobic inaccurate rhetoric that when set in motion will not only harm trans children, but cis children as well.

Speaking of AB 100, how will this law be enforced at school districts? How will schools know if certain children are trans? If trans children are no longer allowed to play sports, then certain districts will take it upon themselves to enforce this law in an inappropriate manner that will traumatize the very children they are "trying" to protect.

Children just want to have fun and enjoy life. Shouldn't they be allowed the same childhood as other kids? They should be able to play sports with their friends and they should be treated with respect if they feel their pronouns or name do not match who they really are. It really doesn't take a lot of effort to believe children and respect their wishes. The goal should be to protect this minority population of children, not drive them towards mental health crises.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Lori Messany
Baraboo, WI 53913

To the committee,
My name is Ben Petershack and I am from Madison.

I write this in opposition to both bills, I find it highly offensive and dangerous that my tax dollars are being used to marginalize an already marginalized community.

School sports and basic courtesy are for everyone. Instead of bullying an already at risk community perhaps you could use your time to improve the material conditions of your constituents.

Sports provide a place of exercise and community building, neither of which is in any way diminished by allowing any child to participate.

If you cared in any way about these kids you would tear these bills up and work to enshrine protections for everyone.

Ben Petershack

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aaron Zeleske. I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting this as written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans children, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the United States and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create climate of fear.

As one of your constituents, I implore you to vote against these proposed bills. I have trans family members and friends. They simply wish to be left to live their own lives. They are not a threat to anyone. Their existence as trans people does not harm anyone. They are ~~not a~~ political issue. They are people who just want to be. Please, just let them be. Let them be themselves.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As representatives of Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Aaron Zeleske

To the members of the Assembly or Senate Committee:

I am extremely concerned about bills AB100 and AB103 targeting the hateful bias towards transgender athletes and students. These bills are harmful and completely unnecessary. More people need to educate themselves to learn transgender children are like any other children and need to free to live without discrimination.

My name is Chris Havey. I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Pewaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting of March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids – and allied – and create a climate of fear rather than community.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people, and anyone supporting basic human rights to be true to themselves. As representative of Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the people you represent – straight, gay and trans – and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.
I'm writing as a private citizen who is a born and raised Wisconsinite, a resident for my 50 years of life.

I completely oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination.
I believe the cruel performance in rolling out these bills and similar already speaks volumes but you still have time to determine the content of the message our kids hear from you. You can do the right thing. These are ongoing anti-intellectual and cultural attacks meant to distract people and scapegoat my fellow Wisconsinites and their families and loved ones. Homophobic and transphobic community looters and their supporters are openly using each and every person who checks empathy and reason at the door.

This is not the way you or WE want to be remembered. We are all better. Please represent that. No matter what you've said or done in the past, now is the time to represent that we all can be better and that this cruelty against your fellow residents and their families and loved ones should never stand. This is anti-human, anti-American rhetoric and such legislation must be bravely opposed. Please do the right thing.

Human beings deserve health, safety, dignity, growth and you can truly represent those rights. These bills destroy those rights and harm people. Anti-trans and homophobic legislation harms actual people you actually love,

Sincerely,

Dear Representatives,

My name is Tara Tschillard, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate and harm transgender kids, and all children, and create a climate of fear rather than understanding, safety, and cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I was born and raised in Madison, went through the Madison public schools and participated in sports. Schools and sports can be some of the safest and most encouraging places for kids to learn and grow and become who they are. These bills hinder a child's ability to feel safe exploring who they are- something all kids should be encouraged to do and adults should support. This is nothing but the same fear mongering and moral panic drummed up against Queer people throughout history, it is unfounded and created only to harm the most vulnerable populations. You can choose not to discriminate and instead allow vulnerable communities to thrive.

Trans people exist, have always existed, and will continue to exist at every age regardless of these bills. But to enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people, and further harm all children- because yes even non-trans kids are harmed by these bills, but even if they weren't- harming trans kids is wrong! As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Dear Assembly Committee of Education Members,

My name is Andrea Lindberg, I live in Madison, my zip code is 53711.

I am writing to express my opposition to assembly bill 100 and 103.

As a former teacher I have a deep understanding of how vital it is that a child's personal identity be honored. Schools must protect and support children. Trans youth are not a threat. They deserve to feel safe, respected and cared for at school. It is well documented that not providing an environment that nurtures trans youth, like all youth, can lead to mental health issues which can affect a person's whole life.

I ask you to vote to protect trans youth and be an example of compassion to all youth.
Thank you.

To the members of the committee on education,

Please vote against bills AB100 and AB103. It is important to me that trans youth in our state can fully participate in civic life and can be safe at school. Taking away their ability to participate in athletics will hurt these children and will not improve outcomes for anyone else. Making it harder for children to be known by their chosen name and pronouns will hurt children. Please protect all of our Wisconsin children. We want them to be safe and thrive.

Thank you,
Luc Maker, Shorewood

Testimony on AB103 and AB100

Hannah Sedlacek

Hello, my name is Hannah Sedlacek, and I am a proud member of the LGBTQ+ community living in Dane County for the past 2 years. As someone who works closely with LGBTQ+ teens, I am deeply troubled by AB103 and AB100. These bills do not exist to protect children—they exist to erase trans kids, perpetuate stigma, and force them into environments where they are unsafe, unwelcome, and unseen.

We know the harm that policies like these cause. Research has consistently shown that increased stigma, forced silence, and an unsupportive atmosphere lead to poor mental health outcomes and increased risk of suicide. According to The Trevor Project, LGBTQ+ youth who live in affirming communities attempt suicide at less than half the rate of those in unaccepting environments. These bills send a clear message to trans kids: You don't belong. You aren't wanted. You aren't valid. And for many, that message can be deadly.

Forcing trans students to be misgendered by teachers, to use facilities that do not align with their gender, and to be excluded from sports is not about fairness—it is about control. It is about punishing trans kids for existing and forcing them into spaces that actively endanger them.

So I ask you: Are you willing to abandon these kids for the comfort of a few?

Silence is not a shield. The cost of inaction is too great. We have a responsibility to protect all children in our communities—including trans children. We do not get to pick and choose which kids deserve safety, dignity, and belonging.

Let's choose courage over fear.

Let's choose integrity over silence.

And most importantly, let's choose them.

I am writing today in opposition to bills AB 100 and AB 103. I am a Psychiatric Nurse Practitioner in Milwaukee and mother of two small children. While Republicans declare themselves to be for small government and personal liberty, they have taken aim at trans people's rights to normally engage in day to day life and define themselves in their day to day interactions. As a mental health provider, I'm concerned about the effect of anti-trans legislation, as a 2024 article in the journal Nature Human Behavior (State-level anti-transgender laws increase past-year suicide attempts among transgender and non-binary young people in the USA, by Lee, Hobbs, et al) has found that the introduction of state-level anti-trans legislation increases the risk of suicide attempts in transgender youth. At a time when youth suicide rates are already higher than the historical average, we must take every possible step to avoid the irreparable harm of bills such as AB 100 and AB 103.

Regarding AB 100 - it is an example of governmental overreach, with no public benefit. Rep Dittich stated that approximately "a half dozen" transgender youth are involved in school sports in Wisconsin. Creating legislation that is targeted at less than 10 youth in the entire state is inappropriate and harmful. This also violates the privacy of youth athletes, by aggressively questioning what their presenting gender.

Regarding AB 103 - youth should have the freedom to define themselves and how they wish to be addressed. Parents do not own their children and school districts should honor their right to choose how they are acknowledged and addressed in the school room. Schools should work to make sure all youth are accepted by their school communities, not create barriers against self expression. There is no one harmed by a student being able to make choices regarding how they prefer to be addressed.

I am a parent, grandparent, and retired teacher formerly at one of Wisconsin's top high schools (consistently ranked top 20 - if not top 10 - in all rankings, polls, and publications).

I vehemently oppose Assembly Bills 100 and 103. I strongly support all youth, including trans youth, and I abhor the intent of these bills to discriminate against them.

It has been my privilege to serve the State of Wisconsin and the students and parents of my former school district. Do not advance this horrid, disgusting legislation. Be on the side of justice and compassion for our children ... for ALL of our children.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a voter and resident of Wisconsin, I am vehemently against the introduction of bills AB 100 and AB 103.

Targeting this vulnerable population of school children is completely inconsistent with the values of our state and a complete abdication of your responsibility to be our ethical and moral leaders. This is a solution without a problem. Transgender children are not a threat to our society. This was a made up "problem" created for political gain. If you really cared about school children you would protect them from school shootings, not from pronouns.

I urge you to stay true to the good caring values of Wisconsin and not give in to fear mongering and hate.

Julia Fradkin

To the Assembly Committee on Education:

I oppose bills AB100 and AB103 which target transgender students and families. I know transgender youth and parents of transgender youth. Do you? Do you value their perspectives and the perspectives of mental health professionals and physicians who are helping this population? I suspect the conservative "think tank" that has been promoting these bills around the country don't either. Families with transgender members are just trying to live their lives. You will only harm this group with this legislation

I wish the GOP would back off from targeting transgender kids and their families. The transgender community only represents 1-2% of the population but they have been receiving way too much negative attention from the extreme right wing. Why? These bills are based on ideology and not science. Leave these families alone -- please! You wouldn't dare invade the lives of home-schooling families or families whose youth use guns like you are with these bills. Freedom also must be accorded transgender youth and their parents. And I say this as an evidenced-based conservative who cares enough about the lives of transgender citizens in Wisconsin and the country to make it a key factor in how I vote.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 11 years, have my master's degree from UW-Madison, worked for Edgewood College, and have 3 children who attend Madison public schools, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive and inclusive education, free from harassment and discrimination.

I have first hand seen the importance of school sports in building up a child's confidence, creating a supportive social network, and reinforcing a child's connection to their school and community. By banning transgender girls from sports, you will take away all of those positive aspects of engaging in school sports.

I have also seen the intense distress that it causes transgender individuals when others refuse to use their chosen name and pronouns. The feeling of disrespect, being seen as less than cisgender people, not who they actually are, is devastating for transgender people. I am a cisgender woman, with a name that is frequently seen as masculine or male, and have been misgendered over mail, email, and on the phone for decades. I feel frustration when people make assumptions about my gender just based on my name, but I can easily correct people when they get it wrong, so that I can feel affirmed in my gender. I want the same for transgender people, who just want others to see them how they see themselves.

Sincerely,
Drew Silver

My name is Dr Samantha Everhart and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Wauwatosa, WI. I am writing today to share my strong opposition to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 being proposed in the meeting on March 6.

As a resident of Wisconsin, community member, licensed psychologist, and constituent, I am urging you to vote against these proposed bills. All community members, including children, deserve to be treated with love, support, inclusion, and respect. These bills are in direct opposition to the research we have on what builds resilient, strong, and healthy children by restricting their access to team- and skill-building sports, and allowing them to be treated with respect and dignity in choosing how they are addressed. These restrictions are violent and discriminatory and will harm Wisconsinites and put our children behind. We know from the research that policies that infringe on trans rights or vilify them result in worsened mental health for these kids. Suicide risk increases.

I hope you will vote for the trans constituents you represent and in support of values of dignity, respect, and community for ALL of Wisconsin's residents and VOTE NO.

To the members of Assembly Committee on Education,

I am a pediatrician in Wisconsin, dedicated to caring for children of all backgrounds, regardless of race, gender, religion, or socioeconomic status. Through my work, I have witnessed the profound impact that affirmation—or the lack thereof—can have on a child's mental health. When parents, schools, and peers fail to use a child's preferred pronouns, the consequences can be devastating.

Recently, I cared for a transgender patient who was hospitalized for malnutrition due to an eating disorder. While their parents were supportive in addressing the eating disorder, they refused to acknowledge their child's chosen name and pronouns. This lack of recognition only deepened their struggle, exacerbating the very condition they were trying to overcome.

I OPPOSE the proposed bill(s) (AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and/or AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns).

Dear Representatives,

My name is Matthew Havey, I am a Wisconsin resident of Pewaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

Assembly Bill 100 and 103 are clearly drafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the United States and do nothing but further alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. Transgender kids have every right to engage in sports, just as anyone else can. They also have every right to identify however they wish. As someone with a transgender family member, I've seen how harmful anti-trans ideology and legislation can be.

Trans people exist and will continue to do so at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence and hate upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people that you represent, and in good conscience vote against Assembly Bill 100 and 103

Sincerely,
Matthew Havey

I oppose AB 100 and 103.

I am a retired nurse of over 30 years. The bills to ban trans participation in sports and to deny preferred pronouns appears based on a new political reality, rather than on the facts of science and medicine. It demonstrates a cruel and discriminatory attitude toward a few students based on lack of understanding rather than facts.

Sincerely,
Jackie Tomberlin

Dear Representatives,

My name is Robin Schueler, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of the City of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I am fearful of a future where trans kids will continue to be made invisible. It is difficult enough to exist as a trans person, feeling both out of your own body while simultaneously being made small or not being seen by the people around you. These kids deserve community, care, to know they aren't alone and they are on a journey many of us adults face as well. As a trans woman nearing my 30s, I want to see a future where no trans person must experience fear of acceptance at any age. These bills would strip these kids of agency and autonomy they already struggle having, agency many of us adults struggle with even today. Trans people already experience high rates of suicide and depression. Taking our rights away will only exacerbate this, and there will be blood on the hands of those who make those decisions. We are people and deserve to be treated no less. We will live and keep living, so don't try to take the life away from those who have so much time left.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Robin Schueler (she/they)

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing today to strongly oppose bills AB100 and AB103. My name is Eleri Extence, and I'm a college student from the city of West Bend, in the zip code 53095. I am a cisgender woman who is frankly disgusted by these bills' disrespect for my transgender sisters. I have known many wonderful trans people throughout my time in highschool and middle school, and known them well enough to know that these bills will destroy lives for many transgender students.

I have seen close trans friends hospitalized on suicide risk because they could not handle the alienation they faced in their daily lives. These friends received treatment because they had parents who were empathetic to them and loved them and accepted them for who they are; if their parents had been less accepting, these friends would likely be dead.

I have known people who would be disowned and kicked out of house if their parents had discovered that they were transgender. What Bill AB103 is proposing is a serious violation of a child's privacy that would lead to more homeless youth. Transgender people are already at the highest risk of being murdered in this country. We need more bills to protect them, not put them in even more danger. Please oppose Bills AB100 and AB103.

Sincerely,
Eleri Extence

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 9 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

To the whole Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing this email to oppose both AB 100 and AB 103. Not only are these bills unnecessary, but they aim to take rights from our most vulnerable population. The number of trans youth playing high school sports is extremely small. If you care about protecting youth, you should be focusing on protecting our vulnerable youth population - not further ostracizing them.

As for needing written documentation from a parent before a school can use pronouns other than their biological gender -- again, this is absolutely unnecessary. Using a different pronoun or a chosen name is not a burden to anyone. However, using the preferred pronouns for trans youth is very important to their mental health.

A study done by the Trevor Project of over 61,000 children aged 13-17 in 19 states, showed that suicide attempts increased by 72% when those states passed anti-transgender laws. NPR article

I have a teenage cousin that is transgender and transitioning to a female. Erica (formerly Eric) was suicidal and in a very dark place until, through therapy, she started to understand she is transgender, and that she had the option to live her life as a different gender. Erica is now a well-adjusted teenager, enjoying time with friends rock climbing and participating in gymnastics.

As a school board member at the Deerfield Community School District (I am speaking on my own behalf, not on the behalf of the board), I care deeply about making school a safe place for all students. Please reconsider these bills. As a school board member, I do not want to be forced to participate in increasing the risk of youth suicide attempts for this unnecessary legislation.

My name is Scott Hershberger, and I am a Madison resident. I am testifying that two bills currently before the Assembly, AB100 and AB103, would have a negative impact on our students and should not become law. I am a straight, cisgender man, but I have many transgender friends who would have been harmed by this legislation if they were still in school.

I had several transgender friends in high school. My college roommate (still a dear friend years later) is a trans man. Many people in my current friend group are trans women. All these friends have shared with me painful stories of discrimination that they faced after coming out—individual acts of dehumanization as well as policies that created huge bureaucratic hurdles and decreased their quality of life.

When people call them by a name or pronoun that they do not identify with, this creates deep emotional wounds. If this has never happened to you, take a moment and imagine someone intentionally doing it to you. Maybe there was a bully when you were in school who always called you a name you hated. It doesn't feel good. Now imagine your teachers calling you that name, over and over. That's dehumanizing, and that would have long-lasting mental health impacts. That's what AB103 would do to trans kids.

Now, imagine that you went through this trauma because you wanted to get a competitive edge in sports. Would that be worth it? No, it wouldn't. Trans kids who are athletes just want to be kids playing sports as their authentic selves. One of my friends who is a trans man played soccer growing up, both before and after he transitioned. He had a much more positive experience after the transition, once he was playing with other boys. And his teammates were happy to have him. AB100 would prevent kids from enjoying sports the way every kid should be able to. Again, this would cause long-lasting harm to their mental health.

It's easy to think that these policies would only hurt trans kids. But that's wrong. These policies would hurt all kids by teaching them to discriminate, teaching them to ignore others' wishes, teaching them to disrespect their peers.

Instead of institutionalizing discrimination, we need to institutionalize empathy and understanding. We need to educate our kids with the tools to value everyone's perspectives so that they can interact respectfully regardless of gender identity.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103. Thank you for reading my testimony and considering my input.

Best wishes,
Scott Hershberger

I have lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination.

We've seen these kind of bills before. They have been brought before this committee year after year in an attempt to terrorize our trans youth, their parents, and decent folks all around the state who understand these bills are no more than hatred and grandstanding.

This is a grotesque public spectacle where homophobic and transphobic legislators make us come back year after year and beg for some shred of decency. For some shred of humanity, some empathy, some understanding.

I'm not submitting this to beg you to not be cruel. I'm submitting this to tell you that the people of Wisconsin are—on the whole—better than this.

All Wisconsinites—yes, even the children—deserve the right to dignity, the support to grow and thrive to their greatest potential. These bills are directly in opposition to those rights.

I hope that you learn. I hope you fix your hearts.

Regardless, I and so many others will continue standing up for decency, for kindness, for justice, and for all LGBTQIA+ kids in Wisconsin.

I have worked with trans youth for years as both a school social worker as well as in the mental health field. Those who were able to have their names and pronouns affirmed on a consistent basis by their community were able to engage more fully in their education and felt safer in the school environment. Those who engaged in group activities such as sports or clubs were the most resilient and able to overcome their mental health challenges. I firmly believe that all humans deserve and require a place of belonging in life, and to take that away from trans youth via these bills is truly unacceptable.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Cari (I prefer this name to my full name, Carilyn) Jacobs. Now I'm wondering how many of you use a different name than your birth certificate states? But, I digress...
I live in Milwaukee, 53210.

I am writing to let you know I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

I have been fortunate enough to meet six trans individuals throughout my life. Five are adults and are highly intelligent, talented individuals who are not only valued for who they are as people, but also for their contributions to their communities and workspaces. Not one of them has used their trans identity as an attempt to try to get ahead in sports (or anything else on life) or to gain access to a different a bathroom. I mean really; why would anyone choose to identify as trans in today's dangerously unsupportive society? They have all gone through (and many continue to go through) substantial pain and heartbreak just to be recognized as their true selves.

One of the six individuals is a trans youth who is a remarkably strong, caring, and intelligent person. I can only imagine what this person is going through at this time. Not only is being a teenager hard enough, but when some family members aren't understanding and now society at large is trying to erase your very identity, I can only imagine how lonely, frightening and isolating it must feel. In the United States, many youth already feel unsupported and ostracized enough; that much is evident in the obscene amount of suicides and school shootings that take place. Trans youth have an additional level of social navigating to deal with and again, no one would choose to be trans for any reason other than to be true to who they actually are.

I'll close by saying that a good friend once told me that every single person is their own kaleidoscope image. Every single person is an array of colors and angles and patterns and, if you've ever clicked through a kaleidoscope, you'll know just how beautiful each and every array is AND that the variety and differences in each also bolster the others.

We are better together and stronger together. Don't pass these bills that are attempting to break the kaleidoscope. See the beauty in everyone instead.

Thank you,
Cari Jacobs

Testimony for AB100/AB103:

To the members of the assembly:

My name is Amanda Kramp. I live in Oshkosh. I'm married and have two kids, I volunteer with my church, I'm in the PTO, and I recently met with members of the Joint Finance Committee to speak about reproductive rights.

Trans kids belong where kids belong. Trans kids belong in sports, schools, faith communities, scouting programs, and other places where kids gather to learn and play.

They also deserve to be called what they want to be called. My name is Amanda. My pronouns are she/her. If someone decided my name was Mandy and that my pronouns were he/him, they would be incorrect and it would be disrespectful. Why can't we extend that respect to trans kids? Being called the correct pronouns is one small way that trans people can feel included in the world. Being called the correct name, the name that someone tells you to call them, is basic courtesy.

And have you ever been in a school locker room? I have. I played field hockey in high school. Not once did we all stand around totally naked and stare at each other. I don't know what locker rooms the Republicans remember or are entering, but most people mind their business when they're changing. Most people who were raised right know how to act in these situations. Mind your business. Put on the uniform and get on the field.

These kids love their sports. They are passionate about playing, because they wouldn't fight so hard to play if it was just a thing they liked to do on the weekends. No teenager wants their entire life paraded around and mocked by grown adults who are supposed to be in charge. I admire their bravery and they shouldn't have to be brave.

These bills are transphobic and harmful. Vote no.

Thank you.

Hello,

I am writing to urge the Wisconsin state assembly to vote against bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills harm Wisconsin children and deny them equal opportunities.

Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trans kids belong in school sports if they choose to participate. All school children deserve the opportunity to join a school team of their choice and explore their own athletic abilities. To bar any kids from school sports is truly unjust and unkind.

This bill would directly harm trans kids and does not make cis kids safer. It's a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on a small number of children, which is sickening to me.

Transgender kids and cisgender kids alike deserve to be addressed with the name and pronouns they use at home or with friends, while they are in school. The first day of school, most teachers will run down the class list and ask kids what name they use. The teacher asks each student this question because it shows respect for the student's autonomy. Kids (both trans and cis) deserve the right to change their names and pronouns whenever they want to, just as adults do. This should be a matter between a student and their teachers, and should not require parent notification.

Name and pronoun changes can represent safety, autonomy, and authenticity for students. This bill is similarly unnecessary, and harmful to children who are exploring or embracing their identity.

I've lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and I'm a parent who has raised 2 kids in the public schools here. I value the public school system and education for all children. All Wisconsin children deserve equal treatment in their schools.

Sincerely,
Laura Wendt

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Taylor Witthuhn, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 29 years of my life, and not only a member of the LGBT community but have many friends and family members in the trans community.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100 and AB103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it's a blatant violation of human rights, it is un-American. My trans family does not deserve to be dehumanized and erased by people with an agenda to promote cruelty, and a desire to other their fellow citizens to appease some self-centered goal.

These bills take the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power, who do not have the best interest of the community in mind. Myself, and fellow residents who have submitted a testimony or have shown up to this hearing will not stand for this hatred towards our fellow community members.

The proposed bills are undemocratic, unfair, and are truly cruel uses of our legislature. When you should be helping the community, you instead spend your time attacking vulnerable youth. Shame on you. Wisconsin children deserve better than this. They deserve to live their lives as their authentic selves, be accepted, loved and to feel safe in their schools and communities. Furthermore, these bills are based totally on fiction and go against all scientific consensus on the matter. Wisconsinites do not want to be governed by lies and misinformation. Hello,

I am writing about AB100 and AB103. I live in Wisconsin and have for most of my life.

I am a trans adult and the past 6 weeks have been incredibly hard on my mental health, I can't imagine how trans youth are feeling. I have had extreme anxiety and depression which is directly rooted in the Trump administration and other transphobic Republicans. I've been in (fight or) flight mode for weeks, and have looked into moving to Minnesota or Canada for my safety. I have been unable to focus on my career or personal life, because I am worried about my future in America. The prejudice coming from the GOP is absurd and dangerous. Trans people make up less than 1 percent of the American population, and we are only trying to live our lives. Yet, we are constantly scapegoated by the GOP, including the president.

AB103 has no basis and is purely discrimination. It is incredibly important to one's mental health to be addressed by the correct name and pronouns. I do not understand how this affects anyone else in a meaningful way--it is truly a non-issue to address someone the way they prefer. If we can call James Vance "JD," Addison McConnell "Mitch," and the Gulf of Mexico "the Gulf of America," then we can call people by their chosen names.

AB100 is another example of the GOP choosing to bully children over doing things to actually help their constituents. Trans girls playing sports is basically a non-issue.

Republicans also love to talk about small government, but they also love to tell school districts what they're allowed to do, and individuals what they're allowed to do.

Fair Wisconsin & Committee Members,

I would like to register my vehement opposition to both bill AB100 and bill AB103.

With regard to AB100:

I grew up playing sports in Wisconsin my whole life from elementary school through high school and even when I went away to college. I was not concerned with whether my teammates looked feminine or masculine. It was high school. We were all goofy and figuring life out. What we needed most at that time were teammates and friendship, not someone questioning whether we belonged. I would have proudly stood next to and played with or against any trans athlete. And I stand by that statement today.

With regard to AB103:

As a former teacher, I find that one of the most important things we can do for kids is trust them. They take on tough materials and complicated topics better than they ever get credit for. And it is that trust that allows them to learn well, to be themselves, to build strong relationships with parents and teachers. Punitively threatening to control or undermine things that they already know about themselves only creates distrust. It is dangerous to mental health, and legislating this kind of deeply personal and particular matter is a level of governmental overreach that is unprecedented.

As a Wisconsin constituent, I urge the committee to vote no on both bills. You are welcome to reach back out to me at this email address with any follow-ups or questions.

Thank you for reading,

Statement of Opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103:

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100, the proposed transgender athlete ban, and Assembly Bill 103, which would restrict the rights of transgender students to use their correct names and pronouns. These bills are not only unnecessary but potentially devastating to an already vulnerable population.

Impact on Mental Health and Suicide Risk:

We cannot ignore the severe mental health implications of such discriminatory legislation. According to data from the Trevor Project, 85% of transgender and nonbinary youth report that political attacks on their identity have negatively impacted their mental health. More alarmingly, studies consistently show that transgender youth experience disproportionately high rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidal ideation compared to their cisgender peers. When we exclude young people from activities fundamental to social development and well-being, and deny them the basic dignity of being addressed by their correct names and pronouns, we compound these risks. Transgender youth who feel supported in their identity and included in school activities show significantly better mental health outcomes. By contrast, exclusionary policies increase feelings of isolation and rejection - precisely the factors that contribute to the heartbreakingly high suicide attempt rates among transgender youth.

The Reality of Transgender Participation in Sports:

AB100 purports to solve a problem that simply doesn't exist at scale. Transgender youth represent approximately 1.4% of the youth population, and only a fraction of these young people participate in competitive sports. In states that have already implemented inclusive policies for years, there has been no evidence of widespread competitive advantage or disruption. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association already has thoughtful policies in place to ensure fair competition while being inclusive of transgender athletes. This bill represents unnecessary government overreach into decisions best left to athletic associations, schools, medical professionals, and families.

Benefits of Inclusion vs. Costs of Exclusion:

Sports participation provides all youth with critical opportunities for physical health, teamwork, leadership development, and social connection. For transgender youth specifically, inclusion in sports can be life-affirming, offering a place of belonging during a challenging developmental period. The supposed "costs" of inclusion have been greatly exaggerated. When implemented with appropriate guidelines, transgender inclusion in sports preserves both competitive fairness and the dignity of all athletes. By contrast, the costs of exclusion are concrete and severe: increased mental health risks, decreased physical activity, lost educational opportunities, and the message to transgender youth that they don't belong in our communities. Similarly, AB103's restrictions on name and pronoun use would create hostile learning environments where transgender students are constantly misgendered, undermining their sense of safety and belonging in educational settings that should be supportive for all students. I urge this committee to reject both of these harmful bills and instead focus on policies that support the well-being of all Wisconsin youth. Every child deserves to participate fully in school life, including sports, and to be recognized for who they truly are, regardless of gender identity. Our transgender youth are watching to see if you will stand up for their rights to simply be kids - playing the sports they love and being addressed with the basic respect all students deserve.

On behalf of the LGBT Center of SE Wisconsin, we oppose the passing of AB 100/103, which prohibits trans athletes in Wisconsin from participating in college and K-12 sports that align with their gender identity.

It is discriminatory to prevent trans athletes from competing on the teams and in the individual events that align with their gender identity. Discrimination has no place in athletics. Period.

Athletics is about inclusivity, setting individual goals, working as a team, and creating confidence and a sense of well-being. If we think that winning is the only goal of college athletics, we have lost the purpose of 18-21-year-olds competing in sports.

The real losers of this bill will be all female athletes, especially those who don't conform to gender norms regardless of whether they are cisgender, transgender, or gender non-conforming. Preventing trans athletes from competing will mean you have to test. That would be an invasive procedure to determine genitalia, chromosomes, and other features that an athletic director would use against anyone they chose. That is disgusting and violates human rights.

There is also a perception that trans women athletes will always have a more competitive advantage than cisgender women. This is not true. It is a sexist statement that doesn't acknowledge the strength, agility, and determination that most cisgender female collegiate athletes have. Look at the WNBA, professional softball teams, the Olympics, and other elite athletes. Don't use this as a way to discriminate against trans athletes.

Trans athletes deserve the same access to competition, to the joys of being involved with a team, and to growing in their confidence and physical and emotional health. There is no better correlation between the intent of athletics and acceptance.

To deny the rights of college athletes the right to participate is not right.

To the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Thomas Twiton, a resident of Madison, ZIP 53719. I am writing to testify my opposition to the Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I have lived in Wisconsin since my family moved here in 2007 when I was in the fourth grade, and attended school through high school in Wisconsin and returned to Madison for my career. School is such an important time of development, and kids and young adults need to be uplifted, protected, and given every opportunity to grow and succeed, not discriminated against and denied the space to be who they are. Transgender and non-binary youth need our support in being fully who they are.

I have a niece and nephew who will be in the Wisconsin school system. It is so important to me that that school system cherishes and uplifts all its students, rather than hating and suppressing some of them. I have friends and loved ones who are transgender or non-binary, and these discriminatory bills make them feel unwelcome in our state. Please do not push forth this agenda of hate on our children, and instead let them know that all children are loved and valued and given opportunity to be their authentic selves in our state.

Thank you,
Thomas Twiton

To of the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jennifer Streit from Madison – 53717. I am a public school teacher and a parent of two daughters enrolled in public school writing in opposition of AB100 and AB103. I also identify as cisgender, straight, and Christian.

I believe trans athletes should be allowed to play on the sport teams and use locker rooms that align with their gender identity. I have no problem with my daughters sharing a locker room and being on the field with trans athletes. Trans athletes need to be accepted for who they are - real, good humans - just like anll other people.

Trans students deserve the right to use the name and pronouns that they identify with in our schools. As a teacher, I have seen the significant impact on using the preferred names and pronouns of my students. Students feel safe, seen, valued, and respected when we address them in the way they want to be addressed. I see students' confidence grow when they are allowed that autonomy, and I believe lives have been saved as a result of this policy.

My goddaughter is a trans girl who loves soccer. When I watch her play, she is peaceful, happy and free on the field with her girl teammates. She's accepted for who she is - I honestly don't know if her teammates know she is trans. If she were to have to start playing with a boys team, she would be outed and most certainly treated differently. Or maybe she will make the difficult choice to discontinue playing and a part of her soul will die. I fear that her life, and the lives of other trans athletes, would be at stake -emotionally, and physically.

Keep all kids safe. Do not pass AB100 and AB103.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Julie Guckenberg. I live in Wauwatosa, in the 53213 zip code, in Wisconsin Assembly District 13 and Senate District 5. I have lived in Wisconsin for over 14 years. I have 2 kids who attend public schools in Wauwatosa, and I am deeply concerned with the proposed AB103 and AB100.

I am writing to urge you to vote against these bills, AB100 and AB103. These bills harm children and deny them equal opportunity. Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trying to legislate the experiences of children in our schools will serve only to belittle them. For the same reasons that a child may prefer to be called "Peggy" rather than a given or legal name of Margaret, a transgender child may be comfortable being addressed by a name other than their legally given name.

Transgender kids deserve to be addressed in school by the name and pronouns they use at home and with their friends. By denying their educators the right and ability to address them in this way, you are denying these kids their autonomy and basic respect. You are denying them the right to be addressed in a manner that makes them feel seen, heard, and valued.

The second bill would deny children the right to participate in sports. Every child, whether cisgender or transgender, should have the opportunity to participate in sports if they so choose. This opportunity should not require them to deny who they are, nor should it subject them to discrimination and ridicule by having to identify as trans. This proposed bill would actively harm trans kids, and make all kids less safe. It is a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on children. The fact that a group of adults would seek to attack a small group of children is sickening. You should be ashamed of yourselves.

Trans kids are not trying to make a statement by requesting that their teachers respect them enough to use their pronouns and their preferred name in class. They are simply seeking the same respect afforded to their cisgender classmates.

In the same way, trans kids seeking to play sports are not trying to make a statement. They simply want to be afforded the same rights and respect as their cisgender classmates or teammates, in allowing them an opportunity to play the sport and pursue their own athletic talents.

I urge you to side with human decency and vote against both of these bills.

Sincerely,
Julie Guckenberg

Dear Assembly Committee on Education Members,

As a proud lifelong Wisconsinite and former public school educator, I vehemently oppose Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills stand contrary to the Wisconsin motto of "Forward" and our strong progressive history, and will only harm the young people of our great state.

During my tenure as a Wisconsin public educator and now as an arts educator for Wisconsin non-profits, I see every day the positive impact respecting children for who they are and valuing each unique child can have on young lives. I have worked with many children who use names and pronouns that are different from those assigned to them at birth. Calling them by their names and by correct pronouns is the most basic of ways that I show respect as an adult in their lives. It is that simple: I respect them and value them, and I want them to know it.

To force educators to use names and pronouns that do not match a child's identity is denying them the basic respect all humans deserve and shows them that school is not a safe place for them. With school shootings and lockdown drills making our children afraid for their lives, shouldn't they at least be able to feel that school is a safe place just to be who they are? It may seem like a small thing, but to that young person, it can be everything.

Also, in all my years as an educator, I have seen how much participation in extracurriculars can be a worthwhile and powerful experience for students. Students who are in a sport, or a play, or clubs, or any other activity are more invested in the school experience. They find community, they learn new skills, they expand their circle of trusted adults, they are more invested in academics, and they discover more about who they are. Denying this opportunity to students because of their gender identity is just wrong. Why should only cisgender young people have the experience of being on a team?

I remember several years ago, working as part of the production team at a local high school. We had several students who were gender non-conforming. The students used the dressing rooms that worked for them. Their peers had no ill-will, no fear, no anger about sharing their dressing rooms. Those few students who were given the opportunity to be in spaces that felt right to them appreciated it so much; they felt seen. Don't we all just want to be seen for who we are? Why should only those of us who just happen to identify with the gender we were assigned at birth be the only ones who get to feel that way?

According to a study published in fall of 2024 in the journal Nature Human Behavior, the rates of suicide attempts among trans and gender nonconforming youth who live in states that passed laws aimed at these minors saw a marked increase up to 72%. Do you want the blood of Wisconsin children on your hands? Because young people will lose hope in the face of their government telling them they should not exist. And some of them will choose to no longer.

Passing these bills would risk the lives of children and teens in our state. All children deserve to live, to be educated in a place that values who they are, and to thrive. These bills will make that impossible for some of the most brave, beautiful, and vulnerable young people in Wisconsin.

Please reconsider these harmful pieces of legislation.

Thank you.

My name is Krista Eastman. I'm a lifelong Wisconsinite living in Madison (53715), and I strongly oppose AB 100 and AB 103.

Trans kids have the right to live, play, and exist as their authentic selves everywhere, including in schools. As a parent, I strongly object to these bills. Every day I strive to teach my kid about the dignity and worth of all human beings and about the role we all must play in creating communities that do not discriminate. These bills fly in the face of those values - they are ugly, hateful, and small - and they choose fear mongering over real information.

Our schools should be protecting kids from hate and discrimination, not carrying out discriminatory practices dictated to them by lawmakers with canned political agendas and little to no experience of trans people or trans issues.

The people of Wisconsin recognize that trans kids have rights. We understand that trans kids are not a threat and we see trans kids for the gift that they are.

Thank you,

Re: Assembly bill 100 and 103,
And my opposition to both

I have 14 year-old grandchild.

For the past year, they have requested family and friends use they/ them, when referring to that grandchild. They have also adopted a gender-neutral Nick-name which I use, at their request.

I love this grandchild to the moon.

I am 76 years old. I cannot say I understand their request.- but u honor it, because they are family and I love them.

I am a practicing Roman Catholic, but am schooled enough to know that it is a fact (a FACT) that not all people have chromosomes which are "only" XX or XY.

It is amazing what variety actually exists.

We are who we are.

I am Who I am.

My grandchild (an honor student, musician and all around good person) is who they are.

Being a teen is hard enough in 2025- as witnessed by mental health statistics for this age group.

Passage of these discriminatory bills would only make it worse.

To Whom It May Concern,

As a parent, ally, and teacher, I vehemently oppose any bill that removes gender affirming recognition. These bills are mean and homophobic. It harms absolutely no one for a child to use a preferred pronoun. And there have always been transgender athletes in sports, they just weren't able to live their lives as their authentic selves. You are targeting children from simply living their lives, full stop.

I encourage you to vote against AB 100 & AB 103.

Trans people are just the same as all the rest of us and deserve to be treated with respect and kindness. Allowing the government to control what they can and can't do should not be allowed. It should be the trans person themselves who decides what pronouns they want to use and what name they want to be called by. Trans people should also be allowed to participate in activities that align with their gender identity. Being basically forced to do activities that don't align with the trans person's gender identity is just cruel. I hope you consider to not sign these bills into law and please treat transgender people with all the respect they deserve.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns. I have lived in Wisconsin for 44 years, serve our community as a psychologist, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, dignified, caring and education free from harassment and discrimination.

These bills wrongly alienate children and young people and put trans youth at more risk for harassment and discrimination. As a parent I am NOT at all concerned with trans kids being in sports that are congruent with their gender identity and using bathrooms that they feel safe in. Trans kids like my kids deserve to feel safe and protected by our government. These bills target a small percentage of the population in such a way that is demoralizing and denigrating. I would never want my own children to be treated this way. I also know from a psychological perspective and research supports that protecting rights of trans individuals supports mental health and lessens risks for other problems later in life. I oppose these bills for the harm they can cause and as a parent who knows trans kids and whose job it is to protect kids.

Hello,

Regarding Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103, it is so important for children to be allowed to be themselves and not have their identities taken away or quashed. The more someone is allowed to be themselves in ways that don't hurt others (and using your own pronouns and playing sports never hurts others) the more that person will be able to feel comfortable in the world and be less likely to suffer from depression and suicidal ideation. Please do not allow these bills to pass. Thank you for protecting all students rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jen Schanen-Materi, and I am a social worker, and someone who deeply cares for and supports my loved ones who are transgender. I am writing to strongly oppose AB100 and AB103, bills that would restrict the rights of transgender athletes and students.

As a social worker, I have seen firsthand the profoundly positive impact that inclusive policies have on the mental and emotional well-being of youth. Conversely, these bills would harm our young community members by denying them the right to participate in sports and access facilities that align with their gender identity. They would also strip away their ability to be recognized by their name and pronouns in schools, an essential aspect of affirming their identity and fostering a safe and supportive environment.

These bills would create an environment of hostility and fear for transgender individuals, denying them the right to exist authentically and feel valued for who they are. Further, it has been shown that even when such bills fail, simply having these political debates has a negative effect on LGBTQ+ youth mental health.

My goal as a mother and social worker is thus: to help people feel like themselves. Likewise, transgender youth deserve to grow up in a world where they can be who they are without fear of being rejected or marginalized by the very institutions that should be supporting them.

As a bisexual person and social worker, I believe in the importance of standing up for equality, justice, and the dignity of all people. I oppose these bills because they go against these values. We cannot allow anti-LGBTQ+ legislation to make life harder for trans youth, athletes, and students—people who deserve to live freely, to play, and to be seen for who they truly are.

Please do not pass these harmful bills. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing with deep concern regarding AB100 and AB103, and I urge you not to pass either bill. Transgender students deserve to be treated with dignity and respect and allowed to participate in sports and be addressed using the pronouns and names they prefer. As a teacher in Milwaukee for nearly ten years, I have never witnessed a single instance in which refusing to use a student's preferred pronouns and name has improved the learning environment either for the student or their peers; on the contrary, refusing to address students as they wish erodes relationships and creates a hostile environment in which the student is unable to achieve their greatest potential. If these laws pass, they will directly injure my students and prevent me from treating my students with the respect and dignity they deserve.

Once again, I urge you: please do not pass these bills.

There is no room for hatred and ignorance in schools or the law.

Kattarina Kaybee
Regarding the Assembly Committee on Education
March 4th, 2025

My name is Kat Kaybee and I am a resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am testifying against Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. I was an elementary teaching assistant at a character-education-based charter school for four years, and I'm a trans/non-binary adult who was out to my school community - teachers, students, and parents alike. I am sickened by the lack of compassion and understanding being shown in these bills, and the insertion of the government in the private business of individuals.

During my time in the classroom, I interacted with hundreds of different students. A handful of these children were trans/non-binary, but for most students, I was the first out trans person that they met. Let's talk about me as a trans adult in that space. Do you want to know what impact my transness had on them? For cis students, it made them aware of another type of person they can encounter in the world. It confused them sometimes, just like any new piece of information might confuse someone as they add that information to what they already know, but that's to be expected as kids learn about new things in the world. But for trans students, my transness gave them an adult they could trust and be honest with about their inner feelings of self - someone who actually understood what they were going through.

Transness is being talked about as this big, scary, deviant "other" when it's just another way of being. The trans/non-binary children who passed through my classroom were just like any other kid. They had homework to worry about, soccer tryouts to practice for, piano lessons they were dreading, friends who ate lunch with them every day... And teachers who loved them and wanted to provide a caring, nurturing environment for them to grow to be their best selves. For some kids, that's going to mean social transitioning, a.k.a. going by a different name and different pronouns. And some kids who want to start that social transition don't have adults at home who would respond with care and nurturing like their teacher would. This is what adults who are afraid of children transitioning are missing.

There are countless situations where the only adult a child trusts is at school, for whatever the reason may be. Likewise, there are important, overlooked reasons that some children are asking teachers to call them a new name/new pronouns without asking their parents the same thing. These kids are having to do the hardest and saddest thing a kid could ever have to do - weigh whether or not their adult at home is a safe adult or not. I know that sounds harsh against those parents - I know that those parents are worrying about what is best for their child. They fear permanent change that'll be regretted, or they fear damnation, or they simply fear something they're unfamiliar with. But outing a kid to parents who would keep their kid from transitioning doesn't make the feelings of transness go away - it puts them in danger, and pushes them away further, showing them exactly who they can and can't trust with their truest self. If a kid doesn't want their parents to know they are trans, the issue isn't the teachers at school "hiding" this information. The issue is parents who let fear overcome their responsibility to love UNCONDITIONALLY. Why does that kid not want their parents to know? What resources can we provide to support children who don't feel safe to be themselves at home and who don't feel that trust with their guardian? What resources can we provide their guardians? Why do we think banning the change of names and pronouns in schools will make children "safer" when it'll just cut us off from them even further, and leave them vulnerable, hurting, and lost, stuck in a space where they have to worry about personal safety and their rights as an individual, instead of homework and piano lessons? Why are we continuing to believe false claims that trans athletes are taking over sports and introducing bills that will alienate, harm, and dehumanize ALL children - not just trans ones - who just want to play sports and have fun? What actual concrete evidence shows these bills are necessary and not just a Republican attempt to control, belittle, and eliminate a group of people that they have such a baffling hate for?

Children's lives will be put into jeopardy if we rip away these rights to individual privacy and individual determination. Government doesn't get a say in this. Government doesn't NEED a say in this. Fight against Assembly Bills 100 and 103 and stop the misunderstanding and unjustified fear-mongering.

I appreciate your consideration of this testimony in these matters.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Justin Marquez, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting this written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I do not want any child to feel unsafe and unwanted simply because of who they are or how they see themselves. In school, I had a couple friends who identified as transgender and it was hard to watch others disregard their identity, whether intentionally or not. Living each day having to face ignorance or malice must be incredibly tiring and sad, and I do not want kids today to have to experience what they did. I now identify as transgender as well, and I am fortunate to be a part of a loving and accepting community. All I want is for trans kids to find their own community, and to not be alienated due to legislation.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. Enacting these bills will enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB100 and 103.

Thank you,
Justin Marquez

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Rev. Rachel Young Binter and I am a resident of Milwaukee, residing at 1830 N 51st Street, 53208. I am also the mother of a trans daughter and served as a pastor to many trans and non-binary youth in my former call as a Lutheran campus pastor at UW-Milwaukee.

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103, which would strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

These bills actively discriminate against and harm children born with a whole body that does not conform to the gender assigned to them at their birth based on a part of their body. These bills also actively dismiss the science that documents that there is and always has been gender diversity within the chromosomes, hormones, brains, and organs of human beings and that this means intersex, non-binary, and transgender people have always existed within the human population.

Children within these minority populations already face tremendous obstacles in navigating the world and society, with 82% of all transgender individuals having considered suicide and a full 40% attempting. A recent peer reviewed study by the Trevor Project found that suicide attempts increase as much as an additional 72% for transgender and gender nonconforming teenagers in states that pass anti-transgender laws aimed at minors.

As a mother and pastor to trans people, these numbers are not abstract to me. They represent gifted, beautiful young people that I know and love - many of whom almost did not make it as they fought to find their way in a world that is fearful and turned against them. They include my own most precious child, who I carried into existence through my own body, held at my chest as my first born, and have loved since her first breath. My daughter is funny and smart and adored by her family and friends. She gives back to our community daily in the challenging work she does compassionately caring for vulnerable populations of people in the emergency room of a local hospital. She is an advocate for the least among us, as taught to her by her pastor mother, the congregations in which she grew up, and the teachings of Jesus Christ. She grounds my life with her wisdom and makes me a better Christian every day through the witness of her own courage.

Like so many parents of trans children, however, I almost lost her as she faced the struggle of coming out. She knew I would advocate for her life, but she knew the rest of the world would not, and it was the hardest thing she has ever done, but she knows if she hadn't done it, she wouldn't be alive. She is here and contributing to the world with power and grace because she has chosen to stop fighting who God created her to be and has finally allowed others to see her as I trust God has always seen her. Yet I constantly live with the fear that someone will beat her or take her life because we live in a society that is demonizing her very existence. There is nothing holy about denying people the right to exist as God created them to be. Jesus, in the Gospel of Matthew, says of the gender nonconforming people of his time, the eunuchs, "For there are eunuchs who were born that way, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others—and there are those who choose to live like eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. The one who can accept this should accept it."

I don't know why government officials feel they can legislate against people Jesus himself accepted and against a biblical witness that uplifts again and again our need to love and care for those who are vulnerable in our society. I don't know why the life of my daughter and other children, who it is proven will gain strength to live by being able to play sports with friends and be called by the names and pronouns that affirm their innermost being, are being actively targeted by laws that will take their lives away from them. I don't know why sports are considered more holy than the life of a human being, especially when people of all genders have widely different levels of strength, agility, and capacity. (I can assure you, my daughter would be no threat on any sports team, even before estrogen decreased her strength and muscle mass). I don't know why scientific knowledge of the diversity of humankind is being ignored in order to punish innocent children who want to thrive in the bodies given to them.

This legislation is cruel and defies what has proven to be true, which is that the lives of gender nonconforming children are stabilized by even one caring adult or institution. As a mother who lives every day swallowing down the fear that her child will come to harm in a world mounting against her and that I will face the greatest fear of her life being taken away from me, I beg you to oppose this legislation. I beg you on behalf of myself, I beg you on behalf of the two other women I work with with trans children and every parent of a trans child, and I beg you on behalf of our society that needs the gifts our children bring to the world. In my many years of campus ministry, it was so often my trans and nonbinary students who brought the biggest and most caring hearts into the room, because they knew how life saving it was to have someone care for them and this is true of my child as well. I believe this is why Jesus tells us that salvation will come from the least among us. May we listen to him and protect those who carry in their very holy, God-created bodies our own path into the kingdom of heaven.

Sincerely,

Rev. Rachel Young Binter

Subject: Opposition to AB100 and AB103 – Protecting the Rights and Dignity of Transgender Students

Dear Members of the Wisconsin State Legislature,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103, two bills that would harm transgender students in Wisconsin by restricting their participation in sports and limiting their ability to be recognized by their chosen names and pronouns in schools. These measures not only violate fundamental principles of equality and dignity but also place undue government interference in deeply personal matters that should be handled with compassion, not legislation.

Every child deserves to be treated with respect and fairness, and these bills send a dangerous message that transgender youth are unwelcome or unworthy of the same rights as their peers. Studies have shown that affirming a child's gender identity reduces rates of depression, anxiety, and suicide. By enacting policies that single out and discriminate against trans students, Wisconsin would be ignoring the overwhelming evidence that acceptance and inclusion create safer, healthier communities. Additionally, these bills undermine the autonomy of local school districts, teachers, and parents, inserting state lawmakers into private decisions that should be made by those who best understand and care for each individual student. Restricting the use of correct names and pronouns not only disrespects transgender students but also sets a dangerous precedent of government overreach into educational spaces.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103 and instead focus on policies that support all Wisconsin students. Our state should be a place where every child—regardless of gender identity—feels safe, valued, and empowered to thrive. Please stand on the right side of history and protect the dignity and rights of transgender youth.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will choose to affirm Wisconsin's commitment to equality and fairness.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Drew Kohrs and I live in Fitchburg, Wisconsin. I oppose both AB 100 and AB 103 bills. Transgender and gender non-conforming students deserve an opportunity to play amateur sports. These bills are a cruel attempt to further isolate kids who already feel different.

In research published by Kaiser Permanente, transgender youth are more likely to be diagnosed with mental health conditions than young people who identify with the gender they were assigned at birth. A team sport could be the support one kid needs to feel included!

Getting the opportunity to play, and to compete, and to grow as a person? Everyone should have access to that.

Thank you,

Dear Legislator,

As a citizen of Wisconsin, I'm again demanding that you respect our youth as each human has the right to be cared for and nurtured.

RE AB 100: Denying young people their right to play on sports teams is preposterous. There are so many better things to legislate, for example, keeping guns out of the hands of people who would use them to hurt others in Wisconsin. AB100 prevents children from developing their social and physical skills. They need those skills to thrive as citizens, consumers and taxpayers. All young people deserve to play sports. Let's be adults about this and stop trying to control people. It's ridiculous.

RE AB103: Every person has the right to be addressed in a respectful manner. This starts in childhood, when young people begin to develop autonomy. In our FORWARD-thinking neighbor to the south, Chicago, students are addressed with the names and pronouns they prefer. This allows them to concentrate on their school work, get better grades and grow up to be citizens and consumers that contribute to society.

Giving the children the rights they are owed will happen. Younger generations don't trifle with such nonsense and soon they'll be in your position.

Good morning,

As a resident of Thiensville WI, a practicing healthcare professional, and a concerned parent, I am writing to declare my opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. These proposals represent the willful ignorance and abject hatred of bigots seeking to alienate and intimidate marginalized children. Such heavy-handed measures will do little but create fear, perpetuate discrimination, and legitimize violence. This is unacceptable.

I ask you as an active voting constituent, to please reject AB 100 and AB 103.

Regarding AB100 and AB103
6 March 2025

Hello, I'm Amie Hoag, and I've lived in Wisconsin most of my life. I've chosen to raise my daughter here because I know the people of Wisconsin are some of the most genuinely kind people on the planet. What is represented in AB100 and AB103 does not represent Wisconsin.

I'm reading a book called An Immense World by Ed Yong. This book explores the senses of the animal kingdom, laying out the way mammals, birds, insects, fish, and reptiles experience the world around them, and how different it is from the way humans experience that same world. It even goes so far to explore how human beings experience some senses, like the sense of smell, in wholly unique ways. For some people, for example, sweaty gym socks smell like vanilla. Imagine that. Doesn't smell like vanilla to me.

Why am I talking about sweaty gym socks when we're talking about transgender kids in Wisconsin? Because this is just one illustration of how each one of us experiences this vast and mysterious world in our own unique way, and it's harmful to assume that the way I experience the world is the only way to experience the world — or the right way to experience the world.

This legislation, AB100 and AB103, take aim at a remarkably vulnerable part of our population. Children are already naturally vulnerable, and children who are being told they can't be who they know at their core they are? Well, they are the ones we need to protect the most.

These pieces of legislation amount bullying for that vulnerable population and fear-mongering for the broader population. I took a look at the numbers.

- * According to the Williams Institute at UCLA, 0.6% of the US population age 13 and older identifies as transgender.
- * In Wisconsin, there are a little more than 412,000 middle and high school students, about 7% of our state's total population of 5.961 million.
- * If you apply that nation-wide percentage to the middle and high school populations in Wisconsin, that means we have about 2,472 transgender students in the state of Wisconsin, which amounts to about 0.04% of our state's total population.
- * Let's go a little further. Wisconsin has 359 middle schools and 514 high schools, for a total of 873. That means there is an average of fewer than 3 transgender students at each school. Hardly enough to make a sports team out of, and certainly not a burden to learn the preferred names of.

Now, I know that transgender numbers are certainly underreported — and who could blame a kid for hesitating to share who they really are in an environment like this? But if you take those numbers at face value, that means this body is targeting 0.04% of our state's population, an average of less than 3 kids per school. If that isn't bullying, what is?

Laws like these not only make our state less safe for this small population of vulnerable kids, they make it less safe for every single person. Because where will you draw the line? How about you draw it right here and vote no on this discriminatory and bigoted legislation.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

To the members of the Committee on Education,

As a cisgender female, I do not fear my transgender siblings nor competing with them. Furthermore, I am fully capable of taking care of myself in all situations and do not need your so-called "protection" of me.

AB100 would prohibit those assigned as males on their birth certificates from participating in sports usually ascribed to females. AB100 would also prohibit males from access to locker rooms assigned to females.⁸⁸ I⁹⁹

While on its face these may seem reasonable, the reality is quite different. Further consideration of both bills indicates a troubling, and unnecessary, point-of-view that females are in need of protection from males. If this is not the case, why did you not propose a similar bill prohibiting those assigned as females from participating in sports usually ascribed to males? Let me be very clear that I would oppose such a bill as a violation of Title IX and the Senate rejection of a bill excluding transgender students from school sports (<https://www.aclu.org/press-releases/senate-rejects-bill-excluding-transgender-students-from-school-sports>.)

AB103 would require schools and their staffs to address students solely by their legal name as stated on their birth certificate and refer to students using solely pronouns that are consistent with the gender ascribed to them on their birth certificate. This would shut down students' process of inquiry into who they are and who they want to be and isn't restricted to names and pronouns but also education and career paths. AB103, which would restrict the speech of students, their families, teachers, and other school staff, based solely on content of such speech, is also likely a violation of the First Amendment.

For all of the reasons stated above, please do NOT go forward with AB100 and AB103.

Thank you.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB103 and AB100, both of which unfairly target transgender and gender non-conforming youth in Wisconsin. These bills create harmful barriers for students by restricting the use of preferred names and pronouns (AB103) and by prohibiting trans youth from participating in school sports consistent with their gender identity (AB100).

As a community member and advocate for youth well-being, I have multiple friends with transgender children, and I fear for their mental health and overall well-being if they are denied the right to be seen, respected, and included. Schools should be safe spaces where all students feel supported and valued, not places where their identities are erased or restricted. Denying students the ability to use their chosen names and pronouns isolates them, increases their risk of anxiety and depression, and sends a harmful message that they do not belong.

Furthermore, barring transgender youth from participating in school sports strips them of essential experiences—teamwork, confidence, and a sense of belonging—that should be available to all students. Research consistently shows that when trans youth are affirmed in their identities, their mental health outcomes improve significantly, while exclusionary policies cause lasting harm.

I urge you to oppose AB103 and AB100 and instead focus on policies that support the well-being of all Wisconsin students. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Hello to the Assembly Committee of Education,

Thank you for your time today. My name is Emma Cholip and I'm a resident in Madison, Wisconsin. I'm writing this testimony to ensure the protection and inclusivity of trans youth. Particularly, this is in regards to their right to be in athletics and unfair legislation aggressively singling out this small portion of students because of their gender.

I am not a student athlete anymore, but the team spirit and inherent community that comes with being a part of a sports team, especially during formative years is immensely important for forming relationships and sportsmanlike conduct. Being a part of a team is a special experience that no one should be excluded from, especially not for their gender or transness. It helped shape me, a nonbinary person, into a more empathetic, well rounded person when I was with people who shared the same passion as me, and actively wanted me to be there.

Encouraging the exclusion of students who already feel alienated from the growing anti-trans climate in the United States is detrimental not only to the trans students, but to everyone alongside them as well. Our communities are only as strong as our weakest members; those who are most likely to experience violence, incarceration, and in the worst cases, suicide and homicide. The more we push trans youth to the side and allow them to suffer under the violent rhetoric that exists in these anti-trans bills being put forth, the more we're condemning ourselves to further division.

This testimony is for everyone who is no longer here to speak on it. To those who have been killed, merely for their existence. To those who ended their own life in fear of never being able to live as their authentic self. To those who are living on the streets, or homeless shelters, scorned by their families who failed to keep their promise of unconditional love. I am speaking for them, because I am able to, and they are not.

Do not let these anti-trans bills pass, do not give up on these children who are in the greatest need of support. They deserve to be protected. They deserve to be loved. They deserve to be included as they are, not who everyone wants them to be.

I deeply oppose bills AB100 and AB103, and can only stress that it will cause more pain. Do not let them continue on.

Thank you for your time.

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a trans/nonbinary Wisconsinite, I strongly oppose the proposed bills AB100 and AB103. The moral panic around trans kids is appalling and reactionary, and those who will be impacted by this bill are deeply vulnerable youth who will be made to feel even more ashamed of their existence than they already do. I suffered due to a lack of inclusivity in school and am saddened to see those in power fighting to intensify the oppressiveness of the environment. If you claim to support our state's youth, understand that these bills will cosign hatred and violence against those perceived as 'other' and the suicide rate among LGBT people will raise from its already horrifying level. Our lives are in your hands; please make the right choice.

To the Members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

I am writing in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. I am a nurse practitioner and certified nurse-midwife and have worked with many transgender patients and provided education and training to staff on transgender healthcare throughout my career. Additionally, I count a number of transgender individuals as dear friends.

It is well established among major medical organizations that gender affirming care is life saving care. Often one of the first steps a transgender individual takes towards gender affirmation is using pronouns and/or a name that aligns with their gender. Perhaps you have never known a transgender individual, perhaps you have never seen the joy and relief when their most basic request about their bodily autonomy is respected and honored. Perhaps also, you have never seen the harm it can do to be denied this respect. I ask you to consider how it would feel for you to be called by a name or pronoun that does not align with your personal sense of who you are - it is no different for transgender folks.

In a perfect world all transgender youth would find love and support from their parents, sadly this is not the world we live in and by requiring educators to deny the identity of their students without explicit parental consent, this bill creates an unnecessary barrier to teacher student trust, student learning and has the potential to cause even greater harm. School may be the only safe place for a student to be out as transgender. Are you aware that transgender youth have higher rates of suicidality than their cisgender peers? Are you also aware that this difference in rates drops dramatically when they are able to live in alignment with their gender?

For all of the reasons listed above I also oppose the restriction of transgender youth from participating in sports that align with their gender. Passing a bill to ban a very small percentage of students from enjoying the experience and opportunities that school sports provide seems unnecessarily cruel. Furthermore, determining the students eligibility for sports based upon "biological sex" bases the law on the false premise that biological sex is easily defined and falls into a binary.

It is my contention that our state legislature could be spending their valuable time and energy addressing issues that support and strengthen the youth of Wisconsin, rather than singling out and stigmatizing a small, already marginalized subset with these bills.

I urge you to side with respect, with bodily autonomy, with safety, and with joy by opposing the passage of Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

Thank You,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 44 years, am a healthcare software tester and vice president of my child's school's Parent Teacher Organization, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Many trans and gender fluid adults I've known have spoken to me about how important sports were for them as children. I also know now a little trans girl who has clearly been a girl since she was 4 years old or earlier. She has always been a girl at school, in Girl Scouts, in the community. Think of a little girl in your life. Now think about telling her that because of the way she was born, she can't play on the team with all her friends. She has to go be the only girl to play on the boys team, and probably face a lot of harassment, if she wants to play sports. If you actually know any trans children, it's very easy to understand the cruelty of a bill like this. As for using the correct name and pronouns for children- it's hard for me to believe this is even a discussion. Of course children should be called by the name and pronouns that identify them.

To whom it may concern,

I am a physician and a scientist. I spent 4 years in medical school, 6 years completing my Master's and Ph.D., and 3 years in residency to train for my work as a primary care provider and educator. I use the strongest evidence and guidelines-based care to help me support my patients' health goals. It is distressing to see proposed laws and policies go against biological facts, scientific evidence, and medical guidelines. I urge you to reject these anti-science, anti-medical, and ultimately anti-child bills, which will put transgender, non-binary, and gender non-conforming children at risk. Schools and sports are supposed to be safe spaces for children, and these bills would make them less safe.

Re: AB100: this bill goes against gender affirming actions for gender diverse children as affirmed and recommended by The American Academy of Pediatrics(1), American Psychiatric Association (2), and American Psychological Association (3).

Re: AB103: this bill is not rational in terms of how gender identity vs sex assigned at birth affects athletic performance. It ostracizes a group of students without bringing benefit to others. See below for a recent and thorough reference analyzing current data on sex assigned at birth vs. athletic performance by Dr. DJ Oberlin of Lehmann College. His conclusion: "...an individual's sex does not determine their success or failure at any athletic event despite the high level of competition."

I hope you will make the right decision to reject these bills and keep some of our most vulnerable children safe from discrimination and isolation from their peers.

Sincerely,

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

As a citizen of Wisconsin, a woman, and a mother, I oppose Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns). Transgender youth deserve the same privacy and rights as cisgender youth. There are no grounds for claiming the trans community is a threat from which society needs protection. Bills restricting their activities and denying the use of their chosen names/pronouns are unwarranted, cruel, and unjust. They only cause harm. Do not pass these bills. Stop these attacks on the trans community. Let them live with the dignity and freedom every person deserves.

Hi,

I am a Wisconsin parent of two boys. When I was a kid, I tried desperately to fit in. Sometimes I wanted to be cool, sometimes I just didn't want to get made fun of, and sometimes I just wanted to blend in. I was like a lot of kids.

My parents loved me. They supported me and gave me lots of opportunities. Even with that love, I didn't always feel comfortable telling them everything, at least not at first (like when I knew I was doing poorly in a class at school, when I crashed my car, when I started dating someone new, etc). But, eventually I would share most of these things with them, because I knew they loved me. I just needed time to figure out how I was feeling about it first and how I wanted to bring it up. I think lots of kids go through this.

If we want kids to be open with parents and heed our advice, we can't legislate the procedures by which these uncomfortable topics must be shared. As a parent, being patient often allows me to hear the most honest story from my own kids and creates a space where they are most open to my opinions.

I think AB100 and AB103 will ultimately make these difficult situations harder for parents to navigate. Kids will be less likely to share how they are feeling with their parents and will be less likely to hear and follow their parents' wisdom.

Please support Wisconsin families and Wisconsin parents and Vote NO.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin resident and mother of two, I am strongly opposed to AB 100 and AB 103. These bills are not about fairness or good governance—they are political attempts to control and shame children.

AB 100 targets transgender youth by banning them from participating in school sports in a way that aligns with their identity. It isolates kids, strips them of opportunities for belonging, and increases the risk of mental health struggles. No child should be told they don't belong simply because of who they are.

AB 103 puts students at risk by forcing schools to disclose personal information about a child's gender identity—regardless of whether it places them in danger at home. This kind of forced outing has real-world consequences, potentially pushing children into unsafe environments and cutting them off from support systems they trust.

Putting aside the ethical implications, Wisconsin legislators should be focused on ensuring that all children feel safe, supported, and able to thrive in school—rather than imposing uniform policies that undermine local educators and administrators, who are best equipped to address the unique needs of their students and communities.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Members of the Wisconsin Assembly,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed anti-transgender legislation AB100/AB103 currently under consideration in Wisconsin. As a former school social worker who served our youth, I have witnessed firsthand the challenges and struggles that transgender and non-binary students face in our schools and communities.

The impact of this legislation on the lives of LGBTQ+ youth in Wisconsin cannot be overstated. In my role, I have seen how critical it is for students to feel accepted and supported in their identities. Anti-trans legislation sends a damaging message that these students are not valued and that their experiences are invalid. This can lead to increased feelings of isolation, anxiety, and depression among young people who are already vulnerable and disproportionately affected by mental health issues.

Moreover, restricting access to necessary supports, such as gender-affirming healthcare and inclusive educational environments, threatens not only the well-being of transgender youth but also their academic success. When students do not feel safe or accepted at school, their ability to learn and thrive is significantly compromised. It has been well-documented that supportive environments lead to better mental health outcomes, higher academic achievement, and overall improved quality of life for LGBTQ+ youth.

Legislation that seeks to undermine the rights of transgender individuals does not reflect the values of inclusivity and respect that we should uphold as a society. Instead of further marginalizing these young people, I urge you to consider policies that promote understanding, acceptance, and equality.

As a committed advocate for the well-being of all students, I implore you to reject any anti-trans legislation and to support measures that foster a safe and supportive environment for every child in Wisconsin, regardless of their gender identity.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter. I hope you will stand with the youth of our state and support their right to exist authentically and with dignity.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Senate Committee on March 6th 10am,

I implore you to not pass bills AB100 and AB103. I oppose both of these bills as this will impact students and their sense of self.

Regarding bill AB103, Students allowing to choose their pronouns and preferred name is no different than allowing students with formal names going by a nickname. A chosen name and/or pronouns allows students to have a better sense of self and identity in the classroom. This should not be prohibitive to what the parents allow. Parents may provide a given name, a birth name, but nicknames and other names come organically. School is hard enough as it is, why would you make a child go by their birth name if they don't want to?

Regarding bill AB100, let the students play! Trans women and girls hinder no other cis women and girls from playing a sport. When I went to Oak Creek High School, I played tennis. The only thing I cared about at that time was enjoying playing the game and was competitive about it. I would have played with anyone who would have played with me. Many school sports are team sports. Let's foster community and let trans women and girls play sports if they do choose. Let's let students play for the love of the game.

Greetings,

I would like to voice my opposition to two anti-trans bills here in Wisconsin. The bills are AB100 and AB103.

Several years ago, I started to notice that people were using their preferred pronouns. As someone born female who presents as a stereotypical female, I did not understand it. I thought it was obvious that I would be a she or a her. But then I educated myself. I started to understand that gender wasn't always about how you look on the outside, but how you feel about yourself on the inside.

I also educated myself on why I should share my preferred pronouns with others. It means that I'm a safe person who respects others. It says to someone, "I support who you are and you matter as a human being." by sharing that I prefer she/her as my pronouns.

Research shows that LGBTQ+ youth are at much higher risk of suicide and self-harm than heterosexual youth, and that is particularly true for trans kids. We should be doing all that we can to make them feel loved and safe. Kids just want to be accepted by those around them — this includes trans kids.

Any bill designed to single them out creates more harm for these kids and puts them in danger. Why are we creating bills that only serve to harm vulnerable people when we could be using that energy to create something that helps others?

Please register my opposition to these anti-trans bills.

I am a retired teacher, commenting on Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. It is a basic human right to be able to participate in sports, and it is a basic human courtesy to call people by the name they choose to be called. I find it shameful that adults would pass bills to deny these rights and courtesies to trans youth for their own political gain. Please don't do that!

To the members of the assembly,

I urge you to oppose bill AB100/ AB103. By restricting trans youth from participating in sports and using chosen pronouns in schools you are only helping further discrimination against trans people. This bill is harmful, degrading, and unethical. As a trans wisconsinite myself, I need you to understand that if this bill passes we come that much closer to fascism, genocide, and suffering on a global scale. These are children. They deserve to have a safe place to grow and be themselves. They deserve to play sports with their friends. Trans kids deserve to become trans adults. I have been a resident of Wisconsin for 10 years now and I love this state. I love our Midwestern hospitality and friendly natures. I want this state to stay vibrant, safe, and welcoming for everyone. Trans people most of all. Leave the kids alone. Do not comply in advance to the horrid decrees Trump is trying to force. Protect the people that live here - all of us. You have the choice of being on the right side of history. Protect trans kids. Protect trans adults. We deserve so much better.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 42 years, have served our community as a social worker and mental health therapist for disabled citizens, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, dignity-affirming, equal, inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

I care so much about children feeling safe to be themselves in our communities. Please help children to feel welcome and understood and affirmed whatever their gender identity.

Thank you so kindly.

Warmly,

My name is Harper DePachter and I am from Brown Deer, WI 53223. I am writing to express my opposition to AB 100 and AB 100. I am a transgender woman educator who taught social studies and science to 5-12th graders. Two weeks ago I lost my teaching position in part of the attack on DEI and transgender individuals. Wisconsin already has a teacher shortage so why are we trying to make it worse? Instead of focusing on improving our education in our schools like our reading and math scores, the elected officials of the Assembly and Senate take it upon themselves to target an extremely small minority group of people and make their lives more difficult.

Lessons can be learned from social studies teachers and the attacks on minority groups in American history. An example is the Declaration of Independence when women, freed blacks, and Native Indigenous people were left out of the identifying as "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." Then when the Constitution was written once again women, freed blacks and Indigenous people were left out of the Constitution to have any rights. It has taken several movements and Constitutional Amendments to start to establish Constitutional rights for minority groups. Each time in American history when a minority group of people is "noticed" by the majority, the majority has the power to create laws to restrict and make the minority group of people's lives more difficult. How is it that we still have not learned from our past and continue to make the same mistakes over and over again? We are ALL human beings. The Constitution says "We the people," transgender men and women are people, or like I say to all my students we are ALL humans.

Transgender humans want to be like any other human being. They have emotions and feelings just like a cis human. In AB 100 it states "Sex" means the sex determined at birth by a physician and reflected on the birth certificate." I have taught science and unless each physician performs a DNA test to determine the actual chromosomal sex, the physical appearance at birth can be deceiving because there are intersex humans. "Intersex is a general term used to refer to individuals born with, or who develop naturally in puberty, biological sex characteristics that are not typically male or female. That is, a person with an intersex condition is born with sex chromosomes, external genitalia, or an internal reproductive system that is not considered typical for a male or female." Examples of chromosomal intersex are XXX, XXY, and X. The expression: don't judge a book by its cover resonates in this context.

As a transgender woman, I wish I had the opportunity to grow up as my authentic self in a safe space; however, growing up in Oostburg Wisconsin, which is a small rural Christian community it was extremely difficult to be my authentic self. I hid for almost 30 years and I caused severe microaggressions on myself because I lived in fear of the hate I would receive. When I came out in 2022 to my family who still live in Oostburg, I received the worst hateful things said to me by my mother, father, brother, sister, and grandparents. I wasn't accepted. I was cast out of the community. I was still human and I was just trying to live as my authentic transgender self and be joyful but for some reason, the beliefs they had were to hate me and attack me because I am different. The Wisconsin State Assembly and Senate are no different than my family attacking me with hateful messages. It is also no different than what the federal government is doing. There is no unity in these bills to make Wisconsin better when it focuses on such a small minority of people. Invest in our future by investing in our families, education, mental health, and our economy. Do not create a problem where there is no problem because then nothing gets accomplished for the people of Wisconsin. There are working lower-class families who are feeling the effects of the Trump administration tariffs and what does this Wisconsin Legislature focus on, AB 100 restricting transgender girls from participating in girl's sports and AB 103 legal name change with pronouns. Nothing in the bills addresses restricting transgender boys from not participating in boy's sports. AB 100 is unconstitutional because it only focuses on only half the population of a minority group. AB 103 violates Title VII.

I have heard from both sides of the aisle of government overreach and the guilty party only has to look in the mirror. Why is the government and politicians so concerned with someone else's life and what they are called based on pronouns? I find it a little hypocritical that the Trump administration and Republicans wants Americans to call the Gulf of Mexico now the Gulf of America. Well, Gulf America is now its chosen name and we can't do that because that is considered DEI. See how ridiculous it sounds out loud when one gets that nit-picky about a name and pronouns. As a teacher who just wants her students to recognize me as a human being trying to be my authentic self and do the job she loves to be called Ms. D., I am not in the classroom to indoctrinate the students, if I was going to do that, I would have indoctrinated all students to complete all school work on time and never get off task. I loved my students and I loved teaching. The real issue has been creating problems for teachers and not letting them do their jobs. Students trust their teachers and teachers provide safe places for students. When I came out in 2022 as a transgender teacher I created a safe place for students; however, colleagues and community members had a different view of me. I was sexually harassed at the school I worked at in 2022 and I was blamed for the sexual harassment. The administration said it was my fault. Once again, they wanted to put the fear into the community that I was a groomer and predator in the classroom. Hateful words were spoken about me that were completely untrue. It's one thing to be an adult and hear these words but imagine a teenager who is transgender who might have to hear these same words said to them. Of course, none of you will ever know what it is like to be transgender. I encourage you to have a conversation with a transgender individual. Actually, have eight different conversations with them before voting on the bill because that is how many times it takes to make an impression on someone.

Transgender people should not see their rights restricted like all other racial, ethnic, and cultural groups and women before them who had to fight for over a hundred years for their rights. It is 2025 and we should be better than its 1789 restricting rights because someone is different. Only the guilty party needs to look in the mirror. Right now AB 100 and AB 103 are bills looking for negatives in a positive and you will get electrocuted. What I mean by that is this, There is always a positive in a negative, but if you look for a negative in a positive you will get electrocuted. These anti-transgender bills are exactly that, looking for a negative thing in positive individuals and trying to make their lives miserable. There are way better solutions than these two bills; however, what we call in education for those in the Wisconsin Assembly and Senate; are those in a fixed mindset and not a growth mindset. Remember this, the Constitution says "We the people," meaning We the humans and we are ALL humans. Treat others how you would like to be treated because I'm pretty sure if the shoe was on the other foot and your majority rights were being restricted you would be upset too. I leave you with this thought to think about as you cast your vote. If these bills pass, I Harper DePagter will be running against you for your seat in 2026. I will not stand for this and I as a transgender human being, I have rights, and if the government does not protect my rights; then I have the right to do something about it by running for office myself and beating you and ousting those that do not uphold the Constitution and my rights. Thank you for taking the time for my testimony.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Lynette Miller, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for fifty-five years. I have been a member of a Christian Church for all those years. There are youth in my church who have identified themselves as transgender or on the LGBTQ+ spectrum. They are very concerned about the way the government is targeting them. Some are even considering moving away.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because legislators are not trained to understand physical and mental sexual identity and are hurting these children and youth. I developed a little understanding about the variety of sexual identities from an acquaintance who studied psychiatry at Columbia University under a professor who worked with parents and babies around the world who were born without a definite sex.

There is great physical and psychological variation in people even in individuals of the same sex. Even if everyone on a team identifies as the same sex, there are going to be some who are better than others. Sports are for physical and social development. It is a place where people can learn to appreciate and work with a variety of people. A good coach will help the members of the team work as a team. Vote no on assembly bill 100.

I think we all want to be called by the name we prefer and be identified by the pronouns we associate with. Vote NO on assembly bill 103.

These bills discriminate against a group of people instead of treating people as individuals. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

Sincerely, Lynette Miller

I am writing to express my opposition to AB100 and AB103.

I am the coparent of a wonderful young trans woman. She's intelligent, athletic, kind, gentle, and empathetic. She's a human being who's working to become a contributing, caring, and productive member of society. The bills being proposed are an attempt to strip my daughter, and other transgender children, of their humanity and right to exist as who they are. We—and it's no secret to any of us, including members of this body—know that rates of suicide amongst queer and transgender children are statistically higher when compared to other children. I've already started mourning the needless deaths by suicide that will occur because of bills such as these. I've already started mourning the irreparable mental harm these bills will have on our children. My daughter is loved and cared for, and despite the hatred purported by these bills, will be loved and supported by her parents who will do anything to protect her and to make sure she grows into the empowered woman she is. Other children won't be so lucky.

The State of Wisconsin has an opportunity to distinguish itself from other states and the federal government and to come out in support of our transgender children, family members, friends, and neighbors. Please—don't be a party to the death of our children. Vote no on these bills.

My name is Dani O'Brien, and I am professor of education in Ashland, WI. My research and work focus on making schools safe, supportive spaces where all young people can thrive. I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103. These are harmful bills that will no doubt make schools more dangerous for transgender and non-binary students in our state. Queer students, and transgender students in particular, are at an increased risk of suicide. A recent peer reviewed study found that when states pass anti-trans laws suicide attempts among transgender and nonbinary youth increases by up to 72%. If you care about children, and their safety, you must oppose these bills. A 2023 study found that 48% of Wisconsin's LGBT youth have seriously considered suicide and we should be doing all we can to decrease that risk. Regardless of your political party or individual views, I hope you can see the harm that bills targeting transgender and non-binary students causes.

Please help save young Wisconsinites' lives by opposing these bills.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

As a parent, business owner, and advocate in Middleton Cross Plains School District of Dane County, I am writing to you in concern of bills AB100 and AB103 currently being considered, that would ban trans athletes from school sports.

I even more strongly am opposed to the idea that children are no longer allowed to use pronouns to which they feel comfortable with based on their gender identity.

I understand that federal funding may be withheld. However, I believe we as a state need to come together to find alternative funding sources for our schools.

The current administration's bullying tactics are disgusting and unconstitutional. I would encourage law makers and representatives of Wisconsin to not fall susceptible to the authoritarian, racist, xenophobic, homophobic, and exclusion-based leadership.

As a state we must stand strong to protect our children and families. Every child deserves the freedom of unadulterated and uncensored educational opportunities with freedom to express their own identity with respect from staff and peers.

Childhood and adolescence is already a challenging time of learning, growth, and development paired with social pressure and rejection. Our children do not need the additional pressure and stress of being surrounded by hate and targeted for their differences.

Many trans and LGBTQ+ children already face difficult navigation of their identities in families and in their community. They have some of the highest suicide rates of all children and demographics. Children and their families spend the majority of their waking hours at school and involved in school activities.

Taking away this protection in schools is inequitable, and quite frankly appalling. I urge you to carefully consider the consequences of Wisconsin families which should be our ultimate goal.

One aspect that makes Wisconsin unique is the culture of inclusion and community. In trying times we come together and we stand for what is right, regardless of what the rest of the world is doing.

Wisconsin was the first state to ratify the 19th amendment to allow women to vote, setting the precedent for equality within our state, our communities, and our families. We should remain steadfast in this commitment.

I strongly urge you to take this bill off of the table and allow children the safety, dignity, and respect they deserve within their school community.

My name is Noah Leigh and I am the school board president for the West Allis/West Milwaukee School district. However, today I am providing testimony only on behalf of myself, not the entire board of education since this was not a topic we had a chance to discuss as a board.

AB 100 and AB 103 are both bills that I have personal issues with in regards to the damage they could inflict on vulnerable students of my district. However, I am not going to focus on these concerns for my testimony, but keep it much broader in that both of these bills aim to strip my authority as a duly elected school board member for the district I serve and give that authority to the state.

As a school board member, I am elected to represent my constituents in regards to the operation of the West Allis/West Milwaukee et. al. school district. This includes the consideration and creation of policies that govern said school district. Bills AB 100 and AB 103 would force policies on my district, and all other school districts in the state of Wisconsin, circumventing the statutory authority granted to myself as an elected school board member.

As a school board member, there are many concerns that I aim to address in order to improve my district. The topics addressed in AB 100 and AB 103 are not topics that my constituents have brought to myself or the board as topics of concern. However, if these topics were ever a concern for my constituency, I would like the opportunity to address those concerns based on what is best for my district and not be restricted by the state in how to address those concerns.

In conclusion, I believe that AB 100 and AB 103 are an overreach by the state to exert control of decisions that should be made locally by the duly elected officials designated to make those decisions. I guarantee that there is no state representative or senator that understands the needs and concerns of the school district I represent better than myself. I ask that you allow me and my fellow board members to continue to serve our school district as informed by our constituency without interference from the state.

Respectfully,

Noah Leigh, President of the West Allis/West Milwaukee et. al school district"

Hi,

I'm Wyatt Garlow, a Wisconsin resident and a Transgender person who is concerned about the bills AB100 & AB103. As a former transgender student who received education within Wisconsin schools, the possibility of Bills AB100 and AB103 passing into law are worrying to me.

For myself and many others, having the ability to have teachers/faculty use my chosen name and pronouns as well as the ability to play team sports was an extension of my freedom. Even if I was denied the possibility of being called my chosen name and pronouns by one teacher, there were many others that understood the importance and chose to respect my decision.

If Bills AB100 and AB103 are passed, not only are you restricting transgender students freedom of expression, you are creating an unsatisfactory and uncondusive environment for their learning. Students shouldn't have to worry about advocating for themselves the way I had to worry, and I hope my words don't fall on deaf ears.

Thank you for reading my testimony and I hope this may provide some insight.

Thank you,

Hello,

Unfortunately I cannot make it in person, but I strongly oppose Bill AB 100 and AB 103.

At a time when teens in the area are committing suicide in alarming rates, and knowing the high rate of suicide attempts by transgender people, it is horrible that these bills are even introduced. This is nothing more than grandstanding. Who are they protecting? No one. What are they "protecting" from? Reality. Not everyone is the same. That's life.

To single out and ostracize transgender students who are not hurting anyone, and simply trying to live their lives, is horrible.

While racist and homophobic people are being emboldened by the president, I ask you to stand up for what's right.

These bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

Hello,

My name is Drew Laser, and I am a Milwaukee county resident. I am writing to ask the assembly committee not to pass bills AB100 and AB103. Both of these bills are attempts to make life more difficult for trans and queer students. As a trans person myself, I understand the discomfort and pain that students go through when they feel left out and unsupported. There are so few of us, and we ask only for basic respect: to be addressed by the name and pronouns that feel comfortable to us, and to be included in our community. Trans children deserve to feel safe and comfortable at school. Banning trans kids from being in their preferred sports team and making social transition such as a name change or pronoun change a difficult bureaucratic process serves no one, and in fact creates harm. It also seems like it would create confusion — if we have to go through this process for any non-legal name, can no one go by nicknames? These bills are short-sighted attempts to make life even more difficult for a very small group of people who pose no threat and are generally just trying to exist. Please choose to be a kind person and to try to understand and support the people around you.

Thank you,
Drew

Dear members of the Assembly committee on Education ,

My name is Laura Komai, and I am a resident of Madison and business owner in Madison. I have lived in Madison for over 50 years and have always had great pride and love for this state. Unfortunately the Republican party has been testing that. Where is the dedication we had towards the ways that rural and urban communities depend upon each other, for our wonderful natural resources, for the foundation of public schools and access to education for everyone, and the fair treatment of all people? Where is the care for the way that success of our children brings success to our communities and our economy? I'm tired of the ways you are wasting time and resources, targeting innocent people who simply want to live their lives with the freedoms that you would expect for yourselves.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB 100/103. I am opposed to these bills because they interfere with the individual liberties of our children. Is this helping with rural transportation to schools? Is this helping create learning environments that are safe from gun violence? Is this helping with budget shortfalls and failure to keep up with inflation?

I really don't understand why politicians are so concerned with private lives in ways they would not tolerate in their own lives. I hope you will focus your time and attention on matters that will improve fairness and success of all children of Wisconsin.

Hello,

I am writing this testimony against current Wisconsin Bills AB100 and AB103. Hate has no place in our communities as marginalized identities continue to be attacked by the current presidential administration, and as a state, we must do everything in our power to resist the current wave of facism that it has allowed to crop up and allow transgender youth to thrive and have a sense of community and welcomeness in spite of the Federal Government.

To the members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

Thank you for the opportunity to speak about AB100 (K-12 Trans athletic ban) and AB103 (restrictions on the use of pronouns for trans and non-binary youth).

These bills are breathtaking in their scope and the harm they can inflict, with no evidence that their good outweighs this harm.

Only 1.4% of all youth in the US ages 13-17 identify as transgender. I couldn't find statistics for Wisconsin, or national statistics for ages 12 and under. Why do you need AB100 when only a tiny number of youth identify as trans and it is likely that not all of those want to participate in sports? And what business is it of the state to legislate the use of pronouns? Why is it in the state's interest to interfere in this deeply personal part of people's lives? We have much more pressing issues in this state to address.

I want to remind you that it was in the late 1990s, that marriage equality for gay couples a hot button issue. Bills were introduced to ban or support gay marriage, and it was highly politicized. Miraculously, the more we as a nation talked about it, the more we became aware of family members who were gay, and became personal. Now a significant majority of Americans support gay marriage. In 2023, 80% of Wisconsinites approve of it.

Many of us are only recently, becoming aware and educated about what it means to be transgender. And only a few of us, especially in my generation, have transgender people in our lives. Thankfully this is beginning to change. My son and daughter have transgender people in their lives, including my daughter in law's trans sister. My 6 and 12 year grandchildren have transgender classmates, friends, even a teacher or two. They go with the flow.....they use pronouns fluidly and play in mix gender sports. It is no big deal to them; they are all human. They simply would not understand these bills, which sideline and vilify their family and friends.

Others will speak to the facts that should persuade you to say no to these bills. And facts are super important. As important is the consideration of the potential harm you inflict should these bills pass. You are trying to legislate being transgender out of existence and denying those who are transgender any agency....and all, it seems to fulfill a political agenda rather than address a pressing problem. I urge you to vote no on obit. Thank you,

Regarding the Presentation of AB100 and AB103 to the Wisconsin
Legislature

March 5, 2025

I am a concerned Madison community member and am testifying about how these anti-trans bills frighten me because of the precedent they would set and the danger they would impose on our trans youth.

Transgender kids are so brave, and we should be celebrating their discovery of identity, not condemning it. They should be allowed to play sports with other children of their gender and be referred to by their correct name and pronouns.

I didn't know I was trans until college, and it was (and still is) a challenge to get people to respect my pronouns. If I had to manage the misgendering when I was a child, I'm not sure that I would have been able to cope. Students, especially those in middle and high school, have so much going on in their day-to-day and they deserve basic levels of respect so they have the energy to manage all the other things life is throwing at them. They shouldn't be forced to be deadnamed or misgendered every single day. That is a miserable and exhausting way to live. I want trans kids to grow up to be trans adults and these bills will be huge factors in preventing that. "The Trevor Project's 2023 U.S. National Survey on the Mental Health of LGBTQ Young People found that 41% of LGBTQ+ young people seriously considered attempting suicide in the past year, including roughly half of transgender and nonbinary youth¹". If you take away a sport they love and force them to be deadnamed and misgendered, that will certainly contribute to suicide rates among trans youth.

These bills will also set a dangerous tone and precedent, opening the door for more anti-trans legislation to be introduced in Wisconsin. Legislation of this kind will harm the safety of so many Wisconsinites, trans or otherwise. It's terrifying living as a trans adult in America today, I can't imagine the terror experienced by our trans youth. I felt the need to speak out because we all deserve to live in peace, not constant fear and dread.

Please reject these bills. They are dangerous and will lead to trans deaths, one way or another. We need to love and protect our trans communities, not destroy them.

Trans people have always existed and will always exist. You get to decide how many of us continue to exist and what our quality of life looks like. Please make the right choice.

Thank you for your consideration,

Morgan Adams

1. Quote from <https://www.thetrevorproject.org/resources/article/facts-about-lgbtq-youth-suicide/>

Dear assembly committee on education,

I am writing as a lifelong Wisconsin resident to express my concern about the new anti trans bills, AB100 and AB103. These bills do nothing to protect children. In fact they do the opposite by making trans children feel bullied and unsafe in school.

School is difficult enough for students. For students to succeed they need to feel like school is a safe place. By banning them from sports or refusing to use their pronouns as they request them, you are not only refusing them agency but are making them a target for bullying. Imagine a student who dresses masculine, goes by a masculine name, and at a quick glance LOOKS masculine, and forcing them to play on the woman's softball team, or be called 'she' in class.

These students already face so much discrimination and hate. How does refusing to use their chosen name or pronouns protect them or anyone else at the school? Alienating children like this will lead to more insecurity, more bullying, and likely higher rates of drop out and suicide.

Please protect trans youth. They deserve to be cared for in school just like every other student.

Best,

April Presnell

To the members of the assembly Committee on Education

These bills will undoubtedly harm Wisconsin kids. I oppose both AB100 & AB 103.

First, the bill on banning transgender athletes will ostracize trans youth from enjoying recreational activities. Most of the time, kids are just participating in an after school activity for socialization and being involved with something. Why are we trying to restrict children from that? Additionally, at this age group, sports have very little to do with natural ability. If this bill is at all meant to allow "fairness" in sports based on the physical ability of children, the fact that children go through puberty at different rates throws that out the window. Two kids in 7th grade can have wildly different strengths, growth spurts, etc, and this bill completely overlooks that to vilify trans kids specifically. I strongly oppose this bill.

The Second bill will also harm kids. Why is the government trying to get its hands in how kids perceive themselves? Is the next bill going to restrict the use of nicknames, another way that kids and people self identify? I oppose this bill and its goal of the government to restrict kids self expression.

I oppose both AB 100 and AB 103. First, Wisconsin was the first state in the nation with a broad anti discrimination policy for schools. Transgender and gender-nonconforming students have the right to be safe and be themselves at school. Wisconsin Statute 118.13 requires school districts to have a formal complaint process called "pupil nondiscrimination. Federal law prohibits discrimination based on sex, which includes gender identity, potentially requiring schools to accommodate students' preferred names and pronouns. Public schools have a responsibility to create a safe learning environment. Wisconsin school districts are required to comply with federal law prohibiting discrimination based on a student's sex-- and generally also gender identity. I implore the Education Committee to promote educational equity and access to educational opportunities for each student in our public schools through non-discriminatory policies.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education

I am writing to urge the Wisconsin state assembly to vote against bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills harm children and deny them equal opportunities. Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trans kids belong in school sports if they choose to participate. All school children deserve the opportunity to join a school team of their choice and explore their own athletic abilities. To bar any kids from school sports is truly unjust and unkind. This bill would directly harm trans kids and does not make cis kids safer. It's a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on a small number of children, which is sickening to me. Transgender kids and cisgender kids alike deserve to be addressed with the name and pronouns they use at home or with friends, while they are in school. The first day of school, most teachers will run down the class list and ask kids what name they use. Example: "Elizabeth? Do you go by your full name or a nickname?" The teacher asks each student this question because it shows respect for the student's autonomy. Kids deserve the right to change their names and pronouns whenever they want to, just as adults do. This should be a matter between a student and their teachers, and should not require parent notification. Name and pronoun changes can represent safety, autonomy, and authenticity for students. This bill is similarly unnecessary, and harmful to children who are exploring or embracing their identity.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103. I believe these bills are seeking to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports and use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right of trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools. My transgender child and all children deserve equal access.

My 17 year old child has been working through their transgender journey since they were 13 years old. Because of so many negative and painful experiences of judgement and discrimination they have slowly transitioned adding new ways of living in their gender identity with each phase - using they pronouns when entering high school then thoughtfully progressing to he when reaching 11th grade and feeling more confident, secure and supported in their community. The path he took isn't unusual. It mirrors many young people's exploration and discovery of self - the job that every young person is tasked with - to figure out who you are and how you can best contribute to our world.

AB100 and AB103 would take away my child's and all other children's right to be themselves and contribute their full selves to society. Because of my child's ability to be themselves he thrives as an A student, an athlete, a performer in theater and choir and student leader.

Please don't take these rights away from him. Please don't pass these harmful bills out of your committee.

For 34 years I was a pediatric nurse practitioner in the Madison School District. Many of those years I worked with students who were transgender. They needed the love, acceptance and support from all of us. These students just want to be students who can live life without someone imposing restrictions on whether they can play sports or not. These students were beautiful individuals just like all children. They just want to live their authentic lives with names that fit who they are. Why is there such a fixation on names, pronouns and bathroom use?

Why is it that legislators feel the need to take valuable time away from important topics like education, homelessness, & the economy among many other issues? Why must you try and ruin the lives of children who just want to be children? I just cannot understand why Republicans have decided they can take parents rights away by deciding what is best for children who are transgender. Health care providers, parents and the children should be able to decide what is best...not legislators.

Please, please support children who are transgender.

I strongly oppose AB 100 & AB 103. Please get back to work on legislation that will improve lives, not destroy them.

As a resident of Wisconsin since 1980, I am contacting you to express my concern for anti-equality Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. This anti-LGBTQ+ proposed legislation is aimed at restricting the rights and freedoms of our transgender and non-conforming Wisconsin citizens. They represent a cruel attack on our transgender youth. I urge you to oppose these two Bills at every opportunity!

My name is Kate McKay and I am a resident of Madison, WI writing you today to ask you to oppose both AB100 and AB103.

Regarding AB100: As a former NCAA Division III college athlete at one of Wisconsin's public universities, I find it abhorrent that you would try to take the joy of sports away from anyone. Growing up, sports were the one place I felt like I belonged and it wasn't important who we were playing against, but that I could be part of a team and play the games I loved. By taking away the ability for trans athletes to participate in sports teams aligned with their gender, you're taking away so many opportunities for kids to learn, grow, move, and succeed. As a woman, I want to play sports with other women. Trans women are women. Trans men are men. This goes for students and minors too.

Regarding AB103: A person's name - the name they prefer to go by - whether it's a shortened version of their first name, their middle name, or something completely different - is so important to identity. By stripping students of their right to be called the name they identify with is stripping them of their identity! Pronouns are similar. When referring to students by pronouns they do not identify with, you're not only disrespecting their identity, but showing that you don't care at all about who these students are. It's frustrating that over and over again the right for both cisgender and transgender students to be addressed in their preferred manner comes into question.

Trans rights are human rights. Whether or not you believe trans people when they tell you or others about their identity, what they are experiencing is real. These bills will hurt and exclude people. I vehemently oppose them and ask you to think about the people these will impact. Oppose these bills!

Thank you for your time,

Kate McKay

My name is Virginia Kamp. I grew up in Appleton, Wisconsin, completed my Bachelor's Degree at UW- Madison, and am currently a resident of Wauwatosa. I am writing to strongly urge you not to move forward with bills AB100 and AB103.

When I was a high school student in Appleton, I knew that I was gay. But I also knew that I wanted to be seen as a "good" student, so for a long time, I didn't tell anyone. But later, I got to know other students who were openly LGBT, and who were bullied and made to feel unsafe because of it.

So, along with a few other students, I started a Gay-Straight Alliance at my school. I still did not tell my teachers that I was gay, but they knew I was part of forming this organization. And to this day, I can still remember how I felt in each of my high school classrooms after my teacher's found out this information. There were some classrooms where I felt safe to learn, safe to be myself. But unfortunately, there were lots of classrooms where I did not feel that way.

I am deeply concerned that these bills will only serve to increase self-harm, self-hatred, and even suicide among Wisconsin's kids.

I hope that that is enough for you to not move these bills forward. But in case it's not, let me also share my perspective as a former classroom teacher. We are already having a hard time keeping teachers in classrooms, and I fear that we will lose more teachers - good, kind, loving teachers - if you tell them that they can't listen respectfully when a child asks them to use a preferred name or pronouns.

There is one final thing I hope you will consider. When I did finally start coming out as gay, I remember that there were certain people who surprised me. People I expected to be disgusted who instead were curious and kind, who kept our connection and our communication open long enough to get to actually know me, and for me to actually get to know them. I see a Wisconsin where it's possible for that type of kindness to overcome partisanship. Let's be the state where you can be a Republican or a Democrat, where you can disagree wholeheartedly, but where we don't let fear or hatred prevent us from taking care of all of our kids.

AB100/AB103 OPPOSE

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on AB100/AB103,

My name is Morgan Lange, I am a registered nurse, a parent, currently a public health nurse for Madison & Dane County, a family member and friend of individuals in the LGBTQ+ community in Madison, and a former school nurse.

I am testifying to oppose the anti-trans legislation being proposed in AB100 and AB103. I was a school nurse for 5 years in the Madison Metropolitan School District (2019-2024) and know firsthand how harmful and dangerous this type of legislation is for trans youth and the school community overall.

These bills completely take away the power of an individual to determine their identity and instead give it to a person of power (the school principal). NO ONE should be allowed to tell anyone who they are. This is a completely inappropriate guideline for a school community - as one of the foundational pillars of the school environment is acceptance of others and being unafraid to be yourself. Specifically, the sports team environment fosters teamwork and working with others, and engaging in camaraderie. These bills create a tableau for others in the school to fear and discriminate against their trans peers or their trans students.

More than 1 in 10 LGBTQ+ young people attempted suicide in the past year, and 39% of LGBTQ+ young people seriously considered attempting suicide in the past year — including 46% of transgender and nonbinary young people. (These statistics are from the TrevorProject.org). I want to emphasize that LGBTQ+ youth are not more prone to suicide because of their gender identity or sexual orientation but rather because of how society has treated them and stigmatized them.

I also want to point to the statistic from the trevorproject.org that clearly shows 49% (almost HALF) of LGBTQ+ youth experienced bullying at school. As a school nurse - this is something I have personally witnessed. I have taken care of many trans students in the health office, in mental health distress or even crisis from bullying or discrimination that they are experiencing from peers, and in some cases from school staff. As someone who has worked in the middle and high school environments, I can say with absolute certainty, that stigmatizing trans youth, but disallowing them to express themselves will have a devastating, and likely deadly effect on the youth in our Wisconsin schools and the education community. I am completely horrified that these bills are even being proposed; schools are a place for inclusion and acceptance of self-expression, not hate and discrimination.

Thank you for hearing/reading my testimony. I hope you will consider what I have shared with you today, and stand up for trans youth (and all people) in Wisconsin by opposing AB100 and AB103 which severely harms trans students in the state of Wisconsin.

Sincerely,
Morgan Lange RN

My name is Liz Charewicz, and I am reaching out to you to respectfully urge you to oppose AB100 and AB103. These bills, which seek to ban transgender athletes from participating in sports and restrict of pronouns, represent an overreach of government authority and undermine the principles of fairness and individual liberty that, we, as Americans, hold dear. I am a mom of two boys who are heavily involved in youth sports within the City of Franklin, WI.

Contradicting values of limited government: Both bills unnecessarily increase government involvement and interfere with the lives of taxpayers like me. Decisions about sports participation and pronoun usage should be made by individuals--and not by the state. These bills impose a one-size-fits-all solution that disregard individual freedom public servants, like yourselves, were elected to fight for. As a parent, I am a consumer of youth sporting clubs. I don't think I want lawmakers to craft the policies and procedures of organizations my kids are involved in. These bills are a 100% overreach.

Undermining fairness: Transgender youth, like all children, deserve the opportunity to participate in sports and enjoy the benefits of teamwork, discipline, and physical activity. Excluding them from sports denies kids of these opportunities and sends a harmful message saying that they are not valued members of society. Fairness can be achieved through thoughtful policies that balance inclusion with competition, without resorting to blanket bans. If Boy Scouts of America can get the memo of gender identity why can't educated state lawmakers? I expect some follow up to help me understand who has the time to manifest such a time and money drain by promoting hate among youth and families which is being done by these bills.

Infringing on personal freedom: Pronouns are a matter of personal expression, speech, and respect. The government fundamentally, should not proactively censor or influence speech. This bill is a mean spirited, dangerous, and unprecedented threat to our First Amendment rights. I would like to see the WI legislature pass laws around supporting spelling, grammar, phonics, and communication skills instead of wasting taxpayers' time, money, and resources on banning a population of children from accessing positive recreational activities. I encourage lawmakers to review writing of youth in our public and private schools and report back to me on what we should focus on--fear mongering or helping our students have access to academic excellence.

Distracting from budgetary, social, and economic issues: Regardless of your beliefs around the existence of an entire population, of people, we can agree that it is not anyone's right to dictate who an individual is or can be. Please consider the constitutional and long-term harm that will be caused to individuals, State constitution and laws from passing what I see as a shameless and publicity-focused pot-stirring win for republican law makers. According to the Williams Institute, only 1.4% of youth athletes are transgender. As a mom whose kids are in hockey, football, snowboarding club, diving, swimming, tennis, and baseball, I can assure you that the use of pronouns and gender identities of children is not an issue.

Please fulfill your civic duty by opposing both of these bills and aligning with our constitutional freedom.

This letter is speaking out against bills AB100/AB103.

I am a parent of a cisgender child, but fully support the full inclusion of transgender athletes in sports at all levels. I believe that students, regardless of their gender identity, should have the opportunity to compete and thrive in a welcoming and equitable environment. Transgender students are already at greater risk for depression and anxiety. However, a 2022 study done by of the Human Rights Campaign (HRC Foundation) and the University of Connecticut 2022 LGBTQ+ Youth Study found that high school-aged transgender and non-binary student-athletes reported higher grades, lower levels of depression, and were less likely to feel unsafe at school than those who did not play sports.

In 2023, when the Wisconsin State Assembly signed off legislation limiting transgender participation in youth sports, author Barbara Dittrich (R) said she was aware of only six transgender athletes in Wisconsin. I don't have concerns with my daughter playing sports with transgender athletes. I do have increasing concerns on genital checks being required if any student's sex is called in question.

Transgender individuals, like all athletes, deserve respect, safety, and the ability to pursue their athletic goals without discrimination or exclusion. Inclusion in sports not only enriches the lives of transgender athletes but strengthens our collective commitment to fairness, teamwork, and community. By ensuring that everyone has access to play and compete, we foster a society that values diversity, acceptance, and human rights. I am calling on the Wisconsin state assembly to reject policies that discriminate against transgender athletes and instead champion efforts to ensure their equitable treatment and participation.

Together, we stand for inclusion, equality, and a future where all athletes belong.

I am writing in regards to my opposition to Assembly Bills 103 and 100

As the parent of a trans person, I have witnessed how beneficial it is to have a trans person referred to as the chosen name and pronoun that identify as. Attacks on transgender people, especially youths have life long emotional and mental health difficulties. Those that have Gender Dysphoria are trying to live their true, authentic selves and school should be a place where they can focus on their education. Transgender is not a new concept, across the world many cultures have thousands of years of history that includes transgender people. Current focus on transgender people now is not about the best interest of them, it is emboldening a society of hate on a marginalized group and any vote to restrict their right to exist can only be seen as an act of hate.

Assembly Bill 100 is another needless assault on transgender individuals. It invites gender policing that could subject any woman to invasive tests or accusations of being "too masculine" or "too good" at their sport to be a "real" woman. It also reinforces the stereotype that women are weak. Women and girls who are trans face discrimination and violence that makes it difficult to even stay in school. According to the U.S. Trans Survey, 22 percent of trans women who were perceived as trans in school were harassed so badly they had to leave school because of it. The idea that women and girls have an advantage because they are trans ignores the actual conditions of their lives.

My name is Maks Kopish, I am a constituent from La Farge, WI (54639). I've lived in Vernon County for the past six years, and I am in training to become an interfaith minister. Four years ago, I decided to change my name with the realization that my interior self is much more masculine-leaning than people would assume based on the sex (female) and name I was assigned at birth.

I discovered that there is a name for a feeling I had my entire life, the feeling of not really fitting within the category of "girl" or the social expectations of girl/womanhood. The word is dysphoria. Gender dysphoria is what I felt when I'd open birthday presents from my mom to find pink clothes, barbie dolls, and heart-shaped jewelry, when my young self wanted army men, spy gadgets, and science books. Gender dysphoria is what I felt when I had to wear a dress to prom and felt like a man in drag. Despite being biologically female, I have never fit within the box of girl/womanhood, and I knew it from the earliest age I can remember.

Changing my name and adopting gender neutral pronouns (they/them) was a massive relief for my mental and emotional health. I immediately felt more confident, happy, and excited about life. I was getting to know myself better, no longer hiding under labels that always felt off. I was being more honest with my friends and loved ones about who I really am. Changing my name and pronouns was one of the most important and life-affirming things I've ever done. My only regret is that I was kept from my own truth for so many years trying to fit within a category I didn't belong.

Please do not cause misery for our kids. They have it hard enough with everything going on in the world. Just let them be themselves. Gender is not some big scary thing. Gender expression should be fun and interesting. Don't you want to know who people really are, in all of our wonderful and wild glory, and as our Creator, rather than our government, intends?

Please do not pass AB100 and AB103. Trans kids should be able to use the locker room that suits their self-understanding of their gender; and refusing to use a person's name and pronouns is not only supremely disrespectful but also massively harmful for that person's internal well-being and sense of self. Just let us be.

Thank you,

I have never written a testimony before. But as a transgender individual living in Wisconsin I have to speak out against Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

In regards to AB 100. I was a freshman in highschool when I started socially transitioning. The importance of being called the appropriate name and be correctly gendered cannot be overstated. Socially transitioning is just as important as medically transitioning, especially when gender affirming healthcare is not always accessible. Principals and schools should not be allowed to discriminate against their transgender students. They should not be able to inflict their personal beliefs to harm trans youth. Calling someone by their correct name is a sign of respect and acknowledgement that causes no one harm and does not cost anything. Legal name changes are a lengthy process should not be required in order to be called the correct name.

In regards to AB 103. It is unfair to target and discriminate against any child who wishes to participate in school activities. The legislators who are looking to impose this bill, and the countless others across the nation, are in a fight against literal children. There is an insignificant number of trans kids in athletics that are being harassed by conservative ideology. They are seeking to exclude them because they do not agree with their personal decisions.

Please let me know if this is sufficient! I hope to hear back from you confirming that you have received this and it will be some use!

Dear Members of the Assembly Bill on Education,

I am writing to oppose Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

For Bill 100, I am opposed because school sports are not professional sports. All children and youth are still developing and develop at different rates regardless of gender and that includes transgender kids. Blocking transgender children and youth maintains them as second class participants and reminds me of the days when girls were only allowed to play half-court basketball, or were only allowed to wear dresses and skirts, or when we forced left-handed children to try to become right-handed--all within my parents' lifetime. All children and youth play and participate in athletics because first and foremost it's fun, it's something they enjoy. In a world where transgender children and youth are more likely to be bullied. Studies from the National Institute of Health show that 53% of cisgender boys and girls are likely to be bullied, but that rate is 83% for transgender kids. Disallowing trans children and youth from participating in athletics, including locker room use, contributes to the sense of isolation and poor mental health and well-being, as shown in that same study. Inclusion of transgender children and youth has the opposite effect of building self-esteem and acceptance among all children and youth, including both transgender and cisgender kids. The percentage of transgender youth ages 13-17 is less than 1.5 percent of the entire U.S. youth population. We are talking about a small number of children and youth who just want to be treated like everyone else. Please oppose Assembly Bill 100 to assure fair treatment and mental well being for all of our children and youth.

For Bill 103, I am opposed because people change names and use nicknames all the time. Are we going to not allow children to use the nickname they prefer? Are we going to insist they use the last name they are registered in, even if they are not in the custody of that parent and choose to use a different family last name? This is an unnecessary bill. For transgender children and youth, studies have shown that using their preferred names and pronouns boosts self-esteem and mental well-being. This is the same for cisgender children. I myself was given a nickname by my family that has been used my whole life; when someone uses my full legal name I know they do not know me personally and do not know who I really am. I know other cisgender adults who were given a nickname by their family and as they became teens they stopped using it because they found it didn't fit. Why would we do this to children and youth? This seems unnecessarily cruel. Allow children and youth to use the names they prefer. Pronouns are also a similar way of declaring who someone is, and it seems rather ridiculous to tell someone they aren't who they know themselves to be. But not only is it ridiculous, it is harmful, and contributes to bullying. Studies from the National Institute of Health show that 53% of cisgender children and youth are likely to be bullied, but that rate is 83% for transgender kids. This seems like a waste of legislation to target a small percentage (less than 1.5% of all children and youth in the U.S.) and would also affect cisgender children who use a different name at school. Vote no on Assembly Bill 103.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

As an ordained pastor in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and a resident of Wisconsin, I strongly oppose AB 100 and AB 103. These bills undermine the basic human dignity that should be afforded to all people, including our transgender neighbors, friends, and family members. My faith calls me to recognize and affirm the worth of every person as a beloved child of God, and these bills fail to honor that fundamental truth.

Beyond the harm they cause to transgender individuals, these bills also place undue burdens on families, educators, and school staff—forcing them into impossible positions that fracture trust and create fear where there should be care and support. Policies that target and marginalize vulnerable populations do not reflect the values of compassion, justice, and equity that should be afforded to all residents of Wisconsin.

I urge you to reject these harmful measures and instead work toward laws that uplift and protect the dignity of all Wisconsinites. We are called not to create division, but to care for one another in love.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing today to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

My name is Astrid Hooper Lofton and I am a Madison resident. I studied Human Development and Family Studies at the University of Wisconsin- Madison. While there, I took an internship through Madison School & Community Recreation where I worked in a middle school afterschool program and helped run summer school.

While there, I worked with some of the Trans students who will be impacted by AB100 and AB103 if they are passed. I think about them and what they will experience going on to highschool and how they would be excluded from participating in extracurricular sports or potentially be forced to go by an incorrect name or pronoun. The intense shame and othering this would cause is hard to imagine, and trying to do so breaks my heart.

Recently, my family lost my step-sister to suicide. She was a Trans woman. I hope you all keep in mind the undisputed fact that the Trans community faces much higher rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidality than cisgender people as you discuss these bills. Constant discrimination from unaccepting communities is what drives those statistics. I do not believe there is enough reason to pass these bills. All the reasons not to, however, are perilously important as they may save the lives of our Trans youth.

Thank you for your time,
Astrid Hooper Lofton

Dear Assembly Education Committee members,

My name is Laura Stoesz, and I am a licensed professional counselor in training with a Master's of Science in Counseling from the University of Madison. These are my own views, and they are informed by psychological science. As a psychotherapist, I work with children and adults who have been harmed by anti-trans legislation like AB 100 and AB 103. I ask that you vote no on both these bills because they will harm children and adults in our state, leading to public health impacts, lost productivity and creativity, and lost faith in your work as politicians.

Trans, gender nonconforming, and nonbinary people have always existed. It is society's prejudiced views, policies, and actions that harm non-cis people, not their gender identity. The evidence in scientific literature is clear. As researcher Ilan Meyer established in his seminal 2003 peer-reviewed paper, "stigma, prejudice, and discrimination create a hostile and stressful social environment," which leads to mental health problems and can lead to negative physical health effects. (Meyer, "Prejudice, social stress, and mental health in lesbian, gay, and bisexual populations: Conceptual issues and research evidence," Psychological Bulletin, 2003). We have known this for over twenty years, and yet bills like these continue to inflict minority stress on people, causing public health impacts that reverberate for decades.

Lost productivity and creativity: As nonbinary author Alok Vaid-Menon says in Beyond the Gender Binary, "Gender non-conforming people face considerable distress not because we have a disorder, but because of stigma and discrimination. There is nothing wrong with us, what is wrong is a world that punishes us for not being normatively masculine or feminine." Pronouns are a zero-cost affirmation of identity. If you could affirm a child with a word, why would you refuse to do it? I'm not talking about potentially hurtful words. Using a correct pronoun or name is morally neutral, costs nothing, and affirms a child without harming another person. The discomfort of the person being asked to use the correct name or pronoun is not harm; dysphoria is. Dysphoria is traumatic, and the more gender nonconforming children and adults are forced to experience it, the more trauma builds up, leading to challenges in life functioning, just as we see in PTSD, and in fact, sometimes rising to the level of clinical PTSD. This mental trauma of being misidentified, stigmatized, and ostracized has a social cost, as traumatized people often need additional support from friends, family, or social systems. Traumatized people and their allies pay the cost, but so does society, when a person's potential goes underutilized and their relationships and lives are affected by trauma. Some people still excel despite these stacked odds, like trans athletes, and they are my inspiration.

Trans-inclusive sports can still be fair. Trans athletes in sports aligned with their gender should be allowed to compete. Overcoming transphobia and adapting to changing bodies are challenge enough for trans athletes. They should not be subjected to exclusionary practices just to be able to enjoy their sport. Far worse outcomes can and do happen to girls and women in sports than competing with trans athletes, who pose no threat to safety. Look at the recent US Olympic Gymnastics team and how many were systematically abused by a cis male team medical provider, who did present a threat to safety and who was allowed to continue far too long. Look at the intrusive testing being proposed to police women's categorization as women just to participate in their sport. Inflicting this testing would be traumatizing, objectifying, and unnecessary.

Lost faith in you as an elected official: It's not a good look to be anti-trans. It may seem politically expedient now, when others are attacking trans rights. But in the years to come, anti-trans politicians will suffer the consequences of alienating so many people -- allies, loved ones of trans people, folks who come to realize what brilliant, beautiful contributions trans people bring to society. I watch Roller Derby, a sport that is inclusive of trans athletes, BECAUSE it is inclusive of trans athletes. At games, I get to witness gender diversity, excellence in sport, and welcome for all. At the most recent game, competitors wore shirts that affirmed, "Trans Athletes Belong Here." There was a palpable joy in the arena and on the bleachers. Children clamored to high-five all the athletes at the end of each game. This is the positive impact inclusion can have: sportsmanship, compassion, and inclusion. Who doesn't support those values? Anyone who votes for AB 100 or AB 103.

Sincerely,

Subject: Written Testimony against Bills 100 and 103

The following is my written testimony which I spoke today:

I am here to testify against Bill 103AB [and Bill 100] that attempts to erase Trans people. I am a mother of a Trans girl- and though you shouldn't give a hoot what her name is or what gender she is, here we are. And she just wants to live her best life.

Do you understand what happens when we support people to live their best lives? They succeed. Which means their family succeeds, and their communities succeed. And it doesn't end there. When we make it harder for people to live their lives- like trying to take away personal choices- which your bills propose to do- they struggle more with anxiety, depression and addictions. Their stress and pain- their suffering- should be enough of a wake-up call to end hurtful legislation like what is proposed here today. And, appalling, it's not.

So, think about the cost. What does this cost you in time and money? What does it cost your constituents and your families to interfere and attempt to dictate what children can call themselves and which sports team they can play on. Think about how wasteful you're being. In our current culture where we talk about the misuse of governmental money, this is the epitome of it! Not only do you have the power to stop squandering our time and money, you have the opportunity to help people succeed, which will ensure our communities and our state will flourish. I urge you to vote against Bill 103AB [and Bill 100].

Thank you.

To the respected Representatives of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Hal M. DeLong, and I am a resident of Assembly District 10. As I am unable to attend today's hearings in person, I have submitted this testimony in addition to my testimony on Assembly Bill 100. I vehemently oppose these additions to state statutes put forth in Assembly Bill 103, and I kindly ask that you also reconsider your support for this bill.

Again, my name is Hal. I am 24 years old and have lived in the city of Glendale since I was two, where I attended Nicolet High School before heading off to Lawrence University in Appleton, where I obtained my BA in German and geoscience. I am a lifelong learner, and I deeply value the quality education I have received thus far in my life. Looking back, it is easy for me to see how fundamental my experiences at Nicolet were in shaping the kind of man and learner I would become.

Had you met me as a child, you might be surprised to hear that I would grow up to be a man. Yes, my name might be Hal, but that has not always been my (legal) name. I am a transgender man, meaning I was assigned female at birth. I do not merely identify as a man- I am a man. I did not choose this for myself, nor did any person or group of people cause me to be this way. A word to the men of this Committee, my masculine identity is just as innate as your own. But unlike you, it has taken a considerable amount of work to express myself in such a way. I knew growing up that I wasn't like my female peers, even well before I learned about transgender people or even considered the possibility that I might be transgender myself. It took a lot of learning outside the classroom and self-introspection before I could even begin undertaking the steps needed to help me physically become the man I was meant to be.

I mention learning outside the classroom explicitly as that's what learning about transgender people was for me. I graduated from high school in 2019, but even at that time, transgender people and the issues facing them only ever came up in the classroom a handful of times. School was nonetheless the place where I felt I could be my true self before I felt ready to come out to my family. I spent just shy of three full school years going by Hal and using he/him pronouns in high school before making it known to my family that that was the only way I wanted to be addressed. Were other students kind to me about it? Not always, and there were certain teachers who were less than kind about it too. But it was worth it. It was worth it taking what could have been three abjectly miserable years of trying to pretend to be someone I wasn't and turning it into something better, into three years in which I could find a time and place to be myself. The number of peers and teachers who supported me in this way vastly outnumbered those who opposed the changes I'd made. For someone who couldn't medically transition at that time, all that meant was using the right name for me, Hal, and the right pronouns for me- even if that wasn't yet what I went by outside of school.

My story is the reason why I see it as imperative that I submit this testimony today regarding Assembly Bill 103. For many students, using a name and/or pronouns that don't align with what you might see on their school records and legal forms is one of the only ways they can try to express themselves as gender-diverse youth. As my story illustrates, I was one such student. I found comfort in the name and pronouns that I advised others to use for me, even if they didn't match my records at the time. Quite honestly, I had a lot of company in that sense in regard to my name- sure, I might have been the only Hal who was then legally referred to by a very feminine name, but the Dans and Sams and Chrises and Maggies with longer legal names were all technically in the same boat. The same can even be said for some of the representatives germane to today's hearings, such as one Representative Kreibich who helped introduce this bill on Tuesday. Would it at least irritate you, Representative, if people were required to only ever call you Robin even though you publicly prefer Rob? You may explicitly exclude such shortened nicknames from consideration under this bill, but there's plenty of people out there of all ages who instead use a completely different first name than their legal name. Where do they fit into this equation? Would you care about a David who wants to go by Jude if they didn't happen to be transgender? What's the difference if they were?

Attempting to exert control over what names people can and can't prefer to be called is thus an exercise in futility. It is impossible to legislate trans people- including trans youth, who are already much more subject to legislation and parental control on account of being minors- without hurting us all. To repeat a point I raised in my testimony against Assembly Bill 100, exclusion is a barrier to equity. Childhood is a time of exploring oneself and one's place in the world, and all children deserve the right to express their identities in ways that allow them to feel more secure in the world. Perhaps there are some children out there who adopt a name and pronouns other than the ones they are expected to use and later drop them- no harm has come to them in the end, and with any hope they still come out of it with a stronger sense of who they are. But for those like me who made that switch for life, it means the world to be supported for who you are within one of the places you spend the most time as a child.

I love learning and I love this state. I wish to remain in this state for future postgraduate education. I long for the day when all Wisconsin students are treated equitably in their educational pursuits, regardless of who they are or who they might become. But as long as bills like these are being considered, the more I worry that that day is being pushed yet farther away. The 'M.' in my name is for Mark, by the way- the name of a high school teacher who changed my life for the better and encouraged me to be my truest self, all while helping me become someone ready and willing to help make the future a brighter one. And that is exactly why I have written these testimonies for you today. Will you make this future a brighter one for all Wisconsinites?

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Hal M. DeLong

Thank you to the Assembly Committee on Education in receiving my written testimony . I wish I could be there in person, but I have prior commitments.

My name is Amy Wall and I live in Sun Prairie. I oppose AB100 and AB103. These bills were both authored by Rep. Dittrich, who seems to have a particular obsession with this topic.

I testified late 2023 against AB378, a bill very similar to AB100, whereas anecdotal evidence was used to try to justify barring transgender students from participating on sports teams that match their gender identity. This bill, AB100, is particularly focused on transgender girls and completely ignores the existence of non-binary students and transgender boys. There are reasons for that, misogyny being at the top of the list, which is ironic, given the other bills Rep. Dittrich has authored in support of women's rights.

The bill does not seem to directly explain why this is justified. The subtext is that women are weak and need to be "protected".

The other reason this bill was authored, along with AB103, is purely for bigoted reasons. As we know, conservative lawmakers in our country at both the state and federal level do not want to acknowledge the existence of transgender people. They are singularly obsessed with this topic. Transgender people make up hardly 1% of the population, yet we waste so much taxpayer money and legislator time on this.

I am a transgender woman. I am 52 years old. And I am real. And if you spent time with me, you would not call me a man.

For bill AB103, it approaches its anti-transgender bias by putting the decisions on the school board and in particular, gives the school principal the decision to force a child's legal name and pronouns to be used unless parental permission is given.

There are so many reasons why trans kids should not have to get parental approval on how to be addressed in school. Parents can be very cruel to their children and not listen to them even as they would plead they are not the gender assigned at birth.

I acknowledge it is difficult for a cis-gendered adult to understand this, but I assure you, it is so important for a student to be called by their desired name and pronouns. When I came out as transgender to my employer, after my name was changed on corporate email, the feeling was indescribable. That I finally had my name on email and it was me. When the name change went through I sat and just looked at a draft email from me for 10 minutes.

Please do not allow AB103 to interfere with how children come to terms with their gender identity. I wish I had this opportunity when I was a child. I have had to struggle a lot to fully realize life as a woman. When you begin this process as a child, you avoid so much difficulty, you avoid depression, you avoid so many issues with having to live as a gender you do not identify with.

Please kill AB100 and AB103. They do not deserve to be made law in Wisconsin. It's purely for cruelty and because the sponsors do not want to recognize that we are real and we exist.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Jahna Cook, I am from Madison, Wisconsin and reside in the 53705 zip code area. I have been a Madison area resident since 2005.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any legislation that discriminates against transgender students and restricts their rights in schools. In regards to the anti trans bills AB100/AB103 I strongly oppose these bills.

Every student deserves a safe, supportive, and inclusive learning environment, regardless of their gender identity.

Policies that single out transgender students for exclusion or scrutiny violate the fundamental principles of personal freedom and equal protection under the law. These measures not only harm students' mental health and well-being but also set a dangerous precedent that undermines the values of fairness and dignity that our communities hold dear.

I urge you to oppose any efforts that limit transgender students' access to bathrooms, participation in sports, or the ability to be addressed by their correct name and pronouns. Instead, I encourage policies that promote safety, respect, and equality for all students.

Please stand on the right side of history by defending personal freedoms and protecting the rights of transgender youth in our schools. I appreciate your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Jahna Cook

To the members of Assembly Committee on Education,

As the parent of a transgender child in the state of Wisconsin, I am writing in opposition to bills AB100 & AB103. These would be incredibly harmful to trans youth and exclude them from 1) being their most authentic selves and 2) experiencing sports with their peers and friends.

My daughter told us she was a girl when she was 5 years old. Without any prior exposure to transgender humans or without even knowing what being transgender is. From a very young age, I have known there was something different with her. And when she asked our neighbor if she would still love her if she were a girl, we immediately consulted our pediatrician. We were instructed to have a very basic conversation with her. We asked her very simply "are you a girl or a boy?" To which she answered "I am a girl". Since then we have loved her and supported her exactly where she is in her journey and as a mom of 4 beautiful children, I can Without a doubt say she was meant to be a girl and that she is my happiest and most adjusted child.

This bill would not only hurt her, but also many of her friends who she loves dearly. They have a right to feel safe and themselves while getting an education.

Thank you,
Cassandra Krajnik

Dear Committee Members,

I am writing today to express my dismay over these two bills, Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Please do not pass these two bills. We are better than this.

Everyone deserves to participate in sports and be themselves at school. If passed, these pieces of legislation would prevent trans youth from doing so on the basis of their gender. The bills aren't designed to protect students but rather to punish a minority of students for living their own life. All students deserve protection, respect, and love. The status of all students is a fundamental right we all share.

Sincerely,

I am against AB100 and AB 103. As a Wisconsin born 69 year old grandmother of a very dear, intelligent, creative, caring, and joyful Nonbinary grandchild and as a cousin to two transgender adults and one nonbinary child, I feel strongly that a person deserves to be identified as they identify themselves. It is respectful and affirming to them as the person they are. Taking away that respect and affirmation makes the person feel dehumanized. It makes them question their worth as a human being. It can cause mental anguish and even suicide.

I am also a registered nurse for the past 45 years and spent 28 of those years as a School District nurse. I have worked with many youths who identify in the LGBTQI+ community and some are transgender/nonbinary. Gender is not about external genitalia. It is about the biological influences within one's body. Hormones and genetics play major parts in a person's identification. People who do not understand and do not accept this and prevent people from being who they are being very discriminatory and very cruel. There are many biological influences for gender identification. I know personally how important it is for a person to use the bathroom and locker room in which they feel comfortable using. I also know how very, very important pronouns are to people in their self-identification and self worth.

The mental health and wellbeing of many people are in your hands. You have no idea the pain and fear transgender and nonbinary people feel and experience. The bullying of our transgender and nonbinary youth can be very cruel. Our representatives and senators are to do right by all. Please stop the fear mongering. Be kind. Be caring. Stop AB100 and AB103.

To The Members of the Assembly,

I have been a Wisconsin resident all my life. Living in both rural and suburban communities. My experience growing up and living all over this beautiful state has shown me that most people here are kind and we want to do right by others.. which is why I must express that I vehemently oppose these bills.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which seek to ban transgender athletes from participating in sports and prohibit schools from using accurate pronouns when addressing students. While obtaining my social work degrees, I gained extensive experience working with LGBTQ+ youth, and I have witnessed firsthand the profound benefits of inclusive practices on students.

In my experience with social work, I have had the privilege of supporting LGBTQ+ youth and have observed how gender-affirming care and friendships contribute to their well-being. These supportive environments not only empower LGBTQ+ students but also foster empathy and understanding among their cisgender and straight peers. Such interactions promote a culture of inclusivity that benefits the entire student body.

Furthermore, as a reverend, I am guided by principles of love, acceptance, and respect for all individuals. These values align with the belief that every person deserves to be recognized and addressed by their true identity. Denying students the use of their accurate pronouns is a denial of their personhood and contradicts the teachings of compassion and respect that are central to my faith.

The proposed legislation undermines the dignity and rights of transgender individuals, sending a harmful message to all students about the value of inclusivity and respect for diversity. Instead of enacting laws that discriminate against a vulnerable population, we should be working to create educational environments that celebrate and support the identities of all students.

I urge you to reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103 and to stand in solidarity with the LGBTQ+ community by promoting policies that foster inclusivity, respect, and love.

Sincerely,

Rev Katelyn Danielson, MSW

Dear Assembly Committee,

I ask for you to oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. These bills are incredibly harmful to already vulnerable members of the population. I know several transgender youths and was one myself. These children want nothing more than to be accepted and loved; they are not a threat to cisgender (non-trans) children.

The government should protect everyone, not strip away the rights and safety of a small minority of students who are already facing higher levels of violence, sexual abuse, suicidal ideation, and homelessness just for requesting different words to be used for them. No child should be abandoned -- as I was by my parents -- for asking for love and acceptance. It is cruel and disrespectful to force trans children into situations that have been proven to lead to worse health and mental health outcomes, as these bills will do.

Thank you for hearing me out,

My name is Cole McMillin, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am substituting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I have personally seen what bigotry and hate can do to the children of our world. I was in high school when a dear friend of mine killed himself, to have a sophomore kill themselves because of the hate and vitriol spewed is disgusting and shameful for this country. We cannot then legalize this hate and lead so many more over the edge, it is wrong and frankly goes against the founding principles of this country. We must live and let live, we do not interfere with the lives of others here.

Trans people exist and continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence against trans people. As Representatives of Wisconsin, I ask you to acknowledge the trans people in our midst and work to stifle hate. Please vote against AB 100 and 103.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I strongly oppose these two bills, AB100 and AB103.

I get very frustrated when our government chooses to fix problems that don't really exist. This bill is implying that there is harm done by having trans students participate in sports of their chosen gender or use pronouns that they choose to go by. I'm having trouble seeing why this is a problem for anyone else. Call people what they want to be called - why does this matter to anyone else?

There are so many other issues that actually affect a huge number of Wisconsin residents and could make so many lives better, but instead this is what you are spending time on. Instead of bullying school children, let's improve our education system in Wisconsin. Let's improve health outcomes for children and the elderly (thereby reducing the tax burden for everyone).

Please stop just creating bills for posturing towards a minority base of supporters and actually govern our state for the betterment of all of us. Please.

I have lived in Wisconsin for most of my life, and I just want our government to legislate on real issues, real problems and create real solutions that can improve our lives.

I oppose Assembly Bills 100 & 103 because they will impact everyone in communities for the worse, but especially transgender young people.

Assembly Bill 100 will prevent certain kids from being able to fairly participate in team sports by ostracizing and shunning students who are transgender and create a hostile environment where students' physical attributes and identities are scrutinized, questioned, and policed. It's invasive and sets the conditions for bullying by peers and adults especially for transgender kids but for all kids. We should be fostering environments where kids can be themselves, feel accepted, and learn how to collaborate and support one another: teamwork. Transgender kids should not feel othered, less-than, or rejected. Enough. We need to support ALL kids. I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and you should also.

Assembly Bill 103 is also harmful for everyone, especially transgender kids. The government should not be legislating the speech of anyone. This is absurd overreach, unnecessary, and will impact everyone for the worse. It is basic respect to address others the way they ask other to address them. Whether it's a nickname, a married name, or a name change that aligns with a person's deepest sense of self, people, everyone, students and young people and adults should be free to choose their own identities and to speak freely. The government should have NO role in this basic tenant of a free society. It is obvious these bills are designed to make transgender people illegal, which is unacceptable. We love our transgender neighbors. Assembly Bill 103 is foolish and an absurd act of government overreach.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Michael Phillips, I am a Wisconsin constituent and a resident of Pulaski. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation for one of the most vulnerable populations in our society.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. As a high school educator for almost 14 years, I have had several students over the years that have been transgender or nonbinary that have wanted to be addressed by a name other than on their legal documentation with the district. The emphasis for nearly all of my schools has been on building relationships with students as an essential foundation to educating them. Calling them by the name they prefer is the first step in establishing that relationship, whether that be a nickname or if they are figuring out their identity just like every one of the peers in school. Schools are meant to be a safe place for students to figure out who they are and as an educator, my role is to create that space for them to grow as a person. If I will be expected to use the nickname of students whose name choice conforms to their assigned sex at birth (for instance, if I preferred to shorten my name to Mike) without confirming with their parents, then equal protection under the law entails that I should respect a student who prefers a name that does not match their assigned sex at birth. Considering that studies have shown laws like this have caused suicide attempts among transgender and nonbinary youth by 72% in recent years (The Trevor Project), I believe it would be far more damaging to these students if I were not able to meet them at the ground level of using their preferred name.

As for the athlete ban, the impact this has on the competitiveness of girls athletics pales in comparison to the message that it sends by restricting transgender people from participating. It legislates for a problem that does not really exist in order to send a message to transgender people that they are second class citizens and not protected in society.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Dear Committee,

My name is Chloe Ackerman, I am from the 53703 zip code. I oppose these bills that prevent trans youth from playing sports and deny them their right to their chosen names and pronouns. It's so important to be recognized and respected for who a person knows that they are. Taking away these rights will remove their autonomy and ruin childhoods. Do not pass these bills.

Chloe Ackerman

To the members of the assembly To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am providing this testimony today to oppose bills AB 100 and 103 which will unjustly persecute young children, simply because they do not align with traditional western conceptions of gender identity. This issue is incredibly important to me because I have seen first hand how imposing barriers to free gender expression has caused intense mental turmoil for my loved ones. When I was the same age as the children who are being targeted by this legislation, many of my friends did not conform to traditional gender norms, and often expressed feeling othered, or looked down upon by peers who happened to conform to these exclusionary and restrictive social standards.

Excluding trans students from participating in sports teams consistent with their authentic gender identity is unfair and discriminatory. Every child deserves a chance to gain valuable experiences and friendships from participating in school athletics, especially at a particularly vulnerable time in their development. Depriving them of this is wrong and will only continue to amplify the hateful and derisive rhetoric that has deeply divided our nation.

Please reconsider this discriminatory legislation.

Sincerely,

Dear Assembly Committee on Education in the Wisconsin State Legislature,

As a former educator and someone who worked in the offices at a high school, I am emailing an opposition of your two bills to prohibit trans youth from participating in sports, using the locker room for the gender they identify as, and being allowed to identify their gender in school.

Students should be able to be called the name and gender they want in school. Full stop.

The only concern here is a logistical complication for people in the school. Schools need to come up with a better system to handle that. And the state doesn't need to worry about it.

Thank you,

It is my hope that you will prioritize the well-being of vulnerable children over political grandstanding today. Transgender students have enough to deal with without being bullied by their own government --- by the people who are supposed to protect them.

Treating transgender students with respect and acceptance is good for our schools, our teachers, our kids, our communities, and our souls. But I'm not asking that of you today. All I'm asking you to do is to allow schools and teachers the freedom to do the right thing.

I don't understand why our legislature is even considering these petty and overreaching bills, when people are struggling to afford basic necessities.

Don't choose to be a bully today. Put Assembly Bills 100 and 103 in the trash where they belong.

Thank you.

Im writing to register my opposition to two anti-trans bills (AB100&AB103) being heard at the state capitol this morning.

The bills go against including and respecting all members of our community.

To whom it may concern:

I'm writing today in opposition to assembly bills 100 and 103. As an educator and parent, I am deeply concerned about the impact these bills will have on the wellbeing of trans students. Approving these bills sets a precedent for even more anti-trans legislation in the future. Trans people have always existed and always will exist, and I believe the state of Wisconsin should recognize and support all of its school aged kids; not just the ones who are cisgender. We need to do better, and denying these bills is a step in the right direction for the future of our children.

Thank you,

My name is Anastasia McClain, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th. AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. As a transgender Wisconsinite, there is no reason you need to be targeting our community. It seems you've worked out that stirring a trans panic will garner more votes this election cycle, no matter how many lives you need to demonize. Trans kids deserve the same rights to life and liberty that we all enjoy in this state, including the freedom to suck at school sports. It's a foundational period of a kid's life, and there's no reason why certain kids should be stuck on the bench just because they're different. And it's made all the worse when people who declare that it's about, "protecting women," treat women's sports as a punchline. In addition, preventing kids from changing their name/pronouns with the school is just unnecessarily cruel to children. The only reason you would propose this bill is to erase trans people from public life. Deadnaming and misgendering a kid repeatedly and intentionally is not just degrading, but it's also mentally exhausting for them. Does it really cause material harm to let a kid socially transition, or is the state GOP more concerned with fantasizing about what's in children's pants like some deranged pedophile? Trans people make up less than 1% of the state population, and yet you're focusing a sizable chunk of political power on further marginalization.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Anastasia McClain

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I write in opposition to bill AB 100. As a gender-based violence advocate, a queer person, a teacher, and an auntie to nonbinary and trans children, I understand in both personal and public health ways how much harm these bills will cause. Being able to participate in sports is a positive social-emotional benefit, and trans kiddos have the right to participate as any cis child does in alignment with their gender identity. They do not threaten the safety or well-being of cis children. If you would like to better support sports for our young people, funding after-school activities and increasing scholarship access for our most marginalized communities is a more positive and impactful approach. Thank you for your consideration and attention.

I write in opposition to bill AB 103. As a gender-based violence advocate, a queer person, a teacher, and an auntie to nonbinary and trans children, I understand in both personal and public health ways how much harm these bills will cause. Forcing parents to misgender their children in documentation is neither family-centered choice nor in alignment with the party's platform to minimize governmental involvement in individual's lives. Forcing schools to misgender their students could put trans and nonbinary children in harm's way, as they may be at risk of anti-trans violence from their peers or even their own family members. National medical professional boards like the American Academy of Pediatrics wholeheartedly support the positive benefit of gender-affirming care for trans and nonbinary young people, which includes the simple act of using the name and pronoun that aligns with their identity. Trans young people are disproportionately at risk of severe mental health issues when they are refused the dignity of living as their true selves. This bill only puts their health and wellbeing at risk. Thank you for your consideration and attention.

Dear Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Joanne Nelson and I live in Hartland, WI, 53029. I want to share my position on AB100 and AB103.

I encourage you to vote NO on AB100, the bill that would ban trans athletes from competing on sports teams that align with their gender identity. I believe the concern driving the bill is primarily that transwomen will dominate women's sports. A review of nonpartisan information on this issue will, I'm confident, show that this is not an issue worthy of a bill. I also suggest viewing the five minute video <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AvQNS7mACGY> for a helpful understanding of how a bill such as this could have many, many negative consequences--especially for women.

AB103 seems like silly business. Can't we trust parents and educators to work through this on their own? Children and adults are often called by names other than those on their birth certificates. The amount of time and effort necessary to follow the requirements of this bill seems like it could be better spent on educating and caring for our children.

Please vote no on both of these bills.

Sincerely,

Joanne Nelson

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Rek Kwawer, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for over 15 years, and one of the reasons we moved to Madison was that we believed it was a good place to have a family. Many of my friends have children who are currently in local high schools. They have praised our local schools, in particular highlighting the supportive and committed teachers who helped their children (several of whom have ADHD or autism, and several of whom are LGBTQ) to succeed in school. While none of my friends' kids play sports at a high level, they have played on their high school teams or local Little League teams because they enjoy athleticism and teamwork.

Since moving here, I have worked for several nonprofits as well as for the State of WI in the Department of Public Instruction. One of the things that was striking when I worked for DPI was the emphasis in Wisconsin on local control, and local control over education and schools.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because they create a hostile and unsupportive learning environment for our children, and encourage suspicion of any student who may not fit in. We encourage kids to play sports, and tell them about the importance of learning teamwork and healthy competition. We need to be backing that up with support, rather than creating discriminatory barriers to participation.

AB100 targets transgender youth and encourages their peers to treat them with suspicion, rather than as teammates. This bill particularly targets transgender girls. We know that transgender women are often victimized by physical violence. This bill teaches transgender girls that they are not valid, and encourages their peers to view them as potential threats, rather than as people who are way more likely to be the victims of violence. Our teachers can be some of the most influential people in our children's lives.

AB103 limits the ways that teachers can support their students by mandating that their schools prohibit them from referring to kids in the way they want to be addressed. It puts tremendous power in the hands of a principal, and requires parental approval, which is not possible for kids who are facing violence at home (which is sadly a concern in many households). Both of these bills trample on the strong tradition of local control by not only mandating that schools have policies on these topics but what those policies are. They assume that the state legislature knows better than educators what is good for kids. There are real issues facing children in schools. Parents send their kids to school each day knowing that there is the risk of a school shooting (a tragedy that recently came close to home in Madison).

Child poverty is a huge issue, and rather than addressing it, we talk about cutting NSLP expansions that have been highly successful at feeding kids and removing the stigma from eating lunch at school. Girls still face high risks of sexual violence in schools and from adults in their lives. We have a youth mental health crisis, which we have not begun to address. If you want to support safety for youth and for girls in particular, there are real actions you can take, such as gun control laws, providing mental health counseling for youth and their families, ensuring that all children and all families have enough to eat and have stable housing.

AB100 and AB103 are attempting to sensationalize issues that face a small but very vulnerable subset of our youth, and to shield you from criticisms of the issues facing children and youth that you are failing to address. If you are serious about supporting youth, you should be providing more funding for schools, not targeting transgender youth.

Sincerely,
Rek Kwawer Madison, 53704

Dear Representatives,

My name is Courtney McClary, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. Trans kids deserve to be seen, respected, and included—just like any other kids. Sports aren't just about competition; they're about belonging, growth, and joy. Excluding trans kids isn't fairness—it's erasure.

The same goes for pronouns. A name and a pronoun are more than words; they're recognition of who someone truly is. Respecting that tells a trans kid, "You matter. You belong." That simple act can change a life. Trans kids are kids. Let them play. Let them be themselves. Let them live.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Courtney McClary

I would like to register my opposition to both AB100 and AB103

AB100 purports to protect girls' sports, but is not supported by several important facts:

1) the WIAA already has adequate regulations regarding participation in girl's athletics that protect cisgender girls in competition from physical advantages that could be present in those assigned male at birth

2) the proposed law completely ignores the science of sex and gender, the existence of numerous intersex conditions that defy designation of male and female and makes no provision for their safety or equal education.

In addition, this proposal singles out students who already are at risk of bullying, suicide, and violence. It is unnecessary, discriminatory, and cruel.

AB103 is even worse, violates principles of free speech, targets children for ridicule, bullying and violence, and removes the safe haven that school should be. As a parent and former school administrator tasked with protecting all students in my school, lawmakers should be ashamed for even considering such a bill that strips children of their inherent dignity and autonomy.

Specifically, this bill prohibits school staff from referring to a child using a name or pronouns that do not align with the pupil's biological sex. What kind of nonsense is that? My name is Erin. Is that acceptable as a boy's name or a girl's name? What if I want to go by my last name? Is that acceptable? The idea that names have an inherent correlated biological sex is radical, untenable, and prohibiting a child from asserting a preferred name for teachers to use and teachers using it is a clear constitutional violation in public schools.

I urge the Committee to reject both of these bills today.

Sincerely,

Erin Freiberg

Dear all members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Claire Hoppe, I oppose the following bills, AB103 and AB 100, my zip code is 53715, the city of madison.

I am a History major at UW-Madison and a longtime resident of Wisconsin. As a resident of Wisconsin, I have always believed in our motto, "forward". The most important part of moving forward is for citizens of Wisconsin to gain more civil rights, not lose them. Yet these anti-trans bills say nothing but backwards. Backwards on the 1st amendment which states, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances." Key here is the word Freedom of Speech. It's a fundamental right of our people. Despite this, a bill has been proposed that would restrict the rights of Wisconsin youth to use the name and pronouns they freely chose. Tell me how doing that spells anything but backwards. I urge you to remember what Wisconsin means, may you be part of the march forward, say no to all anti-trans bills, AB 103 and AB 100, and help work towards a forward Wisconsin where we all have the freedom to be as we wish to be. If you decide to go backwards, I can promise that history will not look kindly at you.

Sincerely,
Claire Hoppe (she/her)

Dear Representatives,

My name is Bri and I'm a lifelong resident of Dane County, 15-year resident of Madison in the Bay Creek neighborhood, the Director of Outreach, Prevention & Education at the Rape Crisis Center, and a member of our beautiful & brilliant Queer and Trans community in Madison.

I am fiercely opposed to Assembly Bill 100 & 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education on March 6th.

These bills are a blatant attempt to restrict, punish, belittle, invisibilize and harm Trans youth, and by extension corrode the dignity and rights of all youth. It is unthinkable that instead of proposing bills to ensure free access to nutritious food, to healthcare, to increased green spaces; bills that make sure no child ever has to think about being shot or killed at school, or that they'll be able to imagine a future that is habitable on this planet; that instead of ensuring access, safety, equality, abundance, dignity, care, and life, you are wasting your time bullying kids and endangering their safety.

We are talking about children. Babies. Sweet little ones. Young people. Who are so full of brilliance, goofiness, passion, love, curiosity, excitability, wonder, awe, joy. Sweet babes who are simultaneously being brave enough to be themselves in a world that refuses to understand and respect them, while also navigating the regular, human changes and challenges of growing up, fitting in, making friends, balancing school and family and life. Kids who are growing up in a scary, chaotic, uncertain world that is getting scarier all the time.

And this is what y'all come up with? Does it feel good? Do you feel strong, authoritative, in control? Is Daddy Trump, someone, anyone, finally proud of you now? Does terrorizing children - Trans and queer children who know and respect and love themselves more than you could possibly ever muster - make you feel better about your shame, your envy, your insignificance?

Shame on all of you who proposed and are in support of this. Do better. Literally do better. You should feel embarrassed and ashamed. How dare you have the nerve to scapegoat children, how dare you endanger an entire small, vulnerable (but fierce and magnificent) community of Trans people.

These bills do nothing to better anyone's lives and do everything to make kids miserable. To make them angry and hurt, and for many, to direct anger and hate towards themselves. But we know better, and we're throwing it right back at you. Don't fuck with our kids.

Your bills won't make Trans people go away. Nothing you ever do will make Trans people go away. We are here, we have always been here, we will always be here, we make the world a better place, and we are sacred. Like all life on Earth is.

In solidarity with all precious life on earth, and especially with Trans & queer youth,

Bri Breunig

Thank you so much for your service and your work, Fair Wisconsin! We love you!!!!

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I write today in opposition to two bills before this committee: AB100 and AB103, both in regards to the rights of trans students in Wisconsin.

AB100 severely restricts the rights of trans students to play sports on a team consistent with their gender identity. As a former student-athlete myself, including four years spent proudly representing Lawrence University here in Wisconsin as a cross-country and track athlete, this bill takes away from trans students, particularly trans women and girls, the opportunities that I myself was privileged enough to receive in the state of Wisconsin. AB103 limits the ability of students to go by a name and pronouns consistent with their gender identity, and again, this denies trans students opportunities that I was afforded throughout my education, including here in the state of Wisconsin.

This is not a reflection of who we are as a state, and this is frankly a waste of the assembly's time, and an insult to constituents who voted these members into office in order to work on actual, tangible issues facing their communities. Wisconsinites are dealing with rising prices and uncertain economic futures as a result of national policy changes, and instead of focusing on how to support communities, the legislators who have put forth this bill have instead chosen to focus their time and energy on attacking and demonizing children for the supposed crime of living their lives authentically.

I ask the committee members, and the rest of the Assembly, to vote against both of these bills. You owe it to your trans constituents, but your cisgender constituents as well, to support all members of the communities you purport to represent.

Sincerely,
Rain Orsi
She/they

To the Assembly Committee on Education -

I write to you today in opposition to two frankly lousy bills:

- AB 100, the trans athlete ban, and
- AB 103, which seeks to deny kids their preferred names and pronouns.

That the Wisconsin GOP is trying so hard to push these bills, and trying to sneak them through in a rush, is, in a word, shameful.

Of course this is a word the GOP nationwide does not respond to anymore – we know this better than ever after the last few weeks. Shameless is more their style – from the president letting his billionaire bestie take a chainsaw to the federal institutions that sustain us, all the way down to the parents trying to get queer books banned from libraries.

So why bother to speak out at all? Because, to put it simply, they're wrong. Disinformation is the fuel that makes this effort run. The case against trans kids – the case against their participation in sports, in school, and in public life – is built on a foundation of lies. It's a grift, pure and simple. The GOP is exploiting our culture's baseline ignorance about trans issues, and trying to keep voters uninformed and scared for political and financial gain. They're lying about trans people being a danger because they want us to be scared. They're lying about bioessentialism because they want to be able to enforce a gender binary that doesn't reflect reality. They're lying about protecting women and girls because they want to control them.

That they're choosing to fight this battle on the field of public education is one of the cruelest ironies. School is for everyone, knowledge is for everyone – but they want our schools to provide the opposite. They want our schools to lie to our children – to tell them they're defined by what's in their pants, and not what's in their hearts and minds and actions. The GOP wants to force us to lie to our children about who they are. And it's not meant to protect kids, like they keep trying to tell us. It's meant to protect their sense of control over us, and how we live our lives and express ourselves. It's meant to protect their power over our political process. And it's meant to protect the money they make from hanging onto that power.

Today's Republican party operates from a position of quaking fear. Fear of a changing world. Fear of diversity, fear of equity. Fear of a world that includes people who don't follow their narrow rules or adhere to their blinkered view of reality. And it's sad, because if they truly wanted to learn more, if they truly wanted to conquer their fears, most of us would welcome them with open arms. But instead here we are, having to take time out of our already busy, stressful lives to testify to the basic humanity of trans folks once more.

I ask this committee and our legislators in general to vote a hearty NO on AB 100 and AB 103, and stop wasting our precious time on this kind of monstrous legislation.

Thank you,

Stacey Williams

Hello,

My name is Michelle Sullivan and I am resident of Mcfarland, WI ZIP 53558. I would like to submit testimony to oppose anti-trans bills AB100 and AB103. My partner and I decided to move to this state after traveling much of the country and wanting to be closer to family. We know that Wisconsin is full of good people who try to live kind lives. These bills are unkind and frankly dangerous. They stigmatize and other a small community that is already being harassed and harangued at every level of their lives. I am an out lesbian who has had trans friends since I was able to make friends. I have friends and family members who are no longer with us because of the unrelenting messages from the world that they are not wanted. Trans people are not going anywhere and to try and limit what precious little autonomy they have already had to fight tooth and nail for is unconscionable. Please do not regress Wisconsin like so many other states and communities have been.

Thank you,
Michelle Sullivan

Re: AB100 and AB103

I cannot testify in person before your committee tomorrow as my husband will be having a hip replacement, but I wanted to share my thoughts with you. I come from a family of teachers. My father was a teacher and coach in the Madison School District for 45 years. My sister taught in the same district and then in higher education all across the country, as her husband did.

I know how important it is for young people to be part of a culture in their schools that allows them to be true to themselves while doing no harm to others. The use of pronouns to identify one's gender is not a harmful action against anyone. Much like preferring a nickname to one's given name at birth it is the identity that the young person knows reflects them the best rather than what their parents gave them a birth.

As a parent of a non-binary identifying adult child and grandparent of an 11-year-old non-binary grandchild I have seen that their ability to use pronouns that best reflect who they find themselves to be is vitally important to their well-being. And it brings absolutely no harm to any other person who chooses to use pronouns that reflect their gender identity at birth.

As a daughter of a coach, I have been an avid supporter of sports as well. And while I can understand there are some concerns about transgender youth performing in sports under the gender that identify they now feel to be accurate versus the one assigned at birth, I feel that this too can be handled in thoughtful ways. And I believe blanket legislation is not the answer.

However, at minimum, I would hope that the State in which I have spent my 77 years will not legislate in harmful ways against the use of chosen pronouns for trans and non-binary students, and give thoughtful consideration to all ways in which the small percentage of young folks so impacted are far more harmed by proposed legislation that reflects on their differences versus their many similarities.

Sincerely,
Betty Harris Custer

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I am writing in strong opposition to bills AB 100 and AB 103.

I am the parent of a non-binary middle school scholar and athlete. As a parent, it is heartbreaking to see these bills come forward. My child deserves to thrive as much as any other child. These bills make them feel as if they don't belong, as if they can't pursue the sports and activities that other children can, and that their name and pronouns are wrong. There is nothing wrong with my child. They are who they are and they deserve the same as every other child, boy, girl, or however they identify. Their preferred name and pronouns are essential to their sense of self and ensure their mental well-being.

As a lifelong female athlete, I can say with confidence that this call to ban trans girls and women from sports is ridiculous and only intended to do harm. I have been fortunate to count as teammates and opponents trans women, and I stand in strong support of their right to access the sports I have found so empowering and enriching. Their use of locker rooms that fit their agenda ensures their safety and security and does not threaten mine.

I urge you as a parent, a woman, and an athlete to oppose these bills.

Sincerely,
Amy Washbush

Good evening.

My birth name is Anna Claire Stamper, and though it is not the name I currently use, I expect it will get me farther here. I live under the 54703 zip code in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, and I am a senior in high school.

I am sending this message in the hopes The Assembly Committee on Education in the Wisconsin State Legislature will listen to it. The assembly bills number 100 and 103 are being discussed, and I would like my voice to be heard. Though I cannot attend this meeting, as I will be in school, I am sending a message. These bills directly impact my education. Though I am a senior, and moving into secondary education, I am heavily impacted to the precedents that these bills send. It is about more than the silencing of children, which means to erase the ideas of trans children across the state. It is about the politicians and people that have been trying to erase our histories from the moment they began. Being transgender is not a new idea. It has been around since the Egyptians, and will continue to exist no matter how hard legislation tries to stamp out our voices. Once we declare that these children cannot express their first amendment right of free speech by referring to themselves as their chosen genders and names, we step into territory we cannot step back from. This isolation of transgender students from sports, from saying their names, is all intentional. They want us isolated so that no one may remember us. Already they have tried to erase our history, saying that this "new wave" of transgenders happens out of nowhere, forgetting the people they met in high school that were trans. They forget these people not because they never knew them--in fact most had probably encountered trans people in their schooling. The difference, is that the legislation kept those trans kids scared. It kept them quiet. In the same way that these bills are trying to keep trans people quiet. Once they silence our children, they will move on to the next thing they can accomplish. It will start with the trans kids, and then anyone in the LGBTQ+ community. These types of bills are the beginning of the end. Once we silence one group of people, the precedent is set, and they will move on to the next group. How many times will we repeat the mistakes of our ancestors. The Nazis did not stop at Jews. They did not stop at the disabled, the elderly, the gay, the trans, the disordered. We are watching history repeat itself, and I plead that if you listen to anything in my message that you listen to this. They will not stop with trans kids. This hatred is the kind that cannot be satisfied with one group of people. So I ask you, how long do you think it will take to reach you? Already DEI programs are affecting more than just the disabled, and the POC. When you sign this bill you are signing away more than the rights of our transgender children, you're signing the beginning of the end for yourself. This will not stop here, no matter what--and we will not go down without a fight.

Thank you for your time,

K. Stamper

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 67 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, dignity-affirming, equal, inclusive, caring education free from harassment and discrimination with the opportunity to thrive.

Thank you.

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lori Vavrus, a concerned parent/grandparent from Washburn, WI 54891. This is my written testimony for opposing bills AB 100 and AB 103 Both bills are aimed at stripping the rights and dignity of transgender students.

These students have the right to compete in sports and to be called by their name and pronouns of choice. These students, like all of our students, have the right to feel included, supported and welcomed. School sports provide opportunities for staying healthy, working as part of a team and creating friendships - all lifelong benefits.

Being called by their name and pronouns of choice are especially important. Studies show that transgender youth suffer mental distress when referred to with the incorrect name and pronouns. This show of support is especially important if they are not receiving that respect in their own home. They need somewhere to feel validated. Everyone deserves to be heard.

Thank you for your consideration of these matters.

Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Sincerely,

Soren Shivy, concerned Constituent and supporter of trans kids and people

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

Dear Assembly Committee of Education,

I could not be there in person, but wanted to write to share my concern over the bills regarding student athletes and pronouns in schools (AB100/AB103). I fiercely advocate to make this world a safer place for transgender and non-binary children.

Parents of transgender and non-binary children have become all-too-familiar with the danger that can come if a child is unable to express their gender identity. Research shows that transgender and non-binary children are at great risk of emotional harm, showing that 82% had contemplated suicide over the last year and 40% have attempted suicide [1].

Please think about that for a moment - over two-third of all kids who are transgender come to the conclusion, at some point in their young lives, that they would be better off committing suicide than live in a world that believes they are not welcome. I ask you to take time to speak with families of trans children. You will find story after story about trans children whose "choice" literally came down to being their true self or dying.

It causes harm when we deny or reject a child's gender identity. It is irresponsible and shameful for you, or any other elected official, to pass two anti-LGBTQ bills that further stigmatize these children and call into question their judgment.

I'm asking you to think about the way children in the LGBTQIA+ community are treated. This is a difficult, scary and beautiful mountain for them to climb, and we need to be there for them. I'm asking that you provide support and acceptance. Please do not propose a trans-athlete ban and a bill restricting pronouns and names used by transgender kids.

Thank you,

Brooke Dykema

My name is Emily Erler, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am writing this testimony against AB 100 and 103.

As an educator in this state, I have seen the extreme mental duress that LGBTQ+ youth navigate as they explore and discover who they are, who their families want them to be, and at times, have to navigate the deeply traumatic times when those two futures are in direct opposition. Adding the government's involvement in limiting extracurricular choice and name usage!? The purposes of AB 100 and 103 are clear: To encourage discrimination against trans kids. To alienate youth and stoke a climate of fear amongst children. Students cannot learn if they do not feel safe.

Why in the world is our government wasting time on policing what name a kid goes by? The club they want to join? Why are we spending time limiting the future of our youth and silencing the young voices of Wisconsin?

I'm not sure why our representatives feel the need to engage in viral, hate and outrage-based political theatre when Wisconsinites are struggling under the weight of so much already.

Trans people, at any age, exist and will continue to exist. Vote against AB 100 and 103.

Testimony Regarding Assembly Bill 100 & Assembly Bill 103:

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

The vilification of trans youth is abhorrent and does not belong in the Wisconsin legislature.

Transgender people comprise 1.6% of the human population. Of that fraction, even less play sports. Only 34 trans athletes have openly competed in U.S. college sports to date and fewer make it to the professional level. The largest disparities in sports fairness come from the socioeconomic disadvantage of marginalized populations, not trans participation. Proximity to privilege predicts success in sports, not testosterone levels or biological markers. Meanwhile, disparities faced by the trans community begin at a young age and impact all facets of life including sports access. Trans youth are 9 times more likely to experience homelessness than their cisgender peers, and 68% experience bullying in middle school and high school. 22% of trans women surveyed in 2015 reported that they were bullied so badly in school that they dropped out. Many trans students worry about where they will use the bathroom at school, never mind which locker room to use. Without supportive services to help them navigate these additional challenges, it's tougher for them than their peers to make it through classes, let alone onto a soccer field. (Thank you to ACLU for the use of their stats and statistics)

These bills are only fueling anti-trans rhetoric that trans women have an unfair advantage in sports, despite a lack of consistent research to suggest this. As a woman, please do not speak for me to say that this bill is protecting mine or my daughter's rights, when in truth it is only limiting the rights of small group of individuals who should be receiving care, support, and affirmation instead of hate.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 40 years, have served our community as a substitute teacher, legal secretary, member of the Middleton Commission on Aging, and community volunteer. I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an educational environment free from harassment and discrimination, where they feel safe to take the risks involved in learning, where they feel valued as a community member and able to explore their future roles in society, where they feel able to contribute to the community as themselves.

In my time working with students, changing pronouns was not a distraction to anyone's education. Participating in any group activity, like sports, when adults model the self respect and respect for others that we all require to live in community has not made anyone feel unsafe. But trans kids have felt unsafe and unseen every day when they use the restrooms in public, people ignore their respectful requests to be addressed as requested, and adults model the language and behaviors that give children in the room tacit permission to ignore, bully, or harass another student.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin all my life and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen and a parent.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, respectful education free from harassment and discrimination. They also have the right to participate in sports -- to stay healthy, be part of a team, and build confidence and self-esteem.

I have many transgender children in my circles, and they are the loveliest human beings. I can assure you that they do not pose a threat to anyone. They are silly and kind, funny and talented, imaginative and smart. They also struggle in similar ways to other kids -- worrying about friends and fitting in, how to achieve success, and make themselves and their parents proud. They are kids, just like any other kid -- just like the kids in your life, even.

Trans kids are struggling to get by, just like the rest of us, and they deserve a fair chance. Please give them that chance and oppose both of these bills.

I am writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years overall. As a child, I attended public school in Stevens Point, and now my children are attending Madison Public Schools. While I am an active Quaker and Board member for the Tenant Resource Center, I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills. Trans children are not a danger to my children, and in fact have improved their educational experiences. Varied gender expression has made more space for my own kids to be who they are, and they know themselves better as they have grown up in an inclusive environment.

As I'm sure you'll hear in the hours of testimony before you, kids need to be able to live as their honest gender expression (including pronouns at school, and full participation in sports), or else face crushing depression and suicidality. The trans youth I have known - community members, friends of my kids - have gone through a period of suicidal ideation before stepping into themselves and living their lives fully. When I have seen these types of bills come before this committee in the past, I get the sense that legislators do not seem to care if these youth live or die. I do. I want them to live. I want Wisconsin law to tell them that they are free to be themselves.

It is astonishing to me that people believe that trans girls in sports endanger other girls. In fact, this is not the case. Because of gender dysmorphia, trans girls are the ones who least want to expose their unaltered bodies to other girls, and often hide or change separately. If this committee wishes to protect girls or youth generally in sports contexts, I suggest: stop asking about kids' genitals. Banning trans youth from any context makes it much more likely that adults will feel compelled to check children's genitals, which is a breathtaking safety risk for all children. In fact, children are much more likely to be sexually assaulted by a coach than by another athlete, trans or no. The NIH has a number of studies that speak to this, but one says, "that 0.5% of adolescents experienced sexual abuse involving a coach," and "When considering all adolescents who experienced sexual abuse in their lifetime (10.2%), it appears that 5.3% of them were victims of sexual abuse by a coach."

In truth, the schools have very little way to verify who is transgendered and who is cisgendered amongst the children that attend our schools, aside from self identification. Legislation such as this has little enforceable impact, and only serves to tell trans youth that they do not belong. I inherently oppose this stance.

If we are to protect both cisgendered and transgendered youth, the clear path forward is to oppose these bills. I ask this committee to show the youth across the state that they are safe from harassment and discrimination, and oppose these bills.

I have 4 minor children of my own, all of whom have trans friends. The thing about these friends is they're only referred to as "trans friends" by adults. Kids at school simply call them friends, or teammates, or classmates. Kids in the neighborhood call them by the name they introduced themselves with and aren't bothered by using their friends' preferred pronouns. If our children can accept people just as they are, our government leaders should too. Please oppose these bills.

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing in opposition to the bills AB100 and AB103, which seek to restrict Athlete's and Children's Transgender rights in Wisconsin.

I am born and raised in Wisconsin for nearly four decades, and this bill will adversely affect our state and communities within in untold ways. To put it plainly, these bills are the Republican party seeking to do legally harm a minority community, for no apparent reason other than the goal of causing harm. To borrow a phrase levied at then Senator McCarthy decades ago, 'Have you no decency?'

Of all the goals you could be focused on at this moment, you are choosing malice and pain towards students over quite literally any other form of support this state currently needs. Workers Rights, equitable tax distribution, equitable tax contributions, caring for the environment, to name but a few goals for the common good. Rather than take on any of that, well, here we are.

I will close by asking what other minority groups you would seek to hide from public view again because you feel irked by their existence? Why can we not just let our kids grow up and thrive?

I would like to express my opposition to the Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Every person deserves to use restrooms that match their gender identity, participate on teams that match their gender identity, and particularly feel safe enough to be authentic in their schools by referring to themselves with pronouns that match their gender identity. We have to support and protect our trans kids. They belong just as they are.

I am writing to vehemently oppose bills AB100 and AB103. These are bills that attack LGBTQ+ rights, especially for transgender youth. The Wisconsin Legislature has continued to advance bills that target transgender people. LGBTQ people have the right to participate in sports activities, to live in safety, to thrive, to be addressed by the name and pronoun they choose, and treated with dignity. These bills will cause harm to LGBTQ youth.

I ask that you reconsider your support of these bills.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Cedar Worth, and I am a constituent from Middleton, Wisconsin. I am submitting this written testimony in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which are scheduled for discussion in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly designed to ban transgender athletes and restrict name and pronoun changes for transgender youth. These bans, amidst an unprecedented wave of anti-trans legislation across the US, will only serve to alienate and harm transgender children, fostering a climate of fear rather than support.

As your constituent, I urge you to vote against these proposed bills. Transgender people exist and will continue to exist at every age. Enacting these bills would not only harm the transgender people you represent but also the broader transgender community by enabling hate, creating further division, and cultivating a climate of fear.

I ask that you, as representatives in Wisconsin, acknowledge all of the trans people you represent and vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Cedar Worth

My name is Amy Basel and have been a resident of Madison since 1995, with a home now in the 53714 zip code, and I'm writing to oppose the Bill AB100 and AB103. As a person with the same initials (AB) as these bills, I do not want to be even closely associated (no matter how random) with something so horrible. Please vote NO to both Bill AB100 and AB103!

I'm not proud of my state representatives taking the time to even introduce these bills in the year 2025. You all should be spending time fighting back against the takeover we are seeing and cuts to important supports and supporting our education system instead of trying to criminalize gender identity and tell kids that they don't belong. We should be trying to work toward sports teams that are open to all pupils. Why must we continue to separate folks by their gender that people want to maintain is binary when it is not. You should be ashamed of yourself for wasting the time it takes to write and get these before the committee. These bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools. There is not any need to further provide laws against a small and marginalized group of kids. This is blatant discrimination instead of working with kids, schools and parents.

There are so many other things that our schools and kids (pupils) attending them need instead of these hateful and discriminatory Bills. Please start spending your time on those and not trying to vilify trans youth.

I'm not trans, but I know several people who are and I've taken the time to listen and learn from them. There is a specific friend of mine that was born a female and grew up a girl and always was referred to as a tomboy. This friend of mine who is now an adult had qualified to participate in the CrossFit games and has been an athletic trainer and athlete themselves. They even started a fitness company and helped the roller derby league I was a part of with some training. Within the last few years, they have transitioned to using he/they pronouns and getting gender affirming surgery. He identifies as a non-binary trans male and is now living life as their authentic self. This friend of mine recently took themselves out of the CrossFit games and was disappointed to see this organization comply with an executive order based on fear and without any scientific evidence behind it. How can anyone think this is better for all kids, instead of appeasing the instances of a few people who "think" that they were discriminated against.

Ironically, Bill AB100 would not have applied to my friend as a pupil or athlete in school had they decided to transition sooner, since they are a female at birth and therefore would be able to qualify for male sports since the bill just refers to male at birth folks not able to qualify for female sports participation. Doesn't that just scream for a lawsuit of discrimination? Why would you just making it one gender and not include trans folks that identify as male not be able to participate in female sports?

More importantly, I've worked with skaters in a sport, and students in college who have clearly expressed the fact that they have gender identities that are not easily put into binaries of male and female. Whether or not you think that gender exists within that spectrum - the fact remains that people identify along that and are not changing their gender assigned at birth or going by different names or pronouns to win on a female sports team or impersonate anyone. They are trying to live their lives as themselves, and you and I don't need to understand or agree with that to know that it is harmful to force people to put themselves in one group or the other. Sports teams and Schools should be where we are helping kids to build identities, friendships and teamwork skills as well as getting to know one another.

I feel that both these bills AB100 and AB103 would only be creating more fear, hate and discrimination and I strongly urge you to vote NO.

Thank you for your time,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Sarah Forzley, and I am a Madison resident. I've lived here since 2012, and my husband and I settled here to be near his family, just like all his siblings. I say this to emphasize that even while pursuing a masters, a doctorate, and a corporate career, I continue to prioritize family values. Additionally, I am a former instructor at the University of Wisconsin, a former high school teacher, and a former elementary school teacher. Given that I live according to my family values, and that I spent over twenty cumulative years teaching young people and participating in girls' and women's sports myself, I care deeply about safety and equity in school and in sport.

For these reasons, I urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills do not increase safety or equity in schools or sports. Trans girls and trans women do not threaten the success of individual women or of women's sports in general. I have seen this myself as both an athlete and a teacher. Instead, they reveal a fundamental misunderstanding of sex assigned at birth, of the actual threats that girls and women face every day, and of athletic competition. Sex assigned at birth is not a perfect way to identify a person's sex. I have had students with different medical conditions whose sex assigned at birth did not take into account their chromosomal makeup because the doctor simply visually assessed the baby's features. I also have had students who felt that they belonged nowhere because they did not "fit in" with the boys or girls at their school. I would have loved to see those students find belonging, purpose, and friendship through sports. These bills instead teach our students to fear and discriminate against their peers. These bills teach our students that the definition of "girl" or "woman" is ever narrower. These bills threaten to drag us back into a time when the United States was more sexist, when women had even fewer opportunities in sport.

After my master's degree, I taught at a university in Paris and ran for a team there. I was just a run-of-the-mill varsity athlete in college, but in France I quickly climbed the national rankings. Why? Because France has less gender equality than the United States. I know that sometimes, conservative folks fear that liberal folks are not proud of the United States. I can say without hesitation that I am proud of the United States for how far we have come in girls' and women's sports since my mother's time. In France, I faced more sexual and physical harassment, more restrictive expectations for my gender, and more inequality in sport than I face here. Though it meant giving up my excellent ranking in France, I was relieved to return to the competition scene in the United States because, frankly, I love how many women in the United States are faster than I am – women's sports here have thrived under Title IX to the benefit of all, including mediocre athletes like myself. We are carried along in the wave of those who run faster than we do. It is in our interest to compete against as diverse a group of women as possible so as to improve our training and overall times.

Perhaps, if you feel that discussing nonbinary genders is polarizing, you can remember a time in your life when you did not fit in. Remember how uncomfortable that was, how isolating, how sad you felt. Trans students do not choose to be trans; nobody chooses to have a more difficult life in this way. Allowing trans students to participate in sports, allowing trans students to use the bathroom most comfortable for them, tells them that they belong. Nobody would undergo so much social stigma just to cause harm to others. Trans students are not trying to harm anyone, and they certainly don't threaten our sports. Do you know what does threaten girls and women in school and sport? Sexual harassment by male students, teachers, administrators, and clergymen. Bias from adults who do not believe girls or women have what it takes to lift weights, to succeed in STEM, to obtain advanced degrees. Let's focus on real problems instead of an imagined one.

Sincerely,
Sarah Forzley

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

Vote No on AB100. Sports and locker rooms should be available to all students. Sports are an essential foundation for many students' participation in extracurricular activities in public schools. As a high school student at West High School, I played on the soccer team and still have friendships with my teammates today.

You must oppose this bill because it attacks the freedom of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin. It creates an environment where it is ok to sideline kids rather than include them in the sports they love. We ought to do everything we can to support the rights of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin.

A vote yes for these bills is a vote yes to take away the right of all kids to enjoy sports with their friends. Make sure you vote no to protect kids' rights to play sports.

Vote No on AB103. The government has no business getting into our personal lives and telling us how to live our lives. Vote No on AB103 to keep the government out of all our kids' lives and let all kids be themselves.

Vote No on AB100 and AB103!

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103. These proposed bills are deeply harmful and would actively contribute to an unsafe and hostile environment for queer and transgender students, teachers, administrators, and parents.

AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection—they are transphobic measures that seek to erase and marginalize transgender youth. Trans students, like all students, deserve to be affirmed, supported, and safe in their schools. Denying them the ability to participate in sports or forcing them to be misgendered undermines their dignity, mental health, and overall well-being. These bills would fuel a climate of discrimination, making schools even more unsafe for queer and trans youth.

I have lived in Wisconsin for over 20 years and I am a full-time therapist. Many of the clients that I support are queer or trans, or have loved ones who are queer/trans. In my work, I see firsthand the destructive psychological and emotional impacts that legislation such as these proposed bills have on queer individuals and the queer community. Particularly under this new administration, trans folks are being targeted, scapegoated and persecuted. Trans people are under attack, and bills like this are nothing more than state-sanctioned discrimination.

Trans people exist. Trans people are not a threat. Trans folks are simply asking for the basic human right to be themselves without fear of persecution.

These proposed bills do nothing but put trans students at greater risk of bullying, isolation, and harm. If the goal of this committee is to protect and support students, then the focus should not be on banning pronouns or excluding children from sports—it should be on addressing the real dangers facing our schools, such as gun violence. Gun violence is the leading cause of death among young people in this country. Instead of wasting precious time and resources targeting one of our most vulnerable student populations, I urge you to prioritize real solutions that will protect all students.

I strongly urge you to reject AB100 and AB103. These bills do not protect students; they only harm them. Schools should be places of learning, growth, and acceptance—not sites of state-sanctioned discrimination.

Sincerely,
Tiffani Amber Sebastian

Representatives,

My name is Ani Miskowski. I am a resident of Milwaukee. While I believe that there is plenty of evidence detailing the harm Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will cause, part of me fears that those points do not matter to you. I fear that hearings like these have become an easily dismissible formality where the physical presence of a committee is meant to placate us. I hope I'm wrong. I cannot force you to open your hearts, and I would not want to. All I have is my hope that you will let yourself hear me.

I was born into a God-fearing family. We went to church every week. We communed with people who shared our faith and our values. But despite all of the faith that my parents claimed to have, they were afraid every day, afraid of making even one misstep, afraid of others, afraid of themselves, afraid of God, and afraid of punishment. That fear destroyed our relationship. I was not brave enough to ask them then, so I ask you now, those of you with open hearts who truly believe trans children are hurting themselves and genuinely want to protect them:

What if you're wrong? What if God's priority isn't the names or pronouns of these children but whether they are accepted and loved? What if trans children are not perverting their bodies but are transcending them, embracing a divine energy inspired by God?

I can't answer for you. I understand it might be scary to grapple with these questions regardless of what faith you may or may not hold. Your mind might conjure memories of shame or even physical punishment, times where you were deemed not masculine or feminine enough. Or perhaps you witnessed others receiving similar treatment and vowed to avoid it. Your instinct might be to defend these corrections, to insist they were acts of love, but you know what it feels like to be loved. Love is incompatible with the rejection of mental and physical autonomy. Do you know how it feels to find joy in who you are only for someone else to insist "You are who I say you are." If you know how that feels, if you remember that confusion and frustration, how can you carry that pain forward? How can you give it to children?

I feel sorry for you. Because I see the joy in these children. I see the love and transformation they bring to their families. Why don't you trust their joy? What messaging have you received that taught you their truth is in opposition to yours?

The only people you are protecting with these laws are yourselves, and, while you might feel like you've done something good (despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary), you are also holding yourself back. You are running away from your cognitive dissonance because you are afraid of what will happen if you're honest. As long as you avoid honesty, you will never know true peace. I do not want you to be trans if you're not trans. I do not want you to change your name unless you'd like to. I want you to have the freedom to celebrate differences in others and in yourself without fear of punishment. I want these children to lead long, happy, and fulfilled lives.

I beg you to use this moment and your power to show trans children love and acceptance. You have the ability to reject these bills and their rhetoric, and, furthermore, you have a moral responsibility to do so. All it takes is one moment to choose to embrace change. Aren't you tired of being afraid?

Compassionately,

Ani

To the members of the Assembly or Senate Committee on Education,

My name is Sloan Greenheck and I oppose bills AB100 and bill AB103.

All children deserve safe and supportive environments. Encouraging knowledge, learning, and self exploration is the purpose of education. By restricting a child's access to education and acceptance of gender expression, irreparable harm WILL be caused.

I am nonbinary. I am scared. I can only imagine how horrifying it is to live as a child in this political climate. Please do not make children feel less safe.

Thank you.

Sloan

Waterloo, WI

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aislinn Hutchinson and I am a concerned resident of the city of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for five years and have called Madison home for all of them. I am a business owner, spouse, and active member of my community. I am also trans. I am testifying on bill AB100 and AB103. I am testifying both about allowing trans youth to participate in sports according to their identified gender as well as their ability to use their chosen name and pronouns in school.

I am testifying about this because I myself just came out as non-binary this year. I am also a former college D1 athlete, and sports were and are my entire life. I recently had to find a new league to play hockey in because all of this hate that is being spread towards trans people is becoming a problem everywhere. My league tried to ban all trans players, including non-binary players. This significantly impacted my mental health as hockey is the place I go to play, have fun with my friends, decompress, and get physical activity. There was absolutely no scientific reason for banning athletes like myself from participating in sport, and the same thing is happening to youth if this bill is passed.

I wanted to share my story because I believe all PEOPLE should have the right and access to sport, as well as to use the pronouns of their choosing. Sports, and feeling safe in a dressing room are so important. This is a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. We are just people, wanting to respectfully be shown respect and honor like any human person deserves. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for it in my community. Madison is a welcoming community for all trans and queer people and I have never felt safer to be myself in a community. Passing these bills will create an environment where others can openly hate and fear monger them when all they want is to be accepted for who they are. Just believe them. How does it affect you? Do you know a trans person? Have you loved a trans person? I do, and I have, and they are the most caring people who know themselves deeply, and just want to exist with the same human rights and decency that cis people get. Please, just leave the trans kids alone.

I wish I had access to language like non-binary or trans when I was a kid this age, I would have known myself a lot better then. It took me 29 years to come out. I have never been happier, or thriving more than I am today. I have never felt safer in sport when others use my pronouns and allow me in their locker rooms. Please don't let youth have to deal with hatred from this young of an age. I barely made it to 29 years old, and a lot of these kids will not survive passing a bill like this. Suicide rates dramatically decrease when we allow kids to be themselves, and to be recognized by others as themselves. My solution is to allow kids to use the pronouns of their choosing, because why does it affect you to respect what someone wants to be called? Let trans kids play sports with their gender, because there is no real difference in athletic ability at these ages, and we all just want to play.

Thank you for taking the time to read my story, and I urge you to think about these kids as people, trying to figure themselves out, instead of as some scary group of people that the media and leaders of this country have decided are bad and wrong. Thank you for your consideration of these matters and solutions, it is very much appreciated.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years. I came as a teen from California and could never leave because I felt more at home in Madison than I have ever felt. But lately I've found myself questioning if this is where I can stay. If Wisconsin is where I want my children to go to high school and college? Why would they stay in this place if we pass bills that restrict the rights of others who are doing nothing more than asking to live as their authentic selves?

As you consider your vote today, I'm asking you to think about the children of today and tomorrow who these bills truly affects. What do you have to lose? What do you have to gain?

I personally have loved ones who, in the past few years, have been able to be their authentic selves, to go to school and use the pronouns that reflect who they truly are. Passing this bill would take away their comfort, their safety, their ability to live as who they truly are meant to be. I have gained the honor of knowing Trans youth who make our community a better place.

But, if these bills pass, I have so much to lose. I lose knowing the people I love as they authentically are. I lose seeing the people I love who can live safely and who feel comfortable living their lives in our community, this community, where they were born and raised and want to be able to stay. These bills are nothing more than a way of telling someone they don't belong. That's not the Wisconsin way. That's not who we are. Please consider the people who would truly be affected by these bills and support their rights to be who they are.

Trans youth deserve the right to participate in sports, and to use the pronouns that reflect who they are. Please vote in a way that supports the inclusive community we know and can be proud to be a part of.

Thank you for your support,

To members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Trans youth deserve to learn and participate by playing on sports teams and using locker rooms that match their authentic gender. They also deserve to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school. Every person has the right to be and to belong. This is what schools and school sports are for. Learning to appreciate each other's differences and how they contribute to the whole (as well as make us stronger). By not allowing students to be themselves, we are contributing to their mental health problems which is detrimental to not just them but other students and society at large. Please consider sending a message that we are here to love one another and unite in the acceptance of trans youth. They deserve to belong as themselves in schools and extracurricular activities.

RE: AB100 and AB103

To the members of the 2025 Assembly Committee on Education:

Wisconsin Assembly Bills 100 and 103 are yet another installment in the latest wave of legislation aimed at destroying the rights and freedoms of transgender individuals -- this time, attacking our children. These bills will prevent transgender students from participating in the school sports that align with their gender identity and also forcibly out transgender students if they in any way request staff to recognize their authentic selves. They are not just unnecessary wastes of Wisconsin taxpayer dollars; they are actively harmful.

Supporters of AB100 argue that the bill protects fairness in women's sports. These claims, however, are based on misleading political narratives and reject widely respected scientific evidence. Countless major medical organizations, including the American Academy of Pediatrics as well as the American Medical Association, recognize and confirm that transgender athletes do not inherently have an unfair advantage over cisgender athletes, and sports governing organizations such as the International Olympic Committee already have policies ensuring fair competition regardless of gender. AB100 is really just a solution in search of a problem, and in the process of trying to fabricate a crisis, it singles out and excludes transgender youth, sending a message that these children are not welcome.

AB103 is another attempt to marginalize transgender students -- this time by restricting how schools recognize and respect their identities. This bill would prevent schools from using a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns unless they align with a legal name change and are formally requested by a parent. If any parent or legal guardian makes such a request, ALL guardians will be given the opportunity to intervene. I know several people whose parents divorced or separated due to deep disagreement over whether their child should receive lifesaving care. Had AB103 been law they would have been subjected to the whims of their anti-trans parent, whether or not they were involved in their daily lives. Such policies disregard the lived experiences of transgender and nonbinary youth and will force their guardians to weigh whether to risk outing their children to unsupportive family members, who themselves will have the power to override a supportive parent. Or likewise, if they will risk the scrutiny of potentially unsupportive or even bigoted school administrators, personnel who may not even know the child in question. These barriers to simply existing at school are only in place for students the author deem unworthy of identity; students who request a name or similar accommodation who are not transgender are not burdened by AB103. Respecting a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns should not be a matter of politics; it is a matter of dignity, mental health, and safety. AB103 is not about parental rights or educational integrity; it is about policing identity and forcing schools, teachers, and staff to participate in discrimination against transgender youth.

Wisconsin's AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection -- they are about discrimination and control. The bills target an already vulnerable population, ignoring general scientific consensus and the voices of transgender people themselves. If these bills become law, they will cause real harm, not only by worsening stigma and mental health, but also the likelihood of self-harm among transgender youth.

A study published in the Journal Nature¹ September of 2024 assessed 19 states where anti-trans legislation passed from 2018 to 2022 and found an up to 72% increase in past-year suicide attempts by transgender and nonbinary youth, with a causal relationship by those states' anti-trans legislation.

Children's suicide rates increased across all states where anti-trans bills had been passed, and specifically as a result of those bans being enacted by their state legislatures.

These bills kill children born the same way as I was – created by God to find and live as our authentic selves. At best, they are intended to penalize and subjugate children who themselves are unknown by this bill's authors or the members of this committee. But in effect, this body will be setting policy that certain children are unwelcome in our schools, and unwelcome in our society more broadly. How many children must die before their lives are considered by this body?

I firmly believe what my church teaches: that all children, transgender nonbinary or otherwise, are created by God to find and embody our authentic selves and live out our lives as any other child of God. These bills attack that purpose, and with it our dignity and humanity. Would this body cosign the hatred, verbal and physical attacks transgender Children of God will be forced to endure by their peers, teachers, administrators, extended family and community? Will this body shield itself from the reality that children will be subjected to conditions which guarantee they will be told they are unwelcome in our society? This was a reality I was forced to live through for many many years, and as a result I regularly considered ending my own life beginning at the age of 13. I know many others like me who considered the ultimate sin, and I can only wonder how many more people would be alive today had they not experienced the same. I pray this body looks beyond themselves to see the humanity they will be snuffing out by putting their political careers over the lives and safety of fellow Children of God.

"If any of you cause one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea. Woe to the world because of things that cause sin! Such things are bound to come, but woe to the one through whom they come!"

-Jesus, via Matthew 18:6-7

Sam Nesovanovic

Regarding the Assembly Committee on Education

3/5/2025

My name is Sam Nesovanovic, and I am a concerned Wisconsinite and youth worker. I am testifying on how bills AB100 and AB103b will further isolate trans youth, which is detrimental to their wellbeing.

As a nonbinary adult who went to Wisconsin public schools for the entirety of my youth, I know firsthand how difficult it can be to feel that you need to tuck away parts of yourself so you can survive and fit in. I didn't have the language back then to describe my gender, but I knew I was different from the rest of my peers. I didn't feel like I could truly connect with my classmates, I lacked confidence, and I didn't feel as if I belonged at school. When people used my legal name, it felt confusing and wrong. Now that I am older, and have had the space to explore and assert my nonbinary identity, I have felt so much more at home within myself. I feel more in touch with the skills that I have and positive attributes I hold, and that allows me to show up for my community more than I have ever been able to in my life.

I feel it is necessary for me to testify today because I know the harm this bill will cause to current and future students in Wisconsin. These bills will strip away important spaces for trans youth to explore their passions, build connections with their peers and community, and feel more confident in their identity. Banning trans youth from playing sports on the team that matches their gender will isolate them from their peers. As someone who had close friends play on various sports teams in high school, I've seen how important being a part of a team was for their personal and professional growth; AB100 would eliminate that critical opportunity for Wisconsin's trans youth. Likewise, AB103 will cause trans youth to hide at school. They will lose the ability to trust adults at school, and potentially even their peers due to their fear of being outed. The reason that trans youth come out at school and not with their parents or guardians is because they don't feel safe enough to be out at home. The transgender community is already under attack on so many fronts in public and private spaces, and this pair of bills will further sharpen the target on their back.

I thank the Assembly Committee of Education for taking the time to read my testimony. I urge each of you to vote NO on this legislation. Children's lives and wellbeing are at stake.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Elizabeth Di Salvo I am from Madison, Wisconsin and reside in the 53719 zip code area. I have been a Madison area resident since 2002.

In regards to the anti trans bills AB100/AB103 I strongly oppose these bills.

As a parent of a child in the trans community these bills if passed will have detrimental impact on a small but important group of people.

Calling an individual by their preferred pronouns is one of the simplest ways to acknowledge a person for who they are. It may take effort to learn this, but it is simple and easy and respectful of another human being's freedom of choices.

My child also participated in school extracurricular activities including sports. the choice to participate in the gender that they identify with is important.

As explained in Harvard Health from July of 2021 by Sabra L. Katz-Wise, PhD (she/her) who is an assistant professor in adolescent/young adult medicine at Boston Children's Hospital, in pediatrics at Harvard Medical School,

"Imagine a scenario in which you are called the wrong pronoun or honorific — for example Mr., Ms., or Mrs. — multiple times a day. It might happen in person, over the phone, or via email. Each time it happens, you must decide whether it is worth it to correct that person or easier to let it go. Imagine that you are repeatedly confronted with this experience and the decision of whether or not to correct it throughout the day — every day. As we know from research, and as I've also heard from the TNB people I know, this is both exhausting and demoralizing. When people are misgendered, they feel invalidated and unseen. When this happens daily, it becomes a burden that can negatively impact their mental health and their ability to function in the world."

I can testify that since using the aligning pronouns, of their choice, my child, has had a huge shift in their attitude and outlook on life. As well as participating in sport that align with their preferred identity.

We have much bigger issues in the state of Wisconsin to address, than attacking and focusing on restricting the trans community. A group of individuals that just want to be free to be whom they are and be respected in their communities.

Thank you for your time and once again I oppose these bills in question

lassic Wilkening madison 53703, opposing this bill

"To the members of the Assembly Committee,

My name is lassic or Moss and I use they/them or he/him pronouns. When I first came out as trans I was in 8th grade, it was 2017 or 2018, I cant remember. But what I do remember was the level of care and support I got from my teachers. I remember on the first day back from summer break, all of our name cards were laid out on our desks, and everyone looked at me as I sat down at a desk with a name card that others didnt recognize. My teacher sat everyone down and explained that I would be going by a new name and that I would be using he/him pronouns from now on. Many kids in my class understood but some did not. It was my teacher that helped me get through the bullying and harassment, and my teacher who helped me feel safe at school. If it wasnt for my teacher being able to help me advocate for myself and for other students like me I dont know what would have happened. But I know that if it wasnt for me being able to go by lassic, to use he him and they them pronouns, that i would have ended up just like the 40% of trans kids who attempt suicide. That is around four out of every ten trans kids. Two out of every five. But those statistics are from 2022, the number now is around 72%, seven out of ten kids. We should be worried about what collages were going to get into, not about whether or not were going to live to graduate high school.

I'm now that teacher, and the times have not changed. Trans and nonbinary youth now more than ever need teachers and safe adults on their side to help them advocate for themselves and to help show them they are wanted, loved and appreciated. The way we do this is by using their preferred name, using their preferred pronouns."

Hello, my name is Sarah; I am from Madison (53716).

I am writing to the state lawmakers today to oppose the bills targeting transgender athletes and use of Pronouns in school (AB100/AB103).

These bills claim to secure women's and girl's rights in Wisconsin, but as a woman myself, these bills do nothing to protect me.

If lawmakers truly wanted to protect women, they would consider reforming health care so people could actually afford to have children without going in debt over hospital bills. They would work to provide mandatory paid parental leave that is in par with European countries. Lawmakers should secure and increase funding for the Woman, Infant, and Children programs to ensure children are taken care of after they are born.

If lawmakers wanted to protect women and children, they should change the laws so rapists and pedophiles are held fully accountable for their actions. They would increase funding to help women escape domestic violence situations (and work with places like DIAS to learn more about what can be done to actually protect women and children). They would not condone a rapist and felon as the President of the United States.

Please get off your culture war bullshit and do something that actually protects people instead of seeking control.

I leave you with the words of Lady Gaga:
Whether you're broke or evergreen
You're black, white, beige, cholo descent
You're Lebanese, you're orient
Whether life's disabilities
Left you outcast, bullied, or teased
Rejoice and love yourself today
'Cause baby, you were born this way

No matter gay, straight, or bi Lesbian, transgendered life
I'm on the right track, baby
I was born to survive
No matter black, white, or beige
Chola or orient made
I'm on the right track, baby
I was born to be brave!

I'm beautiful in my way
'Cause God makes no mistakes

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Rebecca Johnson, I am a resident of Madison, ZIP code 53704, and I am writing to express my opposition to AB 100 and AB 103.

As a former teacher, I've had multiple students that preferred a name that was different from their legal name, and preferred pronouns that didn't align with their assigned sex at birth. Being able to respect those students' identities is a necessary first step to building trust. Without the trust of my students, I would be fundamentally unable to do my job. Classroom management requires that respect goes both ways. If my students don't feel respected in my classroom, why should they respect me? Why should they listen to me at all?

And why waste everyone's time with this bill to prevent trans students from participating in sports? The number of trans girls playing on girls' sports teams in the nation is likely in the single digits, so how many even are there in Wisconsin? The only thing that this bill would serve to do is signal that trans students are dangerous or untrustworthy. These kids are already being bullied, already facing much higher rates of mental health struggles and suicide, and already feeling ostracized from their peers. For a bill that purports to be about protecting vulnerable students, it is certain to have the opposite effect.

I identify with the gender that was assigned to me at birth, but not only do bills like this directly harm the trans people in my life, they are the first step towards stripping away the rights and dignity of other LGBTQ+ people. After that, who's next? What other measures that are supposedly meant to "protect our students" will actually infringe on our civil liberties?

I hope that the members of the Committee on Education take a stand to protect our most vulnerable students, and vote against AB 100 and AB 103.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to ask you to oppose Bills 100 and 103. These bills would create an environment of surveillance and discrimination that would especially hurt transgender children and children who don't fit specific gender roles, but they also have the potential to harm all children in our schools.

Regarding AB 103

I grew up in the 1990s, where all the messaging I saw said girls could do anything boys could do, including sports. We celebrated news stories of girls joining the boys' hockey or even football team if their school didn't have a girls' team. I saw countless TV shows, movies, and commercials where girls were pitted against boys, on the field and elsewhere, and proved themselves just as strong and capable as the boys. In sixth grade, my best friend and I, both cisgender girls, were inspired by these kinds of stories and signed up for the touch football club in the after school program. We were the only girls. Admittedly, we didn't know how to play at first because no one had ever taught us before, but we had fun, learned a lot, and gained a lot of confidence.

But this bill is only about stopping certain kids from joining the girls' team, you say? Let's talk about the message that this kind of bill sends to cisgender girls. I find it deeply disturbing how far our culture has backslid on this issue in the last decade, all to target what amounts to a very small minority of people who just want to be themselves. The primary argument I see against allowing transgender girls to play sports with other girls is that "boys" are inherently stronger, more powerful, more dangerous than "girls." Is this really the message we want to be sending young female athletes? That no matter how hard they work, they will never be as good or as strong or as capable as kids that happened to be born with a penis are. How is it protecting girls to say that boys are just naturally better than them at sports without even having to try, and that's why anyone perceived as a "boy" can't be allowed to play or compete with them?

Singling out, scrutinizing, and demonizing transgender girls does the most damage to those girls, and to other transgender and intersex children who don't neatly fit into rigid categories. It sends a message to these children that we think they're dangerous, predatory, and suspicious just because they challenge our society's rigid concepts of gender. They are the ones I am most motivated to protect in speaking against bills like this one. However, because the counter-argument seems to be interested in "protecting" cisgender girls, I think it's crucial that we take a step back and ask what messages these actions really send to the only children the bill's supporters claim to care about.

School is a place where children learn academics, but it's also where they learn about who they are and how they interact with peers and people in positions of authority outside of their families. For kids whose home may not be safe for them to be fully themselves, it can be truly life-saving to have a place away from home to express themselves. But requiring schools to monitor, police, and report on children's gender expression (and yes, even experimentation) through name and pronoun changes is not only harmful and potentially dangerous. It's also a poor use of already stretched school resources and staff time.

As a child, I was considered a tomboy because at a certain age I stopped liking "girly things." But rather than police my expression or go to my parents like I was doing something wrong, my teachers treated me like any other kid in the classroom. They encouraged my interests, took notice of subjects that I excelled at, and only monitored my academic performance and looked out for behavior that indicated I was having a hard time. I was fortunate to have parents who also supported my personal expression even when they didn't totally understand it. I consider myself very lucky that the adults in my life never made me feel ashamed or wrong because of something like how I expressed my gender. But I have plenty of friends who did, and even in their 30s and 40s they are still dealing with the consequences of that. It would be a travesty for Wisconsin to follow the trend of states passing laws to not only allow but require harmful messaging and surveillance, when ample research shows that affirming and supportive environments lead to better short- and long-term emotional wellbeing.

Please do not move these bills forward. Thank you.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 46 years and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a equal education free from harassment and discrimination.

To: Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I am strongly opposed to both bills limiting rights and access for trans students in Wisconsin - AB 100 and AB 103.

These bills cause direct harm to young people who simply want to be themselves and play sports with their peers, which has a multitude of social, physical and academic benefits.

According to the WIAA "Students that participate and are engaged in school programs ... have less truancy, lower drop-out rates, fewer disciplinary issues and better grade point averages on average than their peers that have no involvement... students who took part in more vigorous sports like soccer or football performed nearly 10 percent better in math, science, English and social studies classes... participation in extracurricular activities gives all students--including those from disadvantaged backgrounds and those without stellar academic accomplishments in high school--measurable improvements on college admission exam scores. Furthermore, students who compete in sports in high school were more likely than those not participating to be active in volunteering, voting, speaking publicly and being aware of current events."

Why on earth would we ban a group of students from experiencing these benefits simply due to their gender identity?

According to the NIH, "Transgender people are at substantially increased risk for various negative mental health outcomes compared to cisgender people. These poor mental health outcomes include depression and anxiety and are likely due to social rejection, stigma, discrimination, and violence."

82 percent of transgender youth have considered suicide. Both these bills promote rejection and discrimination, which could cause the number to rise.

Let's focus our efforts on supporting vulnerable students when depression, substance use and suicidal ideations are a very real issue in the transgender community driven largely by the social rejection, stigma and discrimination that you will increase with these bills. Let's do better for the next generation.

To the members of the Assembly,

My name is Amber Trainor, and I am a paraprofessional at a public school in Northern Ozaukee County. I am writing to express my deep concern and opposition to bills AB100 and AB103.

In my role, I have the privilege of supporting a small community of transgender students within our school. As an ally who provides a safe and accepting space, I have witnessed firsthand both their struggles for acceptance and their joy in forming new friendships. Like all students, transgender students wish to be seen and recognized for who they truly are. Acknowledging their preferred names and pronouns costs nothing but holds immense value for these young individuals.

Bills like AB103 impose an unnecessary financial burden on families by requiring a legal process for name changes. This bill, rather than offering support, isolates and stigmatizes a small percentage of students who are simply seeking to express their authentic selves. Additionally, AB100 restricts transgender students from participating in sports, which not only hampers their ability to build vital peer relationships but also denies them the well-documented mental health, discipline, and academic benefits of team involvement.

These bills are harmful to the mental health, social development, and safety of transgender students. As an educator who interacts with these students daily, I cannot support legislation that would cause them further harm or marginalization. I urge you to reconsider your stance on AB100 and AB103 and to vote against these bills.

Thank you for taking the time to read my concerns. I appreciate your service to our community and hope you will act to protect all students in our state.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 13 years, and I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

I serve my community as a Girl Scout troop leader for gender diverse children. My scouts are committed to the Girl Scout law, which requires that they be honest and fair, and respect themselves and others. Caitlin Benedetto

My name is Caitlin Benedetto, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 proposed to the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6.

AB 100 and AB 103 are clearly crafted as trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bills come during a time of hardship, fear, and uncertainty for all transgender people, and if passed they would only harm trans children, their families, and their communities.

Research shows us that children become aware of their gender identity at a young age, and children's mental health outcomes are much better when they are able to start socially transitioning from a young age. Social transition for trans kids includes using names and pronouns that align with their gender, as well as participating in social and recreational activities – such as sports – in ways that recognize their gender. If passed, these bills would bar transgender children in the state of Wisconsin from enjoying the full benefits of living in society as their true gender. We know that transgender children whose gender is not recognized are at greater risk for depression, self-harm, and suicide. These bills endanger the lives and wellbeing of trans children. I do not support these bills, and as one of your constituents I strongly urge you not to vote against them.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. I ask that you do your duty as Representatives in Wisconsin and acknowledge all of the trans people you represent. I ask that you in good conscience vote against AB 100 and AB 103.

Thank you,
Caitlin Benedetto

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing in opposition to AB100 and AB103.

AB100: As a Wisconsin resident and the father of a gender nonconforming child, I plead with you, for the safety of my child, to oppose this bill. This bill will deny my child the experience of participating in athletics and subject my child to bullying, violence, and trauma. The adolescent experience in school locker rooms is hard enough without forcing a child into the locker room that doesn't align with their gender identity. By forcing a child to abstain from athletics in school or to be exposed to even more ridicule, bullying, and violence than they're already subject to, will create an environment that will cause irreparable harm to children who just want to be who they are. From my experience in school athletics, girls playing in traditional male sports, put a target on their back. Please oppose this bill. Opposing this bill will save lives both directly and indirectly.

AB103: I am writing as a Wisconsin resident and the father of a gender nonconforming child. Please oppose this bill. This bill will also cause irreparable harm to children, both from their peers, and create a conflict in homes with neglectful parents. By denying a child the liberty and right to be called by their chosen name and pronouns that reflect who they are, the state will be effectively outing them as transgender to their peers and creating a dangerous environment. Let kids be who they are. Let kids be safe in school.

Thank you for your time and please oppose these hurtful bills.

Sincerely,

Joseph Meador

Good morning,

My name is Aster Stefanich and I am a constituent living in Middleton, WI 53562. I am writing to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. If these bills are turned into law, they will cause real, objective harm to Wisconsin youth. Every child deserves to feel like they belong, and research has shown that trans youth are especially vulnerable to isolation, self-harm, abuse, and suicide. Enacting these bills would further isolate vulnerable children at a time when they particularly need social support. Additionally, bill 103 would lead directly to an increase in child abuse, as teachers would no longer be able to help validate and protect trans youth who are not safe at home. These bills would be incredibly harmful to our children, our schools, and our communities, and as such, I strongly urge you to vote no on both.

Thank you for your time,
Aster Stefanich

Dear Members of the Wisconsin State Legislature Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103, two bills that would harm transgender students in Wisconsin by restricting their participation in sports and limiting their ability to be recognized by their chosen names and pronouns in schools. These measures not only violate fundamental principles of equality and dignity but also place undue government interference in deeply personal matters that should be handled with compassion, not legislation.

I was born and raised in Wisconsin, and returned to the state to raise my three children. I want my children to grow up in a state that treats every child with respect and fairness. These bills send a dangerous message that transgender youth are unwelcome or unworthy of the same rights as their peers. Studies have shown that affirming a child's gender identity reduces rates of depression, anxiety, and suicide. By enacting policies that single out and discriminate against trans students, Wisconsin would be ignoring the overwhelming evidence that acceptance and inclusion create safer, healthier communities.

Additionally, these bills undermine the autonomy of local school districts, teachers, and parents, inserting state lawmakers into private decisions that should be made by those who best understand and care for each individual student. Restricting the use of correct names and pronouns not only disrespects transgender students but also sets a dangerous precedent of government overreach into educational spaces.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103 and instead focus on policies that support all Wisconsin students. Our state should be a place where every child—regardless of gender identity—feels safe, valued, and empowered to thrive. Please stand on the right side of history and protect the dignity and rights of transgender youth.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will choose to affirm Wisconsin's commitment to equality and fairness.

Sincerely,
Laura Foster

To the Assembly Committee on Education in reference to Bills 100 and 103

As the grandparents of a transgender child and retired educators, we're asking you to let these children be the themselves. Children in general have a hard enough time figuring out who they are and their place in our world. Our grandchild, a freshman in highschool, like so many, has been through so much already realizing and revealing who he is. The family, healthcare workers, and school district have been wonderful accepting him and actually saving his life. we're asking you to stay out of this, and let those people with the education and love for these children help and as a result it helps all children be more caring about all the diversity in our lives.

Thank you for your attention.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Julie Posh Dykstra. I am a resident of Milwaukee, zip code 53208. I am writing to give testimony in opposition to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

I have lived in Wisconsin since I was 4 years old. I grew up in the Wisconsin public school system. I was lucky to have a positive experience where I felt valued, heard and safe. I had the opportunity to participate in any extracurricular activity I chose, which let me learn about myself, others and the world around me. I was able to develop my interpersonal skills and leadership skills. Every student in Wisconsin should continue to have those opportunities, regardless of their gender identity. It's such a critical time for young people to feel supported, encouraged and valued so that they can continue to grow and flourish.

I now have a five month old daughter. I want her to have the same kind of experience at school that I did, and I'm worried that she won't be able to have it. I don't know who she'll grow up to be, but as her mother it's my responsibility and honor to help guide and support her along her journey. I desperately want the teachers, coaches and friends she meets along the way to help too.

A major part of that is caring about who she is as an individual, respecting her thoughts & feelings and treating her with respect and kindness. Her name and pronouns are a core part of her identity and respecting them is such a small, easy way to care for the whole child.

Another major part is giving her access and opportunity to try new things. Sports in particular offer so many benefits to children.

I am not concerned at all about trans athletes negatively impacting my daughter's experience in sports. To the contrary, I'm deeply concerned that limiting a trans child's access will lead to a system open to exclusion and cruelty. As well as invasion of privacy in such a vulnerable time for young people.

I urge you to oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 in order to protect all children and to keep Wisconsin schools a place where we want to raise them.

Thank you,
Julie Posh Dykstra

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 8 years, but I grew up here and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination.

We've seen these kind of bills before. They have been brought before this committee year after year in an attempt to terrorize our trans youth, their parents, and decent folks all around the state who understand these bills are no more than hatred and grandstanding. These bills have no founding in science, data or reality. They are simply attacks by people who do not like what is different than them. If people took the time to see the truth, you'd see that being trans gives no one an edge. It is just who they are and simply that. I've seen many trans kid athletes who ~~just as bad as~~ my non trans kid at running for example.

These bills are cruel and used to terrorize people who just want to live their lives as their true selves. Wisconsin is better than this. We must be better than this. We have plenty of actual problems to solve, quantifiable issues based in fact rather than bias and superstition. Let's work on those and leave these kids alone.

Assembly Committee on Education,

I, Rose Melton (City of Milwaukee, 53211) am testifying in opposition of Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

Growing up, and even today, most of my friends are transgender. It was something they knew about themselves early, and something that they trusted to share with me. But we were all terrified of what could happen if one of us made a mistake and called someone the wrong name to the wrong person. Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will prevent trans students from having a chance to be their authentic selves in school, and makes school an even more stressful place to be not only for trans kids, but their peers and the staff who are responsible for them. Gender affirming policies and health care save lives, so I urge the Committee to reject these Assembly bills and help protect Wisconsin's kids.

Sincerely,
Rose Melton
Milwaukee 53211

I am writing to voice my STRONG opposition to AB100/AB103. I believe that anti-LGBTQ policies not only take away human rights but also ENDANGER LGBTQ kids.

Studies show that when LGBTQ kids are supported at school, their risk of suicide drops. Something as simple as allowing a student to use their preferred pronouns can SAVE A LIFE.

I also believe that trans students should be allowed to participate in sports. It's ridiculous to exaggerate this issue when there are so few cases in Wisconsin. In 2021, a WIAA spokesperson said he couldn't recall a trans kid ever competing in a state tournament. Why is it necessary to even propose this bill? It's clearly a way to stoke fear of resistance toward the LGBTQ community so the Republican party can keep an hold on their constituents. It does nothing but harm the mental health of trans kids.

Please rule on the side of the safety and well-being of some of our most vulnerable young people. They need our SUPPORT and validation. NOT more exclusion.

Thank You,
Stephanie Sharp

Dear Honored Members of the Wisconsin Assembly:

PFLAG is a nonprofit which originated in 1972. A mom decided to march next to her kiddo with a sign that said, "I love my gay son." Since that time PFLAG has become a national organization. Its mission is to create a caring, just, and affirming world for LGBTQIA people and those who love them. We established PFLAG Cambridge (53523) in October of 2019 to further promote this mission at a local level through eastern Dane and western Jefferson counties. We write to you today as constituents and as PFLAG members.

The world does not treat our LGBTQIA loved ones fairly. The bills known as AB100 and AB103 (bills disallowing trans kids in sports and declining to use their chosen pronouns) are stark examples of how transgender people, who already face so many hardships, are treated unfairly based on their transgender identity. Allowing for this unfair discrimination creates further hardships for our loved ones. And for that reason we ask that you vote against these bills.

Discriminatory actions cause additional hardship for the people targeted. The harm this discrimination causes is quantifiable and unacceptable. GLSEN, the Gay, Lesbian, & Straight Education Network, is an organization founded in 1990 which has been gathering data on the safety of LGBTQIA youth in school and their safety for over 20 years. According to their 2021 biannual survey 68.0% of LGBTQ+ students felt unsafe at school because of their sexual orientation, gender identity and/or gender expression characteristics—50.6% because of their sexual orientation, 43.2% because of their gender expression, and 40.3% because of their gender (<https://www.glsen.org/sites/default/files/2022-10/NSCS-2021-Full-Report.pdf>). According to the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) Transgender individuals are nearly four times as likely to experience a mental health condition. NAMI further states that forty percent of transgender adults have attempted suicide. (<https://www.nami.org/Your-Journey/Identity-and-Cultural-Dimensions/LGBTQ>).

Discriminatory actions have real world results. These bills communicate to every transgender person in Wisconsin that the people elected to protect us see them as less than whole, and not worth the same protection and respect as their peers. We strongly urge you to vote against the bills known as AB100 and AB103 (bills disallowing trans kids in sports and declining to use their chosen pronouns).

Sincerely,
PFLAG Cambridge

As a proud Wisconsin resident, I am ashamed that this is even making it to the floor for discussion. I want to live in a state that welcomes everyone with open arms, not one that discriminates against the most vulnerable in our society.

These bills do nothing but give attention to hateful, discriminatory rhetoric, and our representatives should be ashamed of themselves for even entertaining it when there are actual issues that face their constituents, especially the children in their districts.

Let's talk about how the new director of HHS is an anti-vaxer amid a measles outbreak, and do something to protect our children with vaccine mandates and education.

Let's do something to address gun violence in the state, as our representatives meet in the same city where a school shooting took place just a few months ago.

Let's talk about increased funding for education and our educators so our children can be prepared to go on and be future well educated leaders in our state.

Let's talk about funding breakfast and lunch for our students like our neighbors in Minnesota.

If AB100/103 pass in the chamber, our representatives should be downright embarrassed for bowing to the president's hateful rhetoric rather than showing empathy and understanding. They have an opportunity to make a powerful statement of love and acceptance on behalf of their constituents, and I sure as hell hope that's what they choose.

Jake Bujnowski

Dear Representatives,

My name is Sam Yeskis-West, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Merrill WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th. AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation. As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Sam Yeskis-West

Dear Assembly Committee on Education.

I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

Trans students should be allowed to play on sports teams and use locker rooms consistent with their gender identity. They should also be allowed to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Ann Brummitt and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Brown Deer WI. I am submitting testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed to the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

These bans come at the expense of a very vulnerable population that needs our support and not bullying and harassment by the federal, state, and local government. I am appalled that this kind of bill is being proposed here in Wisconsin where I have been an educator and a life-long resident.

Please vote against these bills and do your job of representing ALL your constituents.

To the members of Senate committee on Bill AB100/AB103:

I am a proud aunt of a transgender youth. Every day he gets bullied, picked on, pictures of before he transitioned being pulled up, being regularly targeted with violence and harrassment by his own classmates for being trans. No one in his upbringing told him what being trans was or what it meant. He came to figure this out about himself when he was only 12 years old. My nephew is 16, about to turn 17 later this year. This bill and every other anti-transgender bill will only normalize the harassment and violence towards people like my nephew. Shame on you, members of Senate committee for even considering passing such a heinous and hateful bills that will, without a shadow of doubt, put me and the rest of the queer community in danger. I cant believe I have to beg you people to leave Transgender people alone. We are people. They are people.

Sincerely,
An angry citizen

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to strongly oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 8 years, serve as educator and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a rigorous and supportive education free from harassment and discrimination. Many trans youth whom we encounter would not be excelling without such an environment.

Re: AB 100 and AB 103

Are you kidding me with this?

These bills are a transparent attempt to score political points at the expense of one of the most marginalized communities in the world. This is an obvious attempt to score political points by risking the lives of some of Wisconsin's most vulnerable children.

Make no mistake, if passed these bills will lead to suffering and WILL lead to some trans children in Wisconsin committing suicide. What you think of as a political football will be the last straw for some of our children.

To understand why, it is relatively easy in this day and age to be thoroughly educated about trans people, their struggles and their lives, from actual medical and scientific professionals in the field. You could start at the following URL. <https://wpath.org/> Remaining ignorant of the issues facing trans folks in this day and age is a choice, and if you chose to make that choice, you have no business passing laws designed to take away the rights of trans people. Further, if you are educated about trans people and trans issues and still choose to increase their suffering, you should be ashamed of yourselves. God knows, I am ashamed of anyone who votes for either of these garbage bills.

There is real work that needs to be done in Wisconsin. Scott Walker and the republican controlled legislature have brought us HUGE problems with both school funding and teacher pay and retention. Why not focus your attention on fixing some of the problems republicans have caused, instead of trying to cause more problems?

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 8 years, and am the parent of 3 and 6 year old daughters, who the older of whom has participated in Madison youth sports and will be attending a Madison public school this fall, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination. The data shows that trans kids are at much greater risk of harm than of being harmed. Further, this bill would lead to a massive invasion of privacy and an increase in government monitoring. As a believe in personal liberty, it is disturbing to see the party that believes in small, unobtrusive government advocating a bill that will lead to a massive increase in its authority over the most intimate matters.

Sincerely,
Andrew Bloomberg

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Mary Anne Reed & I am a resident of the City of Monona, WI. I have lived in Wisconsin all of my 70 years. I am a retired Registered Nurse and grandmother of three sweet children.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB 100 & AB 103. Years ago in my Obstetrics classes, we not only studied fetal growth and development, we also learned that establishing gender at birth was not always clear cut. If you truly believe that every child is a child of God, then why would you want to make life even harder for these children? Both AB 100 and AB 103 would do so.

Sincerely,
Mary Anne Reed

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

Our names are Kathie and Kevin Brohaugh and we are concerned parents from Middleton, Wisconsin. Kathie was born and raised in Madison and Kevin has been a Wisconsin resident for 14 years. We are writing to oppose bills AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct names and pronouns, and AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban.

We have a child who is nonbinary. Their school has been extremely supportive of them and us. Both teachers and the administration have helped our kid feel accepted.

All children should be able to receive similar support from people they trust whether at home, school, or elsewhere. All children should be allowed to share information with the people they deem safe without fear of consequences. The Trevor Project has data on minors that experience homelessness or housing instability, either by choice because they did not feel safe in their own homes or by force due to unaccepting parents or guardians.

In addition all children should have the opportunity to practice and compete on a sports team that matches who they are. Participation in sports offers many lessons - leadership, confidence, self-respect, and sportsmanship - which are valuable to any and all students.

Denying participation of transgender students could also cause harm to cisgendered students that do not fit society's expectations of girls or females. As demonstrated by controversies during the 2024 Summer Olympics, cisgender women were accused of being transgender because they appeared too masculine or were too good at their sport.

These bills aim to take safety away from transgender and nonbinary students, eliminating schools as a safe space for them. We thank you for your consideration for the safety and acceptance of all Wisconsin's youth.

Sincerely,
Kathie and Kevin Brohaugh

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

I am writing to express my opposition to AB100 and AB103 and in support of children. Trans and non-binary children pose no threat to anyone. They are young people like all others, who deserve to explore and express their identities at school. We know that for LGBTQIA+ children and youth, acceptance by their families and communities is especially critical, as they are otherwise at great risk for suicidal ideation and attempts.

Participation in sports is correlated with improved self-esteem, engagement in school, and success in school - and there is no reason to take that away from the trans and non-binary children who choose to participate in sports. Their presence is no threat to their peers. In addition, I ask how you intend for schools or coaches to enforce rules about who can participate in girls' sports, in particular. No girl should be subjected to genital examination in order to join a sports team (and I hope no parent would allow their child to join a team where that was required), and yet that is the only way to actually enforce the rule you are considering.

Please take a step back from the hysteria about trans kids and remember that they are just that: kids. You don't have to understand exactly what they are experiencing - you just need to allow them the freedom and support to be themselves so that they can survive and thrive.

Please, do not allow AB100 and AB103 to pass. Our kids all deserve better.

Dear Members of the Committee,

I beseech you to vote NO on Assembly bill 100 and NO on Assembly bill 103.

These bills put an official stamp of approval on bullying and are not in the best interests of any child in Wisconsin or beyond. Passage of such bills will embolden more cruelty by those who feel justified with the intolerance that is the backbone of both of these proposals.

A bill to deny any child the choice of words to describe themselves, in a space they might have felt safe.

A bill to end the chance for a child to play on a team and experience a sense of belonging.

Bills that tell these children they should not be accepted unless they change; they do not deserve to be happy.

Imagine waking one day and discovering the government had decreed that you must pretend not to be yourself. It's this mindset that is wrong, not these children.

Bill 100 and 103 will certainly sort students into neat boxes but the boxes may be coffins. Perhaps this was factored into the goal as it eliminates the perceived problem. Trans youth already have a high suicide rate, which spikes after anti-trans bills pass, with their sweeping condemnations for just existing.

Kids can be cruel but adults can be crueler. Adults have power that children don't, and too often wield that power against the weakest, because it is easy. The safety and well being of Americans has not shown to be a concern for the Republican party currently; it is unsurprising that the safety of the children targeted by this bill was not considered when brought forward by members of said party.

These bills attack transgender children, our children, while the president is devastating our constitution unchecked. There are real problems in our country right now, please do not distract yourselves with legislating hate. Vote no, then come together to find a way to help others instead of harming them.

Thank you,

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

My name is Susie Seidelman, and I am writing from Shorewood, Wisconsin 53211. I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. I have called Wisconsin my home for all of my 44 years, and as someone who cares deeply about the well-being of all Wisconsinites, I cannot stand by while legislation threatens the health, safety, and dignity of transgender and gender non-conforming members of our community.

I believe every person deserves respect and the opportunity to live an authentic life. These bills would harm transgender youth by denying them the basic right to participate in school sports, use locker rooms that align with their gender, and have their chosen names and pronouns recognized in educational settings. As a result, these students would be singled out, stigmatized, and exposed to increased discrimination.

On a personal level, I have witnessed how affirming my transgender family member's identity transforms their confidence and sense of belonging. Supporting young people's ability to live as their authentic selves not only fosters a safer environment for them but creates a more inclusive, understanding community for everyone. Denying them these rights sends the message that they do not deserve the same opportunities as their peers—which is simply not true and runs counter to our shared Wisconsin values.

Our state should be a place where fairness and equality guide our policies. According to numerous studies, transgender people, especially youth, already face disproportionately high rates of bullying, depression, and self-harm. Legislation like AB 100 and AB 103 would only exacerbate those challenges. When schools and communities support transgender students, we see higher graduation rates and improved mental health outcomes, benefiting all of us in the long term.

I ask you to reject AB 100 and AB 103. Let's ensure our state continues to move toward greater acceptance, respecting the fundamental rights and human dignity of all Wisconsinites. I urge you to oppose these bills and stand with every community member in Wisconsin—especially our transgender youth—who deserves safety, respect, and opportunity.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Susie Seidelman, Shorewood, WI 53211, Opposing AB 100 and AB 103

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Brittney Koerner-Wrench, and I am a resident of Brown County in Green Bay, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin since 2003 and have been an advocate for, as well as a part of, the LGBTQ minority for as long as I can remember. Even growing up in a small town I knew the importance of living as your most authentic self and helping to support others to do so as well. I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills AB100 and AB103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because children of any minority, background, and gender identity have the right to be themselves without the risk of judgement and harassment. These bills risk these children not being able to have the same opportunities as any other child gets to have in their day to day school experience all due to simply expressing themselves in a different way. The way someone expresses their gender identity does not and will never be a threat to anyone. The only threat is when we take away that freedom and suppress people's rights simply for someone else's "comfort".

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

AB103

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are. Their identity is not a threat to anyone and never will be.

I hope you will support our children of all gender orientations and let them have the right to express their inner selves the way that brings the most comfort to themselves, not for others who it will have no effect on at the end of the day.

Sincerely,
Brittney Koerner-Wrench

My name is Jennifer Smith, resident of Madison Wisconsin (53714). I'm writing in opposition of bills AB 100 and AB103. These bills are anti trans discrimination with no scientific underpinning and carry the potential for harmful and possibly fatal consequences.

First, trans athletes in sports. Believing and perpetuating myths and misconceptions about trans athletes is harmful. Denying trans people the right to participate is discrimination and it doesn't just hurt trans people, it hurts all of us, including cis women.

Second, forcibly out transgender students could threaten their well-being, and we already know that LGBTQ+ young people are not inherently prone to suicide risk because of their sexual orientation or gender identity but rather placed at higher risk because of how they are mistreated and stigmatized in society.

Suicide is the second leading cause of death among young people aged 10 to 14, and the third leading cause of death among 15-24 year olds (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2022). Lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and questioning (LGBTQ+) young people are at significantly increased risk.

LGBTQ+ young people are more than four times as likely to attempt suicide than their peers (Johns et al., 2019; Johns et al., 2020).

The Trevor Project estimates that more than 1.8 million LGBTQ+ young people (ages 13-24) seriously consider suicide each year in the U.S. — and at least one attempts suicide every 45 seconds. (<https://www.thetrevorproject.org/resources/article/facts-about-lgbtq-youth-suicide/>)

Please vote no on these discriminatory and harmful bills.

I am asking that in the best interest of youth in Wisconsin that you oppose these bills. As a former athlete (and member of my high school Athletic Hall of Fame), I know what an important role sports can be for youth. To be restrictive in accepting students is closeminded. ALL students need the opportunity to play, and this includes transgender students. Allow these children to play and use locker rooms that align with their gender. Trust their parents and current medical professionals. All children need to be accepted and encouraged to compete.

Further, to not allow students to use their preferred name is reprehensible. All members of society have the right to be called what they wish, and to take this away from students within the context of their education is nothing short of cruel. It is a way to close the door on students, not allowing them to be their full selves.

If you want children to thrive in Wisconsin, please do not pass AB 100 or AB 103.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 39 years, all my life. I participated in sports through my entire K-12 education, as well as supported them while attending UW-Whitewater, was a teacher in Madison for ages pre-K through 8th grade for 8 years. Now I support women and Marginalized gendered entrepreneurs by co-founding and leading a state-wide organization called Doyenne. Today, I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen and not on behalf of Doyenne.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equal, inclusive, and caring education free from harassment and discrimination.

The continued attack on trans youth, and all from the LGBTQIA+ community, is deplorable. We have heard testimony from NCAA leadership, and public records that show these attacks target a very small percentage of the actual population and have almost zero confirmed cases where these items are in fact problems happening within our schools.

We know that the majority of Americans support LGBTQIA+ rights, so why are you continuing to go against constituents beliefs and wishes?

We also know that LGBTQIA+, especially Trans youth, have the highest suicide rates of any population. Are these bills worth even one child taking their own life when we know the results of passing the bills will affect less than 1% of the population?

I ask you to reconsider. I ask for you to do the humane and right thing of opposing these bills.

Everyone deserves to participate in sports and be themselves at school, but these pieces of legislation would prevent trans youth from doing so on the basis of their gender. Our Constitution clearly states that we are all equals yet before us we see legislation purports otherwise.

Even if these bills don't become law, their introduction alone has proven harmful. A 2022 survey found that 85% of trans and nonbinary youth report that facing ongoing political attacks has been detrimental to their mental health, according to the Trevor Project. The effect does not end with just the youth in our state either. This continual stream of bills against the trans community invalidates the experience of state residents. In any other context the words and actions of the authors of these bills would be considered bullying and potentially harassment as we as a community have consistently asked you to stop. Asked you to treat us with respect. Asked you to have compassion from those different from you.

So I am writing to ask you to please stop targeting the trans community with bills that restrict the rights of people in this state.

I request that bills Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns) not be permitted to move forward in the process.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Margaret Schnell, I am a Wisconsin constituent and voter, and I live in Madison. I am submitting written testimony against Assembly bills 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on 3/6.

AB 100 AND 103 are, frankly, a low and cowardly attempt to bully children in order to score political points. These bills would subject vulnerable trans kids to alienation and create a climate of fear that would harm all children. All kids deserve a sense of belonging, within their school, their community, and on a team playing sports, if they so choose.

As one of your constituents, I implore you in the strongest possible terms to vote against both these bills. I played girls sports for a decade, from age 8 to 18. If you've ever loved to play, or even loved to watch sports, you know that what truly matters is the people. The comradery of a team, knowing people you wouldn't otherwise get to, working toward a shared goal, learning perseverance and how handle both defeat and victory - all kids deserve these opportunities.

As your constituent and your neighbor I ask you to vote against these despicable bills.

I am writing to urge each of you to oppose AB100 and AB103. As members of the Committee on Education, I can only assume that each of you care very much about Wisconsin's youth and about ensuring that every young person gets both a solid education and a healthy foundation on which to develop into the adults of the future. Neither of these are possible for youth who are subjected to exclusion, disrespect, and demonization. AB100 and AB103 do nothing but exclude, disrespect and demonize youth who are transgender, non-binary or gender non-conforming.

Being inclusive and respectful of trans youth does no harm to anyone other than those seeking to use trans youth as scapegoats. I assume no one on this committee would seek to do that.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

We are writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of students to use their preferred names and pronouns.

We have lived in Wisconsin for our entire life, and are speaking on our own behalf as private citizens.

We have personally witnessed the pain of a loved one struggling with suicidal depression stemming from gender dysphoria. Coming out as transgender was a life-changing moment for her for the better, in large part because the people she trusted at home and at school have been supportive and affirming. Being able to use her own preferred name and pronouns has been critical to her emotional health and well-being: she missed most of 8th grade from psychological distress, but is now scoring top marks on schoolwork in 9th grade. The difference has been night and day.

Imagine if her parents had not been supportive. If AB103 were law, staff at her school would have been legally barred from using her preferred name and pronouns. She would have had no support in the two most central environments of her life, leading to more crippling depression, delinquency, running away from home, even possible suicide. Maybe you scoff at the idea that AB103 could result in such outcomes for our children -- but imagine living day after day being called a name that doesn't feel like yours, with it being illegal for others to call you by one that works for you. It is a basic principle of dignity and respect that we refer to others how they want to be called. This is not "woke" but rather common decency.

Trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an equal and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education -

I'm writing to voice my strong opposition to proposed bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a long-time member of the Village of Shorewood, hold a PhD in Child Clinical Psychology, and have worked in the nonprofit sector of Milwaukee for over 30 years. I am also the mother of a young adult trans woman.

If passed, these bills would have a devastating impact on the health, well-being, and safety of Wisconsin's trans and non-binary youth and adults. The detrimental effects of these kinds of bills are clear from more than a decade of scientific research and from the positions of all the relevant professional organizations (e.g., American Psychological Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, etc.).

I truly can't imagine my daughter being barred from playing sports, unable to use the locker room or rest room that is consistent with her gender, and being prohibited from using her name or correct pronouns. In all spheres of her life, she lives and moves through the world as a woman. She, along with other trans youth and adults, have the right to live, play, and exist as their authentic selves.

Please join me in opposing and defeating these two damaging bills.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Larson

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education and proposed bills AB100 and AB103

March 5th, 2025

My name is Molly Vande Slunt and I'm a concerned resident of Wisconsin.

I am testifying against the proposed bills limiting children's identity and participation in school and sports. I'm not a parent myself, but I care deeply for the children within my family and social circles and in general.

These bills are not only a waste of the legislature's time, but extremely harmful to children and their development. There are no proven risks of letting children who identify as trans or gender nonconforming playing in sports that don't match their assigned gender at birth, nor letting them have control over their name and pronouns in a school setting. There are however, plenty of documented risks in preventing these children from living their authentic lives. Roughly 1% of children in the state identify as transgender or gender nonconforming, while rates of suicide are exponential among trans youth with roughly 44% seriously considering and/or attempting suicide.

To claim that transgender youth pose a serious risk to other children is an absolute farce, proven within the language of the bills themselves. For example AB100 only references children assigned male at birth being prohibited from competing with girls or entering a girls locker room. There's no mention of children assigned female at birth entering male sports or locker rooms and no acknowledgement of gender nonconformity or nonbinary children. These bills are written with extreme ignorance, bigotry, and lack of understanding of the actual children it targets.

These bills are ambiguous and are unenforceable. They open up children, whether cis or trans to harassment from adults and put an undue strain on already limited teacher and administrative resources. Instead of this faux moral outrage, I would prefer the law makers, whose salary is funded by my tax dollars, focus on real proven issues facing school children. Roughly 16% of our children face food insecurity which is proven to impact development. 59% of high school students in Wisconsin report facing at least one major mental health challenge over a 12 month period, with another 18% seriously considering suicide. Wisconsin has a huge teacher retention problem, with 4 out of 10 first year teachers leaving the state or profession altogether within 6 years. Quality teachers and teacher/student ratios are another proven metric contributing to the health and well-being of our children. Wisconsin school children face many challenges. Their transgender friends and peers are not one of them.

Thank you for your time and your consideration.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am submitting my testimony today as a Milwaukee resident and constituent of Wisconsin. I have lived here for 31 years of my life and during this time, I have been proud to recognize our great state as a safe and affirming place for many queer and transgender individuals to live. I also work in both research ethics and give much of my free time advocating for women's reproductive rights. I am submitting my written testimony against Assembly Bills 100 & 103 that was proposed during the Assembly Committee Meeting on March 6th.

I strongly oppose both AB 100 & 103 that seek to limit trans girls from school sports and require adult "permission" to use different names and pronouns within the school setting, respectively.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your non-transgender constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I stand in solidarity with these members of my community and vehemently oppose these bills that are meant to deny their rights as human beings. I have known many kind, gracious, and generous trans individuals in my lifetime and consider them friends, my family, and my chosen family. They have been there for me through some of the most painful moments of my life, and it would behoove me to not stand for them now as they have for me in the past.

Many of these bills have been submitted to the courts under the guise of "protecting women and girls", AB 100 is no exception. I do not, nor have ever, felt at risk due to the presence of a transgender individual in any restroom, locker room, public space, or sports team. If men, or any individual who wishes to harm students, will do so as they have historically: as themselves and because they believe they have the right to violate someone else's privacy and autonomy. Trans girls (who these bills unjustly target) are not the problem, adult predators concerned about the supposed genitalia of a child are.

These are all the same fear mongering tactics utilized in the early aughts regarding gay and lesbian access to locker rooms and bathrooms. We've done this before, do we really need to do this moral panic again? If we give an inch regarding transgender children, national movements to limit gender affirming care, marriage rights, adoption, and even public life will be made. This will affect not just trans people but LGBTQ+ community as a whole and we will be systematically legislated out of existence under the guise of "protecting women".

If you so desperately want to protect women, propose stronger sentences for sexual assault and rape. If you want to protect women, promote complete and scientifically-based sexual education. If you want to protect women, do more to protect access to affordable healthcare for mothers and programs like WIC and SNAP programs that keep them fed. If you want to protect women, advocate for comprehensive, scientific reproductive healthcare and research- including access to abortion.

If you want to protect women, allow trans girls the safety and opportunity to become trans women.

AB 103 seeks to limit trans girls and children from making autonomous decisions about themselves and their identity and the most crucial time of their development. Legislation such as this will put more children at risk from abuse at home and exacerbate worse mental health outcomes, including suicide. A sense of belonging, that can be achieved by simple expressions of compassion like utilizing chosen names and pronouns, is one of the largest protective factors against trans youth suicide. Students deserve to learn in a place where they feel safe, accepted, heard, and seen for who they are and who they will become. Instead, these laws seek to further alienate them and legislate them out of existence.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist despite these efforts. Nothing will erase the beautiful variation of the human experience, especially that of trans people. To enact these bills is to enact violence on trans people. As representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill on restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns. I have lived in Wisconsin for thirteen years and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I strongly oppose these bills as trans children and youth, like all youth, have the right to a safe and inclusive education and learning space, free from harassment and discrimination.

I have personally witnessed the positive growth and changes in my best friend's child, who two and a half years ago advised they identify as non-binary with the pronouns they/ them. This child, within their own merit and direction, found their authentic self through expressing their preferred identifying pronouns. This child is fortunate enough to have the unwavering support of their parents and community. This child has blossomed into a confident individual filled with creativity, empathy, and love. All this child, and all non-binary/ transgender children and youth, deserve is the freedom and right to live as their authentic selves. Not all children and youth have this level of support, and it is bills such as AB100 and AB103 that stifle growth and the opportunity to learn and support this unique and beautiful community.

These bills are drafted from a place of fear and lack of education... The facts and statistics do not align with the gross mistruths being shared by the current administration. By implementing bills such as AB100 and AB103, (we) are opening the door for targeted discrimination, harassment, and the inequitable opportunity to exist in what should be a safe space as a child/ youth: educational facilities and community spaces.

My name is Rufus Jupiter, and I am a resident of Vernon County in Wisconsin. I was born in Wisconsin and have lived here for 35 years, in both urban and rural locales. I am writing you today in opposition of Bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a 43 year old, nonbinary transmasculine person. I identify neither as male nor as female, and I use they/them pronouns since that is the language that feels comfortable to me. As a young person growing up in the 1980s and 1990s, there was not widespread language to describe people whose gender was other than binary male or female. There were no visible, out LGBTQ+ individuals in my life and few in the public eye who I could look to for guidance. I lived a childhood feeling no true sense of who I was as a person (although I was told by others who I was all the time). By the time I was an adult, I was diagnosed with severe anxiety and depression; I felt lost and worthless, unseen, unknown to anyone, even myself.

It took until my mid- 30s for language to appear in the mainstream dialogue that accurately mirrored who I was. As transgender people and people on the gender spectrum became more visible in the public eye, I began to recognize myself. My anxiety and depression fell away as I finally began to understand and claim my identity.

Today, while visibility of LGBTQ+ folks has expanded greatly, we face a future of uncertainty and fear. How is it, in this country where individual liberties are a supposed right of all citizens, that members of my community still fight for the privilege of being accepted for who we are? AB100 and AB103 are deplorable bills that target a tiny, very vulnerable population of youth. These are bills that directly tell the youth in question that who they are, deep down in their core being, is fundamentally wrong. These are bills, made by grown adults, that purposefully and loudly shame, invalidate, and ridicule children. AB100 specifically singles out transgender youth (who likely are already misunderstood or bullied by peers) and prevents them from participating in healthy extracurricular activities on teams that match their true sense of self. AB103 encourages the shaming and outing of children in school, a setting that should be safe for all children. Research consistently shows a disproportionately high rate of suicide risk for queer and transgender youth. How will these cruel bills be reflected in those numbers, if they happen to move forward?

I am writing to implore you to vote NO on Bills AB100 and AB103. If passed, these bills will further anti- trans, anti- LGBTQ+ sentiment in this country. As someone who has lived a life that society has deemed again and again to be devoid of worth (until I decide to "be" someone I am not), I can tell you that every piece of legislation that advances these restrictive views will cost lives. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

As grown adults, it is our responsibility to protect children by seeing them and caring for them as they are, as they truly know themselves to be, and for standing up for those brave children who are just trying to authentically express themselves in a society that tells them they shouldn't exist.

Sincerely,
Rufus Jupiter

I am writing to ask you to vote no on Assembly Bill 100. There are many options for meeting the needs of student athletes. I ask you to respectfully let each school district determine how those individual needs will be met within their own district and community. Let local school boards exercise discretion and do their jobs. It is not necessary for the State of Wisconsin to weigh in on this. Better that you look at ensuring food for hungry children than take time and space on this issue.

I am also asking you to unequivocally reject Assembly Bill 103 on the use of personal pronouns and names. You waste the precious time of school personnel and interfere with family and individual preferences by creating an unnecessary bill. School children have had nicknames since the creation of the first public school in America. A State bill is an unnecessary intrusion. Again, let local school boards and administrators do their jobs and be responsive to parents and community.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aleeh Schwoerer and I am a resident of Madison, WI 53704.

I am writing today to ask you to oppose Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

These bills directly harm trans students who are trying to do what any other child wants to do: be themselves, express themselves, and participate in sports.

Schools should not be a place where trans children are targeted because of their identity. It should be a place where they get to craft their identity just as any of their peers do.

These bills do not erase the identities of these students. It ostracizes them and prevents them from fully participating in what the school system is supposed to offer every student. Additionally, they are based in false information and myths about trans individuals.

Oppose these bills and protect trans students in Wisconsin.

Thank you,

For Assembly bill 100 and 103:

I am a physician who takes care of kids and I have seen many children who have been so much happier and healthier after starting to use pronouns consistent with their gender at home and school. It should be up to children and families to decide what pronouns they want to use and this choice must be supported in schools. I strongly oppose these bills due to the negative impacts they will pose to children's physical and mental health.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Hannah Rebernick, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. We should all be doing our best to support ALL of the children in our communities. Bills like this punish trans children for merely existing and create environments that become hostile and unsafe for all children. By refusing to treat trans children the same as you would any other child you deny them their childhood. There is a 29% decrease in suicidal ideation and a 56% decrease in suicidal behavior for youth when their chosen name is used (The Trevor Project). Respecting, name changes, pronouns and protecting trans children in school is life saving and doing anything less is a blatant disregard for the safety and wellbeing of Wisconsin's children.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Hannah Rebernick

I'm writing in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 & 103. Trans kids deserve the same opportunities and dignity as anyone else. They're not hurting anyone. I am a resident, homeowner, and small business owner in Bayfield County. I'm writing to oppose Bills AB103 (use of pronouns & restrictions) and AB100 (k-12 athlete ban).

I think it's time to stop making kids the disempowered and disenfranchised subjects of these ongoing culture wars. Middle school and high school are incredibly difficult times in life. Let's not make it more difficult by entangling kids (who are most vulnerable) in the republican party's ongoing incursion into the private lives of individuals and families.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 5 years, serving our community as a certified arborist, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equitable, and caring education free from harassment and discrimination. Life is hard enough and if we care about the health of our community we will honor and respect the diversity of human existence and the dignity of all people.

Please vote no to bills AB100 and AB103.

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Tanner Schultz and I live in Madison. My zip code is 53714.

A friend of mine, who I met in high school and have known for 25 years, transitioned only a few years ago. Through them I have witnessed the transformative power of finally being able to express, and be accepted for, the gender they have always known themselves to be. They are today a much healthier and happier person than they were when I met them, many years ago, during a time when their parents and society were still telling them that what they knew in their heart was wrong, and trying to force them to conform to a gender they knew they were not.

I am not alone in this recognition, as many prominent and respected medical organizations, such as the American Psychiatric Association, American Psychological Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, and the American Medical Association, have also concluded the same.

I strongly encourage you to reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103, as well as any legislation that seeks to oppress our trans youth and deny them their right to exist as they are and be recognized for who they are. Such legislation is counter to the science of mental health, our rights, and basic human decency.

Sincerely,
Tanner Schultz

To the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

Please accept this as my testimony on Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns). I'm unable to attend tomorrow's hearings in Madison.

Prohibiting trans students from playing on sports teams and using locker rooms consistent with their authentic gender identity, as well as taking away the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school, is extremely disrespectful to those students, and it's completely wrong. Students participating in sports and being themselves at school facilitates strong, mentally healthy kids who grow up to be strong, mentally healthy adults! Creating these unfair limitations would undoubtedly encourage more dangerous "othering" and shaming towards these students.

A 2022 survey found that 85% of trans and nonbinary youth report that facing ongoing political attacks has been detrimental to their mental health, according to the Trevor Project. Even introducing these bills would increase stress levels and mental health problems among many students, not just trans and nonbinary students. I oppose both of these bills.

Thank you for the opportunity to have my voice heard and included in the official record.

Please make note of my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

Having lived in WI for nearly 50 years, and having known several trans people in my life, both these bills would be harmful to children that I personally know and love.

Furthermore, I strongly believe it is inappropriate for the state legislature to tell local school boards what they can and can't do in this area. Please leave it up to local elected school boards to set policy in this matter.

Dear members of the Education committee,

I write today in opposition to the bills AB 100 and 103 before you concerning the rights of trans gender students. The right of a student to feel comfortable with their own identity is a human right that should not be impeded in any form. If you believe that a person should be allowed to be who they are in any form you must believe it in all forms. That is not a decision that you should force on people based on your own beliefs anymore than someone should be forced to be a religion they are not. As a teacher I believe that a student alive called by whatever pronouns and name they choose is a good thing. I believe the manner in which they identify is a personal matter not to be legislated. Thank you.

Dear Representative Stroud Education Committee Member Chair Representative Kitchens:

I am a constituent of Assembly Representative Stroud. My address: Dana Churness, 86495 Lenawee Rd, Herbster, WI 54844.

I am writing to register my strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. As you know, these bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender. They eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with.

This amounts to no less than State sanctioned discrimination. As the parent of a gender diverse child, who will be impacted directly by the trans athlete bill, I can speak personally to the harm that these bills cause. (Even by merely being introduced and considered.)

1 in 3 trans kids will attempt suicide by the age of 18. Bills such as these will create an even more hostile environment for our children to have to learn in. This is absolutely unacceptable. The attack on trans youth, initiated by unconstitutional Executive Orders and enforced by bills such as these amounts to ruthless, heartless bullying behavior by grown adults who should know better.

We are not asking you to believe in something that you don't. We are asking that you kill these bills which will actively harm (physically and mentally) our children.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Dana Churness

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am a 57 year old woman, a Lutheran Christian, and I've lived in Dane County most of my life. I believe that all children are uniquely and wonderfully made by our Creator. It is the job of families, schools, and society to encourage, accept, and love them as they grow.

The two bills before you simply make trouble where there is none to be found; they are both unnecessary. I urge you to oppose them.

RE AB100: There is ample scientific evidence that transwomen and girls have no "advantage" over cisgender women and girls in sports. Youth should be allowed - and encouraged - to participate in sports with their peers and to use the locker room that aligns with their identity.

RE AB103, there is no good reason to make it difficult for students to use preferred names and pronouns in schools. Kids have enough trouble growing up and navigating school; they do not need the added burden of having to "provide paperwork," to request their preferred name be used. To honor the use of someone's preferred pronouns is to be courteous and kind. Why would I deny someone that?

These bills create barriers to learning, and I hope the Assembly Committee on Education is able to see that.

Respectfully,

To all members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jill Nagler and I'm a resident of Madison, WI, 53719 and lifelong resident of Wisconsin.

I write to you in staunch opposition to AB 100/103.

Here we are with state politicians engaging in the manufactured outrage towards the transgender community and vulnerable transgender children.

Here we are with yet another set of violent and dehumanizing bills that attack transgender kids, their families, and their educators for no logical, sensible, rational, or ethical reason.

It is manufactured outrage for no other purpose than to deflect and place blame on transgender people as easy targets instead of actually addressing the issues that harm Wisconsin's children, such as gun violence, food and housing insecurity, lack of accessible extramural programs especially for poor families, bullying, and lack of funds to support the sports programs that these bills claim to be protecting.

Trans kids are not the cause of any of these issues, and allowing trans kids to play extramural sports and to be able to have their pronouns respected is protective against the violence they face from society and their peers.

If you want to truly protect kids, then stop these farcical attacks on transgender kids and the transgender community.

Put in the work to address actual social issues instead of falling into the cycle of fake outrage.

Let transgender kids play sports!

Use the name and pronouns that people choose, it literally does not hurt anyone to let people choose their name and pronouns. Especially kids who are exploring the world and their place in it.

Let kids be kids!

Stop the attacks on transgender children, let them live.

I implore you to oppose these abhorrent bills and all others that are cruel, unconstitutional, unethical, and seek to target vulnerable communities with manufactured outrage.

Please act with humility, ethics, sensibility, and compassion and end this assault on the transgender community in Wisconsin.

With gratitude,

Jill

Dear Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Kim Suhr, and I live in Wales, 53183. I appreciate the opportunity to voice my position on AB100 and AB103.

I encourage you to vote NO on AB100 the bill that would ban trans athletes from competing on sports teams that align with their gender identity. It seems most people aren't too concerned with trans boys (individuals who had been assigned female at birth but now identify as male) competing in boys' sports, but the thought of even the very small number of trans girls (individuals who had been assigned male at birth but now identify as female) competing in girls' sports makes many Republican lawmakers think they must "protect" cis-gender girls on these teams. This is paternalistic, unnecessary, and frankly, insulting.

I was a female athlete in middle and high school and played with and against lots of players who had what I could have thought of as an "unfair" advantage over me. I was a 5'0" player on a volleyball team who played with and against players who were 6 feet tall—these were non-trans girls who had the good fortune to have been born with different genes than I did. Should I have insisted they play on the boys' teams? Did I need anyone's "protection?" No.

It seems the people who want AB100 to become law are afraid that cis-gender males will fake being trans in order to dominate girls' sports. Huh? Exactly what kind of "winning" would that be? Is there proof that this has happened? Even if so, the cases would be vanishingly small compared to the good that would be done for the trans-athletes who are able to compete on the team that matches their identity. Will some trans-athletes be stronger than some cis-athletes? Of course. And the opposite will be true as well. Were there times I was a stronger athlete than other players who seemed to have a physical advantage and more height? You betcha.

As for AB103, this is a problem looking for a bill. People should be called what they want to be called. Period. They should be called by the pronouns they want to be called. Period. We can find thousands of examples of students being referred to by names other than their legal names across this state without anyone blinking an eye. What does it hurt? And what does it hurt to use pronouns that feel more comfortable to the student? If you have never been misnamed or misgendered by others, you can't know what it feels like. Why would you want to impose that type of insult to other people's children? Maybe you should try it: just for a day, have people call you something other than your name and use opposite pronouns. That would be a great exercise in walking in someone else's shoes.

We are better than this in Wisconsin. Please vote no on both of these bills.

Sincerely,

Kim Suhr

Dear Representatives,

My name is Mansi Singh, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills.

I am a school psychologist in Wisconsin and work closely with students who identify as trans. These students face high rates of mental health issues (such as depression, anxiety, and suicidal thoughts) when compared to their cisgender peers. Being able to express their gender identity freely and engage in activities such as athletics that promote mental health, can improve their sense of self-worth and well-being. Bills that limit these rights work towards worsening mental health outcomes. My job involves promoting inclusion and acceptance for all students, regardless of their identities. Discriminatory policies that restrict students' access to their chosen pronouns and athletics contribute to climates of exclusion and increase stigma amongst peers. This may lead to bullying, isolation, and less support for trans students. Trans individuals have a right to their autonomy and dignity. Discriminatory policies infringing on these rights are counterproductive towards ensuring that schools are safe and nurturing educational environments for all students. As policy makers, harm prevention should be an ethical commitment you strive for when making important decisions. These policies will undermine those efforts, leading to long-term effects on trans individuals mental and emotional health.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Dear Representatives,

My name is MaryClaire Burkhardt, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are both very obviously written this way in order to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids. These bills are emerging during a time when hateful and unprecedented anti-trans legislation and policy proposals are rampant across the US. These bills do nothing but alienate and endanger CHILDREN and stoke a climate of hate and fear. Trans children are still children, and you have an obligation to support them thrive. The endless examples of suicide and harm done to trans folks, and especially trans children, should immediately stop these types of bills from coming out. However, there are many who are soulless and seem to forget that people are people and trans people are just people.

As one of your constituents, I urge you all to vote against these bills. I am a trans adult, I grew up in a time where I witnessed the trans kids in my schools who were brave enough to come out be bullied and harassed. The fact that there are politicians who are nothing more than rich bullies is pathetic, and you must not stand with them. It's just embarrassing. Why do people care so much about children's genitals? That to me is a million times more creepy than anything anti-trans people make up to fear monger.

It's also absolutely horrifying that these bills are happening at a time when the people, your constituents, are struggling to make ends meet. I work in a hospital, and the amount of people who have to cancel life-saving appointments, medications, and treatments due to the mess our health care system is is horrifying. And here we are talking about banning children from being themselves. What an absolute waste of time.

We trans people have always existed, and will always exist, at every single age. The violence against trans people is just a clear example of the spin into fascism we have entered. Focus on the things that actually matter, like stopping Musk from taking over our entire country (a sentence I never thought I'd have to write.), maybe feeding, housing, clothing, and providing health care to your constituents.

Trans people will exist and be loved no matter what. These harmful laws will do nothing to end our existence. Nothing can, because we are exactly who we're meant to be, and we will always exist.

As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge and stand by all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin citizen and educator, I strongly oppose the adoption of Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. These bills target a small and vulnerable population of young transgender persons in our public schools who deserve our support, care, and commitment rather than public policy that demeans them and keeps them from being called by the names and pronouns that match their identities. As a teacher of writing, I know the harm that words can cause; as a researcher and educator, I know the mental health crises common among our queer, questioning, and transgender youth. These bills will exacerbate the alienation and discrimination felt by young people in schools, a place where they should be safe from the violence and hatred they so often encounter in public spaces. My classrooms and communities must be spaces where individuals can express themselves freely, and that expression can only emerge when students are called by their names, respectfully spoken of by others, and allowed to participate in the life of the school -- including sports -- the same as all other students. This is an issue of access, civil rights, and the continued existence of beloved young people who deserve to feel safe and seen. I repeat, I strongly oppose both Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103; they should never be made into law in Wisconsin or anywhere else that values freedom, justice, and the rights of its most vulnerable citizens.

To Members of the Senate Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to proposed bills AB100 and AB103. These bills make me afraid for children in Wisconsin schools. Now more than ever, schools are taking on enormous responsibilities in terms of mental health support for children. Both of these bills put teachers in a position of saying and acting that they don't believe children. It would be inappropriate and negligent for a teacher to say, "No, I don't believe Mandy hit you, I didn't see it." or "I don't think you're hungry, I'm sure you have food at home."

It is also inappropriate for schools to mandate that a child be called by a name that they don't feel is theirs or to be banned from a team or activity because their genitalia does not match their brain. Laws of these types have been shown to negatively impact the mental health of transgender and nonbinary youth. Gender identity is a fundamental part of human experience and should be protected by law.

I have lived in Madison for nearly 30 years, I know children who are transgender who have thrived here because teachers and schools worked to protect and nurture these children. These two proposed bills would bring irreparable harm to children. Please do not let these two bills move forward.

Thank you,

Hello,

My name is Erin Schimmel and I am a school social worker for the Milwaukee Public School District. I have lived in Wisconsin my whole life and worked my whole career in Milwaukee. I am writing today in opposition of AB100 and AB103.

Firstly, to those who continue to bombard and attack transgender and LGBTQ+ youth and adults, I would like to ask, how dare you? This is a minuscule population of people in this county who want to do nothing but exist as they are. They are not indoctrinating children. They are not forcing children to be transgender or gay. They are people simply wanting to exist, and same as you and me.

The number of students I have worked with in my career who don't go by their full, government name, and are not LGBTQ+, is substantial. So why should we look at transgender kids any differently? As a school social worker, and educator, and an advocate for my students, my mission is to ensure my student feel safe and supported to be themselves at school. Education is power and is a right to all people. In order to learn, and grow into strong, functioning members of society, students must feel safe at school, and this starts with simply being called the name they want to be called. Being transgender is not something new and has in fact existed in history for millennia. Why now this focus? It's shameful.

The microscope that has been placed on this minuscule community in the United States needs to stop. There are significant bigger issues that need to be addressed over focusing on something like allowing kids to play sports and allowing kids to be called the name they want to be called. It's time to take the focus on these kids and turn the attention to solving bigger issues in Wisconsin, such as record-high inflation, sky-rocketing housing prices, and access to health care for all Wisconsinites.

Let kids be kids. If they are not your kids, kindly butt out. It is none of your business, and frankly out of control. It's time to focus on bigger issues.

Thank you,
Erin Schimmel

Dear Assembly Committee Members,

My name is Katherine Hinson. I live in Washburn Wisconsin and have resided in this community for 24 years.

I am writing as a citizen of this country, a Wisconsin resident, a community member, a parent and an educator.

I am apposed to the passage of AB100 and AB103.

It is important and necessary for all humans to be seen, heard and believed for who they truly are. When you limit people's ability to be themselves you are taking away basic rights. Taking away these rights from youth is unnecessary, unkind and harmful.

It does not harm you or anyone for a person to use a name or gender marker that they personally know to be their own. It may make you a bit uncomfortable but it does not harm you. Please try to imagine the discomfort and pain and harm that is associated with being denied the truth of who you are and what you are called. Can you imagine being mis gendered and called by a name that has a negative connotation throughout your work day? That is what will happen to some students throughout their school day if you pass AB103.

If you truly want to protect youth then you will not pass AB100 or AB103.

Thank You,
Katherine Hinson

Dear Representatives,

I am Brooke Walsh, a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Wauwatosa, Wisconsin. I am from Medford, Wisconsin, spent almost a decade in Stevens Point, Wisconsin, and a year in Madison, Wisconsin. I've generally been a proud resident and Wisconsinite, however I am concerned about some bills targeting the transgender community that, quite frankly, are embarrassing. There are so many issues my fellow Wisconsinites are facing that would be a better use of your time and energy.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. I am a teacher and have been an athletic coach, and, again, there are many issues that need your time and attention in education and athletics, but this is not one of them. All kids, trans kids included, deserve equitable opportunity, safety, and acceptance by all. These bills do not support that.

As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against these proposed bills and to remain committed to moving Wisconsin "Forward" and not backwards.

Sincerely,

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

Please do not pass Assembly Bills 100 and 103 banning trans athletes in public schools from participating in sports activities and preventing trans students from using their preferred names and identities. People are who they are. People do not choose to be gay, bi-sexual, homosexual, trans, etc. I understand that there are particular reasons why it might be unfair for a trans female to compete in women's sports or the reverse may also on occasion be true. However, identification with a specific gender that is not the birth gender is traumatic for a family and difficult enough for a child.

Please understand that being a trans person or a gay person is not a choice people make. This is a fact of nature or a choice from God. People do not choose to be different, etc. If this was really a choice people make in life do you think people would really choose to make life this hard for themselves? Try to put yourself in the position of a gay person or a trans person. How would you feel if there were laws passed to keep you from being who you truly are? Being a trans person is tough enough without having to deal with legislation against your unique identity. If you study the science of LGBTQ identity I think you will realize that laws can't change life for people whose identity differs from what you might consider "normal."

Legislators have spent an inordinate amount of time debating an issue that impacts a very tiny number of people. In the event that a trans women is competing in a sport and wiping out all the competition then it is reasonable to consider some special action but the issue is so rare that I hope we can use our laws for purposes that impact greater percentages of people. Thank you for considering my concerns about this issue.

Sincerely, Nancy Piper Jankovich, 1155 North Osborne, Racine WI 53405

Dr. Stephanie Budge, Madison, Wisconsin
Regarding Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103
To: The Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Dr. Stephanie Budge and I am a resident of Wisconsin who has a specialty in understanding the mental health impacts of discrimination related to transgender individuals. I am a licensed psychologist in the state of Wisconsin. While I am testifying as a private citizen, my role as a Professor of Counseling Psychology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison provides me with the expertise necessary to comment on this bill (I have published 100+ academic articles mostly focused on transgender people, over 180+ conference presentations mostly focused on transgender people, and have engaged in clinical work related to over 200 transgender people). I have worked in the field of transgender research and clinical work for 17 years.

I am testifying that the passing of these bills and the subsequent actions from these bills have a high likelihood of causing both physical and mental health impacts on youth. For the record, I oppose the proposed bills AB100 and AB103 based on the scientific research presented below.

Broadly, psychological science has used the concept of “minority stress” to understand and explain the reasons why transgender people (and members of other minority groups) experience physical and mental health disparities (see Meyer, 2003; Hendricks & Testa, 2012). The minority stress model indicates that there are three types of minority stressors: 1) external stressors, 2) expectations of external stressors, and 3) internal stressors. Examples of external stressors experienced by transgender people include discrimination, prejudice, harassment, rejection, and non-affirmation of gender identity. Examples of internal stressors experienced by transgender people include concealing one’s gender identity, internalizing gender-related stigma, and constantly thinking about one’s gender. Transgender people will often expect that they will experience external stressors due to having actually experienced them in the past, as well as witnessing or hearing about other transgender people who have experienced external stressors. This lens can assist with understanding the impacts of both exclusion from sports teams (AB100) and the impacts of not being able to use chosen names and pronouns in required settings, such as schools (AB103).

Sports Participation

For children and young adults, school-sponsored sports offer lifelong benefits and have a positive developmental impact that is second only to family support. These benefits can be seen in a variety of realms in students’ lives, including social and emotional development as well as physical and mental health. With regards to social benefits, students who participate in sports are given the opportunity to make friends and become part of a supportive community of teammates and peers (Boone & Leadbeater, 2006). Athletes spend considerable time with their teammates, often experiencing high-pressure situations together that lead to deeper friendships and students who participate in sports also can build teamwork, discipline, and leadership skills (Thompson et al., 2022). They learn the importance of working as part of a team to achieve a common goal and the importance of each teammate’s role in bringing about that goal (Salcinovic et al., 2022). Moreover, coaches and other staff members provide students who participate in sports access to meaningful mentorship and guidance. (Mills & Clements, 2021). This mentorship can extend beyond school sports, guiding students through other areas of their lives.

With regards to emotional benefits, school sports provide an opportunity for youth to gain confidence. They also reduce the effects of risk factors, such as stressful life events, that lead to increases in depression. Furthermore, learning how to manage stressful events at a young age provides benefits to student athletes throughout their lives, such as learning how to regulate their emotions. Students who participate in sports experience significantly lower levels of externalizing issues (for example, aggression and delinquency) and anxiety/depression (Vella, 2019). Students also experience the success and personal fulfillment achieved from discipline, hard work, and perseverance through many hours of practice and competition, all of which helps students develop positive habits that can benefit them in many other areas of life (Eime et al, 2014).

Based on my experience working with transgender youth, it would be psychologically damaging for a transgender youth to be banned from playing sports on equal terms with cisgender peers. This type of discrimination causes irreversible and severe damage to transgender youth development. Specifically, discriminating against transgender youth athletes leads to an increase in youth anxiety, depression, trauma, and suicidal ideation/attempts as well as an increase in physical health concerns for transgender youth (Chan et al., 2024). Barrera et al. report that the physical consequences for transgender youth of not being able to participate in sports include worse cardiovascular outcomes, poor bone mineral density, and poor neurocognitive development when compared to cisgender youth. In addition, physicians report that participation in sports is often one primary method through which transgender youth gain access to regular medical care, and if they do not participate in sports, it increases the disparity between cisgender youth and transgender youth (Hughes et al., 2022). In addition to the physical and mental health consequences of not being able to participate in sports, transgender people report greater experiences of harassment, prejudice, rejection, and bullying as a result of legislation focused on restricting transgender people's rights (Tebbe et al., 2022).

Transgender youth will also internalize the shame and stigma of being excluded for a personal characteristic (being transgender) over which they have no control and that already subjects them to prejudice and social stigma. Fear of additional discrimination and violence are two primary outcomes that stem from transgender youth being excluded from sports (Kosciw et al., 2022). Not only are there the actual consequences outlined above that occur from direct discrimination, but fear of additional sports-related discrimination leads transgender youth to avoid gym/physical education class, locker rooms, and athletic fields and facilities. Also, being misgendered (i.e., requiring transgender girls to participate in boys' sports) is associated with the internalization of stigma and the subsequent mental health consequences that arise from internalized stigma (McLemore, 2015).

Importance of Social Transition

The incongruence between a person's gender identity and sex assigned at birth can manifest in clinically significant distress, which the American Psychiatric Association calls gender dysphoria. Gender dysphoria is codified in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (APA, 2022; DSM-5-TR) and is the medical and psychiatric diagnosis for distress associated with gender incongruence. Two current diagnostic categories are used by mental health and medical providers when children and youth are transgender: Gender Dysphoria in Childhood and Gender Dysphoria in Adolescents and Adults. Although individuals who are diagnosed with gender dysphoria can experience a diversity of symptoms, the shared diagnostic criteria that is required for both includes clear, distinct, and significant distress from the incongruence between the sex the individual was assigned at birth and their gender identity.

For transgender individuals, social transition can be an important aspect of treatment to reduce the symptoms of gender dysphoria. As part of a social transition, an individual will typically, among other things, use a name and pronouns congruent with their gender identity and use sex-designated facilities such as restrooms that align with their gender identity. To be clinically effective at alleviating the distress associated with gender dysphoria, a social transition must be respected consistently across all aspects of a transgender individual's life—for example, at home, in school, and at work. It is the aim of treatment to assist the individual in successfully integrating their internal identity into a life that allows them to function consistently in accordance with that identity and not feel shame for who they are. For those transgender adolescents for whom social transition is part of treatment of gender dysphoria, it is likely that serious distress will result if clinically indicated aspects of transition are impeded, as is suggested in both AB 100 and AB 103.

The precise treatment for gender dysphoria depends on the individual. For most transgender individuals, a gender transition is considered psychologically and medically necessary. Transition can take either or both of two forms: (a) social transition, and (b) medical treatments that change a person's body to align with their gender.

Gender dysphoria reduces significantly when the treatment aligns with the individual's goals, and the medical community has known for decades that there are effective interventions to reduce gender dysphoria. Every major medical association in the United States agrees that medical treatment for gender dysphoria is safe, necessary, and effective (Lockmiller, 2023).

For transgender individuals, social transition can be an important aspect of treatment to reduce the symptoms of gender dysphoria. As part of a social transition, an individual will typically, among other things, use a name and pronouns congruent with their gender identity and use sex-designated facilities such as restrooms that align with their gender identity. To be clinically effective at alleviating the distress associated with gender dysphoria, a social transition must be respected consistently across all aspects of a transgender individual's life—for example, at home, in school, and at work. It is the aim of treatment to assist the individual in successfully integrating their internal identity into a life that allows them to function consistently in accordance with that identity and not feel shame for who they are. For those transgender adolescents for whom social transition is part of treatment of gender dysphoria, it is likely that serious distress will result if clinically indicated aspects of transition are impeded.

Psychotherapy to reduce the harmful effects of stigma and improve resiliency can also be an important form of support for individuals of any age with gender dysphoria (see Budge et al., 2025; Budge et al., 2021; Exposito-Campos et al., 2023). While psychotherapy can be useful as a support tool, it is not a substitute for social transition and medical treatments needed to reduce/eliminate gender dysphoria (see Lindley et al., 2023).

Attempts to "cure" transgender individuals by seeking to change their gender identity to match their assigned sex are ineffective and cause extreme psychological damage (see APA, 2021). All major associations of medical and mental health providers, including the American Medical Association, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics, consider such efforts unethical.

Failing to support a transgender minor's gender identity can cause serious harm to their long-term health and wellbeing because transgender youth experience that mistreatment as a profound rejection of their core self. This harm often includes significant psychological distress and difficulty maintaining healthy interpersonal relationships and developing emotional resilience, among others. Research demonstrates the importance of social transition for transgender youth. Research from the longitudinal TransYouth Project (TYP) indicates that transgender youth who have socially transitioned demonstrate similar mental health patterns when compared to cisgender youth (Durwood et al., 2017; Olson et al., 2016). Additional research demonstrates that social transition processes are related to less depression, less suicidal ideation, and less suicidal behaviors (Russell et al., 2018). Consequently, delaying social transition is detrimental for transgender youth. Horton's (2022) qualitative study of parents of transgender youth provides an in-depth analysis of the consequences of delaying social transition for children, notably mentioning the psychological distress that results from delaying social transition. In the largest nationwide survey in the U.S. focusing on discrimination experiences of transgender people 18 and older, impeding social transition processes (for example, not being able to change one's name) is directly related to experiencing harassment and assault (James et al., 2016). In a large (N = 1,519) nation-wide Canadian survey of transgender youth, findings similarly demonstrate that not being able to access social transition components/processes is also directly related to experiencing harassment, assault, and denial of services (Taylor et al., 2020).

In addition to studies that focus generally on external stressors, there have been several studies that delve into specific types of external stressors. For example, there is one type of external stressor called "misgendering" that includes communications or actions that convey that a person's gender is misperceived or is being purposefully denied, as is being highlighted in both AB 100 and AB 103. Examples of misgendering can include using a name or pronouns inconsistent with a person's gender identity or denying them access to gendered facilities that are consistent with their gender identity (McLemore, 2018). In a study with 1,091 participants, researchers reported higher anxiety scores for participants who reported more instances of misgendering (Jacobsen et al, 2023). As well, McLemore (2015) found that experiences of being misgendered were associated with anxiety and negative affect (e.g., hostility and guilt), lower self-esteem related to appearance, and felt stigma. In a follow-up study with more specific measures regarding mental health, McLemore (2018) again reported that experiences of being misgendered were related to depression, anxiety, stress, and felt stigma. In addition to depression and anxiety, Colson et al. (2024) found that participants reported post-traumatic stress symptoms as a result of misgendering.

Misgendering, along with other forms of external stressors, is considered a form of social exclusion. Social psychology has established that seeking social acceptance is one of the most basic human needs and that the harms of social exclusion based on identity are widespread and can be catastrophic. On an individual level, social exclusion impacts one's sense of belonging, self-esteem, sense of existence, and self-control. Social exclusion is associated with an increase in maladaptive behaviors and risk-taking behaviors. On a systematic level, social exclusion is often reinforced by organizations and institutions adopting policies and procedures that can enforce discrimination toward certain groups of people. Social exclusion is considered harmful in general; however, it can be even more harmful when people in positions of power perpetuate notions that isolate and stigmatize transgender people. Research on social identity theory describes the harm that results when people of higher status—usually people in power such as administrators—fail to affirm or actively disaffirm lower-status individuals with a marginalized identity (Hogg, 2016). This often leads to external forms of harm such as ostracization and discrimination against the individual by peers and others, as well as internal harms such as internalized shame and self-hatred. These internal and external factors can be directly related to psychological distress, such as post-traumatic stress disorder, depressive disorders, anxiety disorders, and hypertension, amongst myriad other health concerns.

In a study involving 610 transgender individuals (Galupo et al. 2020), study participants provided information about their experience of gender dysphoria. When asked about the impact of being misgendered or otherwise discriminated against based on their being transgender, they provided descriptions such as “it’s like a visceral, violating, physical manifestation of psychological pain for me” and “each of those [misgenderings] is a knife.” In our recent publications on the experiences of gender dysphoria, the data indicate that gender dysphoria is distressing (Lindley, Lee, Norton, & Budge, 2024) and that social experiences, like misgendering, increase gender dysphoria (Lindley, Pulice-Farrow, & Budge, 2023).

Misgendering and Gender Discrimination Have Long Lasting Mental Health Effects

Transgender people report extensive exposure to mistreatment, harassment, and violence (James et al., 2016). One of the largest nationwide studies in the United States focused on LGBTQ+ youth demonstrates that transgender youth experience significant amounts of harassment, bullying, and violence (Kosciw et al., 2022). In a report from the data that compared transgender and cisgender youth (GLSEN, 2021), 84.4% of transgender youth felt unsafe at school when compared to 20.6% of their cisgender LGBQ+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, and queer, but not transgender) peers. In addition, 43.6% of the transgender sample reported missing school because they felt unsafe or uncomfortable, compared to 24.9% of their cisgender LGBQ+ peers. The study indicated that 77.3% of transgender students reported experiencing discrimination at school, compared to 46.1% of the cisgender sample. In the overall report (Kosciw et al., 2022), 80.3% of youth reported hearing biased language regarding gender expression and 65.2% reported hearing anti-transgender language while at school. Of those youth, 72% reported that there was a staff member present while hearing those remarks and that 91% of staff did not intervene. In one of the largest nationwide Canadian studies to focus on transgender youth (Taylor et al., 2020), 66% of youth reported being bullied, 35% were physically threatened or injured, 9% were threatened with a weapon; 63% reported experiencing verbal sexual harassment, 34% reported physical sexual harassment. In another study, transgender youth reported high rates of physical violence at school (57%) and nonphysical victimization at school (68%) (De Pedro & Gorse, 2023).

Transgender children and adolescents experience a great deal of victimization in the school environment, including bullying, physical assault, sexual assault, maltreatment, property victimization, and witnessing/indirect victimization. In their systematic review, Martin-Castillo et al. (2020) examined the effects of school-based victimization throughout 19 studies covering over 23,000 transgender people. Results from this systematic review indicate that transgender youth experience significantly higher rates of victimization at school than their cisgender peers.

There also is robust data regarding the psychological impact of external stressors for transgender youth and young adults. Exposure to discrimination has been linked with higher reports of depression, anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder, self-harm, and suicidality (e.g., Chozden et al., 2019; Price-Feeney, Green, & Dorison, 2020; Veale et al., 2019; Wilson et al., 2016). Pease and colleagues (2022) note that external minority stressors were directly related to psychological distress for young adults. In addition to this finding, they also note that experiencing more anti-transgender discrimination leads to higher levels of gender dysphoria, which then increase psychological distress for young adults. A recent meta-analysis noted that gender related discrimination, gender related rejection, gender related victimization, and nonaffirmation of gender identity were all positively related to depression and anxiety (Wilson et al., 2024).

Regarding mental health disparities, transgender youth consistently report higher instances of mental health concerns when compared to their cisgender counterparts. When compared with cisgender matched controls, transgender youth displayed a twofold to threefold increased risk of depression, anxiety, suicidal ideation, suicide attempt, and self-harm (Reisner et al., 2015). In their study, Fox et al. (2020) report that transgender adolescents were 8 times more likely to report depressive symptoms when compared to cisgender adolescents and were 5 times more likely than cisgender adolescents to report self-harm and suicidality. There is a large body of research demonstrating that these disparities can be explained primarily by the presence of external stressors. One study by Suarez et al. (2024) analyzed data comparing 98,174 cisgender and transgender youth and found that transgender students were more likely than cisgender students to report experiences of violence, poor mental health, suicide risk, some sexual risk behaviors, unstable housing, and felt less belonging at school. A recent meta-analysis noted that transgender young adults experienced significantly higher rates of 7 types of victimization (violent victimization, sexual victimization, intimate partner violence victimization, stalking, bullying, microaggression, and discrimination) when compared to cisgender young adults (Daigle et al., 2024).

Although all psychological distress deserves attention, suicidality (suicidal ideation, suicide attempts, and completed suicide) is perhaps one of the most devastating outcomes due to the finality of completed suicide. For transgender youth, the evidence indicates that suicidality is an overwhelming mental health disparity. Data indicate that transgender youth are more likely to attempt suicide when compared to cisgender youth; for example, that 45% of transgender youth compared to 12% of cisgender boys and 24% of cisgender girls (Zell & Kerr, 2024). Additional studies indicate that transgender youth are 2.71 times more likely to attempt suicide than cisgender youth (Jackman et al., 2019). In one of the largest samples of transgender young adults (age 18-25) in the US, 66% of respondents indicated an experience of suicidal ideation (Wang et al., 2024). In addition, in a sample of transgender youth, 86% reported suicidal ideation and 56% reported a previous suicide attempt and that external stressors such as harassment and bullying were directly related to suicide attempts (Austin et al., 2022). As noted above, these disparities can be explained primarily by the presence of external stressors. A recent systematic review indicated that safety and connectedness at school were amongst some of the primary protective factors from suicide attempts for transgender youth (Christensen et al., 2023).

Studies demonstrate that a negative school climate is not only detrimental to transgender youths' mental health, but also impacts their academic achievement. When compared to cisgender youth, transgender youth were three times more likely to be truant from school due to feeling more unsafe and distressed (Day et al., 2018). Additionally, transgender youth reported greater victimization at school and poorer academic performance when compared to cisgender LGBTQ+ peers (Poteat et al., 2021). Transgender youth are statistically more likely to fail a class than cisgender youth and are less likely to take advanced math classes by the end of their school (Wilkenson et al., 2021).

Conclusion

I urge the Wisconsin Legislature to understand the mental health effects of excluding transgender youth from playing on sports teams that match their gender identity and effects of not using the correct name and pronouns for youth. As outlined above, these effects can be detrimental and are considered discriminatory. Your consideration of these matters is very much appreciated.

Respectfully,

Stephanie Budge

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

Please do not pass Assembly Bills 100 and 103 banning trans athletes in public schools from participating in sports activities and preventing trans students from using their preferred names and identities. People are who they are. People do not choose to be gay, bi-sexual, homosexual, trans, etc. I understand that there are particular reasons why it might be unfair for a trans female to compete in women's sports or the reverse may also on occasion be true. However, identification with a specific gender that is not the birth gender is traumatic for a family and difficult enough for a child.

Please understand that being a trans person or a gay person is not a choice people make. This is a fact of nature or a choice from God. People do not choose to be different, etc. If this was really a choice people make in life do you think people would really choose to make life this hard for themselves? Try to put yourself in the position of a gay person or a trans person. How would you feel if there were laws passed to keep you from being who you truly are? Being a trans person is tough enough without having to deal with legislation against your unique identity. If you study the science of LGBTQ identity I think you will realize that laws can't change life for people whose identity differs from what you might consider "normal."

Legislators have spent an inordinate amount of time debating an issue that impacts a very tiny number of people. In the event that a trans women is competing in a sport and wiping out all the competition then it is reasonable to consider some special action but the issue is so rare that I hope we can use our laws for purposes that impact greater percentages of people. Thank you for considering my concerns about this issue.

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

I am writing in strong dissent to assembly bills 100 and 103 and in strong support of our Wisconsin youth, ALL of them.

As a middle and high school teacher of forty years as well as a parent of two and grandparent of four, I have seen firsthand the importance of acceptance of youth at their most vulnerable ages and giving them opportunities to be their authentic selves.

The bills proposed would further alienate our transgender students when and where they are most vulnerable - in their teen years at school, which, for some, is their most safe place.

All students are vulnerable, but our LGBTQ youth are, by far, the most vulnerable of them all, and these bills would create a school environment that would make them more susceptible to bullying and singling them out further as they try to find their way.

Here's a suggestion - why don't we find out what our young people think? My experience with students taught me that they were much further along in accepting their classmates and their differences than the much older adults in a position to be creating laws about lives they don't understand.

VOTE NO! There are lives that depend on it.

Victoria Swetz

To the members of the Committee on Education:

My name is Kaelee Heideman and I am an elementary school counselor and 2023 Wisconsin State Teacher of the Year in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, zip code 54904. Although I am unable to attend the hearing in person, I am writing to respectfully submit the following testimony in opposition of Assembly Bills 100 and 103 relating to proposed bans on trans athletes and pronouns and names.

Private parts are just that, private. As an elementary school counselor, I spend part of every school year teaching my students about protective behaviors. We review that our whole bodies belong to us and no one should be looking at or touching the private parts of your body without a good reason. Excluding student athletes from school athletic activities based on the private parts of their bodies is nothing short of discriminatory and a violation of privacy. It is no one's business what lies underneath another person's clothing. A trans girl is a girl, no questions asked. A trans boy is a boy, no questions asked. If you attempt to exclude a student from participating in a school athletic activity based on their sex assigned at birth, you are making a decision based solely on the private parts of that child's body. Ask my elementary students if this is right or wrong, and even they will tell you that talking about someone else's private parts is wrong.

Pronouns save lives. Every person, every child, deserves to feel safe and loved for who they are. This means that our trans students deserve to be called by the correct name and pronouns. Unfortunately, our trans youth are not always safe to be out at home, in part because proposed bills like these perpetuate the negative stereotypes that exist around trans folks. When home is not safe for students, school often becomes the place where students are wrapped up in care and unconditional love. Schools become the place where trans youth are safe to come out and use their names and pronouns. Guardian consent should not be required in order to use a child's name and pronouns. This is a major safety concern because it could require educators to unknowingly out their students and create unsafe reactions at home. I always tell my students that my job is to keep them safe and the passing of AB103 would keep me from being able to uphold that promise. When the adults at home are safe people for their children, the children rarely have a problem sharing who they really are with their adults. Schools should not have to be put in the position to break trust with the kids who need us most. Quite frankly, it is concerning that we are so focused on regulating the name a child can be called at school when many adults have seamlessly transitioned from calling the Gulf of Mexico to calling it the Gulf of America and they did so without permission from that body of water.

The passage of Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will only harm our students. I strongly oppose the possibility of putting students at risk for serious harm by outing them through practices that include identifying a child solely on their sex assigned at birth or requiring guardian permission to use certain names or pronouns in a school setting. Our job is to protect all students, and all means all.

Dear Committee on education members,

I am appalled at the introduction of these two bills that will only hurt children. I strongly oppose assembly bill 100 and assembly bill 103 and believe that everyone deserves the right to participate in sports and be themselves at school. These pieces of legislation would prevent trans youth from doing so on the basis of their gender.

Dear the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Izak Messany and I live in Baraboo, WI 53913.

I am completing this written testimony to protest three anti-trans bills introduced by Republican state assembly representatives. AB 100 known as the Anti-Trans Sports bill (K-12), AB 102 known as the Anti-Trans Sports bill (College), and AB 103 known as Denying Preferred Names and Pronouns in School are all deeply rooted in transphobic inaccurate rhetoric that when set in motion will not only harm trans children, but cis children as well.

Speaking of AB 100, how will this law be enforced at school districts? How will schools know if certain children are trans? If trans children are no longer allowed to play sports, then certain districts will take it upon themselves to enforce this law in an inappropriate manner that will traumatize the very children they are "trying" to protect.

Children just want to have fun and enjoy life. Shouldn't they be allowed the same childhood as other kids? They should be able to play sports with their friends and they should be treated with respect if they feel their pronouns or name do not match who they really are. It really doesn't take a lot of effort to believe children and respect their wishes. The goal should be to protect this minority population of children, not drive them towards mental health crises.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Izak Messany
Baraboo, WI 53913

Dear Representatives,

My name is Shauna Fowler, I am a constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting March 6th.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of rampant anti-trans legislation proposals across the US that do nothing but further alienate trans kids and stokes modern day Mccarthyism.

As your constituent I implore you to vote against all of these proposed bills. AB 100 and 103 don't keep kids safer, they just make it more likely that trans kids will commit suicide. These bills are so clearly part of a right wing cultural smear campaign against queer people and are designed to target and otherize anyone who doesn't fit into conservative American optics.

At best they are a complete waste of legislative effort, and at worst they are actively putting kids in danger all for the sake of a cheap shot at "owning the libs". Trans people always have existed and always will. Don't waste your time with this nonsense, and show your entire community that you won't let kids be bullied by bigots and fearmongers.

Sincerely,
Shauna

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am a pediatrician in training in Wisconsin. I see children of many different shapes, sizes, and identities, and the patients I care for have a healthier and happier quality of life when pronouns that are consistent with their gender identity are used at home and at school. I most recently saw a teenager in our transgender health clinic who stated that they felt more at peace at school when using their preferred pronouns that matched with their gender identity, rather than the sex that was assigned at birth.

It should be the children's and families' decisions regarding which pronouns should be in school, as that is a personal matter that is very important for their health, wellbeing, and overall quality of life. I am submitting this written testimony today to make it known that I OPPOSE the harmful AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns, bills due to their detrimental impact on the wellbeing of children.

Avani B., Madison, 53704

My name is Dr Katt Cochran and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am writing today to share my strong opposition to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 being proposed in the meeting on March 6.

As a resident of Wisconsin, community member, licensed psychologist, and constituent, I am urging you to vote against these proposed bills. All community members, including children, deserve to be treated with love, support, inclusion, and respect. These bills are in direct opposition to the research we have on what builds resilient, strong, and healthy children by restricting their access to team- and skill-building sports, and allowing them to be treated with respect and dignity in choosing how they are addressed. These restrictions are violent and discriminatory and will harm Wisconsinites and put our children behind.

I hope you will vote for the trans constituents you represent and in support of values of dignity, respect, and community for ALL of Wisconsin's residents and VOTE NO.

Katt Cochran

To the members of the Assembly Committee

My name is Meg, I live in Madison, zip code 53703. I strongly oppose bills AB100 and AB103. Excluding trans students from participating in sports teams that align with their gender identity and requiring all Wisconsin school boards to adopt policies regarding a student's legal name and pronouns in official school records is discriminatory and pernicious to students' learning environments.

These bills violate students' privacy and create unsafe learning environments. Requiring written authorization from a student's parent/guardian to refer to a student by their preferred pronouns and requiring notice of a name or pronoun change request be provided to a student's parent/guardian violates trans students' privacy. No child should be required to answer invasive questions or undergo physical inspections of private parts by adult strangers.

I am not trans, but I have people in my life who are. They deserve to have childhoods just like any other. School should be a safe space for ALL students, including trans students. Trans children are not a threat and deserve to be protected and included as any other child. Trans people have always existed and always will. Being trans is not a choice or an ideology. Passing AB100 and AB103 is a blatant attempt to make trans youths' lives more difficult, to make them feel excluded and unsafe at school.

I ask that you please, do NOT support these bills.

Thank you

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing in opposition to AB100 and AB103, bills seeking to restrict the rights of transgender youth in Wisconsin.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years and am speaking for myself as a private citizen.

I have had the opportunity over the past 6 years to see first hand the positive impact that an affirming school environment can have on a transgender student, as well as the unfortunate consequences that can result from the failure of others to show respect for a student's gender identity, even when done without ill will.

To be able to learn and thrive, students need to feel that they are in a safe environment where they are able to focus on their education and social growth, not be constantly reminded that their body doesn't match their gender identity.

Picture yourself as a student again and think of something that you were uncomfortable with about yourself- maybe you were taller or shorter than others, maybe you were heavier or spoke differently than others. Would you have been able to focus on learning if your teacher called attention to it every time they called on you in class? Gender dysphoria is more complex than many of us can personally relate to, but you don't have to fully understand it to stand against harassment.

Transgender kids are just kids. They want to make friends, learn about themselves and the world around them, and dream about their futures. It is our job to support all Wisconsin youth and give them opportunities for growth. This includes allowing them to participate in sports in an environment they feel comfortable in, and showing them respect by referring to them by the name and pronouns they relate to.

I strongly oppose these bills that discriminate against transgender youth and I ask that you reject these policies that would do real harm to transgender students and their families.

Sincerely,
Jordan Kostlevy
Stoughton, WI 53589

To the Committee on Education,

My name is Mica, and I am a concerned Madison resident writing to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills AB100 and AB103. These bills are plainly discriminatory against transgender youth and represent a significant step backward in the fight for civil rights. We should be supporting and protecting our trans youth, especially in such a hostile political climate. Research consistently shows that transgender youth are at a higher risk of depression, anxiety, and suicide, with lack of community support being a significant contributing factor. Addressing students by their chosen name and pronouns and allowing them to participate in sports is a basic, yet crucial, way to affirm their place in our community.

I want to share my personal experience to highlight the critical importance of community support. I was born in Stoughton but moved to Madison in middle school. From a young age, I felt an internal conflict over my gender. I have diary entries from as early as third grade lamenting that I wasn't allowed to sing with the other girls or join my sister in her dance classes. This was long before I even knew that trans people existed or had ever been taught about gender identity. My first exposure to other trans people was online. In digital spaces, I could be my authentic self, whereas in school, I often felt withdrawn and alienated.

At 14, I finally decided to come out as trans to some online friends. Unfortunately, I was outed to my broader community without my consent. The backlash was devastating—I received harassing and inappropriate messages from strangers, while people I knew mocked me and distanced themselves. I felt ashamed, dehumanized, and sexualized in ways that were deeply painful. The treatment I received led me to believe that I was the problem, and I attempted to suppress my identity in order to make others more comfortable. In doing so, I suffered greatly. I became depressed, irritable, and constantly anxious.

By my senior year of high school, pretending to be someone I wasn't became unbearable. I began skipping school, which led to conflicts with my parents. By that time, I had already attempted suicide once and felt trapped between another attempt or finally coming out to my parents. I chose the latter. Fortunately, they were supportive and advocated for me with the school, allowing me to graduate despite my attendance issues.

College was a turning point. Meeting other queer and trans people alleviated my isolation, and though I still struggled with my mental health, I finally felt like my life was improving. I joined a campus support group for gender-diverse students and, for the first time in years, experienced genuine happiness. Then COVID hit, and I, like many others, felt isolated again. Since that period, I have worked to rebuild my sense of community connection slowly.

Recently, I started a new job as an advocate for sexual assault survivors. Though the work is challenging, it is also deeply rewarding. In the future, I plan to return to school to study mental health care and pursue a career in the field. I want to support those who are struggling and feel alone because I understand firsthand how much of a difference compassion and affirmation can make. I myself am profoundly grateful to be here today, to have experienced so much joy that I never thought possible, and to have a loving partner, family, and friends who have supported me through my journey. Their kindness and advocacy saved my life.

It is crucial and life-saving to affirm and support transgender and non-binary youth in their gender expression. I urge our state to take a stand against discrimination and ensure that all students, regardless of gender identity, are treated with the dignity and respect they deserve by opposing these bills.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns. I have lived in Wisconsin for 45 years, am a mother of two high school aged children, and am an alder on the Verona City Council. I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen, but these experiences have shaped my resolve for supporting in all ways possible transgender children and youth.

The trans youth that I know just want to be able to attend school and be given the same respect and dignity as given to cisgender students. These youth have shared with me how painful it is to be in spaces where they are not treated as equals and frankly, we have seen first hand in Verona the risk this puts on their lives; one of our trans high school students completed suicide several years ago and that has a lasting affect on our community. Research shows this is absolutely the reality for too many youth when their communities are unsupportive.

There is no good that comes out of these bans and restrictions. Our legislature should be working on the million other ways we can actually improve life for Wisconsinites.

Sincerely,

Dear Representatives,

My name is Gina Cornejo, I am a Wisconsin constituent and a resident of the Milwaukee Wisconsin community. I am writing to submit a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the assembly committee on education meeting on March 6, 2025.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation. As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. There is much harm that is happening with these bills if they were to be passed. I have incredible friends in this state and in others who are trans and who are raising spectacular kids. Family, community, togetherness and the safe space to be truly oneself is what we need to be advocating for - NOT the alienation of the transgender community, especially the young children. It is absolutely abhorrent and I urge you vote against these proposed bills 100 and 103.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Gina Cornejo

Standing in support of:
TRANS LIBERATION MILWAUKEE

To the members of the Assembly Education Committee regarding AB100 and AB103:

I would like to register my opposition to bills AB100 and AB103.

I am not transgender. But I am a man of science, and of common sense, and with a passion for high school sports. And both science, common sense, and support for school sports stand in opposition to this bill. The science is that designating sex by birth the way this bill does is incredibly presumptive, ignoring the realities of individuals with both male and female chromosomes, genitalia, and a host of other conditions that fall under the intersex umbrella. The fact is that in more cases than you want to admit, when the physician designates a biological sex at the time of birth, sometimes they're guessing, and sometimes they guess wrong. This law ignores that reality in favor of an imaginary binary.

Common sense is that if boys pretending to be transgender in order to dominate girls' sports or get into girls' locker rooms was a genuine problem in need of legislation, it would actually be happening. Incidents of legitimately transgender girls finding athletic success in Wisconsin are scarce if not non-existent, transgender girls share locker rooms with other girls peacefully every day, and if someone is determined to be a creep in a girls-only space, no law is going to stop them, but they will be rooted out and dealt with quickly.

And let's not forget the reason school sports exist in the first place: to give kids the opportunity to play sports. Arguments pretending to care about scholarship opportunities and competitive imbalance--none of which are truly impacted by transgender athletes--fail to acknowledge that those take a backseat to letting kids play sports. Barring academic ineligibility or misconduct, we should always err on the side of letting kids play sports. There is no harm done by allowing transgender athletes to play sports, but there is much harm in denying them that chance.

Please vote in support of science, common sense, and school sports, and reject AB100.

Regarding AB103, my opposition to requiring parents to control how their children are referred to is simple: if adults can choose their own pronouns in identifying themselves as Mr., Miss, or Mrs. and allow students to refer to them as something other than their legal last name, we should afford students the right to be called what they want. This bill is an unnecessary breach of freedom and local control. Supporting this bill means opposing freedom.

To the members of the Assembly,

My name is Jamie Christensen, I am a resident of De Pere, WI 54115.

I have lived in Wisconsin my whole life. I grew up on my grandpa's dairy farm. And I know how great Wisconsin can be. How helpful Wisconsinites can be to each other. I am asking you to be a helpful Wisconsinite.

I am not able to be at the Capitol in person today, but I am submitting my written testimony to implore you to vote "no" on assembly bill 100 and Assembly bill 103.

From what I understand of reading Assembly Bill 100 and other information about it I believe that if this bill is passed it will hurt many student athletes. I believe that students should be allowed to be in whatever sport they choose to participate in. If a girl would like to play football or wrestle, I believe she should be able to. If a boy would like to play volleyball I believe he should be able to. I think that children should be able to explore different opportunities and interests to figure out what they enjoy doing and who they truly are. The only way that is possible is to allow children to participate in whatever activity interests them. In addition, I do not believe letting trans or non binary children participate in sports, on sports teams that fit the gender they have transitioned to/identify with is harmful to anyone.

Transgender and nonbinary children just want to be able to be who they are and feel safe and comfortable in their body. They are NOT trying to pull a fast one on anyone to win medals or championships. Or to hurt anyone. They just want a happy, healthy, normal life like everyone else. They don't want to be othered by anyone and they don't want to be made unsafe.

My understanding of assembly bill 103 is that it will make it harder for kids to be called by a chosen name or nickname and gender in school. I do not understand why this is something that would need to be a law.

Schools are supposed to be safe places for kids. Some kids, it is the ONLY safe place that they have. Passing a law that would only allow kids to be called by a chosen name or nickname and gender in school if their parents approve will be devastating to many children.

There are many kids who do not have parents that understand them. I do have friends who have kids that are nonbinary. These children are lucky because their parents love them, are understanding and want them to be who they are. But, not all parents are like that. Some parents will not understand their kids or even try to. Some parents only love their children if they do EXACTLY what they want and act EXACTLY as the parent wants. There are many parents who are abusive.

Not allowing children to be called what they would like to be called at school, without parents permission or having the school call parents about it and out children to their parents will be very dangerous. If a kid doesn't feel safe with their parent they will ask for these things at school where they may feel safer. This bill will take away that safety and any trusted adult. And that is heartbreaking.

All children deserve to have at least one adult they can trust and turn to when they need help. Passing this bill will force teachers to not be a safe adult to kids ever again. That will have severe consequences for all students. Not just trans and nonbinary students.

When I was young I didn't like my name, so I decided not to answer to it. My mom had to call me a different name for me to answer her. What if there is a student that has a similar experience to me and because of this bill they can't be called the name they want? I am not transgender and that had nothing to do with me not answering to my name. As a matter of fact, I thought my given name was a "boy's name" and I'm a girl, so I made my mom call me a "girl's name" before I'd answer her. Now, as an adult I like my name. But, as a little kid I was trying to fit in and figure out who I was. Shouldn't all kids be able to do that freely?

I fear that having changes like this is targeting children who are vulnerable and are already in more danger than their peers. Transgender and nonbinary youth have a more than four times greater rates of suicide attempts than their cisgender peers. Also, laws that are anti-transgender cause a 72% increase in suicide attempts in transgender and nonbinary youth. Those statistics are shocking and terrifying. We should all be able to agree that children being put in situations where they think suicide is better than the situations they are forced into is bad. We should all want to prevent that from happening. Please keep these children safe. Please prevent children's deaths.

Please vote no on these assembly bills. Please keep all kids safe, especially the truly vulnerable ones who get put in more danger when bills like this are passed.

Thank you for your time.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I write to you as a lifelong Wisconsinite, a careerlong educator, school social worker, parent of elementary aged children, and advocate for LGBTQIA+ youth. I am emphatically opposed to AB 100 and AB 103 and what they stand for. Upon reading the text of these bills, I was disgusted that grown adults would spend so much time and energy demonizing children who are just trying to survive. To imply that transgender children would attempt to change their name and pronouns to gain access to female gendered spaces (i.e. locker rooms and restrooms) for nefarious reasons is beyond mean-spirited, it is textbook fear-mongering. Evidence supports that transgender children are far more likely to be victims of these behaviors than perpetrators, and I can only assume that by implying otherwise the authors and sponsors of this bill are intentionally attempting to scapegoat these already vulnerable children and youth.

I genuinely question the motives behind these bills that purport to uphold parental rights when the language in AB 103 itself seeks to limit the rights of parents to support their children in using a different name unless they have gone through the process of a legal name change. Many of the families I work with who are supportive of their transgender children do not seek legal name changes for a number of reasons, including the process itself being a financial barrier. However, I can only assume that the bill was designed this way intentionally to limit the rights of these children and their parents.

I welcome any further discussion on this topic. Please feel free to reach me at the contact information listed below.

Sincerely,

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As a Wisconsin born 69 year old grandmother of a very dear, intelligent, creative, caring, and joyful Nonbinary grandchild and as a cousin to two transgender adults and one nonbinary child, I feel strongly that a person deserves to be identified as they identify themselves. It is respectful and affirming to them as the person they are. Taking away that respect and affirmation makes the person feel dehumanized. It makes them question their worth as a human being. It can cause mental anguish and even suicide.

I am also a registered nurse for the past 45 years and spent 28 of those years as a School District nurse. I have worked with many youth who identify in the LGBTQ+ community and some are transgender/nonbinary. Gender is not about external genitalia. It is about the biological influences within one's body. Hormones and genetics play major parts in a person's identification. People who do not understand and do not accept this and prevent people from being who they are, are being very discriminatory and very cruel. There are many biological influences for gender identification. I know personally how important it is for a person to use the bathroom and locker room in which they feel comfortable using. I also know how very, very important pronouns are to people in their self identification.

The mental health and well being of many people are in your hands. You have no idea the pain and fear transgender and nonbinary people feel and experience. The bullying of our transgender and nonbinary youth can be very cruel. Our representatives and senators are to do right by all. Please stop the fear mongering. Be kind. Be caring. Stop AB100 and AB103.

To the Assembly Committee on Education:

I am writing to oppose the proposed bills AB100 (a proposed trans athlete ban) and AB103 (a bill restricting the rights of transgender students to use their correct names and pronouns).

I am a physician and a scientist. I spent 4 years in medical school, 6 years completing my Master's and Ph.D., and 3 years in residency to train for my work as a primary care provider and educator. I use the strongest evidence and guidelines-based care to help me support my patients' health goals. It is distressing to see proposed bills go against biological facts, scientific evidence, and medical guidelines. I urge you to reject these anti-science, anti-medical, and ultimately anti-child bills, which will put transgender, non-binary, and gender non-conforming children at risk. Schools and sports are supposed to be safe spaces for children, and these bills would make them less safe.

Re: AB103: this bill goes against gender affirming actions for gender diverse children as affirmed and recommended by The American Academy of Pediatrics(1), American Psychiatric Association (2), and American Psychological Association (3).

Re: AB101: this bill is not rational in terms of how gender identity vs sex assigned at birth affects athletic performance. It ostracizes a group of students without bringing benefit to others. See below for a recent and thorough reference analyzing current data on sex assigned at birth vs. athletic performance by Dr. DJ Oberlin of Lehmann College. His conclusion: "...an individual's sex does not determine their success or failure at any athletic event despite the high level of competition."

I hope you will make the right decision to reject these bills and keep some of our most vulnerable children safe from discrimination and isolation from their peers.

Sincerely,
Dr. Siobhan Wilson, MD, PhD

Dear Representatives Kitchens, Goeben and fellow committee members,

To those of us who have known parents and grandparents of transgender children...children who are cherished and celebrated for who they are as precious, never-to-be-repeated humans...these two bills before you in committee today seem very cruel! Why were these bills even written in the first place? Isn't it sad that the very lives, mental health, and well being of our transgender young people are now at your mercy? They ought not be singled out! If one is a transgender, it's not because he or she volunteered for such a journey. Gender identity is an innate, deeply felt psychological identification as male or female which may or may not correspond to the gender assigned at birth. For lawmakers to think that they can or even have the right to legislate...to REQUIRE...the choices and decisions of our transgender students and/or athletes in our colleges and high schools is so misguided and so insensitive.

Please, for the well-being and freedoms of our few transgenders in Wisconsin's schools and colleges and for the well-being of their loved ones, VOTE NO on AB100 and AB103.

Sincerely,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a trans athlete ban and AB103, restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 47 years, have served our community as a healthcare worker, foster parent and community volunteer, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all students, have the right to a supportive, caring, equal education free from harassment and discrimination.

Targeting children—who are just learning about themselves—is unethical and teaches all children that their community in Wisconsin does not support its children for who they are. Trans and non-binary youth have a very high suicide rate (Four-times increased risk compared to cisgendered youth)—and trans youth of color are even more at risk (upwards of 33% increased risk). We need to do all we can to help all children survive their childhood and thrive—and limiting them from sports and using the correct names/pronouns is only going to hurt them. Using the correct names/pronouns and allowing them to participate in sports that align with their gender identity does not harm anyone and is life-saving for trans and non-binary youth. It is time to stand up and oppose these harmful bills. Please do the right things and save lives!

Sincerely,

Regarding AB100 and AB103

My name is Tomissa Freisleben and I am a concerned mother of two and resident of Monona, Wisconsin. I am testifying on the abhorrent legislation in AB100 and AB103 to not allow trans children in the State of Wisconsin to participate in sports or use the pronouns of their preference.

Both of my children will attend public schools in Wisconsin in the coming years and since their birth, they have known, loved, and respected trans members within our community. By disallowing trans children from being called their preferred pronouns or participating in the sport that fits their gender identity will other those children and create an atmosphere that will be harmful for those individuals and create an unsafe environment for learning.

I am compelled to testify on this issue as trans children who are not given support and care within their educational communities are more likely to commit suicide, and as a parent, I cannot allow that to happen to my children, my children's classmates, or any child in Wisconsin.

I implore the Wisconsin State Assembly to vote against both AB 100 and AB 103 for the safety and welfare for Wisconsin students.

Thank you for your consideration on this matter and thank you for reading my testimony.

To the members of the State Assembly Education Committee. My name is Maggie Meador and I reside in Viroqua 54665. I oppose AB 100. I've been a female athlete my entire life including receiving a scholarship to be a member of a division one college sports team. I always welcome the competition and never feel concern or a desire to question my fellow competitor's biological sex. (Not to mention that I regularly win when I compete against people of the opposite biological sex!) My gender non-conforming child has my athletic abilities and competitive nature and this bill will hinder their ability to participate in sports. It breaks my heart to think that my child will not have the same opportunities that I had. How do I explain this to them? All children deserve to play sports and reap the benefits that team athletics provides, without fear of an adult checking their genitalia to make sure they are on the "right" team. The news has already reported this disgusting scenario happening and we cannot allow situations like this in our state of Wisconsin.

I also oppose AB 103. This will affect many children in my local community who deserve the safe space at school to explore their gender identity. This bill will create situations in which children may be outed and will lead to increased bullying and violence. Suicide rates for these targeted children are staggeringly high. Choose to save children's lives and oppose this bill.

My name is Elizabeth Male, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Oregon, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. This kind of legislation does nothing but alienate children and create a climate of fear rather than community.

Trans people of all ages are beloved, contributing members of our families and our communities across the state of Wisconsin. Instead of regressing to the stances and policies of the past, our state must continue Forward. As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against AB 100 and 103.

To the members of The Assembly and Senate Committee,

I oppose the bills AB 100 and AB 103.

I am writing today, not to change minds of those who refuse to listen to Doctors and Scientists. I am here for the young boy afraid to share his pronouns or join football. I am here for the child who whispers their name only when they are alone because that is the only time it's safe. I am here for the teen girl who is terrified to try on a dress and wear it proudly to her prom. I am here for every child who does not receive the unconditional love and protection they deserve. My hope is that one Trans Child or Youth hears the support and love today, and stays on this earth to live safely and celebrate their joy in safety. I am here because love is greater than hate or fear.

To Ron Johnson, I hope the hell and god you believe in are in fact real, and on your judgement day he condemns every single act of hate you have initiated, inflicted or supported in your lifetime. You are a coward. If you want to protect kids, focus on gun laws. You want kids to be kids? Let them play sports. You deserve no mercy from your god. To the State of Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

I oppose the proposed bills assembly bills 100 and 103 regarding athletic sports and the sex of participants and changing a pupil's legal name and pronouns. I personally know a transgender girl who is just now entering the Madison public school system and it saddens me to know that the authors of these bills seem to deny her very existence and attempt to limit her future ability to participate in essential activities like school sports and use her preferred pronouns.

Kids learn a lot of important life lessons in sports: leadership, confidence, self-respect, advocacy and what it means to be part of a team. When we tell transgender girls that they can't play girls' sports—or transgender boys that they can't play boys' sports—they miss out on this important childhood experience and all the lessons it teaches.

It can be hard to understand what it means to be transgender, especially if you've never met a transgender person. And it's common to have questions at first. But we can all agree that transgender kids should be treated with dignity and respect, just like everyone else. Transgender athletes have for many years been beneficial parts of teams throughout Wisconsin.

Transgender and nonbinary youth athletes play sports for the exact same reasons as other students their age: Staying healthy, being part of a team, and fostering friendships—all lifelong benefits of playing a sport.

There is no scientific root in the assertion that individuals should be referred to by pronouns tied to their biological sex. The research predominately shows that denying the a child's self-identified gender has negative outcomes later in life, including a higher risk of suicide. Intersex people, despite clearly not conforming, biologically, to either binary sex, are not accounted for by these pronouns. Legally defining gendered pronouns as being tied to biological sex, then, since not based in science, must be based in arbitrary values. I do not believe these are the values of community, and I believe are informed by the fringe religious beliefs of a vocal minority, which have no place in our laws and schools.

Dear Committee,

I write to voice firm opposition to Assembly Bill 100, and Assembly Bill 103, which I understand will be discussed in hearing on 6 March 2025 at the Wisconsin State Capitol.

Fundamentally, these bills reduce the human experience to one's sex determined at birth, as if we have no capacity to experience the world and grow into individuals thereafter.

Denying people the agency to live their truth - be it using the name they want to be called, or the gender they embody - flies in the face of the fundamental unalienable right to Life Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness described in the Preamble of the Declaration of Independence. Moreover, composing and debating over these bills sends a hateful and cruel message to a targeted group of people, at a vulnerable age, with potentially deadly consequences.

Further, these bills place an unfair burden - to police a student's birth certificate, body and identity - on educators and administrators. Surely this is NOT a good use of educators' time and energy.

I hope that compassion for Wisconsin children and educators will prevail in your discussions tomorrow.

My name is Catherine Maxwell. I am a resident of Amherst WI (54406) and the concerned mother of four Wisconsin students, one of whom is a member of the LGBTQ community. While I am unable to attend this hearing in person, I want to express that I strongly oppose AB100 and AB103, which unfairly target transgender students in Wisconsin. Trans youth make up a small fraction of the student population, yet these bills single them out for exclusion and discrimination. Every student deserves to feel safe, respected, and included at school. Denying trans students the ability to participate in sports and be addressed by their preferred name and pronouns does nothing to solve real issues in education—it only creates more harm. Schools should be a place of learning and growth, not political attacks on vulnerable kids. I urge legislators to reject these harmful bills and support policies that foster acceptance and equality for all students.

Please reject AB100 and AB103 and focus on policies that truly support Wisconsin students by improving educational outcomes and creating a more inclusive learning environment.

Respectfully,

Dear Representatives,

My name is Alex Erickson, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. As a trans adult, I am scared. I am scared for the future and I am scared for all the young trans kids figuring out who they are. School was a safe space for me, it still is. School can be and IS a safe space for so many young trans kids who don't receive support at home.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

My name is Brendan Miller. I live in Kenosha WI, 53142, and I oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a transgender man, 32 years old, and blessed to have made it this far. I've lived in Wisconsin my whole life, and in the rural town of Clinton, WI where I grew up, I'd never heard of transgender people and simply thought I was broken. I went to therapy and inpatient hospitals for my crippling anxiety and depression, not understanding why I felt the way I did. Eventually I attempted to take my own life. I am now out as a transgender man and I am happy and at peace at last. I know in my heart that if I had the language that kids today have, and was accepted for who I was back then with the support of my teachers and classmates, I wouldn't have felt so hopeless and alone. By taking this support and these safe spaces to have fun with their friends from these kids, you are effectively isolating them, especially if school is their only means of finding that support. The suicide rate in trans youth is so high because of these kinds of bills that you are pushing. Taking away our autonomy and safety won't make us go away. We have always existed and will continue to exist. I simply hope we can protect our youth from going through this alone without support, trans lives matter and their loss is a tragedy we should all want to prevent.

Thank you for your time,

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

I am Daniel Michael from Mount Horeb, zip code 53572, and I oppose bills AB 103 and AB 100.

For AB 103, giving parents or guardians power to prevent their children from using their desired name and pronouns at school is putting salt in the wound. While it may seem a reasonable bill on paper, these children are not always safe in their homes. This bill would extend the control of transphobic parents and guardians beyond the home, robbing these children of the freedom of being themselves.

For AB 100, this bill is massively unfair and discriminatory to both transgender and cisgender athletes. Trans athletes are simply trying to gain the same sense of belonging as their cisgender peers. This bill alienates them from that belonging in numerous ways, including spiteful reports from their own peers. It would also create privacy concerns for cisgender people by requiring invasive questions and body inspection for all athletes.

Hello,

My name is Molecula Hopkins-Sheets. I live within the city limits of Madison, WI and I am writing into this hearing to oppose Bills AB100 and AB103. If I could be there in person, I would.

First, I would like to address the proposed ban on allowing youth trans athletes to participate in the sport under their gender. This is the wrong move to make for the youth of Wisconsin. I am a woman. I was biologically born a woman, and I identify as a woman. I grew up playing on both girls and boys soccer teams until I was 18. I can honestly say the gender of the participants of each team I played on made no difference to how I played and to the rank I held while I played. I was a starting player on both the girls and boys teams in this state. You can claim biological differences, but for youth why should that matter? Why should we not let them play sports? Why should we ban them from having the experiences that they seek to have? From allowing them to grow through sports and learn lessons of resilience and strength from these sports? From allowing them to live in this world as themselves?

Second, I want to address the restriction of pronouns and names used by transgender youth. I am outraged that this is a proposed bill in our state. To take away a transgender person's ability to use the pronouns that belong to them and ability to use their chosen name is to take away their identity. It is an attack on personal freedoms and an attack on free expression. This bill is proposing to censor the very identity of kids. Do not attack their personal freedom. For a nation who loudly shouts about the right to free expression, this is an egregious attack on that very concept.

Would you take away these rights for your own kids, trans or not? Could you look your kids in the eyes and say that the state is no longer allowing them to go by the name they chose? That until the proper paperwork is filed, their teachers will be calling them by their old name, by the wrong gender? Could you look at your child, watching their eyes gather tears as they are told they can no longer participate with their team because of a law made by the state they live in? Could you look at your child as they give up the sport they love because they refuse to play under a gender that is not theirs?

I oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

Thank you,
Molecula Hopkins-Sheets

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

While I'm unable to be there in person today, my wife and I have both testified in the past against similar bills that were proposed. I have lived in Wisconsin for 27 years and am writing on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination. Trans youth are a vulnerable community of people who are deserving of our protection and support, and the respect of the school systems that serve the public good.

Passage of these bills would cause direct harm to the physical, mental, and emotional health of my daughter and to the many other young people who are a part of this community.

My appeal is simple: from one parent to another, I ask that you please vote against Assembly Bill 100 & 103.

Thank you.

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

To the members of the Assembly Committee of Education:

I urgently ask you to oppose Bill AB100 and Bill AB103.

Regarding Bill AB100:

Education-based athletics is founded on a commitment to equitable, inclusive, and welcoming learning communities for all students. All students, including transgender students, deserve the chance to participate in activities like sports, which offer valuable lessons in teamwork, leadership, self-discipline, and contribute to both physical and mental well-being. This right is protected by Title IX.

Furthermore, as cited in Gender Explained: A New Understanding of Identity in a Gender Creative World by Diane Ehrensaft, PhD and Michelle Jurkiewicz, PsyD, research shows:

- Transgender and gender-diverse youth have a lower risk of suicide, greater feelings of safety, are less likely to experience victimization or harassment, and are less likely to skip class due to safety concerns when they attend schools with inclusive policies, whether or not they play sports.¹
- Cisgender girls' participation in school sports either remained the same or increased after instating inclusive policies, such as in California, where cisgender girls' participation rose by approximately 14 percent in the six years following the enactment of gender-inclusive sports policies in 2014 (as opposed to a decrease in cisgender girls' sports participation in states with gender exclusive policies).²
- Transgender students in states with fully inclusive athletic policies were 14 percent less likely to have considered suicide than students in non-inclusive states.³

Not only do inclusive policies not harm cisgender girls, but inclusive policies help protect transgender girls, an already vulnerable student population.

Oppose Bill AB100 and let all our children play.

Regarding Bill AB103:

We expect our schools to be safe environments for our children to learn and grow. A lot is expected from students each day—they need to stay focused, do their work, and put in their best effort. However, if they are continuously called a name and/or pronoun that does not align with their identity, it will not only be distracting but also painful. Using the correct name and pronoun is the most effective way to say, “I see you.” That builds trust and safety.

If a cisgender person was constantly referred to by a name or pronoun different than what they identified with, it would be seen as harassment. It would have the same negative impact on their education and mental health. Transgender students deserve the same consideration as cisgender students—to be called by the name and pronoun with which they self-identify.

Bill AB103 makes it a requirement of schools to out children to their parents before the children are ready. If a child wants to try out a new name and pronoun at school before coming out to their parents, it hurts no one. It is no different than trying out a nickname. A variation on a birthname is allowed, so why not a chosen name? Using a child-chosen name is respectful to the child. Moreover, forcing a child to out themselves to a family that may not be supportive of them could endanger their safety.

I advocate for the rights of trans and non-binary kids because they matter. They exist. They are just as valid as cisgender kids and deserve the same respect to be called by the name and pronoun with which they identify.

As a resident of Wisconsin for nearly 35 years, I am proud of the times in our state's history when we prove to live by our motto, "Forward." I'm proud that in 1982, Governor Lee Dreyfus signed into law a bill that made it illegal for state or private businesses to discriminate based on sexual orientation in employment and housing, nine years before any other state granted that same protection. Let's not go backward. Let's live by our motto and support and protect ALL children.

Oppose Bill AB100 and Bill AB103.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Kate McKinney

Aaron Larson, Cottage Grove, WI. 53527

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

Members of the committee, thank you for the opportunity to provide written testimony regarding my opposition of AB100 and AB103. My name is Aaron Larson, and I am writing to strongly oppose any legislation that targets transgender youth by restricting their participation in school sports or denying them the right to be addressed by their chosen names and pronouns. These measures are not only harmful but are also an affront to the values of fairness, dignity, and respect that we should uphold for all young people.

Transgender youth, like all students, deserve the opportunity to participate fully in school life, including athletics. Sports provide essential benefits—physical health, social connection, self-discipline, and confidence. Excluding transgender youth from these experiences isolates them and fosters a culture of discrimination and exclusion, rather than the inclusion and teamwork that school sports are meant to promote.

Similarly, denying students the ability to use their correct names and pronouns sends a clear and damaging message: that their identities are not valid and that they are not worthy of respect. Every major medical and psychological association, including the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Psychological Association, recognizes that affirming a young person's gender identity leads to better mental health outcomes and a greater sense of well-being. Conversely, rejection and invalidation significantly increase the risk of depression, anxiety, and suicide.

These policies are not just ethically wrong; they are legally questionable. Courts across the country have ruled in favor of transgender students' rights under Title IX and the Equal Protection Clause of the U.S. Constitution. Schools that implement discriminatory policies may face costly litigation, drawing critical resources away from education and student support services.

At the heart of this debate are real children with real dreams, just like any other student. They want to learn, play, and grow in an environment that sees them for who they are. Instead of singling them out for exclusion, we should be working to ensure that all young people—regardless of gender identity—have the opportunity to thrive in safe, supportive school environments.

I urge this committee to reject legislation that marginalizes transgender youth and instead focus on policies that foster inclusion, fairness, and respect for all students. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear committee,

I'm writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

My name is Madeleine Niebauer and I've resided in Middleton WI for 15 years. I am a business owner and active community member, volunteering for our schools and several nonprofits.

It is deeply disturbing to see the continued attacks on trans people, especially trans youth. I am lucky enough to have several trans kids and teens in my life. It is beautiful to see them live their true identities. I've seen them grow and thrive as they have transitioned and been supported by their families and communities who accept their new names and pronouns. I've seen them thrive in sports and activities where they participate in alignment with their gender identity.

I've also seen trans youth who have not been supported in these ways and have seen the toll it takes on their mental health. I have known families who have suffered through their kid's suicide attempts.

These bills have the potential to cause deep damage to the mental health of these young people, and I urge you to vote against them.

Sincerely,

As an ELCA pastor for over twenty years, and the founding chapter leader of PFLAG Washburn in the Chequamegon Bay area in northern Wisconsin (started in 2009), I am writing with strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103.

These bills seek to strip the rights from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

As a pastor and PFLAG leader, I have met many transgender and gender fluid adults and youth. It is clear to me that they are being scapegoated by these bills. All people deserve to be their authentic selves. If bills like these become law, my personal friends will be devastated and have to move from the state of Wisconsin. These are families with professional parents who contribute so positively to our community.

PFLAG envisions a world where diversity is celebrated and all people are respected, valued, and affirmed inclusive of their sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression.

PFLAG's membership of LGBTQ people, families and allies have united in love, embracing each other and people whose communities are often marginalized, erased or ignored. Unity and inclusion and a shared commitment to human dignity of all people are critical to fight discrimination and bigotry in any form so that all families can live free of fear. Now, more than ever, PFLAG's vision and mission are essential in this country.

Please vote for the dignity of all people and against AB 100 and AB 103.

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

I whole-heartedly ask that you reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103. I work in secondary education and have seen first-hand that implementing affirming language and policies can save lives.

The Trevor Project reports that over 41% of LGBTQ+ young people have seriously contemplated or attempted suicide, including half of trans and nonbinary young people. My daughter was part of this statistic and we were thankfully able to save her. Two of my friends were not so lucky.

One of my LGBTQ+ students lost their life to suicide at 15 and another at 19. While these students were lucky enough to have supportive homes, they were not affirmed in their churches or with many peers. Every time someone is called by the wrong name or pronoun, it does damage.

If I were to force a member of this committee to go by a different pronoun and name every single day, they would not hold their head as high.

If I refuse to call Representative Dittrich by her name and instead refer to her as whatever I feel is best (Mr. Barnaby Dittrich, maybe), I guarantee she would not feel respected or valued.

If I refused to allow Senator Jacque to join a sports team based on his levels (or lack of) testosterone, questioning his gender-affirming beard and asking for physical proof of his masculinity, he might feel unsupported and question his worth.

It is a matter of life or death to allow kids to grow and figure out who they are. While they are growing, it is our utmost responsibility to support and respect students as people. They have lives that are worth saving.

Vote against these bills. They affect no one besides marginalized kids who need adults to protect and support them. What difference does it actually make to YOU to be respectful. Be brave and do the right thing.

Very sincerely and hopefully.

Hi,

I am opposing bills AB 103 and 100 because of their negative impact on trans kids. I figured out that I was queer in my late 20s and that journey of self-discovery was difficult. I was worried people would judge me. I was sad that I didn't know about this part of myself sooner.

We can and should do better for our trans kids. We should listen to them, believe them and connect them to gender affirming care (if that's what they want). These bills are a giant leap backwards and are part of the wave of hate that LGBT communities face. I hope these bills fail and that many people speak out against them.

Thanks for your consideration,

I am vehemently opposed to both Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. The only purpose I can see for either bills is to marginalize, punish and shame trans youth. The bills do not improve the educational environment or the health or wellbeing of children.

Competition in scholastic sports at the k-12 level should focus on fun, skill development and sportsmanship. Bill 100 advances none of those principles. Rather than discourage students from participating in sports that fit their perception of themselves and their interests, you should be encouraging them to grow and reach their potential. Medical studies do not support the misconception that any student will be damaged by the participation of trans youth on a sport team that does not align with their gender at birth. Athletes come in all shapes, sizes and abilities regardless of their gender.

I fail to see the harm in recognizing a child's identity by using the pronouns they prefer. Will you also pass a bill that demands teachers call students by their proper first name rather than a nickname or middle name? A teacher who reinforces a child's sense of self will increase that child's self-esteem and confidence, and therefore increase that child's chance of academic success.

If you are interested in increasing a child's self esteem and academic success, veto both Assembly bills.

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Alicia McQuade, and I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed amendments to AB100 and AB103. These amendments, which target transgender students by seeking to restrict their participation in school sports and limit the use of their correct names and pronouns, are harmful, unnecessary, and not supported by research or best practices.

Data clearly shows the harm that discriminatory policies inflict on transgender youth. According to The Trevor Project's 2023 National Survey on LGBTQ Youth Mental Health, over 50% of transgender and nonbinary youth seriously considered suicide in the past year. Importantly, trans youth who have their pronouns respected attempt suicide at half the rate of those who do not. Policies that invalidate students' identities—such as forcing staff to misgender them—put lives at risk.

Additionally, participation in school sports has well-documented benefits for all students, including improved mental health, increased school engagement, and social connection. The American Academy of Pediatrics has found no evidence that inclusive sports policies harm cisgender athletes, while excluding transgender students contributes to poor health outcomes, stigma, and social isolation.

Leading authorities in medicine and education—including the American Medical Association, American Psychological Association, and National Education Association—oppose legislation that restricts the rights and dignity of transgender youth. The amendments to AB100 and AB103 are out of step with these expert recommendations and with the values of fairness, safety, and inclusion in our schools.

The proposed amendments are not protecting students; they are actively endangering some of our most vulnerable young people. I urge you to reject these amendments and stand in support of trans students who deserve to learn, grow, and participate in school without fear of discrimination.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing, as a mom and an educator, to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, as I believe these proposed measures would harm Wisconsin students and undermine the inclusive and supportive environment our schools should foster.

Regarding AB 100:

This bill, which seeks to exclude transgender students from participating in sports teams consistent with their gender identity, is discriminatory and unfair. Transgender students, like all students, deserve the opportunity to participate in school sports to build teamwork, confidence, and a sense of belonging. Excluding them not only isolates these students but also sets a harmful precedent of inequality in our schools.

Regarding AB 103:

This bill, which would require parental consent for students to use preferred names and pronouns, disregards the importance of respecting students' identities. Schools should be a safe space where all students feel valued and accepted. Forcing students to obtain parental approval for something as personal as their name or pronouns could put vulnerable students at risk, particularly those who may not have supportive home environments.

Both of these bills fail to prioritize the well-being and dignity of Wisconsin's students. Instead of enacting policies that marginalize certain groups, we should focus on fostering inclusivity and ensuring that every student has the opportunity to thrive.

I urge you to reject AB 100 and AB 103 and to advocate for policies that support all students, regardless of their gender identity or personal circumstances.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear representative,

My name is Emanuel Camacho, I am a constituent and resident of Oak Creek. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alternate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. America should not take pride in excluding and alienating others- these proposed bills do exactly that.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Hello, I'd like to submit a comment towards both AB100 and AB103 which are being heard tomorrow 03/06/25.

The comment is as follows:

I am registering my opposition to this bill, which proposes a damaging invasion of privacy into all children's lives. This bill serves only to increase surveillance and perpetuate stigma for private matters that real-life data and plenty of anecdotal evidence shows is not a problem for communities. There are already laws against actual crimes. We don't need this bill against kids who are just existing and minding their own business.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103.

I strongly believe that trans children should be included in school sports and athletics and they should be able to participate with whatever group or gender grouping they feel most comfortable playing with. AB100 will result in transgender and intersex children being excluded from school activities that would allow them to build friendships, develop social skills and learn about how to take exercise. I play a sport with that allows trans women. This inclusion has only positively contributed to my experience and that of my team and league.

Similarly children should have agency to determine what name they want to use and what pronouns they feel most comfortable with. AB103 will make children less safe and is a step backwards. Research shows that gender diverse youth experience best outcomes when parents, families, and communities use pronouns that align with a child's gender identity. Letting children use the pronouns and names that align with how they see themselves is an easy way to make kids safer.

Testimony Opposing Bills AB100 & AB103

My name is Kaycie Peck, from Stevens Point, WI 54481, and I'm writing to you under two hats. The first hat I wear is of a parent of two confident children, one of which is a transgender 7-year-old. The second is as a high school and middle school GSA advisor in rural Wisconsin.

As a parent of a trans child, I oppose both bills AB100 and AB103. We have been following our child's guidance on their gender journey since they were 3 or 4 years old. This is consistent with the American Pediatric Association's information that a child often solidifies their understanding of gender around 4 years old. It was then that our child started saying sometimes they felt like a girl, sometimes they felt like both, and sometimes they felt like neither. In 4K, when the school photographer asked the class to line up in a boys line and girls like, my child fell to the floor crying not knowing which line to go in. Every teacher my child has had has been incredibly supportive, loving, and respectful of my child's identity. They teach age-appropriate discussions of gender, that there are no boy or girl books, toys, jobs, etc. All the public school teachers my child has respect their pronouns, often check in on them and the family to ensure they are doing all right. My child also has a physical disability, Spina Bifida. Despite two very "othering" qualities of their identity, my child is confident, thriving, and proud of all of who they are. Why? Because they are surrounded by people in their life who support and love them for who they are. They are surrounded by love at school, where they are 8 hours a day.

If the bill passes and my child's teachers are stifled from supporting my child, what will happen? The data has shown that trans students who don't have a supportive adult at school have a higher likelihood of depression and suicide. These bills would harm children like my child. My child would no longer have the opportunity to benefit from youth sports. Youth sports teams are not about the competition and the winning. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association (WIAA)'s mission statement is to organize an athletic program that will "maximize opportunities for member schools' participation" in interscholastic athletics, as well as "cultivate high ideals of citizenship and sportsmanship". How is a law that forces exclusion from sports supporting cooperation, teamwork, collaboration, common vision, and goal setting that youth sports in schools provide?

If I want my child to be a successful human in this world, these laws are setting them up to struggle if not fail. These laws will not give them the support they need to work within the school structures these laws are tearing down. These laws will also go against my parental wishes and parental rights, which they seem to be claiming to protect.

Under my second hat, I write to you opposing these bills as a GSA advisor to middle and high school students in a rural community outside Stevens Point for almost 10 years now. I have witnessed the struggles that trans and LGBTQ+ students face when they are finding themselves, expressing themselves, or just existing. I have witnessed their struggles, but I have also witnessed their bravery at advocating for what they need in a community that is not always supportive. These bills will close doors to students that work very hard to even reach those opportunities. As my role in education, our goal is NOT to hide things from families. Our goal is to work WITH families. All these laws will do will harm students who already have so many hurdles to jump to succeed.

Please, be on the side of supporting all students, including all students, not harming or excluding students. Do not pass bills AB100 & AB103.

Thank you for your time,

kp.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti trans legislation proposals across the US. These bans also don't do anything but alienate, belittle, and exclude transgender kids. Lastly, the bans create a climate of fear rather than inclusion.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote AGAINST these proposed bills because I want a safe community for my students. I am a high school teacher in Milwaukee Public Schools and I have trans students. My trans students are extremely brilliant, kind, hilarious, hard working, and the world is a better place because of their presence. They deserve to live in a state (and world) that accepts them for who they are and respects their identities. They deserve to have a high school experience where they can participate in sports. My students feel heard and seen when I utilize the pronouns they tell me to use rather than the pronouns given to them at birth. True recognition of their real identity increases their motivation in school, sense of belief in themselves, and their overall classroom performance. Not only will their lives be better when people stop being transphobic and when lawmakers stop making transphobic laws, but our world will be better because of the actions my students will take to change the world once they graduate high school.

Trans people exist. Trans people are beautiful. They will continue to exist and be beautiful at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent. I ask that you, in good conscience, vote AGAINST AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 40 years, have served our community as a substitute teacher, legal secretary, member of the Middleton Commission on Aging, and community volunteer. I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an educational environment free from harassment and discrimination, where they feel safe to take the risks involved in learning, where they feel valued as a community member and able to explore their future roles in society, where they feel able to contribute to the community as themselves.

In my time working with students, changing pronouns was not a distraction to anyone's education. Participating in any group activity, like sports, when adults model the self respect and respect for others that we all require to live in community has not made anyone feel unsafe. But trans kids have felt unsafe and unseen every day when they use the restrooms in public, people ignore their respectful requests to be addressed as requested, and adults model the language and behaviors that give children in the room tacit permission to ignore, bully, or harass another student.

Testimony Regarding Assembly Bill 100 & Assembly Bill 103:

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

The vilification of trans youth is abhorrent and does not belong in the Wisconsin legislature.

Transgender people comprise 1.6% of the human population. Of that fraction, even less play sports. Only 34 trans athletes have openly competed in U.S. college sports to date and fewer make it to the professional level. The largest disparities in sports fairness come from the socioeconomic disadvantage of marginalized populations, not trans participation. Proximity to privilege predicts success in sports, not testosterone levels or biological markers. Meanwhile, disparities faced by the trans community begin at a young age and impact all facets of life including sports access. Trans youth are 9 times more likely to experience homelessness than their cisgender peers, and 68% experience bullying in middle school and high school. 22% of trans women surveyed in 2015 reported that they were bullied so badly in school that they dropped out. Many trans students worry about where they will use the bathroom at school, never mind which locker room to use. Without supportive services to help them navigate these additional challenges, it's tougher for them than their peers to make it through classes, let alone onto a soccer field. (Thank you to ACLU for the use of their stats and statistics)

These bills are only fueling anti-trans rhetoric that trans women have an unfair advantage in sports, despite a lack of consistent research to suggest this. As a woman, please do not speak for me to say that this bill is protecting mine or my daughter's rights, when in truth it is only limiting the rights of small group of individuals who should be receiving care, support, and affirmation instead of hate.

My name is Emily Erler, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am writing this testimony against AB 100 and 103.

As an educator in this state, I have seen the extreme mental duress that LGBTQ+ youth navigate as they explore and discover who they are, who their families want them to be, and at times, have to navigate the deeply traumatic times when those two futures are in direct opposition. Adding the government's involvement in limiting extracurricular choice and name usage!? The purposes of AB 100 and 103 are clear: To encourage discrimination against trans kids. To alienate youth and stoke a climate of fear amongst children. Students cannot learn if they do not feel safe.

Why in the world is our government wasting time on policing what name a kid goes by? The club they want to join? Why are we spending time limiting the future of our youth and silencing the young voices of Wisconsin?

I'm not sure why our representatives feel the need to engage in viral, hate and outrage-based political theatre when Wisconsinites are struggling under the weight of so much already.

Dear Assembly Committee of Education,

I could not be there in person, but wanted to write to share my concern over the bills regarding student athletes and pronouns in schools (AB100/AB103). I fiercely advocate to make this world a safer place for transgender and non-binary children.

Parents of transgender and non-binary children have become all-too-familiar with the danger that can come if a child is unable to express their gender identity. Research shows that transgender and non-binary children are at great risk of emotional harm, showing that 82% had contemplated suicide over the last year and 40% have attempted suicide [1].

Please think about that for a moment - over two-third of all kids who are transgender come to the conclusion, at some point in their young lives, that they would be better off committing suicide than live in a world that believes they are not welcome. I ask you to take time to speak with families of trans children. You will find story after story about trans children whose "choice" literally came down to being their true self or dying.

It causes harm when we deny or reject a child's gender identity. It is irresponsible and shameful for you, or any other elected official, to pass two anti-LGBTQ bills that further stigmatize these children and call into question their judgment.

I'm asking you to think about the way children in the LGBTQIA+ community are treated. This is a difficult, scary and beautiful mountain for them to climb, and we need to be there for them. I'm asking that you provide support and acceptance. Please do not propose a trans-athlete ban and a bill restricting pronouns and names used by transgender kids.

Thank you,

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lori Vavrus, a concerned parent/grandparent from Washburn, WI 54891. This is my written testimony for opposing bills AB 100 and AB 103 Both bills are aimed at stripping the rights and dignity of transgender students.

These students have the right to compete in sports and to be called by their name and pronouns of choice. These students, like all of our students, have the right to feel included, supported and welcomed. School sports provide opportunities for staying healthy, working as part of a team and creating friendships - all lifelong benefits.

Being called by their name and pronouns of choice are especially important. Studies show that transgender youth suffer mental distress when referred to with the incorrect name and pronouns. This show of support is especially important if they are not receiving that respect in their own home. They need somewhere to feel validated. Everyone deserves to be heard.

Thank you for your consideration of these matters.

Good evening.

My birth name is Anna Claire Stamper, and though it is not the name I currently use, I expect it will get me farther here. I live under the 54703 zip code in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, and I am a senior in high school.

I am sending this message in the hopes The Assembly Committee on Education in the Wisconsin State Legislature will listen to it. The assembly bills number 100 and 103 are being discussed, and I would like my voice to be heard. Though I cannot attend this meeting, as I will be in school, I am sending a message. These bills directly impact my education. Though I am a senior, and moving into secondary education, I am heavily impacted to the precedents that these bills send. It is about more than the silencing of children, which means to erase the ideas of trans children across the state. It is about the politicians and people that have been trying to erase our histories from the moment they began. Being transgender is not a new idea. It has been around since the Egyptians, and will continue to exist no matter how hard legislation tries to stamp out our voices. Once we declare that these children cannot express their first amendment right of free speech by referring to themselves as their chosen genders and names, we step into territory we cannot step back from. This isolation of transgender students from sports, from saying their names, is all intentional. They want us isolated so that no one may remember us. Already they have tried to erase our history, saying that this "new wave" of transgenders happens out of nowhere, forgetting the people they met in high school that were trans. They forget these people not because they never knew them--in fact most had probably encountered trans people in their schooling. The difference, is that the legislation kept those trans kids scared. It kept them quiet. In the same way that these bills are trying to keep trans people quiet. Once they silence our children, they will move on to the next thing they can accomplish. It will start with the trans kids, and then anyone in the LGBTQ+ community. These types of bills are the beginning of the end. Once we silence one group of people, the precedent is set, and they will move on to the next group. How many times will we repeat the mistakes of our ancestors. The Nazis did not stop at Jews. They did not stop at the disabled, the elderly, the gay, the trans, the disordered. We are watching history repeat itself, and I plead that if you listen to anything in my message that you listen to this. They will not stop with trans kids. This hatred is the kind that cannot be satisfied with one group of people. So I ask you, how long do you think it will take to reach you? Already DEI programs are affecting more than just the disabled, and the POC. When you sign this bill you are signing away more than the rights of our transgender children, you're signing the beginning of the end for yourself. This will not stop here, no matter what--and we will not go down without a fight.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I am writing in strong opposition to bills AB 100 and AB 103.

I am the parent of a non-binary middle school scholar and athlete. As a parent, it is heartbreaking to see these bills come forward. My child deserves to thrive as much as any other child. These bills make them feel as if they don't belong, as if they can't pursue the sports and activities that other children can, and that their name and pronouns are wrong. There is nothing wrong with my child. They are who they are and they deserve the same as every other child, boy, girl, or however they identify. Their preferred name and pronouns are essential to their sense of self and ensure their mental well-being.

As a lifelong female athlete, I can say with confidence that this call to ban trans girls and women from sports is ridiculous and only intended to do harm. I have been fortunate to count as teammates and opponents trans women, and I stand in strong support of their right to access the sports I have found so empowering and enriching. Their use of locker rooms that fit their agenda ensures their safety and security and does not threaten mine.

I urge you as a parent, a woman, and an athlete to oppose these bills.

Sincerely,
Amy Washbush

Re: AB100 and AB103

I cannot testify in person before your committee tomorrow as my husband will be having a hip replacement, but I wanted to share my thoughts with you. I come from a family of teachers. My father was a teacher and coach in the Madison School District for 45 years. My sister taught in the same district and then in higher education all across the country, as her husband did.

I know how important it is for young people to be part of a culture in their schools that allows them to be true to themselves while doing no harm to others. The use of pronouns to identify one's gender is not a harmful action against anyone. Much like preferring a nickname to one's given name at birth it is the identity that the young person knows reflects them the best rather than what their parents gave them a birth.

As a parent of a non-binary identifying adult child and grandparent of an 11-year-old non-binary grandchild I have seen that their ability to use pronouns that best reflect who they find themselves to be is vitally important to their well-being. And it brings absolutely no harm to any other person who chooses to use pronouns that reflect their gender identity at birth.

As a daughter of a coach, I have been an avid supporter of sports as well. And while I can understand there are some concerns about transgender youth performing in sports under the gender that identify they now feel to be accurate versus the one assigned at birth, I feel that this too can be handled in thoughtful ways. And I believe blanket legislation is not the answer.

However, at minimum, I would hope that the State in which I have spent my 77 years will not legislate in harmful ways against the use of chosen pronouns for trans and non-binary students, and give thoughtful consideration to all ways in which the small percentage of young folks so impacted are far more harmed by proposed legislation that reflects on their differences versus their many similarities.

Sincerely,
Betty Harris Custer

Please make note of my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

Having lived in WI for nearly 50 years, and having known several trans people in my life, both these bills would be harmful to children that I personally know and love.

Furthermore, I strongly believe it is inappropriate for the state legislature to tell local school boards what they can and can't do in this area. Please leave it up to local elected school boards to set policy in this matter.

To the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

Please accept this as my testimony on Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns). I'm unable to attend tomorrow's hearings in Madison.

Prohibiting trans students from playing on sports teams and using locker rooms consistent with their authentic gender identity, as well as taking away the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school, is extremely disrespectful to those students, and it's completely wrong. Students participating in sports and being themselves at school facilitates strong, mentally healthy kids who grow up to be strong, mentally healthy adults! Creating these unfair limitations would undoubtedly encourage more dangerous "othering" and shaming towards these students.

A 2022 survey found that 85% of trans and nonbinary youth report that facing ongoing political attacks has been detrimental to their mental health, according to the Trevor Project. Even introducing these bills would increase stress levels and mental health problems among many students, not just trans and nonbinary students. I oppose both of these bills.

Thank you for the opportunity to have my voice heard and included in the official record.

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Tanner Schultz and I live in Madison. My zip code is 53714.

A friend of mine, who I met in high school and have known for 25 years, transitioned only a few years ago. Through them I have witnessed the transformative power of finally being able to express, and be accepted for, the gender they have always known themselves to be. They are today a much healthier and happier person than they were when I met them, many years ago, during a time when their parents and society were still telling them that what they knew in their heart was wrong, and trying to force them to conform to a gender they knew they were not.

I am not alone in this recognition, as many prominent and respected medical organizations, such as the American Psychiatric Association, American Psychological Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, and the American Medical Association, have also concluded the same.

I strongly encourage you to reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103, as well as any legislation that seeks to oppress our trans youth and deny them their right to exist as they are and be recognized for who they are. Such legislation is counter to the science of mental health, our rights, and basic human decency.

Sincerely,
Tanner Schultz

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 5 years, serving our community as a certified arborist, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equitable, and caring education free from harassment and discrimination. Life is hard enough and if we care about the health of our community we will honor and respect the diversity of human existence and the dignity of all people.

Please vote no to bills AB100 and AB103.

Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Sincerely,

Shane Gurno, concerned Constituent and supporter of trans kids and people

Dear Representatives,

My name is Hannah Rebernick, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. We should all be doing our best to support ALL of the children in our communities. Bills like this punish trans children for merely existing and create environments that become hostile and unsafe for all children. By refusing to treat trans children the same as you would any other child you deny them their childhood. There is a 29% decrease in suicidal ideation and a 56% decrease in suicidal behavior for youth when their chosen name is used (The Trevor Project). Respecting, name changes, pronouns and protecting trans children in school is life saving and doing anything less is a blatant disregard for the safety and wellbeing of Wisconsin's children.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Hannah Rebernick

For Assembly bill 100 and 103:

I am a physician who takes care of kids and I have seen many children who have been so much happier and healthier after starting to use pronouns consistent with their gender at home and school. It should be up to children and families to decide what pronouns they want to use and this choice must be supported in schools. I strongly oppose these bills due to the negative impacts they will pose to children's physical and mental health.

Dear Members of the Assembly,

My name is Sam Eifert, and I am a lifelong resident of Stoughton, Wisconsin. I have spent 34 years in this state, and I am proud to call it home. I am a Realtor, a business owner, a board member of a local non-profit, and a member of a professional Realtor council. Growing up, I was involved in sports from a young age, playing baseball and basketball throughout my childhood and high school years.

I am writing today to strongly urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills are not only harmful to our transgender youth but also fundamentally undermine the values of inclusion and equality that we hold dear in Wisconsin.

Transgender students already face immense challenges, including discrimination, bullying, and a higher risk of mental health struggles. To strip them of the right to play sports aligned with their gender identity and to deny them the ability to be recognized for who they truly are—by using their name and pronouns—would only worsen their struggles. It would send a message to these young people that they do not belong, that they do not have a right to exist as their authentic selves.

The conversation about "fairness" in sports has been manipulated and exaggerated. The reality is that transgender students simply want the same opportunities as their peers to participate, learn, and grow. The idea that they pose a competitive advantage is a distraction from the real issues. Should we apply the same logic to athletes like Michael Phelps, whose physical characteristics were exceptional and not "standard" compared to other swimmers? Sports are about more than just competition—they are about building resilience, fostering teamwork, and teaching life lessons. Transgender students deserve that opportunity too.

It is disheartening that, in a time when there are so many critical issues facing our state and our nation, we are focused on further dividing and harming vulnerable members of our community. The harm these bills would cause to transgender youth is far-reaching, and the focus on sports and pronouns is a dangerous distraction from the real challenges we should be addressing.

Please, take a moment to think about the well-being of our children. Do not pass AB 100 and AB 103. Stand with equality, dignity, and inclusion.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Representatives

My name is Will Manley. As a resident of the state of Wisconsin and city of Milwaukee, I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103, proposed on March 6th to the Assembly Committee on Education.

Both of these bills are crafted to target the tiny percentage of transgender students and children in the state of Wisconsin. Both through athletic bans for the approximately 0.002% of trans athletes in Wisconsin student athletics, and by allowing the creation of a hostile atmosphere for trans students, regardless of whether they are at school, camp, daycare, or home. These bills are not meant to do anything but disrupt and distract from the real problems facing Wisconsin residents.

Through my experience as a teacher, both in the state of Wisconsin and beyond, in the classroom and out of it, I can tell you these bills help no one and hurt everyone. They are invasive, shameful, and blatantly bigoted. These bills do nothing but bully and alienate trans children and create a climate of fear where there is none! Children do not hate each other by nature, they are confident and curious and should be lifted up and celebrated for this, not driven to division.

Trans people will continue to exist, at all ages, at all stages, and to allow these bills to come to pass is to allow violence to fall on these children. As representatives I urge you to acknowledge and empathize with the pain these bills will cause, and vote against these bills.

Sincerely,
Will Manley

Dear Committee Members of Bills AB100 and AB103,

I implore you to think about the children who will be adversely impacted if these bills pass. Being transgender is NOT a choice. Very young transgender children already KNOW that their gender should be other than that assigned to them at birth, and express this fervently to their parents. As a registered nurse and a parent of an amazing nonbinary child, I am writing in opposition to AB100 and AB103, and asking legislators to stop going after transgender children and work to address one of the numerous actual problems facing Wisconsinites.

My child has been bullied in school by classmates who have targeted them for their gender identity, despite the fact that my child using they/them pronouns and identifying as nonbinary has zero effect on anyone else. Thankfully, their school administrators took it seriously and facilitated a conversation between all of the kids involved about treating each other with respect, and the bullying stopped. This outcome happened because the school is committed to fostering a culture of mutual respect and supporting children's identities. These bills would interfere with our school's ability to support children like mine.

These bills do not protect children, period. They make my child and other transgender and nonbinary children LESS safe. The sports bill is unscientific, as studies show no difference in athletic ability between cisgender girls and transgender girls who have not gone through a male puberty, and the regulations on schools will make it harder for gender-nonconforming children to find support. It's shameful that politicians have decided to make a small, vulnerable population of citizens a scapegoat to whip up public fear and anger in this moral panic. It's causing real harm to children and adults who only want to live honestly and be themselves. Historically speaking, targeting minority groups has never reflected well on those in power. This will be no exception, and I encourage you all to vote with this in mind.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. As a substitute teacher at my children's public school, I see firsthand the impact that inclusive policies have on all students. These bills target a very small number of students, yet they cause very real harm to a vulnerable minority group.

Legislation should be focused on supporting all students and ensuring that our schools remain places of learning, growth, and acceptance. Instead, these bills create unnecessary division and distraction. Furthermore, they represent a misuse of taxpayer dollars, as they seek to address a problem that does not exist while ignoring more pressing educational needs.

I urge you to vote against AB 100 and AB 103. Our schools should prioritize the well-being and success of all students, not target specific groups for political reasons.

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education

03/05/2025

My name is Amber Anderson, BSN RN and I am a nurse at a local child/adolescent psychiatry unit. I am writing in regard to Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

For the past four years, I have worked on an acute-stay child and adolescent psychiatric unit in the Madison area serving patients ranging from six to eighteen years old. The majority of patients I work with are admitted after a suicide attempt and/or after disclosing suicidal ideation. Throughout my years working with this population, I have had the privilege to meet kind, clever, empathetic and resilient kids in our community. Many of these patients identify as either trans or nonbinary. More often than not, the stressor resulting in suicidality is a lack of recognition and acceptance of their preferred name and pronouns. Further supporting this fact, according to the Trevor Project, anti-transgender laws cause up to a 72% increase in suicide attempts amongst transgender and nonbinary youth.

The reason I am writing to advocate for this community is simply this: I have seen the ramifications of not accepting a child who identifies as trans or nonbinary, and fear for our youth if these bills were to pass. I implore you that, based on proven statistics, allowing this bill to pass would essentially be signing a death sentence for many of Wisconsin's trans and nonbinary youth.

In summary, as a medical professional who works with this specific population on a daily basis and understands the negative effects these bills would have on youth in Wisconsin, I believe you should not allow Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 to move forward.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Sports are about more than just competition—they are about building resilience, fostering teamwork, and teaching life lessons. Transgender students deserve that opportunity too.

It is disheartening that, in a time when there are so many critical issues facing our state and our nation, we are focused on further dividing and harming vulnerable members of our community. The harm these bills would cause to transgender youth is far-reaching, and the focus on sports and pronouns is a dangerous distraction from the real challenges we should be addressing.

Please, take a moment to think about the well-being of our children. Do not pass AB 100 and AB 103. Stand with equality, dignity, and inclusion.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Christopher Tammes, I am a constituent and resident of Milwaukee (53212) where I work two jobs, have hit multiple milestones in my own transition, and have found a vibrant and compassionate community of other trans people and allies.

I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear and hate rather than cultivating connection, understanding, and mutual respect.

As one of your constituents, I implore you to vote strongly against these proposed bills. Being one of the only out transgender students in my high school left me the choice to give up on being the most honest, true, and happiest version of myself or be the version that would let me continue to compete within my passions. No kid should have the entirety of a State government becoming the bullies that I faced when trying to just be myself. If a child figuring out who they are and how they want to live in this world is the biggest threat that you face, I truly envy how little struggles you have to actually face in your life.

I hope all the representatives continue to uphold the separation of church and state, continue to show that Wisconsin is a state that represents compassion, and know that trans people will continue to exist at every age; as we always have.

To enact these bills is to enact violence on the trans youth of your own communities, as Representatives of Wisconsin I hope you acknowledge all the trans people you represent from all corners of the state; and in good conscience vote against AB100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Christopher Tammes

Greetings to the whole WI legislative committee considering bills AB 100 and AB 103. I hear there may be a hearing and comments are welcome, Thursday, March 6, 2025.

Although I'm not able to be there in person, I'm writing today against these bills which would place limits on the rights of trans kids to participate in school athletics programs.

Kids come in such different varieties of height, weight, hormones...and as long as they are willing to show up for practice and do their best in whatever sport it is - SO BE IT!

As the proud grandmother of someone who calls themselves 'they' - I'm showing up for our trans kids and friends of my grandkid - and their right to live, play, and exist as their authentic selves everywhere.

Re: In opposition of AB 100 & AB 103

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Reiko Ramos and I am a resident of Appleton, WI. I have over a decade of experience working with the LGBTQ community, most of which time has been dedicated to supporting queer and Trans youth. I currently serve as Statewide Director of LGBTQ Anti-Violence Programs at Diverse & Resilient. I am providing this written testimony in opposition to AB100 & AB 103 because of the harmful impact it will have on Trans youth.

According to the Trevor Project's 2024 U.S. National Survey on the Mental Health of LGBTQ+ Young People, 90% of LGBTQ+ young people said their well-being was negatively impacted due to recent politics. Additionally, transgender and non-binary young people reported lower rates of attempting suicide when their affirmed name and pronouns were respected.

Our organization serves hundreds of LGBTQ+ people across the state of Wisconsin each year. When elected officials at any level say harmful things about the Trans community or introduce legislation that will impact their rights, our program sees an increase in Trans people and their loved ones reaching out to us for support. So far in 2025, we have received more crisis calls related to anti-trans legislation and executive orders than ever. We know through experience that the data from Trevor Project is accurate: legislation like this has a serious negative impact on the mental health and wellbeing of Trans people in our state.

Transgender youth deserve to have their affirmed name and pronouns used and should have access to the same benefits of participation afforded to all youth in sports, such as belonging to a team, building relationships & camaraderie, and physical activity. These are all things that are linked to improved health and mental health outcomes regardless of age or gender identity, but are particularly relevant, as national data also tells us that acceptance and belonging are powerful protective factors for LGBTQ+ youth.

Please support the wellbeing of young Trans people across Wisconsin; do NOT move forward with AB 100 & AB 103.

Respectfully,

Reiko Ramos

To the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Chloe Keefe and I'm a concerned healthcare worker of 3 years. I directly oppose assembly bills 100 and 103. Not only do I have a trans sister, trans cousins, and trans friends, but I also have trans patients who come to our endocrinology clinic for gender affirming care. I've witnessed firsthand how gender affirming care saves lives.

As someone who grew up alongside trans youth who still remain friends of mine to this day, I saw directly how harmful misgendering these individuals can be. A trans friend of mine once reached out to me, desperate for help as they were suicidal from being called the incorrect pronouns every single day. Assembly bills 100 and 103 will put trans youth in direct danger. These are children we are talking about, children deserve to feel safe and secure at school. I urge you all to vote against assembly bills 100 and 103 as they are outright dangerous for these children.

Sincerely,

Chloe Keefe, CMA (AAMA)

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103.

As a parent, I am concerned that AB100 could incentivize schools to perform unscientific, invasive physical exams on children who wish to join a girls' sports team. Teaching young girls that it is okay for teachers to ask them to expose their genitals for any reason sets a dangerous precedent. It is also sexist on its face in many ways, not least because the rules around sex determination appear to apply only to girls. I have lived in Wisconsin for over twenty years, and this is the first time I have been afraid at the prospect of my daughter choosing to play on a sports team in high school.

My concerns about AB103 go beyond gender. It is not reasonable or proportionate to expect school administrators to check the names that children ask to be called in class against their birth certificates. I have known many people over the years who go by nicknames not directly related to their first or middle name, whether for cultural reasons (like Chinese immigrants adopting Western nicknames) or personal ones. The extra paperwork that this bill would require for extremely mundane situations like these is potentially humiliating to families and wastes teachers' time.

All of this leaves untouched the issue of civil rights. Transgender people are a small and vulnerable minority. Legislative acts that make them feel unsafe in their gender identity do not protect me -- they make me feel vulnerable, too. I feel afraid that legislating around gender expression will not stop at trans exclusion, but will encroach on the way that I embody femininity, or don't. I cannot be free to be who I am, as a cis woman, when trans people are not. And I want and expect this freedom for my daughter, too.

I think it's time to stop making kids the disempowered and disenfranchised subjects of these ongoing culture wars. Middle school and high school are incredibly difficult times in life. Let's not make it more difficult by entangling kids (who are most vulnerable) in the republican party's ongoing incursion into the private lives of individuals and families.

Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Sincerely,

Dear Representatives,

My name is Hannah Rebernick, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. We should all be doing our best to support ALL of the children in our communities. Bills like this punish trans children for merely existing and create environments that become hostile and unsafe for all children. By refusing to treat trans children the same as you would any other child you deny them their childhood. There is a 29% decrease in suicidal ideation and a 56% decrease in suicidal behavior for youth when their chosen name is used (The Trevor Project). Respecting, name changes, pronouns and protecting trans children in school is life saving and doing anything less is a blatant disregard for the safety and wellbeing of Wisconsin's children.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

For Assembly bill 100 and 103:

I am a physician who takes care of kids and I have seen many children who have been so much happier and healthier after starting to use pronouns consistent with their gender at home and school. It should be up to children and families to decide what pronouns they want to use and this choice must be supported in schools. I strongly oppose these bills due to the negative impacts they will pose to children's physical and mental health.

I am writing to urge each of you to oppose AB100 and AB103. As members of the Committee on Education, I can only assume that each of you care very much about Wisconsin's youth and about ensuring that every young person gets both a solid education and a healthy foundation on which to develop into the adults of the future. Neither of these are possible for youth who are subjected to exclusion, disrespect, and demonization. AB100 and AB103 do nothing but exclude, disrespect and demonize youth who are transgender, non-binary or gender non-conforming.

Being inclusive and respectful of trans youth does no harm to anyone other than those seeking to use trans youth as scapegoats. I assume no one on this committee would seek to do that.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

We are writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of students to use their preferred names and pronouns.

We have lived in Wisconsin for our entire life, and are speaking on our own behalf as private citizens.

We have personally witnessed the pain of a loved one struggling with suicidal depression stemming from gender dysphoria. Coming out as transgender was a life-changing moment for her for the better, in large part because the people she trusted at home and at school have been supportive and affirming. Being able to use her own preferred name and pronouns has been critical to her emotional health and well-being: she missed most of 8th grade from psychological distress, but is now scoring top marks on schoolwork in 9th grade. The difference has been night and day.

Imagine if her parents had not been supportive. If AB103 were law, staff at her school would have been legally barred from using her preferred name and pronouns. She would have had no support in the two most central environments of her life, leading to more crippling depression, delinquency, running away from home, even possible suicide. Maybe you scoff at the idea that AB103 could result in such outcomes for our children -- but imagine living day after day being called a name that doesn't feel like yours, with it being illegal for others to call you by one that works for you. It is a basic principle of dignity and respect that we refer to others how they want to be called. This is not "woke" but rather common decency.

Trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an equal and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education -

I'm writing to voice my strong opposition to proposed bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a long-time member of the Village of Shorewood, hold a PhD in Child Clinical Psychology, and have worked in the nonprofit sector of Milwaukee for over 30 years. I am also the mother of a young adult trans woman.

If passed, these bills would have a devastating impact on the health, well-being, and safety of Wisconsin's trans and non-binary youth and adults. The detrimental effects of these kinds of bills are clear from more than a decade of scientific research and from the positions of all the relevant professional organizations (e.g., American Psychological Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, etc.).

I truly can't imagine my daughter being barred from playing sports, unable to use the locker room or rest room that is consistent with her gender, and being prohibited from using her name or correct pronouns. In all spheres of her life, she lives and moves through the world as a woman. She, along with other trans youth and adults, have the right to live, play, and exist as their authentic selves.

Please join me in opposing and defeating these two damaging bills.

Hello,

My name is Molecula Hopkins-Sheets. I live within the city limits of Madison, WI and I am writing into this hearing to oppose Bills AB100 and AB103. If I could be there in person, I would.

First, I would like to address the proposed ban on allowing youth trans athletes to participate in the sport under their gender. This is the wrong move to make for the youth of Wisconsin. I am a woman. I was biologically born a woman, and I identify as a woman. I grew up playing on both girls and boys soccer teams until I was 18. I can honestly say the gender of the participants of each team I played on made no difference to how I played and to the rank I held while I played. I was a starting player on both the girls and boys teams in this state. You can claim biological differences, but for youth why should that matter? Why should we not let them play sports? Why should we ban them from having the experiences that they seek to have? From allowing them to grow through sports and learn lessons of resilience and strength from these sports? From allowing them to live in this world as themselves?

Second, I want to address the restriction of pronouns and names used by transgender youth. I am outraged that this is a proposed bill in our state. To take away a transgender person's ability to use the pronouns that belong to them and ability to use their chosen name is to take away their identity. It is an attack on personal freedoms and an attack on free expression. This bill is proposing to censor the very identity of kids. Do not attack their personal freedom. For a nation who loudly shouts about the right to free expression, this is an egregious attack on that very concept.

Would you take away these rights for your own kids, trans or not? Could you look your kids in the eyes and say that the state is no longer allowing them to go by the name they chose? That until the proper paperwork is filed, their teachers will be calling them by their old name, by the wrong gender? Could you look at your child, watching their eyes gather tears as they are told they can no longer participate with their team because of a law made by the state they live in? Could you look at your child as they give up the sport they love because they refuse to play under a gender that is not theirs?

I oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

Thank you,
Molecula Hopkins-Sheets

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

While I'm unable to be there in person today, my wife and I have both testified in the past against similar bills that were proposed. I have lived in Wisconsin for 27 years and am writing on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination. Trans youth are a vulnerable community of people who are deserving of our protection and support, and the respect of the school systems that serve the public good.

Passage of these bills would cause direct harm to the physical, mental, and emotional health of my daughter and to the many other young people who are a part of this community.

My appeal is simple: from one parent to another, I ask that you please vote against Assembly Bill 100 & 103.

Thank you.

Dear Representatives,

My name is MaryClaire Burkhardt, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are both very obviously written this way in order to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids. These bills are emerging during a time when hateful and unprecedented anti-trans legislation and policy proposals are rampant across the US. These bills do nothing but alienate and endanger CHILDREN and stoke a climate of hate and fear. Trans children are still children, and you have an obligation to support them thrive. The endless examples of suicide and harm done to trans folks, and especially trans children, should immediately stop these types of bills from coming out. However, there are many who are soulless and seem to forget that people are people and trans people are just people.

As one of your constituents, I urge you all to vote against these bills. I am a trans adult, I grew up in a time where I witnessed the trans kids in my schools who were brave enough to come out be bullied and harassed. The fact that there are politicians who are nothing more than rich bullies is pathetic, and you must not stand with them. It's just embarrassing. Why do people care so much about children's genitals? That to me is a million times more creepy than anything anti-trans people make up to fear monger.

It's also absolutely horrifying that these bills are happening at a time when the people, your constituents, are struggling to make ends meet. I work in a hospital, and the amount of people who have to cancel life-saving appointments, medications, and treatments due to the mess our health care system is is horrifying. And here we are talking about banning children from being themselves. What an absolute waste of time.

We trans people have always existed, and will always exist, at every single age. The violence against trans people is just a clear example of the spin into fascism we have entered. Focus on the things that actually matter, like stopping Musk from taking over our entire country (a sentence I never thought I'd have to write.), maybe feeding, housing, clothing, and providing health care to your constituents.

Trans people will exist and be loved no matter what. These harmful laws will do nothing to end our existence. Nothing can, because we are exactly who we're meant to be, and we will always exist.

As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge and stand by all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin citizen and educator, I strongly oppose the adoption of Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. These bills target a small and vulnerable population of young transgender persons in our public schools who deserve our support, care, and commitment rather than public policy that demeans them and keeps them from being called by the names and pronouns that match their identities. As a teacher of writing, I know the harm that words can cause; as a researcher and educator, I know the mental health crises common among our queer, questioning, and transgender youth. These bills will exacerbate the alienation and discrimination felt by young people in schools, a place where they should be safe from the violence and hatred they so often encounter in public spaces. My classrooms and communities must be spaces where individuals can express themselves freely, and that expression can only emerge when students are called by their names, respectfully spoken of by others, and allowed to participate in the life of the school -- including sports -- the same as all other students. This is an issue of access, civil rights, and the continued existence of beloved young people who deserve to feel safe and seen. I repeat, I strongly oppose both Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103; they should never be made into law in Wisconsin or anywhere else that values freedom, justice, and the rights of its most vulnerable citizens.

Thank you,

To Members of the Senate Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to proposed bills AB100 and AB103. These bills make me afraid for children in Wisconsin schools. Now more than ever, schools are taking on enormous responsibilities in terms of mental health support for children. Both of these bills put teachers in a position of saying and acting that they don't believe children. It would be inappropriate and negligent for a teacher to say, "No, I don't believe Mandy hit you, I didn't see it." or "I don't think you're hungry, I'm sure you have food at home."

It is also inappropriate for schools to mandate that a child be called by a name that they don't feel is theirs or to be banned from a team or activity because their genitalia does not match their brain. Laws of these types have been shown to negatively impact the mental health of transgender and nonbinary youth. Gender identity is a fundamental part of human experience and should be protected by law.

I have lived in Madison for nearly 30 years, I know children who are transgender who have thrived here because teachers and schools worked to protect and nurture these children. These two proposed bills would bring irreparable harm to children. Please do not let these two bills move forward.

Thank you,

I oppose these bills because there is data that indicates that 82% of transgender individuals have considered killing themselves and 40% have attempted suicide, with suicidality highest among transgender youth.

States that passed anti-transgender laws aimed at minors saw suicide attempts by transgender and gender nonconforming teenagers increase by as much as 72% in the following years

To the members of the Assembly Committee of Education:

I urgently ask you to oppose Bill AB100 and Bill AB103.

Regarding Bill AB100:

Education-based athletics is founded on a commitment to equitable, inclusive, and welcoming learning communities for all students. All students, including transgender students, deserve the chance to participate in activities like sports, which offer valuable lessons in teamwork, leadership, self-discipline, and contribute to both physical and mental well-being. This right is protected by Title IX.

Furthermore, as cited in Gender Explained: A New Understanding of Identity in a Gender Creative World by Diane Ehrensaft, PhD and Michelle Jurkiewicz, PsyD, research shows:

- Transgender and gender-diverse youth have a lower risk of suicide, greater feelings of safety, are less likely to experience victimization or harassment, and are less likely to skip class due to safety concerns when they attend schools with inclusive policies, whether or not they play sports.¹
- Cisgender girls' participation in school sports either remained the same or increased after instating inclusive policies, such as in California, where cisgender girls' participation rose by approximately 14 percent in the six years following the enactment of gender-inclusive sports policies in 2014 (as opposed to a decrease in cisgender girls' sports participation in states with gender exclusive policies).²
- Transgender students in states with fully inclusive athletic policies were 14 percent less likely to have considered suicide than students in non-inclusive states.³

Not only do inclusive policies not harm cisgender girls, but inclusive policies help protect transgender girls, an already vulnerable student population.

Oppose Bill AB100 and let all our children play.

Regarding Bill AB103:

We expect our schools to be safe environments for our children to learn and grow. A lot is expected from students each day—they need to stay focused, do their work, and put in their best effort. However, if they are continuously called a name and/or pronoun that does not align with their identity, it will not only be distracting but also painful. Using the correct name and pronoun is the most effective way to say, “I see you.” That builds trust and safety.

If a cisgender person was constantly referred to by a name or pronoun different than what they identified with, it would be seen as harassment. It would have the same negative impact on their education and mental health. Transgender students deserve the same consideration as cisgender students—to be called by the name and pronoun with which they self-identify.

Bill AB103 makes it a requirement of schools to out children to their parents before the children are ready. If a child wants to try out a new name and pronoun at school before coming out to their parents, it hurts no one. It is no different than trying out a nickname. A variation on a birthname is allowed, so why not a chosen name? Using a child-chosen name is respectful to the child. Moreover, forcing a child to out themselves to a family that may not be supportive of them could endanger their safety.

I advocate for the rights of trans and non-binary kids because they matter. They exist. They are just as valid as cisgender kids and deserve the same respect to be called by the name and pronoun with which they identify.

As a resident of Wisconsin for nearly 35 years, I am proud of the times in our state's history when we prove to live by our motto, "Forward." I'm proud that in 1982, Governor Lee Dreyfus signed into law a bill that made it illegal for state or private businesses to discriminate based on sexual orientation in employment and housing, nine years before any other state granted that same protection. Let's not go backward. Let's live by our motto and support and protect ALL children.

Oppose Bill AB100 and Bill AB103.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Kate McKinney

Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin resident and LGBTQIA ally, I ask that bills 100 and 103 are not allowed to pass. These will not only cause harm to the youth they affect, but will also clear the way for more detrimental bills in the future. Please protect these marginalized and vulnerable youth.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

Members of the committee, thank you for the opportunity to provide written testimony regarding my opposition of AB100 and AB103. My name is Aaron Larson, and I am writing to strongly oppose any legislation that targets transgender youth by restricting their participation in school sports or denying them the right to be addressed by their chosen names and pronouns. These measures are not only harmful but are also an affront to the values of fairness, dignity, and respect that we should uphold for all young people.

Transgender youth, like all students, deserve the opportunity to participate fully in school life, including athletics. Sports provide essential benefits—physical health, social connection, self-discipline, and confidence. Excluding transgender youth from these experiences isolates them and fosters a culture of discrimination and exclusion, rather than the inclusion and teamwork that school sports are meant to promote.

Similarly, denying students the ability to use their correct names and pronouns sends a clear and damaging message: that their identities are not valid and that they are not worthy of respect. Every major medical and psychological association, including the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Psychological Association, recognizes that affirming a young person's gender identity leads to better mental health outcomes and a greater sense of well-being. Conversely, rejection and invalidation significantly increase the risk of depression, anxiety, and suicide.

These policies are not just ethically wrong; they are legally questionable. Courts across the country have ruled in favor of transgender students' rights under Title IX and the Equal Protection Clause of the U.S. Constitution. Schools that implement discriminatory policies may face costly litigation, drawing critical resources away from education and student support services.

At the heart of this debate are real children with real dreams, just like any other student. They want to learn, play, and grow in an environment that sees them for who they are. Instead of singling them out for exclusion, we should be working to ensure that all young people—regardless of gender identity—have the opportunity to thrive in safe, supportive school environments.

I urge this committee to reject legislation that marginalizes transgender youth and instead focus on policies that foster inclusion, fairness, and respect for all students. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear committee,

I'm writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

My name is Madeleine Niebauer and I've resided in Middleton WI for 15 years. I am a business owner and active community member, volunteering for our schools and several nonprofits.

It is deeply disturbing to see the continued attacks on trans people, especially trans youth. I am lucky enough to have several trans kids and teens in my life. It is beautiful to see them live their true identities. I've seen them grow and thrive as they have transitioned and been supported by their families and communities who accept their new names and pronouns. I've seen them thrive in sports and activities where they participate in alignment with their gender identity.

I've also seen trans youth who have not been supported in these ways and have seen the toll it takes on their mental health. I have known families who have suffered through their kid's suicide attempts.

These bills have the potential to cause deep damage to the mental health of these young people, and I urge you to vote against them.

Sincerely,
Madeleine Niebauer

RE: AB100 and AB103

To the members of the 2025 Assembly Committee on Education:

Wisconsin Assembly Bills 100 and 103 are yet another installment in the latest wave of legislation aimed at destroying the rights and freedoms of transgender individuals -- this time, attacking our children. These bills will prevent transgender students from participating in the school sports that align with their gender identity and also forcibly out transgender students if they in any way request staff to recognize their authentic selves. They are not just unnecessary wastes of Wisconsin taxpayer dollars; they are actively harmful.

Supporters of AB100 argue that the bill protects fairness in women's sports. These claims, however, are based on misleading political narratives and reject widely respected scientific evidence. Countless major medical organizations, including the American Academy of Pediatrics as well as the American Medical Association, recognize and confirm that transgender athletes do not inherently have an unfair advantage over cisgender athletes, and sports governing organizations such as the International Olympic Committee already have policies ensuring fair competition regardless of gender. AB100 is really just a solution in search of a problem, and in the process of trying to fabricate a crisis, it singles out and excludes transgender youth, sending a message that these children are not welcome.

AB103 is another attempt to marginalize transgender students -- this time by restricting how schools recognize and respect their identities. This bill would prevent schools from using a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns unless they align with a legal name change and are formally requested by a parent. If any parent or legal guardian makes such a request, ALL guardians will be given the opportunity to intervene. I know several people whose parents divorced or separated due to deep disagreement over whether their child should receive lifesaving care. Had AB103 been law they would have been subjected to the whims of their anti-trans parent, whether or not they were involved in their daily lives. Such policies disregard the lived experiences of transgender and nonbinary youth and will force their guardians to weigh whether to risk outing their children to unsupportive family members, who themselves will have the power to override a supportive parent. Or likewise, if they will risk the scrutiny of potentially unsupportive or even bigoted school administrators, personnel who may not even know the child in question. These barriers to simply existing at school are only in place for students the author deem unworthy of identity; students who request a name or similar accommodation who are not transgender are not burdened by AB103. Respecting a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns should not be a matter of politics; it is a matter of dignity, mental health, and safety. AB103 is not about parental rights or educational integrity; it is about policing identity and forcing schools, teachers, and staff to participate in discrimination against transgender youth.

Wisconsin's AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection -- they are about discrimination and control. The bills target an already vulnerable population, ignoring general scientific consensus and the voices of transgender people themselves. If these bills become law, they will cause real harm, not only by worsening stigma and mental health, but also the likelihood of self-harm among transgender youth.

A study published in the Journal Nature¹ September of 2024 assessed 19 states where anti-trans legislation passed from 2018 to 2022 and found an up to 72% increase in past-year suicide attempts by transgender and nonbinary youth, with a causal relationship by those states' anti-trans legislation.

Children's suicide rates increased across all states where anti-trans bills had been passed, and specifically as a result of those bans being enacted by their state legislatures.

These bills kill children born the same way as I was – created by God to find and live as our authentic selves. At best, they are intended to penalize and subjugate children who themselves are unknown by this bill's authors or the members of this committee. But in effect, this body will be setting policy that certain children are unwelcome in our schools, and unwelcome in our society more broadly. How many children must die before their lives are considered by this body?

I firmly believe what my church teaches: that all children, transgender nonbinary or otherwise, are created by God to find and embody our authentic selves and live out our lives as any other child of God. These bills attack that purpose, and with it our dignity and humanity. Would this body cosign the hatred, verbal and physical attacks transgender Children of God will be forced to endure by their peers, teachers, administrators, extended family and community? Will this body shield itself from the reality that children will be subjected to conditions which guarantee they will be told they are unwelcome in our society? This was a reality I was forced to live through for many many years, and as a result I regularly considered ending my own life beginning at the age of 13. I know many others like me who considered the ultimate sin, and I can only wonder how many more people would be alive today had they not experienced the same. I pray this body looks beyond themselves to see the humanity they will be snuffing out by putting their political careers over the lives and safety of fellow Children of God.

“If any of you cause one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea. Woe to the world because of things that cause sin! Such things are bound to come, but woe to the one through whom they come!”

To members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Trans youth deserve to learn and participate by playing on sports teams and using locker rooms that match their authentic gender. They also deserve to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school. Every person has the right to be and to belong. This is what schools and school sports are for. Learning to appreciate each other's differences and how they contribute to the whole (as well as make us stronger). By not allowing students to be themselves, we are contributing to their mental health problems which is detrimental to not just them but other students and society at large. Please consider sending a message that we are here to love one another and unite in the acceptance of trans youth. They deserve to belong as themselves in schools and extracurricular activities.

Thank you,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years. I came as a teen from California and could never leave because I felt more at home in Madison than I have ever felt. But lately I've found myself questioning if this is where I can stay. If Wisconsin is where I want my children to go to high school and college? Why would they stay in this place if we pass bills that restrict the rights of others who are doing nothing more than asking to live as their authentic selves?

As you consider your vote today, I'm asking you to think about the children of today and tomorrow who these bills truly affects. What do you have to lose? What do you have to gain?

I personally have loved ones who, in the past few years, have been able to be their authentic selves, to go to school and use the pronouns that reflect who they truly are. Passing this bill would take away their comfort, their safety, their ability to live as who they truly are meant to be. I have gained the honor of knowing Trans youth who make our community a better place.

But, if these bills pass, I have so much to lose. I lose knowing the people I love as they authentically are. I lose seeing the people I love who can live safely and who feel comfortable living their lives in our community, this community, where they were born and raised and want to be able to stay. These bills are nothing more than a way of telling someone they don't belong. That's not the Wisconsin way. That's not who we are. Please consider the people who would truly be affected by these bills and support their rights to be who they are.

Trans youth deserve the right to participate in sports, and to use the pronouns that reflect who they are. Please vote in a way that supports the inclusive community we know and can be proud to be a part of.

Thank you for your support,
Ellen Weismer

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aislinn Hutchinson and I am a concerned resident of the city of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for five years and have called Madison home for all of them. I am a business owner, spouse, and active member of my community. I am also trans. I am testifying on bill AB100 and AB103. I am testifying both about allowing trans youth to participate in sports according to their identified gender as well as their ability to use their chosen name and pronouns in school.

I am testifying about this because I myself just came out as non-binary this year. I am also a former college D1 athlete, and sports were and are my entire life. I recently had to find a new league to play hockey in because all of this hate that is being spread towards trans people is becoming a problem everywhere. My league tried to ban all trans players, including non-binary players. This significantly impacted my mental health as hockey is the place I go to play, have fun with my friends, decompress, and get physical activity. There was absolutely no scientific reason for banning athletes like myself from participating in sport, and the same thing is happening to youth if this bill is passed.

I wanted to share my story because I believe all PEOPLE should have the right and access to sport, as well as to use the pronouns of their choosing. Sports, and feeling safe in a dressing room are so important. This is a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. We are just people, wanting to respectfully be shown respect and honor like any human person deserves. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for it in my community. Madison is a welcoming community for all trans and queer people and I have never felt safer to be myself in a community. Passing these bills will create an environment where others can openly hate and fear monger them when all they want is to be accepted for who they are. Just believe them. How does it affect you? Do you know a trans person? Have you loved a trans person? I do, and I have, and they are the most caring people who know themselves deeply, and just want to exist with the same human rights and decency that cis people get. Please, just leave the trans kids alone.

I wish I had access to language like non-binary or trans when I was a kid this age, I would have known myself a lot better then. It took me 29 years to come out. I have never been happier, or thriving more than I am today. I have never felt safer in sport when others use my pronouns and allow me in their locker rooms. Please don't let youth have to deal with hatred from this young of an age. I barely made it to 29 years old, and a lot of these kids will not survive passing a bill like this. Suicide rates dramatically decrease when we allow kids to be themselves, and to be recognized by others as themselves. My solution is to allow kids to use the pronouns of their choosing, because why does it affect you to respect what someone wants to be called? Let trans kids play sports with their gender, because there is no real difference in athletic ability at these ages, and we all just want to play.

Thank you for taking the time to read my story, and I urge you to think about these kids as people, trying to figure themselves out, instead of as some scary group of people that the media and leaders of this country have decided are bad and wrong. Thank you for your consideration of these matters and solutions, it is very much appreciated.

To the members of the Assembly or Senate Committee on Education,

My name is Sloan Greenheck and I oppose bills AB100 and bill AB103.

All children deserve safe and supportive environments. Encouraging knowledge, learning, and self exploration is the purpose of education. By restricting a child's access to education and acceptance of gender expression, irreparable harm WILL be caused.

I am nonbinary. I am scared. I can only imagine how horrifying it is to live as a child in this political climate. Please do not make children feel less safe.

Thank you.

Representatives,

My name is Ani Miskowski. I am a resident of Milwaukee. While I believe that there is plenty of evidence detailing the harm Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will cause, part of me fears that those points do not matter to you. I fear that hearings like these have become an easily dismissible formality where the physical presence of a committee is meant to placate us. I hope I'm wrong. I cannot force you to open your hearts, and I would not want to. All I have is my hope that you will let yourself hear me.

I was born into a God-fearing family. We went to church every week. We communed with people who shared our faith and our values. But despite all of the faith that my parents claimed to have, they were afraid every day, afraid of making even one misstep, afraid of others, afraid of themselves, afraid of God, and afraid of punishment. That fear destroyed our relationship. I was not brave enough to ask them then, so I ask you now, those of you with open hearts who truly believe trans children are hurting themselves and genuinely want to protect them:

What if you're wrong? What if God's priority isn't the names or pronouns of these children but whether they are accepted and loved? What if trans children are not perverting their bodies but are transcending them, embracing a divine energy inspired by God?

I can't answer for you. I understand it might be scary to grapple with these questions regardless of what faith you may or may not hold. Your mind might conjure memories of shame or even physical punishment, times where you were deemed not masculine or feminine enough. Or perhaps you witnessed others receiving similar treatment and vowed to avoid it. Your instinct might be to defend these corrections, to insist they were acts of love, but you know what it feels like to be loved. Love is incompatible with the rejection of mental and physical autonomy. Do you know how it feels to find joy in who you are only for someone else to insist "You are who I say you are." If you know how that feels, if you remember that confusion and frustration, how can you carry that pain forward? How can you give it to children?

I feel sorry for you. Because I see the joy in these children. I see the love and transformation they bring to their families. Why don't you trust their joy? What messaging have you received that taught you their truth is in opposition to yours?

The only people you are protecting with these laws are yourselves, and, while you might feel like you've done something good (despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary), you are also holding yourself back. You are running away from your cognitive dissonance because you are afraid of what will happen if you're honest. As long as you avoid honesty, you will never know true peace. I do not want you to be trans if you're not trans. I do not want you to change your name unless you'd like to. I want you to have the freedom to celebrate differences in others and in yourself without fear of punishment. I want these children to lead long, happy, and fulfilled lives.

I beg you to use this moment and your power to show trans children love and acceptance. You have the ability to reject these bills and their rhetoric, and, furthermore, you have a moral responsibility to do so. All it takes is one moment to choose to embrace change. Aren't you tired of being afraid?

Compassionately,

Ani

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103. These proposed bills are deeply harmful and would actively contribute to an unsafe and hostile environment for queer and transgender students, teachers, administrators, and parents.

AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection—they are transphobic measures that seek to erase and marginalize transgender youth. Trans students, like all students, deserve to be affirmed, supported, and safe in their schools. Denying them the ability to participate in sports or forcing them to be misgendered undermines their dignity, mental health, and overall well-being. These bills would fuel a climate of discrimination, making schools even more unsafe for queer and trans youth.

I have lived in Wisconsin for over 20 years and I am a full-time therapist. Many of the clients that I support are queer or trans, or have loved ones who are queer/trans. In my work, I see firsthand the destructive psychological and emotional impacts that legislation such as these proposed bills have on queer individuals and the queer community. Particularly under this new administration, trans folks are being targeted, scapegoated and persecuted. Trans people are under attack, and bills like this are nothing more than state-sanctioned discrimination.

Trans people exist. Trans people are not a threat. Trans folks are simply asking for the basic human right to be themselves without fear of persecution.

These proposed bills do nothing but put trans students at greater risk of bullying, isolation, and harm. If the goal of this committee is to protect and support students, then the focus should not be on banning pronouns or excluding children from sports—it should be on addressing the real dangers facing our schools, such as gun violence. Gun violence is the leading cause of death among young people in this country. Instead of wasting precious time and resources targeting one of our most vulnerable student populations, I urge you to prioritize real solutions that will protect all students.

I strongly urge you to reject AB100 and AB103. These bills do not protect students; they only harm them. Schools should be places of learning, growth, and acceptance—not sites of state-sanctioned discrimination.

Sincerely,
Tiffani Amber Sebastian

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

Vote No on AB100. Sports and locker rooms should be available to all students. Sports are an essential foundation for many students' participation in extracurricular activities in public schools. As a high school student at West High School, I played on the soccer team and still have friendships with my teammates today.

You must oppose this bill because it attacks the freedom of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin. It creates an environment where it is ok to sideline kids rather than include them in the sports they love. We ought to do everything we can to support the rights of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin.

A vote yes for these bills is a vote yes to take away the right of all kids to enjoy sports with their friends. Make sure you vote no to protect kids' rights to play sports.

Vote No on AB103. The government has no business getting into our personal lives and telling us how to live our lives. Vote No on AB103 to keep the government out of all our kids' lives and let all kids be themselves.

Vote No on AB100 and AB103!

All the best,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Sarah Forzley, and I am a Madison resident. I've lived here since 2012, and my husband and I settled here to be near his family, just like all his siblings. I say this to emphasize that even while pursuing a masters, a doctorate, and a corporate career, I continue to prioritize family values. Additionally, I am a former instructor at the University of Wisconsin, a former high school teacher, and a former elementary school teacher. Given that I live according to my family values, and that I spent over twenty cumulative years teaching young people and participating in girls' and women's sports myself, I care deeply about safety and equity in school and in sport.

For these reasons, I urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills do not increase safety or equity in schools or sports. Trans girls and trans women do not threaten the success of individual women or of women's sports in general. I have seen this myself as both an athlete and a teacher. Instead, they reveal a fundamental misunderstanding of sex assigned at birth, of the actual threats that girls and women face every day, and of athletic competition. Sex assigned at birth is not a perfect way to identify a person's sex. I have had students with different medical conditions whose sex assigned at birth did not take into account their chromosomal makeup because the doctor simply visually assessed the baby's features. I also have had students who felt that they belonged nowhere because they did not "fit in" with the boys or girls at their school. I would have loved to see those students find belonging, purpose, and friendship through sports. These bills instead teach our students to fear and discriminate against their peers. These bills teach our students that the definition of "girl" or "woman" is ever narrower. These bills threaten to drag us back into a time when the United States was more sexist, when women had even fewer opportunities in sport.

After my master's degree, I taught at a university in Paris and ran for a team there. I was just a run-of-the-mill varsity athlete in college, but in France I quickly climbed the national rankings. Why? Because France has less gender equality than the United States. I know that sometimes, conservative folks fear that liberal folks are not proud of the United States. I can say without hesitation that I am proud of the United States for how far we have come in girls' and women's sports since my mother's time. In France, I faced more sexual and physical harassment, more restrictive expectations for my gender, and more inequality in sport than I face here. Though it meant giving up my excellent ranking in France, I was relieved to return to the competition scene in the United States because, frankly, I love how many women in the United States are faster than I am – women's sports here have thrived under Title IX to the benefit of all, including mediocre athletes like myself. We are carried along in the wave of those who run faster than we do. It is in our interest to compete against as diverse a group of women as possible so as to improve our training and overall times.

Perhaps, if you feel that discussing nonbinary genders is polarizing, you can remember a time in your life when you did not fit in. Remember how uncomfortable that was, how isolating, how sad you felt. Trans students do not choose to be trans; nobody chooses to have a more difficult life in this way. Allowing trans students to participate in sports, allowing trans students to use the bathroom most comfortable for them, tells them that they belong. Nobody would undergo so much social stigma just to cause harm to others. Trans students are not trying to harm anyone, and they certainly don't threaten our sports. Do you know what does threaten girls and women in school and sport? Sexual harassment by male students, teachers, administrators, and clergymen. Bias from adults who do not believe girls or women have what it takes to lift weights, to succeed in STEM, to obtain advanced degrees. Let's focus on real problems instead of an imagined one.

Sincerely,
Sarah Forzley

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Amy Basel and have been a resident of Madison since 1995, with a home now in the 53714 zip code, and I'm writing to oppose the Bill AB100 and AB103. As a person with the same initials (AB) as these bills, I do not want to be even closely associated (no matter how random) with something so horrible. Please vote NO to both Bill AB100 and AB103!

I'm not proud of my state representatives taking the time to even introduce these bills in the year 2025. You all should be spending time fighting back against the takeover we are seeing and cuts to important supports and supporting our education system instead of trying to criminalize gender identity and tell kids that they don't belong. We should be trying to work toward sports teams that are open to all pupils. Why must we continue to separate folks by their gender that people want to maintain is binary when it is not. You should be ashamed of yourself for wasting the time it takes to write and get these before the committee. These bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools. There is not any need to further provide laws against a small and marginalized group of kids. This is blatant discrimination instead of working with kids, schools and parents.

There are so many other things that our schools and kids (pupils) attending them need instead of these hateful and discriminatory Bills. Please start spending your time on those and not trying to vilify trans youth.

I'm not trans, but I know several people who are and I've taken the time to listen and learn from them. There is a specific friend of mine that was born a female and grew up a girl and always was referred to as a tomboy. This friend of mine who is now an adult had qualified to participate in the CrossFit games and has been an athletic trainer and athlete themselves. They even started a fitness company and helped the roller derby league I was a part of with some training. Within the last few years, they have transitioned to using he/they pronouns and getting gender affirming surgery. He identifies as a non-binary trans male and is now living life as their authentic self. This friend of mine recently took themselves out of the CrossFit games and was disappointed to see this organization comply with an executive order based on fear and without any scientific evidence behind it. How can anyone think this is better for all kids, instead of appeasing the instances of a few people who "think" that they were discriminated against.

Ironically, Bill AB100 would not have applied to my friend as a pupil or athlete in school had they decided to transition sooner, since they are a female at birth and therefore would be able to qualify for male sports since the bill just refers to male at birth folks not able to qualify for female sports participation. Doesn't that just scream for a lawsuit of discrimination? Why would you just making it one gender and not include trans folks that identify as male not be able to participate in female sports?

More importantly, I've worked with skaters in a sport, and students in college who have clearly expressed the fact that they have gender identities that are not easily put into binaries of male and female. Whether or not you think that gender exists within that spectrum - the fact remains that people identify along that and are not changing their gender assigned at birth or going by different names or pronouns to win on a female sports team or impersonate anyone. They are trying to live their lives as themselves, and you and I don't need to understand or agree with that to know that it is harmful to force people to put themselves in one group or the other. Sports teams and Schools should be where we are helping kids to build identities, friendships and teamwork skills as well as getting to know one another.

I feel that both these bills AB100 and AB103 would only be creating more fear, hate and discrimination and I strongly urge you to vote NO.

Thank you for your time,

Amy Basel (she/her)

Dear Representatives,

My name is Cedar Worth, and I am a constituent from Middleton, Wisconsin. I am submitting this written testimony in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which are scheduled for discussion in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly designed to ban transgender athletes and restrict name and pronoun changes for transgender youth. These bans, amidst an unprecedented wave of anti-trans legislation across the US, will only serve to alienate and harm transgender children, fostering a climate of fear rather than support.

As your constituent, I urge you to vote against these proposed bills. Transgender people exist and will continue to exist at every age. Enacting these bills would not only harm the transgender people you represent but also the broader transgender community by enabling hate, creating further division, and cultivating a climate of fear.

I ask that you, as representatives in Wisconsin, acknowledge all of the trans people you represent and vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,
Cedar Worth

I am writing to vehemently oppose bills AB100 and AB103. These are bills that attack LGBTQ+ rights, especially for transgender youth. The Wisconsin Legislature has continued to advance bills that target transgender people. LGBTQ people have the right to participate in sports activities, to live in safety, to thrive, to be addressed by the name and pronoun they choose, and treated with dignity. These bills will cause harm to LGBTQ youth.

I ask that you reconsider your support of these bills.

I would like to express my opposition to the Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Every person deserves to use restrooms that match their gender identity, participate on teams that match their gender identity, and particularly feel safe enough to be authentic in their schools by referring to themselves with pronouns that match their gender identity. We have to support and protect our trans kids. They belong just as they are.

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing in opposition to the bills AB100 and AB103, which seek to restrict Athlete's and Children's Transgender rights in Wisconsin.

I am born and raised in Wisconsin for nearly four decades, and this bill will adversely affect our state and communities within in untold ways. To put it plainly, these bills are the Republican party seeking to do legally harm a minority community, for no apparent reason other than the goal of causing harm. To borrow a phrase levied at then Senator McCarthy decades ago, 'Have you no decency?'

Of all the goals you could be focused on at this moment, you are choosing malice and pain towards students over quite literally any other form of support this state currently needs. Workers Rights, equitable tax distribution, equitable tax contributions, caring for the environment, to name but a few goals for the common good. Rather than take on any of that, well, here we are.

I will close by asking what other minority groups you would seek to hide from public view again because you feel irked by their existence? Why can we not just let our kids grow up and thrive?

In Opposition to AB100 and AB103 on March 6, 2025,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 47 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive education free from harassment and discrimination.

I have 4 minor children of my own, all of whom have trans friends. The thing about these friends is they're only referred to as "trans friends" by adults. Kids at school simply call them friends, or teammates, or classmates. Kids in the neighborhood call them by the name they introduced themselves with and aren't bothered by using their friends' preferred pronouns. If our children can accept people just as they are, our government leaders should too. Please oppose these bills.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education -

I am writing to oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years overall. As a child, I attended public school in Stevens Point, and now my children are attending Madison Public Schools. While I am an active Quaker and Board member for the Tenant Resource Center, I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills. Trans children are not a danger to my children, and in fact have improved their educational experiences. Varied gender expression has made more space for my own kids to be who they are, and they know themselves better as they have grown up in an inclusive environment.

As I'm sure you'll hear in the hours of testimony before you, kids need to be able to live as their honest gender expression (including pronouns at school, and full participation in sports), or else face crushing depression and suicidality. The trans youth I have known - community members, friends of my kids - have gone through a period of suicidal ideation before stepping into themselves and living their lives fully. When I have seen these types of bills come before this committee in the past, I get the sense that legislators do not seem to care if these youth live or die. I do. I want them to live. I want Wisconsin law to tell them that they are free to be themselves.

It is astonishing to me that people believe that trans girls in sports endanger other girls. In fact, this is not the case. Because of gender dysmorphia, trans girls are the ones who least want to expose their unaltered bodies to other girls, and often hide or change separately. If this committee wishes to protect girls or youth generally in sports contexts, I suggest: stop asking about kids' genitals. Banning trans youth from any context makes it much more likely that adults will feel compelled to check children's genitals, which is a breathtaking safety risk for all children. In fact, children are much more likely to be sexually assaulted by a coach than by another athlete, trans or no. The NIH has a number of studies that speak to this, but one says, "that 0.5% of adolescents experienced sexual abuse involving a coach," and "When considering all adolescents who experienced sexual abuse in their lifetime (10.2%), it appears that 5.3% of them were victims of sexual abuse by a coach."

In truth, the schools have very little way to verify who is transgendered and who is cisgendered amongst the children that attend our schools, aside from self identification. Legislation such as this has little enforceable impact, and only serves to tell trans youth that they do not belong. I inherently oppose this stance.

If we are to protect both cisgendered and transgendered youth, the clear path forward is to oppose these bills. I ask this committee to show the youth across the state that they are safe from harassment and discrimination, and oppose these bills.

I have many transgender children in my circles, and they are the loveliest human beings. I can assure you that they do not pose a threat to anyone. They are silly and kind, funny and talented, imaginative and smart. They also struggle in similar ways to other kids -- worrying about friends and fitting in, how to achieve success, and make themselves and their parents proud. They are kids, just like any other kid -- just like the kids in your life, even.

Trans kids are struggling to get by, just like the rest of us, and they deserve a fair chance. Please give them that chance and oppose both of these bills.

Targeting children—who are just learning about themselves—is unethical and teaches all children that their community in Wisconsin does not support its children for who they are. Trans and non-binary youth have a very high suicide rate (Four-times increased risk compared to cisgendered youth)—and trans youth of color are even more at risk (upwards of 33% increased risk). We need to do all we can to help all children survive their childhood and thrive—and limiting them from sports and using the correct names/pronouns is only going to hurt them. Using the correct names/pronouns and allowing them to participate in sports that align with their gender identity does not harm anyone and is life-saving for trans and non-binary youth. It is time to stand up and oppose these harmful bills. Please do the right things and save lives!

Regarding AB100 and AB103

My name is Tomissa Freisleben and I am a concerned mother of two and resident of Monona, Wisconsin. I am testifying on the abhorrent legislation in AB100 and AB103 to not allow trans children in the State of Wisconsin to participate in sports or use the pronouns of their preference.

Both of my children will attend public schools in Wisconsin in the coming years and since their birth, they have known, loved, and respected trans members within our community. By disallowing trans children from being called their preferred pronouns or participating in the sport that fits their gender identity will other those children and create an atmosphere that will be harmful for those individuals and create an unsafe environment for learning.

I am compelled to testify on this issue as trans children who are not given support and care within their educational communities are more likely to commit suicide, and as a parent, I cannot allow that to happen to my children, my children's classmates, or any child in Wisconsin.

I implore the Wisconsin State Assembly to vote against both AB 100 and AB 103 for the safety and welfare for Wisconsin students.

Thank you for your consideration on this matter and thank you for reading my testimony.

To the members of the State Assembly Education Committee. My name is Maggie Meador and I reside in Viroqua 54665. I oppose AB 100. I've been a female athlete my entire life including receiving a scholarship to be a member of a division one college sports team. I always welcome the competition and never feel concern or a desire to question my fellow competitor's biological sex. (Not to mention that I regularly win when I compete against people of the opposite biological sex!) My gender non-conforming child has my athletic abilities and competitive nature and this bill will hinder their ability to participate in sports. It breaks my heart to think that my child will not have the same opportunities that I had. How do I explain this to them? All children deserve to play sports and reap the benefits that team athletics provides, without fear of an adult checking their genitalia to make sure they are on the "right" team. The news has already reported this disgusting scenario happening and we cannot allow situations like this in our state of Wisconsin.

I also oppose AB 103. This will affect many children in my local community who deserve the safe space at school to explore their gender identity. This bill will create situations in which children may be outed and will lead to increased bullying and violence. Suicide rates for these targeted children are staggeringly high. Choose to save children's lives and oppose this bill.

My name is Elizabeth Male, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Oregon, WI. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. This kind of legislation does nothing but alienate children and create a climate of fear rather than community.

Trans people of all ages are beloved, contributing members of our families and our communities across the state of Wisconsin. Instead of regressing to the stances and policies of the past, our state must continue Forward. As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against AB 100 and 103.

I am writing today, not to change minds of those who refuse to listen to Doctors and Scientists. I am here for the young boy afraid to share his pronouns or join football. I am here for the teen girl who is terrified to try on a dress and wear it proudly to her prom. I am here for every child who does not receive the unconditional love and protection they deserve. My hope is that one Trans Child or Youth hears the support and love today, and stays on this earth to live safely and celebrate their joy in safety. I am here because love is greater than hate or fear.

To Ron Johnson, I hope the hell and god you believe in are in fact real, and on your judgement day he condemns every single act of hate you have initiated, inflicted or supported in your lifetime. I've generally been a proud resident and Wisconsinite, however I am concerned about some bills targeting the transgender community that, quite frankly, are embarrassing. There are so many issues my fellow Wisconsinites are facing that would be a better use of your time and energy.

I am a teacher and have been an athletic coach, and, again, there are many many issues that need your time and attention in education and athletics, but this is not one of them. As one of your constituents, I urge you to vote against these proposed bills and to remain committed to moving Wisconsin "Forward" and not backwards.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

As a citizen of Wisconsin, a woman, and a mother, I oppose Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns). Transgender youth deserve the same privacy and rights as cisgender youth. There are no grounds for claiming the trans community is a threat from which society needs protection. Bills restricting their activities and denying the use of their chosen names/pronouns are unwarranted, cruel, and unjust. They only cause harm. Do not pass these bills. Stop these attacks on the trans community. Let them live with the dignity and freedom every person deserves.

Hi,

I am a Wisconsin parent of two boys. When I was a kid, I tried desperately to fit in. Sometimes I wanted to be cool, sometimes I just didn't want to get made fun of, and sometimes I just wanted to blend in. I was like a lot of kids.

My parents loved me. They supported me and gave me lots of opportunities. Even with that love, I didn't always feel comfortable telling them everything, at least not at first (like when I knew I was doing poorly in a class at school, when I crashed my car, when I started dating someone new, etc). But, eventually I would share most of these things with them, because I knew they loved me. I just needed time to figure out how I was feeling about it first and how I wanted to bring it up. I think lots of kids go through this.

If we want kids to be open with parents and heed our advice, we can't legislate the procedures by which these uncomfortable topics must be shared. As a parent, being patient often allows me to hear the most honest story from my own kids and creates a space where they are most open to my opinions.

I think AB100 and AB103 will ultimately make these difficult situations harder for parents to navigate. Kids will be less likely to share how they are feeling with their parents and will be less likely to hear and follow their parents' wisdom.

Please support Wisconsin families and Wisconsin parents and Vote NO.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a Wisconsin resident and mother of two, I am strongly opposed to AB 100 and AB 103. These bills are not about fairness or good governance—they are political attempts to control and shame children.

AB 100 targets transgender youth by banning them from participating in school sports in a way that aligns with their identity. It isolates kids, strips them of opportunities for belonging, and increases the risk of mental health struggles. No child should be told they don't belong simply because of who they are.

AB 103 puts students at risk by forcing schools to disclose personal information about a child's gender identity—regardless of whether it places them in danger at home. This kind of forced outing has real-world consequences, potentially pushing children into unsafe environments and cutting them off from support systems they trust.

Putting aside the ethical implications, Wisconsin legislators should be focused on ensuring that all children feel safe, supported, and able to thrive in school—rather than imposing uniform policies that undermine local educators and administrators, who are best equipped to address the unique needs of their students and communities.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

I am Rev. Dr. Julia Burkey of Madison, Wisconsin and I oppose AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns). My Christian values teach me that youth and children having the support to flourish in body and spirit is essential for a life well lived. Banning trans children from K-12 sports is death-dealing discrimination and I ask that you prayerfully consider pushing against this moment of discrimination and supporting trans youth in playing sports, as well as using proper pronouns and names to reflect the truth of each individual.

Targeting Trans kids is the awful fad of the moment- a hateful way of targeting such a small population of vulnerable young people who are just trying to live their lives. From a faith based perspective, every human being, no matter their gender (race, ethnicity, economic status, sexuality) deserves fairness and an opportunity to thrive. Every human being is made in the image of God- even and especially trans youth. Even if you don't agree with their choices, it is still our duty in Wisconsin to create opportunities for all people to thrive. Executive orders are not laws and the banning trans kids from playing sports is a very sad and unfair thing to do. I prayerfully ask that you reconsider your choice and use this moment to go against the grain to support all people, including trans kids.

Dear Members of the Wisconsin Assembly,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed anti-transgender legislation AB100/AB103 currently under consideration in Wisconsin. As a former school social worker who served our youth, I have witnessed firsthand the challenges and struggles that transgender and non-binary students face in our schools and communities.

The impact of this legislation on the lives of LGBTQ+ youth in Wisconsin cannot be overstated. In my role, I have seen how critical it is for students to feel accepted and supported in their identities. Anti-trans legislation sends a damaging message that these students are not valued and that their experiences are invalid. This can lead to increased feelings of isolation, anxiety, and depression among young people who are already vulnerable and disproportionately affected by mental health issues.

Moreover, restricting access to necessary supports, such as gender-affirming healthcare and inclusive educational environments, threatens not only the well-being of transgender youth but also their academic success. When students do not feel safe or accepted at school, their ability to learn and thrive is significantly compromised. It has been well-documented that supportive environments lead to better mental health outcomes, higher academic achievement, and overall improved quality of life for LGBTQ+ youth.

Legislation that seeks to undermine the rights of transgender individuals does not reflect the values of inclusivity and respect that we should uphold as a society. Instead of further marginalizing these young people, I urge you to consider policies that promote understanding, acceptance, and equality.

As a committed advocate for the well-being of all students, I implore you to reject any anti-trans legislation and to support measures that foster a safe and supportive environment for every child in Wisconsin, regardless of their gender identity.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter. I hope you will stand with the youth of our state and support their right to exist authentically and with dignity.

To the members of the Senate Committee on March 6th 10am,

I implore you to not pass bills AB100 and AB103. I oppose both of these bills as this will impact students and their sense of self.

Regarding bill AB103, Students allowing to choose their pronouns and preferred name is no different than allowing students with formal names going by a nickname. A chosen name and/or pronouns allows students to have a better sense of self and identity in the classroom. This should not be prohibitive to what the parents allow. Parents may provide a given name, a birth name, but nicknames and other names come organically. School is hard enough as it is, why would you make a child go by their birth name if they don't want to?

Regarding bill AB100, let the students play! Trans women and girls hinder no other cis women and girls from playing a sport. When I went to Oak Creek High School, I played tennis. The only thing I cared about at that time was enjoying playing the game and was competitive about it. I would have played with anyone who would have played with me. Many school sports are team sports. Let's foster community and let trans women and girls play sports if they do choose. Let's let students play for the love of the game.

Greetings,

I would like to voice my opposition to two anti-trans bills here in Wisconsin. The bills are AB100 and AB103.

Several years ago, I started to notice that people were using their preferred pronouns. As someone born female who presents as a stereotypical female, I did not understand it. I thought it was obvious that I would be a she or a her. But then I educated myself. I started to understand that gender wasn't always about how you look on the outside, but how you feel about yourself on the inside.

I also educated myself on why I should share my preferred pronouns with others. It means that I'm a safe person who respects others. It says to someone, "I support who you are and you matter as a human being." by sharing that I prefer she/her as my pronouns.

Research shows that LGBTQ+ youth are at much higher risk of suicide and self-harm than heterosexual youth, and that is particularly true for trans kids. We should be doing all that we can to make them feel loved and safe. Kids just want to be accepted by those around them — this includes trans kids.

Any bill designed to single them out creates more harm for these kids and puts them in danger. Why are we creating bills that only serve to harm vulnerable people when we could be using that energy to create something that helps others?

Please register my opposition to these anti-trans bills.

I am a retired teacher, commenting on Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. It is a basic human right to be able to participate in sports, and it is a basic human courtesy to call people by the name they choose to be called. I find it shameful that adults would pass bills to deny these rights and courtesies to trans youth for their own political gain. Please don't do that!

To the members of the assembly,

I urge you to oppose bill AB100/ AB103. By restricting trans youth from participating in sports and using chosen pronouns in schools you are only helping further discrimination against trans people. This bill is harmful, degrading, and unethical. As a trans wisconsinite myself, I need you to understand that if this bill passes we come that much closer to fascism, genocide, and suffering on a global scale. These are children. They deserve to have a safe place to grow and be themselves. They deserve to play sports with their friends. Trans kids deserve to become trans adults. I have been a resident of Wisconsin for 10 years now and I love this state. I love our Midwestern hospitality and friendly natures. I want this state to stay vibrant, safe, and welcoming for everyone. Trans people most of all. Leave the kids alone. Do not comply in advance to the horrid decrees Trump is trying to force. Protect the people that live here - all of us. You have the choice of being on the right side of history. Protect trans kids. Protect trans adults. We deserve so much better.

My name is Jade Potter, of Madison, WI 53704, and I oppose both bills AB100 and AB103. Wisconsin students all deserve to participate, and are all deserving of respect of their personhood. I am grateful that the community I have lived in for 20 years (some of those years as a student) has respected mine as a trans person.

Thank you.

To the Assembly Committee on Education, my name is Susan Zimbric and I live in the Village of Rib Mountain. I am writing to express my opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. As a mother of 2 daughters, a xc skier and fan of soccer and family physician, I am well aware of the myriad benefits available to participants in organized youth sports. If these bills were to pass there is a high likelihood that girls would most often be the ones that would lose the opportunity to play.

To the Members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

I am writing in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. I am a nurse practitioner and certified nurse-midwife and have worked with many transgender patients and provided education and training to staff on transgender healthcare throughout my career. Additionally, I count a number of transgender individuals as dear friends.

It is well established among major medical organizations that gender affirming care is life saving care. Often one of the first steps a transgender individual takes towards gender affirmation is using pronouns and/or a name that aligns with their gender. Perhaps you have never known a transgender individual, perhaps you have never seen the joy and relief when their most basic request about their bodily autonomy is respected and honored. Perhaps also, you have never seen the harm it can do to be denied this respect. I ask you to consider how it would feel for you to be called by a name or pronoun that does not align with your personal sense of who you are - it is no different for transgender folks.

In a perfect world all transgender youth would find love and support from their parents, sadly this is not the world we live in and by requiring educators to deny the identity of their students without explicit parental consent, this bill creates an unnecessary barrier to teacher student trust, student learning and has the potential to cause even greater harm. School may be the only safe place for a student to be out as transgender. Are you aware that transgender youth have higher rates of suicidality than their cisgender peers? Are you also aware that this difference in rates drops dramatically when they are able to live in alignment with their gender?

For all of the reasons listed above I also oppose the restriction of transgender youth from participating in sports that align with their gender. Passing a bill to ban a very small percentage of students from enjoying the experience and opportunities that school sports provide seems unnecessarily cruel. Furthermore, determining the students eligibility for sports based upon "biological sex" bases the law on the false premise that biological sex is easily defined and falls into a binary.

It is my contention that our state legislature could be spending their valuable time and energy addressing issues that support and strengthen the youth of Wisconsin, rather than singling out and stigmatizing a small, already marginalized subset with these bills.

I urge you to side with respect, with bodily autonomy, with safety, and with joy by opposing the passage of Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

Thank You,
Cate Guggino

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education and proposed bills AB100 and AB103

March 5th, 2025

My name is Molly Vande Slunt and I'm a concerned resident of Wisconsin.

I am testifying against the proposed bills limiting children's identity and participation in school and sports. I'm not a parent myself, but I care deeply for the children within my family and social circles and in general.

These bills are not only a waste of the legislature's time, but extremely harmful to children and their development. There are no proven risks of letting children who identify as trans or gender nonconforming playing in sports that don't match their assigned gender at birth, nor letting them have control over their name and pronouns in a school setting. There are however, plenty of documented risks in preventing these children from living their authentic lives. Roughly 1% of children in the state identify as transgender or gender nonconforming, while rates of suicide are exponential among trans youth with roughly 44% seriously considering and/or attempting suicide.

To claim that transgender youth pose a serious risk to other children is an absolute farce, proven within the language of the bills themselves. For example AB100 only references children assigned male at birth being prohibited from competing with girls or entering a girls locker room. There's no mention of children assigned female at birth entering male sports or locker rooms and no acknowledgement of gender nonconformity or nonbinary children. These bills are written with extreme ignorance, bigotry, and lack of understanding of the actual children it targets.

These bills are ambiguous and are unenforceable. They open up children, whether cis or trans to harassment from adults and put an undue strain on already limited teacher and administrative resources. Instead of this faux moral outrage, I would prefer the law makers, whose salary is funded by my tax dollars, focus on real proven issues facing school children. Roughly 16% of our children face food insecurity which is proven to impact development. 59% of high school students in Wisconsin report facing at least one major mental health challenge over a 12 month period, with another 18% seriously considering suicide. Wisconsin has a huge teacher retention problem, with 4 out of 10 first year teachers leaving the state or profession altogether within 6 years. Quality teachers and teacher/student ratios are another proven metric contributing to the health and well-being of our children. Wisconsin school children face many challenges. Their transgender friends and peers are not one of them.

Thank you for your time and your consideration.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am submitting my testimony today as a Milwaukee resident and constituent of Wisconsin. I have lived here for 31 years of my life and during this time, I have been proud to recognize our great state as a safe and affirming place for many queer and transgender individuals to live. I also work in both research ethics and give much of my free time advocating for women's reproductive rights. I am submitting my written testimony against Assembly Bills 100 & 103 that was proposed during the Assembly Committee Meeting on March 6th.

I strongly oppose both AB 100 & 103 that seek to limit trans girls from school sports and require adult "permission" to use different names and pronouns within the school setting, respectively.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your non-transgender constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I stand in solidarity with these members of my community and vehemently oppose these bills that are meant to deny their rights as human beings. I have known many kind, gracious, and generous trans individuals in my lifetime and consider them friends, my family, and my chosen family. They have been there for me through some of the most painful moments of my life, and it would behoove me to not stand for them now as they have for me in the past.

Many of these bills have been submitted to the courts under the guise of "protecting women and girls", AB 100 is no exception. I do not, nor have ever, felt at risk due to the presence of a transgender individual in any restroom, locker room, public space, or sports team. If men, or any individual who wishes to harm students, will do so as they have historically: as themselves and because they believe they have the right to violate someone else's privacy and autonomy. Trans girls (who these bills unjustly target) are not the problem, adult predators concerned about the supposed genitalia of a child are.

These are all the same fear mongering tactics utilized in the early aughts regarding gay and lesbian access to locker rooms and bathrooms. We've done this before, do we really need to do this moral panic again? If we give an inch regarding transgender children, national movements to limit gender affirming care, marriage rights, adoption, and even public life will be made. This will affect not just trans people but LGBTQ+ community as a whole and we will be systematically legislated out of existence under the guise of "protecting women".

If you so desperately want to protect women, propose stronger sentences for sexual assault and rape. If you want to protect women, promote complete and scientifically-based sexual education. If you want to protect women, do more to protect access to affordable healthcare for mothers and programs like WIC and SNAP programs that keep them fed. If you want to protect women, advocate for comprehensive, scientific reproductive healthcare and research- including access to abortion.

If you want to protect women, allow trans girls the safety and opportunity to become trans women.

AB 103 seeks to limit trans girls and children from making autonomous decisions about themselves and their identity and the most crucial time of their development. Legislation such as this will put more children at risk from abuse at home and exacerbate worse mental health outcomes, including suicide. A sense of belonging, that can be achieved by simple expressions of compassion like utilizing chosen names and pronouns, is one of the largest protective factors against trans youth suicide. Students deserve to learn in a place where they feel safe, accepted, heard, and seen for who they are and who they will become. Instead, these laws seek to further alienate them and legislate them out of existence.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist despite these efforts. Nothing will erase the beautiful variation of the human experience, especially that of trans people. To enact these bills is to enact violence on trans people. As representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Grace Robinson

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill on restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns. I have lived in Wisconsin for thirteen years and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I strongly oppose these bills as trans children and youth, like all youth, have the right to a safe and inclusive education and learning space, free from harassment and discrimination.

I have personally witnessed the positive growth and changes in my best friend's child, who two and a half years ago advised they identify as non-binary with the pronouns they/ them. This child, within their own merit and direction, found their authentic self through expressing their preferred identifying pronouns. This child is fortunate enough to have the unwavering support of their parents and community. This child has blossomed into a confident individual filled with creativity, empathy, and love. All this child, and all non-binary/ transgender children and youth, deserve is the freedom and right to live as their authentic selves. Not all children and youth have this level of support, and it is bills such as AB100 and AB103 that stifle growth and the opportunity to learn and support this unique and beautiful community.

These bills are drafted from a place of fear and lack of education... The facts and statistics do not align with the gross mistruths being shared by the current administration. By implementing bills such as AB100 and AB103, (we) are opening the door for targeted discrimination, harassment, and the inequitable opportunity to exist in what should be a safe space as a child/ youth: educational facilities and community spaces.

My name is Rufus Jupiter, and I am a resident of Vernon County in Wisconsin. I was born in Wisconsin and have lived here for 35 years, in both urban and rural locales. I am writing you today in opposition of Bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a 43 year old, nonbinary transmasculine person. I identify neither as male nor as female, and I use they/them pronouns since that is the language that feels comfortable to me. As a young person growing up in the 1980s and 1990s, there was not widespread language to describe people whose gender was other than binary male or female. There were no visible, out LGBTQ+ individuals in my life and few in the public eye who I could look to for guidance. I lived a childhood feeling no true sense of who I was as a person (although I was told by others who I was all the time). By the time I was an adult, I was diagnosed with severe anxiety and depression; I felt lost and worthless, unseen, unknown to anyone, even myself.

It took until my mid- 30s for language to appear in the mainstream dialogue that accurately mirrored who I was. As transgender people and people on the gender spectrum became more visible in the public eye, I began to recognize myself. My anxiety and depression fell away as I finally began to understand and claim my identity.

Today, while visibility of LGBTQ+ folks has expanded greatly, we face a future of uncertainty and fear. How is it, in this country where individual liberties are a supposed right of all citizens, that members of my community still fight for the privilege of being accepted for who we are? AB100 and AB103 are deplorable bills that target a tiny, very vulnerable population of youth. These are bills that directly tell the youth in question that who they are, deep down in their core being, is fundamentally wrong. These are bills, made by grown adults, that purposefully and loudly shame, invalidate, and ridicule children. AB100 specifically singles out transgender youth (who likely are already misunderstood or bullied by peers) and prevents them from participating in healthy extracurricular activities on teams that match their true sense of self. AB103 encourages the shaming and outing of children in school, a setting that should be safe for all children. Research consistently shows a disproportionately high rate of suicide risk for queer and transgender youth. How will these cruel bills be reflected in those numbers, if they happen to move forward?

I am writing to implore you to vote NO on Bills AB100 and AB103. If passed, these bills will further anti- trans, anti- LGBTQ+ sentiment in this country. As someone who has lived a life that society has deemed again and again to be devoid of worth (until I decide to "be" someone I am not), I can tell you that every piece of legislation that advances these restrictive views will cost lives. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

As grown adults, it is our responsibility to protect children by seeing them and caring for them as they are, as they truly know themselves to be, and for standing up for those brave children who are just trying to authentically express themselves in a society that tells them they shouldn't exist.

Sincerely,
Rufus Jupiter

I am writing to ask you to vote no on Assembly Bill 100. There are many options for meeting the needs of student athletes. I ask you to respectfully let each school district determine how those individual needs will be met within their own district and community. Let local school boards exercise discretion and do their jobs. It is not necessary for the State of Wisconsin to weigh in on this. Better that you look at ensuring food for hungry children than take time and space on this issue.

I am also asking you to unequivocally reject Assembly Bill 103 on the use of personal pronouns and names. You waste the precious time of school personnel and interfere with family and individual preferences by creating an unnecessary bill. School children have had nicknames since the creation of the first public school in America. A State bill is an unnecessary intrusion. Again, let local school boards and administrators do their jobs and be responsive to parents and community.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aleeh Schwoerer and I am a resident of Madison, WI 53704.

I am writing today to ask you to oppose Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

These bills directly harm trans students who are trying to do what any other child wants to do: be themselves, express themselves, and participate in sports.

Schools should not be a place where trans children are targeted because of their identity. It should be a place where they get to craft their identity just as any of their peers do.

These bills do not erase the identities of these students. It ostracizes them and prevents them from fully participating in what the school system is supposed to offer every student. Additionally, they are based in false information and myths about trans individuals.

Oppose these bills and protect trans students in Wisconsin.

Thank you,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

I'm writing to express my opposition to AB100 and AB103 and to any bill that would prohibit people from participating in sports consistent with their gender identity, or any bill that would prohibit trans students from using the name and pronouns they identify with in schools.

As a high school teacher for 26 years, I have seen firsthand how transgender youth can flourish when they are able to embrace their full identity, as well as the damage done when youth are shamed for being themselves. Anyone interested in student well-being would oppose bills that target transgender youth for persecution.

AB100 and AB103 violate the right to privacy and the right to bodily autonomy, they are damaging to youth mental health, and I urge you to oppose them both.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive and caring education free from harassment and discrimination.

Research supports the importance of respecting the identity of children and youth and treating them with dignity. Our state has concerning levels of mental health challenges, which passing these bills would only worsen. Please invest in programs and policies that can support youth well-being instead of these bills that would take us in the wrong direction.

The discriminatory practices put forth in these bills ultimately will harm all of our children by teaching them to practice prejudice. Please vote 'no' on AB100 and AB103 to show ALL our community members they matter.

All my students, and all Wisconsin youth, deserve to be called what they want to be called. My trans students simply want to be themselves, and I know both from personal experience with students and from research, that introducing these bills causes psychological harm and increases risk of self-harm and suicidal ideation. Targeting vulnerable students does nothing to make our state better. I would urge you to use your time and political power to instead properly fund our schools rather than taking actions that will explicitly harm students.

Thank you for your consideration.

To the State of Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

I oppose the proposed bills assembly bills 100 and 103 regarding athletic sports and the sex of participants and changing a pupil's legal name and pronouns. I personally know a transgender girl who is just now entering the Madison public school system and it saddens me to know that the authors of these bills seem to deny her very existence and attempt to limit her future ability to participate in essential activities like school sports and use her preferred pronouns.

Kids learn a lot of important life lessons in sports: leadership, confidence, self-respect, advocacy and what it means to be part of a team. When we tell transgender girls that they can't play girls' sports—or transgender boys that they can't play boys' sports—they miss out on this important childhood experience and all the lessons it teaches.

It can be hard to understand what it means to be transgender, especially if you've never met a transgender person. And it's common to have questions at first. But we can all agree that transgender kids should be treated with dignity and respect, just like everyone else. Transgender athletes have for many years been beneficial parts of teams throughout Wisconsin.

Transgender and nonbinary youth athletes play sports for the exact same reasons as other students their age: Staying healthy, being part of a team, and fostering friendships—all lifelong benefits of playing a sport.

There is no scientific root in the assertion that individuals should be referred to by pronouns tied to their biological sex. The research predominately shows that denying the a child's self-identified gender has negative outcomes later in life, including a higher risk of suicide. Intersex people, despite clearly not conforming, biologically, to either binary sex, are not accounted for by these pronouns. Legally defining gendered pronouns as being tied to biological sex, then, since not based in science, must be based in arbitrary values. I do not believe these are the values of community, and I believe are informed by the fringe religious beliefs of a vocal minority, which have no place in our laws and schools.

Dear Committee,

I write to voice firm opposition to Assembly Bill 100, and Assembly Bill 103, which I understand will be discussed in hearing on 6 March 2025 at the Wisconsin State Capitol.

Fundamentally, these bills reduce the human experience to one's sex determined at birth, as if we have no capacity to experience the world and grow into individuals thereafter.

Denying people the agency to live their truth - be it using the name they want to be called, or the gender they embody - flies in the face of the fundamental unalienable right to Life Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness described in the Preamble of the Declaration of Independence. Moreover, composing and debating over these bills sends a hateful and cruel message to a targeted group of people, at a vulnerable age, with potentially deadly consequences.

Further, these bills place an unfair burden - to police a student's birth certificate, body and identity - on educators and administrators. Surely this is NOT a good use of educators' time and energy.

I hope that compassion for Wisconsin children and educators will prevail in your discussions tomorrow.

My name is Catherine Maxwell. I am a resident of Amherst WI (54406) and the concerned mother of four Wisconsin students, one of whom is a member of the LGBTQ community. While I am unable to attend this hearing in person, I want to express that I strongly oppose AB100 and AB103, which unfairly target transgender students in Wisconsin. Trans youth make up a small fraction of the student population, yet these bills single them out for exclusion and discrimination. Every student deserves to feel safe, respected, and included at school. Denying trans students the ability to participate in sports and be addressed by their preferred name and pronouns does nothing to solve real issues in education—it only creates more harm. Schools should be a place of learning and growth, not political attacks on vulnerable kids. I urge legislators to reject these harmful bills and support policies that foster acceptance and equality for all students.

Please reject AB100 and AB103 and focus on policies that truly support Wisconsin students by improving educational outcomes and creating a more inclusive learning environment.

Respectfully,

My name is Brendan Miller. I live in Kenosha WI, 53142, and I oppose bills AB100 and AB103.

I am a transgender man, 32 years old, and blessed to have made it this far. I've lived in Wisconsin my whole life, and in the rural town of Clinton, WI where I grew up, I'd never heard of transgender people and simply thought I was broken. I went to therapy and inpatient hospitals for my crippling anxiety and depression, not understanding why I felt the way I did. Eventually I attempted to take my own life. I am now out as a transgender man and I am happy and at peace at last. I know in my heart that if I had the language that kids today have, and was accepted for who I was back then with the support of my teachers and classmates, I wouldn't have felt so hopeless and alone. By taking this support and these safe spaces to have fun with their friends from these kids, you are effectively isolating them, especially if school is their only means of finding that support. The suicide rate in trans youth is so high because of these kinds of bills that you are pushing. Taking away our autonomy and safety won't make us go away. We have always existed and will continue to exist. I simply hope we can protect our youth from going through this alone without support, trans lives matter and their loss is a tragedy we should all want to prevent.

Thank you for your time,
Brendan Miller

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

I am Daniel Michael from Mount Horeb, zip code 53572, and I oppose bills AB 103 and AB 100.

For AB 103, giving parents or guardians power to prevent their children from using their desired name and pronouns at school is putting salt in the wound. While it may seem a reasonable bill on paper, these children are not always safe in their homes. This bill would extend the control of transphobic parents and guardians beyond the home, robbing these children of the freedom of being themselves.

For AB 100, this bill is massively unfair and discriminatory to both transgender and cisgender athletes. Trans athletes are simply trying to gain the same sense of belonging as their cisgender peers. This bill alienates them from that belonging in numerous ways, including spiteful reports from their own peers. It would also create privacy concerns for cisgender people by requiring invasive questions and body inspection for all athletes.

My name is Susie Seidelman, and I am writing from Shorewood, Wisconsin 53211. I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. I have called Wisconsin my home for all of my 44 years, and as someone who cares deeply about the well-being of all Wisconsinites, I cannot stand by while legislation threatens the health, safety, and dignity of transgender and gender non-conforming members of our community.

I believe every person deserves respect and the opportunity to live an authentic life. These bills would harm transgender youth by denying them the basic right to participate in school sports, use locker rooms that align with their gender, and have their chosen names and pronouns recognized in educational settings. As a result, these students would be singled out, stigmatized, and exposed to increased discrimination.

On a personal level, I have witnessed how affirming my transgender family member's identity transforms their confidence and sense of belonging. Supporting young people's ability to live as their authentic selves not only fosters a safer environment for them but creates a more inclusive, understanding community for everyone. Denying them these rights sends the message that they do not deserve the same opportunities as their peers—which is simply not true and runs counter to our shared Wisconsin values.

Our state should be a place where fairness and equality guide our policies. According to numerous studies, transgender people, especially youth, already face disproportionately high rates of bullying, depression, and self-harm. Legislation like AB 100 and AB 103 would only exacerbate those challenges. When schools and communities support transgender students, we see higher graduation rates and improved mental health outcomes, benefiting all of us in the long term.

I ask you to reject AB 100 and AB 103. Let's ensure our state continues to move toward greater acceptance, respecting the fundamental rights and human dignity of all Wisconsinites. I urge you to oppose these bills and stand with every community member in Wisconsin—especially our transgender youth—who deserves safety, respect, and opportunity.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Susie Seidelman, Shorewood, WI 53211, Opposing AB 100 and AB 103

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Brittney Koerner-Wrench, and I am a resident of Brown County in Green Bay, WI. I've lived in Wisconsin since 2003 and have been an advocate for, as well as a part of, the LGBTQ minority for as long as I can remember. Even growing up in a small town I knew the importance of living as your most authentic self and helping to support others to do so as well. I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills AB100 and AB103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because children of any minority, background, and gender identity have the right to be themselves without the risk of judgement and harassment. These bills risk these children not being able to have the same opportunities as any other child gets to have in their day to day school experience all due to simply expressing themselves in a different way. The way someone expresses their gender identity does not and will never be a threat to anyone. The only threat is when we take away that freedom and suppress people's rights simply for someone else's "comfort".

AB100

Sports should be a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for such hatred in my community.

AB103

This bill takes the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are. Their identity is not a threat to anyone and never will be.

I hope you will support our children of all gender orientations and let them have the right to express their inner selves the way that brings the most comfort to themselves, not for others who it will have no effect on at the end of the day.

Sincerely,
Brittney Koerner-Wrench

My name is Jennifer Smith, resident of Madison Wisconsin (53714). I'm writing in opposition of bills AB 100 and AB103. These bills are anti trans discrimination with no scientific underpinning and carry the potential for harmful and possibly fatal consequences.

First, trans athletes in sports. Believing and perpetuating myths and misconceptions about trans athletes is harmful. Denying trans people the right to participate is discrimination and it doesn't just hurt trans people, it hurts all of us, including cis women.

Second, forcibly out transgender students could threaten their well-being, and we already know that LGBTQ+ young people are not inherently prone to suicide risk because of their sexual orientation or gender identity but rather placed at higher risk because of how they are mistreated and stigmatized in society.

Suicide is the second leading cause of death among young people aged 10 to 14, and the third leading cause of death among 15-24 year olds (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2022). Lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and questioning (LGBTQ+) young people are at significantly increased risk.

LGBTQ+ young people are more than four times as likely to attempt suicide than their peers (Johns et al., 2019; Johns et al., 2020).

The Trevor Project estimates that more than 1.8 million LGBTQ+ young people (ages 13-24) seriously consider suicide each year in the U.S. — and at least one attempts suicide every 45 seconds. (<https://www.thetrevorproject.org/resources/article/facts-about-lgbtq-youth-suicide/>)

Please vote no on these discriminatory and harmful bills.

I am writing to express my opposition to Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Please file my comments in the records for both hearings.

I am asking that in the best interest of youth in Wisconsin that you oppose these bills. As a former athlete (and member of my high school Athletic Hall of Fame), I know what an important role sports can be for youth. To be restrictive in accepting students is closeminded. ALL students need the opportunity to play, and this includes transgender students. Allow these children to play and use locker rooms that align with their gender. Trust their parents and current medical professionals. All children need to be accepted and encouraged to compete.

Further, to not allow students to use their preferred name is reprehensible. All members of society have the right to be called what they wish, and to take this away from students within the context of their education is nothing short of cruel. It is a way to close the door on students, not allowing them to be their full selves.

If you want children to thrive in Wisconsin, please do not pass AB 100 or AB 103.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 39 years, all my life. I participated in sports through my entire K-12 education, as well as supported them while attending UW-Whitewater, was a teacher in Madison for ages pre-K through 8th grade for 8 years. Now I support women and Marginalized gendered entrepreneurs by co-founding and leading a state-wide organization called Doyenne. Today, I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen and not on behalf of Doyenne.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, equal, inclusive, and caring education free from harassment and discrimination.

The continued attack on trans youth, and all from the LGBTQIA+ community, is deplorable. We have heard testimony from NCAA leadership, and public records that show these attacks target a very small percentage of the actual population and have almost zero confirmed cases where these items are in fact problems happening within our schools.

We know that the majority of Americans support LGBTQIA+ rights, so why are you continuing to go against constituents beliefs and wishes?

We also know that LGBTQIA+, especially Trans youth, have the highest suicide rates of any population. Are these bills worth even one child taking their own life when we know the results of passing the bills will affect less than 1% of the population?

I ask you to reconsider. I ask for you to do the humane and right thing of opposing these bills.

Everyone deserves to participate in sports and be themselves at school, but these pieces of legislation would prevent trans youth from doing so on the basis of their gender. Our Constitution clearly states that we are all equals yet before us we see legislation purports otherwise.

Even if these bills don't become law, their introduction alone has proven harmful. A 2022 survey found that 85% of trans and nonbinary youth report that facing ongoing political attacks has been detrimental to their mental health, according to the Trevor Project. The effect does not end with just the youth in our state either. This continual stream of bills against the trans community invalidates the experience of state residents. In any other context the words and actions of the authors of these bills would be considered bullying and potentially harassment as we as a community have consistently asked you to stop. Asked you to treat us with respect. Asked you to have compassion from those different from you.

So I am writing to ask you to please stop targeting the trans community with bills that restrict the rights of people in this state.

I request that bills Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns) not be permitted to move forward in the process.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Margaret Schnell, I am a Wisconsin constituent and voter, and I live in Madison. I am submitting written testimony against Assembly bills 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on 3/6.

AB 100 AND 103 are, frankly, a low and cowardly attempt to bully children in order to score political points. These bills would subject vulnerable trans kids to alienation and create a climate of fear that would harm all children. All kids deserve a sense of belonging, within their school, their community, and on a team playing sports, if they so choose.

As one of your constituents, I implore you in the strongest possible terms to vote against both these bills. I played girls sports for a decade, from age 8 to 18. If you've ever loved to play, or even loved to watch sports, you know that what truly matters is the people. The comradery of a team, knowing people you wouldn't otherwise get to, working toward a shared goal, learning perseverance and how handle both defeat and victory - all kids deserve these opportunities.

As your constituent and your neighbor I ask you to vote against these despicable bills.

Sincerely,
Margaret Schnell

Hello,

My name is Erin Schimmel and I am a school social worker for the Milwaukee Public School District. I have lived in Wisconsin my whole life and worked my whole career in Milwaukee. I am writing today in opposition of AB100 and AB103.

Firstly, to those who continue to bombard and attack transgender and LGBTQ+ youth and adults, I would like to ask, how dare you? This is a minuscule population of people in this county who want to do nothing but exist as they are. They are not indoctrinating children. They are not forcing children to be transgender or gay. They are people simply wanting to exist, and same as you and me.

The number of students I have worked with in my career who don't go by their full, government name, and are not LGBTQ+, is substantial. So why should we look at transgender kids any differently? As a school social worker, and educator, and an advocate for my students, my mission is to ensure my student feel safe and supported to be themselves at school. Education is power and is a right to all people. In order to learn, and grow into strong, functioning members of society, students must feel safe at school, and this starts with simply being called the name they want to be called. Being transgender is not something new and has in fact existed in history for millennia. Why now this focus? It's shameful.

The microscope that has been placed on this minuscule community in the United States needs to stop. There are significant bigger issues that need to be addressed over focusing on something like allowing kids to play sports and allowing kids to be called the name they want to be called. It's time to take the focus on these kids and turn the attention to solving bigger issues in Wisconsin, such as record-high inflation, sky-rocketing housing prices, and access to health care for all Wisconsinites.

Let kids be kids. If they are not your kids, kindly butt out. It is none of your business, and frankly out of control. It's time to focus on bigger issues.

Thank you,
Erin Schimmel

Dear Assembly Committee Members,

My name is Katherine Hinson. I live in Washburn Wisconsin and have resided in this community for 24 years.

I am writing as a citizen of this country, a Wisconsin resident, a community member, a parent and an educator.

I am apposed to the passage of AB100 and AB103.

It is important and necessary for all humans to be seen, heard and believed for who they truly are. When you limit people's ability to be themselves you are taking away basic rights. Taking away these rights from youth is unnecessary, unkind and harmful.

It does not harm you or anyone for a person to use a name or gender marker that they personally know to be their own. It may make you a bit uncomfortable but it does not harm you. Please try to imagine the discomfort and pain and harm that is associated with being denied the truth of who you are and what you are called. Can you imagine being mis gendered and called by a name that has a negative connotation throughout your work day? That is what will happen to some students throughout their school day if you pass AB103.

If you truly want to protect youth then you will not pass AB100 or AB103.

Thank You,
Katherine Hinson

I am writing in strong dissent to assembly bills 100 and 103 and in strong support of our Wisconsin youth, ALL of them.

As a middle and high school teacher of forty years as well as a parent of two and grandparent of four, I have seen firsthand the importance of acceptance of youth at their most vulnerable ages and giving them opportunities to be their authentic selves.

The bills proposed would further alienate our transgender students when and where they are most vulnerable - in their teen years at school, which, for some, is their most safe place.

All students are vulnerable, but our LGBTQ youth are, by far, the most vulnerable of them all, and these bills would create a school environment that would make them more susceptible to bullying and singling them out further as they try to find their way.

Here's a suggestion - why don't we find out what our young people think? My experience with students taught me that they were much further along in accepting their classmates and their differences than the much older adults in a position to be creating laws about lives they don't understand.

VOTE NO! There are lives that depend on it.

To the members of the Committee on Education:

My name is Kaelee Heideman and I am an elementary school counselor and 2023 Wisconsin State Teacher of the Year in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, zip code 54904. Although I am unable to attend the hearing in person, I am writing to respectfully submit the following testimony in opposition of Assembly Bills 100 and 103 relating to proposed bans on trans athletes and pronouns and names.

Private parts are just that, private. As an elementary school counselor, I spend part of every school year teaching my students about protective behaviors. We review that our whole bodies belong to us and no one should be looking at or touching the private parts of your body without a good reason. Excluding student athletes from school athletic activities based on the private parts of their bodies is nothing short of discriminatory and a violation of privacy. It is no one's business what lies underneath another person's clothing. A trans girl is a girl, no questions asked. A trans boy is a boy, no questions asked. If you attempt to exclude a student from participating in a school athletic activity based on their sex assigned at birth, you are making a decision based solely on the private parts of that child's body. Ask my elementary students if this is right or wrong, and even they will tell you that talking about someone else's private parts is wrong.

Pronouns save lives. Every person, every child, deserves to feel safe and loved for who they are. This means that our trans students deserve to be called by the correct name and pronouns. Unfortunately, our trans youth are not always safe to be out at home, in part because proposed bills like these perpetuate the negative stereotypes that exist around trans folks. When home is not safe for students, school often becomes the place where students are wrapped up in care and unconditional love. Schools become the place where trans youth are safe to come out and use their names and pronouns. Guardian consent should not be required in order to use a child's name and pronouns. This is a major safety concern because it could require educators to unknowingly out their students and create unsafe reactions at home. I always tell my students that my job is to keep them safe and the passing of AB103 would keep me from being able to uphold that promise. When the adults at home are safe people for their children, the children rarely have a problem sharing who they really are with their adults. Schools should not have to be put in the position to break trust with the kids who need us most. Quite frankly, it is concerning that we are so focused on regulating the name a child can be called at school when many adults have seamlessly transitioned from calling the Gulf of Mexico to calling it the Gulf of America and they did so without permission from that body of water.

The passage of Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will only harm our students. I strongly oppose the possibility of putting students at risk for serious harm by outing them through practices that include identifying a child solely on their sex assigned at birth or requiring guardian permission to use certain names or pronouns in a school setting. Our job is to protect all students, and all means all.

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Reiko Ramos and I am a resident of Appleton, WI. I have over a decade of experience working with the LGBTQ community, most of which time has been dedicated to supporting queer and Trans youth. I currently serve as Statewide Director of LGBTQ Anti-Violence Programs at Diverse & Resilient. I am providing this written testimony in opposition to AB100 & AB 103 because of the harmful impact it will have on Trans youth.

According to the Trevor Project's 2024 U.S. National Survey on the Mental Health of LGBTQ+ Young People, 90% of LGBTQ+ young people said their well-being was negatively impacted due to recent politics. Additionally, transgender and non-binary young people reported lower rates of attempting suicide when their affirmed name and pronouns were respected.

Our organization serves hundreds of LGBTQ+ people across the state of Wisconsin each year. When elected officials at any level say harmful things about the Trans community or introduce legislation that will impact their rights, our program sees an increase in Trans people and their loved ones reaching out to us for support. So far in 2025, we have received more crisis calls related to anti-trans legislation and executive orders than ever. We know through experience that the data from Trevor Project is accurate: legislation like this has a serious negative impact on the mental health and wellbeing of Trans people in our state.

Transgender youth deserve to have their affirmed name and pronouns used and should have access to the same benefits of participation afforded to all youth in sports, such as belonging to a team, building relationships & camaraderie, and physical activity. These are all things that are linked to improved health and mental health outcomes regardless of age or gender identity, but are particularly relevant, as national data also tells us that acceptance and belonging are powerful protective factors for LGBTQ+ youth.

Please support the wellbeing of young Trans people across Wisconsin; do NOT move forward with AB 100 & AB 103.

Respectfully,

To the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Chloe Keefe and I'm a concerned healthcare worker of 3 years. I directly oppose assembly bills 100 and 103. Not only do I have a trans sister, trans cousins, and trans friends, but I also have trans patients who come to our endocrinology clinic for gender affirming care. I've witnessed firsthand how gender affirming care saves lives.

As someone who grew up alongside trans youth who still remain friends of mine to this day, I saw directly how harmful misgendering these individuals can be. A trans friend of mine once reached out to me, desperate for help as they were suicidal from being called the incorrect pronouns every single day. Assembly bills 100 and 103 will put trans youth in direct danger. These are children we are talking about, children deserve to feel safe and secure at school. I urge you all to vote against assembly bills 100 and 103 as they are outright dangerous for these children.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103.

As a parent, I am concerned that AB100 could incentivize schools to perform unscientific, invasive physical exams on children who wish to join a girls' sports team. Teaching young girls that it is okay for teachers to ask them to expose their genitals for any reason sets a dangerous precedent. It is also sexist on its face in many ways, not least because the rules around sex determination appear to apply only to girls. I have lived in Wisconsin for over twenty years, and this is the first time I have been afraid at the prospect of my daughter choosing to play on a sports team in high school.

My concerns about AB103 go beyond gender. It is not reasonable or proportionate to expect school administrators to check the names that children ask to be called in class against their birth certificates. I have known many people over the years who go by nicknames not directly related to their first or middle name, whether for cultural reasons (like Chinese immigrants adopting Western nicknames) or personal ones. The extra paperwork that this bill would require for extremely mundane situations like these is potentially humiliating to families and wastes teachers' time.

All of this leaves untouched the issue of civil rights. Transgender people are a small and vulnerable minority. Legislative acts that make them feel unsafe in their gender identity do not protect me -- they make me feel vulnerable, too. I feel afraid that legislating around gender expression will not stop at trans exclusion, but will encroach on the way that I embody femininity, or don't. I cannot be free to be who I am, as a cis woman, when trans people are not. And I want and expect this freedom for my daughter, too.

Sincerely,

To the Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education on the topic of trans student athletes and the use of gender affirming practices in schools.

My name is Emma Hood, I live in Wisconsin, I am a nurse, and a mother of three children. I am also the proud parent of a transgender child.

Importantly, before I share more, I want to address the vulnerability inherent in sharing my story. I have seen parents in these situations be demonized and the children mocked. And at the same time, I think sharing is necessary right now more than ever. I believe every elected official here has an obligation to try to listen when someone takes risks to write or speak publicly.

I am deeply concerned about the current social and political climate surrounding transgender people, and the degree to which it has been forced into my life and others. These stereotypes have the potential to shape laws and policies in ways that may be difficult to understand, unless you are or love someone who is transgender.

My child was assigned male at birth, and up until three years old, this is what we thought he was. Right after she turned three, she showed a clear interest in dressing in girls' clothing and wanting to grow her hair long. Many of the people around her at this time speculated it was a phase that she would grow out of. But she didn't. It has persisted without change for over 5 and a half years.

One of the myths surrounding parents of trans children is that we are "teaching our children to be trans". And I think this comes from the premise of having limited experience or knowledge on gender expression. I can assure you; I spend more time thinking of ways of trying to keep my child's world as simple as possible these days. Most of the time, parenting her is like parenting any other child except there are certain events or situations that have called on me to really listen and learn more about who my child is. Once, when my daughter was about 4 or 5 years old, I offered her some boys' clothing for her to wear, just to see if she showed interest. It resulted in her crying in my arms for over ½ an hour while she fell asleep. That night she so clearly told me she was a girl. At that age, she did not have words for transgender or even what pronouns were. She just knew who she was. I did not teach her anything. For me, it was clear that I would choose to listen and love my child.

When my daughter was 6 years old, she asked to change her name to a girl's name and said she wanted to be a girl, at home and at school. I was so fortunate to have the support and the expertise of the staff and teachers at the school. Who she is now, secure in herself, is undoubtedly a result of her community. She is a bright, caring and creative child.

Last week, I asked her, what if mom had told you had to be a boy when you told me you were a girl? What would that have felt like? She answered, "I wouldn't feel good, I wouldn't feel free". Trans children have been telling us what it feels like to be in their bodies, and what it feels like to be recognized and supported for a long time.

School policies that support and affirm trans students save lives. It is that simple. There is clear evidence that affirming practices, and the support of caring adults is protective in reducing the risk of suicidality and suicide attempts in trans youth. Additionally, school cultures that allow for harassment and bullying of any student, for any reason, contribute to a higher risk of anxiety and depression, as well lower academic performance. But we know without me even naming it here, which students are more often the target of bullying and harassment. We cannot talk about the use of pronouns and preferred names without speaking to the growing evidence that deals directly with this topic. Schools have the ability to ensure an environment that is respectful of all students and their families.

Finally, I want to say that I have sympathy for the parents who might feel fearful that their child will transition socially at school without telling them or having knowledge about it. I think it can be hard for any parent to feel like their child isn't as close as you had hoped.

For those parents, I would encourage any parent who has a trans or gender non-conforming child to find other parents and seek support if you need it. Especially if you don't feel like your community or church has been able to. The most protective and loving thing a parent of a transgender child can do is be their safe-haven and the person they trust to be themselves.

There is room in our humanity, within our faith communities and our schools for transgender people, and I hope you are all fortunate enough one day to know and love a transgender person or child. I urge you to support policy and practices that affirms transgender people and oppose bill AB100 and AB103.

Thank you

Dear members of the Education committee,

I write today in opposition to the bills AB 100 and 103 before you concerning the rights of trans gender students. The right of a student to feel comfortable with their own identity is a human right that should not be impeded in any form. If you believe that a person should be allowed to be who they are in any form you must believe it in all forms. That is not a decision that you should force on people based on your own beliefs anymore than someone should be forced to be a religion they are not. As a teacher I believe that a student alive called by whatever pronouns and name they choose is a good thing. I believe the manner in which they identify is a personal matter not to be legislated. Thank you.

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing with deep concern regarding AB100 and AB103, and I urge you not to pass either bill. Transgender students deserve to be treated with dignity and respect and allowed to participate in sports and be addressed using the pronouns and names they prefer. As a teacher in Milwaukee for nearly ten years, I have never witnessed a single instance in which refusing to use a student's preferred pronouns and name has improved the learning environment either for the student or their peers; on the contrary, refusing to address students as they wish erodes relationships and creates a hostile environment in which the student is unable to achieve their greatest potential. If these laws pass, they will directly injure my students and prevent me from treating my students with the respect and dignity they deserve.

Once again, I urge you: please do not pass these bills.

There is no room for hatred and ignorance in schools or the law.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jen Schanen-Materi, and I am a social worker, and someone who deeply cares for and supports my loved ones who are transgender. I am writing to strongly oppose AB100 and AB103, bills that would restrict the rights of transgender athletes and students.

As a social worker, I have seen firsthand the profoundly positive impact that inclusive policies have on the mental and emotional well-being of youth. Conversely, these bills would harm our young community members by denying them the right to participate in sports and access facilities that align with their gender identity. They would also strip away their ability to be recognized by their name and pronouns in schools, an essential aspect of affirming their identity and fostering a safe and supportive environment.

These bills would create an environment of hostility and fear for transgender individuals, denying them the right to exist authentically and feel valued for who they are. Further, it has been shown that even when such bills fail, simply having these political debates has a negative effect on LGBTQ+ youth mental health.

My goal as a mother and social worker is thus: to help people feel like themselves. Likewise, transgender youth deserve to grow up in a world where they can be who they are without fear of being rejected or marginalized by the very institutions that should be supporting them.

As a bisexual person and social worker, I believe in the importance of standing up for equality, justice, and the dignity of all people. I oppose these bills because they go against these values. We cannot allow anti-LGBTQ+ legislation to make life harder for trans youth, athletes, and students—people who deserve to live freely, to play, and to be seen for who they truly are.

Please do not pass these harmful bills. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Jen Schanen-Materi, MSW, APSW

Hello,

Regarding Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103, it is so important for children to be allowed to be themselves and not have their identities taken away or quashed. The more someone is allowed to be themselves in ways that don't hurt others (and using your own pronouns and playing sports never hurts others) the more that person will be able to feel comfortable in the world and be less likely to suffer from depression and suicidal ideation. Please do not allow these bills to pass. Thank you for protecting all students rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 44 years, am a healthcare software tester and vice president of my child's school's Parent Teacher Organization, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen. I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Many trans and gender fluid adults I've known have spoken to me about how important sports were for them as children. I also know now a little trans girl who has clearly been a girl since she was 4 years old or earlier. She has always been a girl at school, in Girl Scouts, in the community. Think of a little girl in your life. Now think about telling her that because of the way she was born, she can't play on the team with all her friends. She has to go be the only girl to play on the boys team, and probably face a lot of harassment, if she wants to play sports. If you actually know any trans children, it's very easy to understand the cruelty of a bill like this. As for using the correct name and pronouns for children- it's hard for me to believe this is even a discussion. Of course children should be called by the name and pronouns that identify them.

To whom it may concern,

I am a physician and a scientist. I spent 4 years in medical school, 6 years completing my Master's and Ph.D., and 3 years in residency to train for my work as a primary care provider and educator. I use the strongest evidence and guidelines-based care to help me support my patients' health goals. It is distressing to see proposed laws and policies go against biological facts, scientific evidence, and medical guidelines. I urge you to reject these anti-science, anti-medical, and ultimately anti-child bills, which will put transgender, non-binary, and gender non-conforming children at risk. Schools and sports are supposed to be safe spaces for children, and these bills would make them less safe.

Re: AB100: this bill goes against gender affirming actions for gender diverse children as affirmed and recommended by The American Academy of Pediatrics(1), American Psychiatric Association (2), and American Psychological Association (3).

Re: AB103: this bill is not rational in terms of how gender identity vs sex assigned at birth affects athletic performance. It ostracizes a group of students without bringing benefit to others. See below for a recent and thorough reference analyzing current data on sex assigned at birth vs. athletic performance by Dr. DJ Oberlin of Lehmann College. His conclusion: "...an individual's sex does not determine their success or failure at any athletic event despite the high level of competition."

I hope you will make the right decision to reject these bills and keep some of our most vulnerable children safe from discrimination and isolation from their peers.

Sincerely,

These bills wrongly alienate children and young people and put trans youth at more risk for harassment and discrimination. As a parent I am NOT at all concerned with trans kids being in sports that are congruent with their gender identity and using bathrooms that they feel safe in. Trans kids like my kids deserve to feel safe and protected by our government. These bills target a small percentage of the population in such a way that is demoralizing and denigrating. I would never want my own children to be treated this way. I also know from a psychological perspective and research supports that protecting rights of trans individuals supports mental health and lessens risks for other problems later in life. I oppose these bills for the harm they can cause and as a parent who knows trans kids and whose job it is to protect kids.

Trans people are just the same as all the rest of us and deserve to be treated with respect and kindness. Allowing the government to control what they can and can't do should not be allowed. It should be the trans person themselves who decides what pronouns they want to use and what name they want to be called by. Trans people should also be allowed to participate in activities that align with their gender identity. Being basically forced to do activities that don't align with the trans person's gender identity is just cruel. I hope you consider to not sign these bills into law and please treat transgender people with all the respect they deserve.

To Whom It May Concern,

As a parent, ally, and teacher, I vehemently oppose any bill that removes gender affirming recognition. These bills are mean and homophobic. It harms absolutely no one for a child to use a preferred pronoun. And there have always been transgender athletes in sports, they just weren't able to live their lives as their authentic selves. You are targeting children from simply living their lives, full stop.

I encourage you to vote against AB 100 & AB 103.

Re: Assembly bill 100 and 103,
And my opposition to both

I have 14 year-old grandchild.

For the past year, they have requested family and friends use they/ them, when referring to that grandchild. They have also adopted a gender-neutral Nick-name which I use, at their request.

I love this grandchild to the moon.

I am 76 years old. I cannot say I understand their request.- but u honor it, because they are family and I love them.

I am a practicing Roman Catholic, but am schooled enough to know that it is a fact (a FACT) that not all people have chromosomes which are "only" XX or XY.

It is amazing what variety actually exists.

We are who we are.

I am Who I am.

My grandchild (an honor student, musician and all around good person) is who they are.

Being a teen is hard enough in 2025- as witnessed by mental health statistics for this age group.

Passage of these discriminatory bills would only make it worse.

To the members of the assembly,

My name is Krista Eastman. I'm a lifelong Wisconsinite living in Madison (53715), and I strongly oppose AB 100 and AB 103.

Trans kids have the right to live, play, and exist as their authentic selves everywhere, including in schools. As a parent, I strongly object to these bills. Every day I strive to teach my kid about the dignity and worth of all human beings and about the role we all must play in creating communities that do not discriminate. These bills fly in the face of those values - they are ugly, hateful, and small - and they choose fear mongering over real information.

Our schools should be protecting kids from hate and discrimination, not carrying out discriminatory practices dictated to them by lawmakers with canned political agendas and little to no experience of trans people or trans issues.

The people of Wisconsin recognize that trans kids have rights. We understand that trans kids are not a threat and we see trans kids for the gift that they are.

Thank you,

Krista Eastman

Dear Assembly Committee on Education Members,

As a proud lifelong Wisconsinite and former public school educator, I vehemently oppose Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills stand contrary to the Wisconsin motto of "Forward" and our strong progressive history, and will only harm the young people of our great state.

During my tenure as a Wisconsin public educator and now as an arts educator for Wisconsin non-profits, I see every day the positive impact respecting children for who they are and valuing each unique child can have on young lives. I have worked with many children who use names and pronouns that are different from those assigned to them at birth. Calling them by their names and by correct pronouns is the most basic of ways that I show respect as an adult in their lives. It is that simple: I respect them and value them, and I want them to know it.

To force educators to use names and pronouns that do not match a child's identity is denying them the basic respect all humans deserve and shows them that school is not a safe place for them. With school shootings and lockdown drills making our children afraid for their lives, shouldn't they at least be able to feel that school is a safe place just to be who they are? It may seem like a small thing, but to that young person, it can be everything.

Also, in all my years as an educator, I have seen how much participation in extracurriculars can be a worthwhile and powerful experience for students. Students who are in a sport, or a play, or clubs, or any other activity are more invested in the school experience. They find community, they learn new skills, they expand their circle of trusted adults, they are more invested in academics, and they discover more about who they are. Denying this opportunity to students because of their gender identity is just wrong. Why should only cisgender young people have the experience of being on a team?

I remember several years ago, working as part of the production team at a local high school. We had several students who were gender non-conforming. The students used the dressing rooms that worked for them. Their peers had no ill-will, no fear, no anger about sharing their dressing rooms. Those few students who were given the opportunity to be in spaces that felt right to them appreciated it so much; they felt seen. Don't we all just want to be seen for who we are? Why should only those of us who just happen to identify with the gender we were assigned at birth be the only ones who get to feel that way?

According to a study published in fall of 2024 in the journal Nature Human Behavior, the rates of suicide attempts among trans and gender nonconforming youth who live in states that passed laws aimed at these minors saw a marked increase up to 72%. Do you want the blood of Wisconsin children on your hands? Because young people will lose hope in the face of their government telling them they should not exist. And some of them will choose to no longer.

Passing these bills would risk the lives of children and teens in our state. All children deserve to live, to be educated in a place that values who they are, and to thrive. These bills will make that impossible for some of the most brave, beautiful, and vulnerable young people in Wisconsin.

Please reconsider these harmful pieces of legislation.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Julie Guckenberger. I live in Wauwatosa, in the 53213 zip code, in Wisconsin Assembly District 13 and Senate District 5. I have lived in Wisconsin for over 14 years. I have 2 kids who attend public schools in Wauwatosa, and I am deeply concerned with the proposed AB103 and AB100.

I am writing to urge you to vote against these bills, AB100 and AB103. These bills harm children and deny them equal opportunity. Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trying to legislate the experiences of children in our schools will serve only to belittle them. For the same reasons that a child may prefer to be called "Peggy" rather than a given or legal name of Margaret, a transgender child may be comfortable being addressed by a name other than their legally given name.

Transgender kids deserve to be addressed in school by the name and pronouns they use at home and with their friends. By denying their educators the right and ability to address them in this way, you are denying these kids their autonomy and basic respect. You are denying them the right to be addressed in a manner that makes them feel seen, heard, and valued.

The second bill would deny children the right to participate in sports. Every child, whether cisgender or transgender, should have the opportunity to participate in sports if they so choose. This opportunity should not require them to deny who they are, nor should it subject them to discrimination and ridicule by having to identify as trans. This proposed bill would actively harm trans kids, and make all kids less safe. It is a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on children. The fact that a group of adults would seek to attack a small group of children is sickening. You should be ashamed of yourselves.

Trans kids are not trying to make a statement by requesting that their teachers respect them enough to use their pronouns and their preferred name in class. They are simply seeking the same respect afforded to their cisgender classmates.

In the same way, trans kids seeking to play sports are not trying to make a statement. They simply want to be afforded the same rights and respect as their cisgender classmates or teammates, in allowing them an opportunity to play the sport and pursue their own athletic talents.

I urge you to side with human decency and vote against both of these bills.

Sincerely,
Julie Guckenberger

My name is Jennifer Streit from Madison – 53717. I am a public school teacher and a parent of two daughters enrolled in public school writing in opposition of AB100 and AB103. I also identify as cisgender, straight, and Christian.

I believe trans athletes should be allowed to play on the sport teams and use locker rooms that align with their gender identity. I have no problem with my daughters sharing a locker room and being on the field with trans athletes. Trans athletes need to be accepted for who they are - real, good humans - just like anll other people.

Trans students deserve the right to use the name and pronouns that they identify with in our schools. As a teacher, I have seen the significant impact on using the preferred names and pronouns of my students. Students feel safe, seen, valued, and respected when we address them in the way they want to be addressed. I see students' confidence grow when they are allowed that autonomy, and I believe lives have been saved as a result of this policy.

My goddaughter is a trans girl who loves soccer. When I watch her play, she is peaceful, happy and free on the field with her girl teammates. She's accepted for who she is - I honestly don't know if her teammates know she is trans. If she were to have to start playing with a boys team, she would be outed and most certainly treated differently. Or maybe she will make the difficult choice to discontinue playing and a part of her soul will die. I fear that her life, and the lives of other trans athletes, would be at stake -emotionally, and physically.

Keep all kids safe. Do not pass AB100 and AB103.

To the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Thomas Twiton, a resident of Madison, ZIP 53719. I am writing to testify my opposition to the Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I have lived in Wisconsin since my family moved here in 2007 when I was in the fourth grade, and attended school through high school in Wisconsin and returned to Madison for my career. School is such an important time of development, and kids and young adults need to be uplifted, protected, and given every opportunity to grow and succeed, not discriminated against and denied the space to be who they are. Transgender and non-binary youth need our support in being fully who they are.

I have a niece and nephew who will be in the Wisconsin school system. It is so important to me that that school system cherishes and uplifts all its students, rather than hating and suppressing some of them. I have friends and loved ones who are transgender or non-binary, and these discriminatory bills make them feel unwelcome in our state. Please do not push forth this agenda of hate on our children, and instead let them know that all children are loved and valued and given opportunity to be their authentic selves in our state.

Thank you,

Statement of Opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103:

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I strongly oppose Assembly Bill 100, the proposed transgender athlete ban, and Assembly Bill 103, which would restrict the rights of transgender students to use their correct names and pronouns. These bills are not only unnecessary but potentially devastating to an already vulnerable population.

Impact on Mental Health and Suicide Risk:

We cannot ignore the severe mental health implications of such discriminatory legislation. According to data from the Trevor Project, 85% of transgender and nonbinary youth report that political attacks on their identity have negatively impacted their mental health. More alarmingly, studies consistently show that transgender youth experience disproportionately high rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidal ideation compared to their cisgender peers. When we exclude young people from activities fundamental to social development and well-being, and deny them the basic dignity of being addressed by their correct names and pronouns, we compound these risks. Transgender youth who feel supported in their identity and included in school activities show significantly better mental health outcomes. By contrast, exclusionary policies increase feelings of isolation and rejection - precisely the factors that contribute to the heartbreakingly high suicide attempt rates among transgender youth.

The Reality of Transgender Participation in Sports:

AB100 purports to solve a problem that simply doesn't exist at scale. Transgender youth represent approximately 1.4% of the youth population, and only a fraction of these young people participate in competitive sports. In states that have already implemented inclusive policies for years, there has been no evidence of widespread competitive advantage or disruption. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association already has thoughtful policies in place to ensure fair competition while being inclusive of transgender athletes. This bill represents unnecessary government overreach into decisions best left to athletic associations, schools, medical professionals, and families.

Benefits of Inclusion vs. Costs of Exclusion:

Sports participation provides all youth with critical opportunities for physical health, teamwork, leadership development, and social connection. For transgender youth specifically, inclusion in sports can be life-affirming, offering a place of belonging during a challenging developmental period. The supposed "costs" of inclusion have been greatly exaggerated. When implemented with appropriate guidelines, transgender inclusion in sports preserves both competitive fairness and the dignity of all athletes. By contrast, the costs of exclusion are concrete and severe: increased mental health risks, decreased physical activity, lost educational opportunities, and the message to transgender youth that they don't belong in our communities. Similarly, AB103's restrictions on name and pronoun use would create hostile learning environments where transgender students are constantly misgendered, undermining their sense of safety and belonging in educational settings that should be supportive for all students. I urge this committee to reject both of these harmful bills and instead focus on policies that support the well-being of all Wisconsin youth. Every child deserves to participate fully in school life, including sports, and to be recognized for who they truly are, regardless of gender identity. Our transgender youth are watching to see if you will stand up for their rights to simply be kids - playing the sports they love and being addressed with the basic respect all students deserve.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to voice my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, pertaining to the participation of school sports and use of facilities and the use of chosen names and pronouns, respectively.

Firstly, the enforcement of these bills presents a practical challenge for teachers and administrators. A child's sex is not readily identified visually and a visual "inspection" of a child in any form is unsafe and disturbing. This would then require additional documentation and personal information is disclosed to teachers, administrators, and volunteers. Personally identifiable information is protected by law and should not be viewed by any person that does not have a credible reason to do so. This presents risks to data collection, data distribution, and data protections.

Teachers have an enormous responsibility to educate our children. Their duties of creating and delivering an enriching curriculum is more than enough to fill their time. Additional duties of enforcing targeted and prejudiced legislation is inappropriate and unnecessary. It empowers those with prejudiced views to act upon those against the most powerless people in our community, our children.

Most importantly, these bills are dehumanizing and sexist. Students deserve a welcoming educational environment that empowers them to learn and develop into responsible members of our community.

According to the National Institute of Health, students who participate in sports report better academic performance than peers. Student athletes have only a 2% chance of receiving a scholarship of any type to continue athletics in college, regardless of sex. Most student athletes participate in sports to have fun, make friends, and move their bodies. Discouraging children from participating in such activities is antithetical to our American values of protecting life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

You may think that these laws do not discourage participation, but they do. A female presenting child in a boys' locker room is unsafe. A male presenting child in a girls' locker room is unsafe. The option is to endanger one's self or not participate. That is no choice at all.

Finally, the use of a preferred name and pronoun is just a matter of respect. Whether a child chooses a derivative of their name or an entirely new name, children are not the property of their parents. They have an intrinsic right to express themselves freely and define who they are as a person.

Personally, I have loved ones and community members who would be directly and negatively impacted by these bills. As an adult, a voter, a taxpayer, who loves people who will be impacted, I voice my full-throated opposition to AB100 and AB103. My only wish is to see my loved ones and community thrive. Reducing rights has never been in service of that goal.

Fair Wisconsin & Committee Members,

I would like to register my vehement opposition to both bill AB100 and bill AB103.

With regard to AB100:

I grew up playing sports in Wisconsin my whole life from elementary school through high school and even when I went away to college. I was not concerned with whether my teammates looked feminine or masculine. It was high school. We were all goofy and figuring life out. What we needed most at that time were teammates and friendship, not someone questioning whether we belonged. I would have proudly stood next to and played with or against any trans athlete. And I stand by that statement today.

With regard to AB103:

As a former teacher, I find that one of the most important things we can do for kids is trust them. They take on tough materials and complicated topics better than they ever get credit for. And it is that trust that allows them to learn well, to be themselves, to build strong relationships with parents and teachers. Punitively threatening to control or undermine things that they already know about themselves only creates distrust. It is dangerous to mental health, and legislating this kind of deeply personal and particular matter is a level of governmental overreach that is unprecedented.

As a Wisconsin constituent, I urge the committee to vote no on both bills. You are welcome to reach back out to me at this email address with any follow-ups or questions.

Thank you for reading,

Hello,

I am writing about AB100 and AB103. I live in Wisconsin and have for most of my life.

I am a trans adult and the past 6 weeks have been incredibly hard on my mental health, I can't imagine how trans youth are feeling. I have had extreme anxiety and depression which is directly rooted in the Trump administration and other transphobic Republicans. I've been in (fight or) flight mode for weeks, and have looked into moving to Minnesota or Canada for my safety. I have been unable to focus on my career or personal life, because I am worried about my future in America. The prejudice coming from the GOP is absurd and dangerous. Trans people make up less than 1 percent of the American population, and we are only trying to live our lives. Yet, we are constantly scapegoated by the GOP, including the president.

AB103 has no basis and is purely discrimination. It is incredibly important to one's mental health to be addressed by the correct name and pronouns. I do not understand how this affects anyone else in a meaningful way--it is truly a non-issue to address someone the way they prefer. If we can call James Vance "JD," Addison McConnell "Mitch," and the Gulf of Mexico "the Gulf of America," then we can call people by their chosen names.

AB100 is another example of the GOP choosing to bully children over doing things to actually help their constituents. Trans girls playing sports is basically a non-issue.

Republicans also love to talk about small government, but they also love to tell school districts what they're allowed to do, and individuals what they're allowed to do.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I write in opposition to: AB 100 and AB 103. As a lifelong Wisconsinite, I want our state to be fair and equal for all citizens. The proposed bills are undemocratic, unfair, and are truly cruel uses of our legislature. When you should be helping the community, you instead spend your time attacking vulnerable youth. Shame on you. Wisconsin children deserve better than this. They deserve to live their lives as their authentic selves, be accepted, loved and to feel safe in their schools and communities. Furthermore, these bills are based totally on fiction and go against all scientific consensus on the matter. Wisconsinites do not want to be governed by lies and misinformation. Wisconsin's state motto is Forward but this legislation would lead us backward. I urge you to oppose both of these bills.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 18 years, serve our community as Executive Director of Chrysalis, and speak on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Taylor Witthuhn, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for 29 years of my life, and not only a member of the LGBT community but have many friends and family members in the trans community.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bill AB100 and AB103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to this bill because it's a blatant violation of human rights, it is un-American. My trans family does not deserve to be dehumanized and erased by people with an agenda to promote cruelty, and a desire to other their fellow citizens to appease some self-centered goal.

These bills take the power away from individuals to determine their identity and instead give it to another just because they are in a position of power, who do not have the best interest of the community in mind. Myself, and fellow residents who have submitted a testimony or have shown up to this hearing will not stand for this hatred towards our fellow community members.

Sincerely,

Hello,

I am writing to urge the Wisconsin state assembly to vote against bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills harm Wisconsin children and deny them equal opportunities.

Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trans kids belong in school sports if they choose to participate. All school children deserve the opportunity to join a school team of their choice and explore their own athletic abilities. To bar any kids from school sports is truly unjust and unkind.

This bill would directly harm trans kids and does not make cis kids safer. It's a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on a small number of children, which is sickening to me.

Transgender kids and cisgender kids alike deserve to be addressed with the name and pronouns they use at home or with friends, while they are in school. The first day of school, most teachers will run down the class list and ask kids what name they use. The teacher asks each student this question because it shows respect for the student's autonomy. Kids (both trans and cis) deserve the right to change their names and pronouns whenever they want to, just as adults do. This should be a matter between a student and their teachers, and should not require parent notification.

Name and pronoun changes can represent safety, autonomy, and authenticity for students. This bill is similarly unnecessary, and harmful to children who are exploring or embracing their identity.

I've lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and I'm a parent who has raised 2 kids in the public schools here. I value the public school system and education for all children. All Wisconsin children deserve equal treatment in their schools.

Sincerely,

Testimony for AB100/AB103:

To the members of the assembly:

My name is Amanda Kramp. I live in Oshkosh. I'm married and have two kids, I volunteer with my church, I'm in the PTO, and I recently met with members of the Joint Finance Committee to speak about reproductive rights.

Trans kids belong where kids belong. Trans kids belong in sports, schools, faith communities, scouting programs, and other places where kids gather to learn and play.

They also deserve to be called what they want to be called. My name is Amanda. My pronouns are she/her. If someone decided my name was Mandy and that my pronouns were he/him, they would be incorrect and it would be disrespectful. Why can't we extend that respect to trans kids? Being called the correct pronouns is one small way that trans people can feel included in the world. Being called the correct name, the name that someone tells you to call them, is basic courtesy.

And have you ever been in a school locker room? I have. I played field hockey in high school. Not once did we all stand around totally naked and stare at each other. I don't know what locker rooms the Republicans remember or are entering, but most people mind their business when they're changing. Most people who were raised right know how to act in these situations. Mind your business. Put on the uniform and get on the field.

These kids love their sports. They are passionate about playing, because they wouldn't fight so hard to play if it was just a thing they liked to do on the weekends. No teenager wants their entire life paraded around and mocked by grown adults who are supposed to be in charge. I admire their bravery and they shouldn't have to be brave.

These bills are transphobic and harmful. Vote no.

Thank you.

Amanda Kramp

Dear Representatives,

My name is Lucy Kenyon, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I am writing today for my trans friends who are scared living in a country that vilifies them at any chance it gets. Being a growing, loving, and welcoming state means welcoming all. It means uplifting the trans community. I implore you all to trust trans kids and those who love them to know who they are.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Lucy Kenyon

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Tanner Schultz and I live in Madison. My zip code is 53714.

A friend of mine, who I met in high school and have known for 25 years, transitioned only a few years ago. Through them I have witnessed the transformative power of finally being able to express, and be accepted for, the gender they have always known themselves to be. They are today a much healthier and happier person than they were when I met them, many years ago, during a time when their parents and society were still telling them that what they knew in their heart was wrong, and trying to force them to conform to a gender they knew they were not.

I am not alone in this recognition, as many prominent and respected medical organizations, such as the American Psychiatric Association, American Psychological Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, and the American Medical Association, have also concluded the same.

I strongly encourage you to reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103, as well as any legislation that seeks to oppress our trans youth and deny them their right to exist as they are and be recognized for who they are. Such legislation is counter to the science of mental health, our rights, and basic human decency.

Sincerely,
Tanner Schultz

To the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

Please accept this as my testimony on Assembly Bill 100 (K-12 trans athlete ban) and Assembly Bill 103 (denying preferred names & pronouns). I'm unable to attend tomorrow's hearings in Madison.

Prohibiting trans students from playing on sports teams and using locker rooms consistent with their authentic gender identity, as well as taking away the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school, is extremely disrespectful to those students, and it's completely wrong. Students participating in sports and being themselves at school facilitates strong, mentally healthy kids who grow up to be strong, mentally healthy adults! Creating these unfair limitations would undoubtedly encourage more dangerous "othering" and shaming towards these students.

A 2022 survey found that 85% of trans and nonbinary youth report that facing ongoing political attacks has been detrimental to their mental health, according to the Trevor Project. Even introducing these bills would increase stress levels and mental health problems among many students, not just trans and nonbinary students. I oppose both of these bills.

Thank you for the opportunity to have my voice heard and included in the official record.

Having lived in WI for nearly 50 years, and having known several trans people in my life, both these bills would be harmful to children that I personally know and love.

Furthermore, I strongly believe it is inappropriate for the state legislature to tell local school boards what they can and can't do in this area. Please leave it up to local elected school boards to set policy in this matter.

Re: AB100 and AB103

I cannot testify in person before your committee tomorrow as my husband will be having a hip replacement, but I wanted to share my thoughts with you. I come from a family of teachers. My father was a teacher and coach in the Madison School District for 45 years. My sister taught in the same district and then in higher education all across the country, as her husband did.

I know how important it is for young people to be part of a culture in their schools that allows them to be true to themselves while doing no harm to others. The use of pronouns to identify one's gender is not a harmful action against anyone. Much like preferring a nickname to one's given name at birth it is the identity that the young person knows reflects them the best rather than what their parents gave them a birth.

As a parent of a non-binary identifying adult child and grandparent of an 11-year-old non-binary grandchild I have seen that their ability to use pronouns that best reflect who they find themselves to be is vitally important to their well-being. And it brings absolutely no harm to any other person who chooses to use pronouns that reflect their gender identity at birth.

As a daughter of a coach, I have been an avid supporter of sports as well. And while I can understand there are some concerns about transgender youth performing in sports under the gender that identify they now feel to be accurate versus the one assigned at birth, I feel that this too can be handled in thoughtful ways. And I believe blanket legislation is not the answer.

However, at minimum, I would hope that the State in which I have spent my 77 years will not legislate in harmful ways against the use of chosen pronouns for trans and non-binary students, and give thoughtful consideration to all ways in which the small percentage of young folks so impacted are far more harmed by proposed legislation that reflects on their differences versus their many similarities.

Sincerely,
Betty Harris Custer

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,
I am writing in strong opposition to bills AB 100 and AB 103.

I am the parent of a non-binary middle school scholar and athlete. As a parent, it is heartbreaking to see these bills come forward. My child deserves to thrive as much as any other child. These bills make them feel as if they don't belong, as if they can't pursue the sports and activities that other children can, and that their name and pronouns are wrong. There is nothing wrong with my child. They are who they are and they deserve the same as every other child, boy, girl, or however they identify. Their preferred name and pronouns are essential to their sense of self and ensure their mental well-being.

As a lifelong female athlete, I can say with confidence that this call to ban trans girls and women from sports is ridiculous and only intended to do harm. I have been fortunate to count as teammates and opponents trans women, and I stand in strong support of their right to access the sports I have found so empowering and enriching. Their use of locker rooms that fit their agenda ensures their safety and security and does not threaten mine.

I urge you as a parent, a woman, and an athlete to oppose these bills.

Sincerely,
Amy Washbush

Good evening.

My birth name is Anna Claire Stamper, and though it is not the name I currently use, I expect it will get me farther here. I live under the 54703 zip code in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, and I am a senior in high school.

I am sending this message in the hopes The Assembly Committee on Education in the Wisconsin State Legislature will listen to it. The assembly bills number 100 and 103 are being discussed, and I would like my voice to be heard. Though I cannot attend this meeting, as I will be in school, I am sending a message. These bills directly impact my education. Though I am a senior, and moving into secondary education, I am heavily impacted to the precedents that these bills send. It is about more than the silencing of children, which means to erase the ideas of trans children across the state. It is about the politicians and people that have been trying to erase our histories from the moment they began. Being transgender is not a new idea. It has been around since the Egyptians, and will continue to exist no matter how hard legislation tries to stamp out our voices. Once we declare that these children cannot express their first amendment right of free speech by referring to themselves as their chosen genders and names, we step into territory we cannot step back from. This isolation of transgender students from sports, from saying their names, is all intentional. They want us isolated so that no one may remember us. Already they have tried to erase our history, saying that this "new wave" of transgenders happens out of nowhere, forgetting the people they met in high school that were trans. They forget these people not because they never knew them--in fact most had probably encountered trans people in their schooling. The difference, is that the legislation kept those trans kids scared. It kept them quiet. In the same way that these bills are trying to keep trans people quiet. Once they silence our children, they will move on to the next thing they can accomplish. It will start with the trans kids, and then anyone in the LGBTQ+ community. These types of bills are the beginning of the end. Once we silence one group of people, the precedent is set, and they will move on to the next group. How many times wist me repeat the mistakes of our ancestors. The Nazis did not stop at Jews. They did not stop at the disabled, the elderly, the gay, the trans, the disordered. We are watching history repeat itself, and I plead that if you listen to anything in my message that you listen to this. They will not stop with trans kids. This hatred is the kind that cannot be satisfied with one group of people. So I ask you, how long do you think it will take to reach you? Already DEI programs are affecting more than just the disabled, and the POC. When you sign this bill you are signing away more than the rights of our transgender children, you're signing the beginning of the end for yourself. This will not stop here, no matter what--and we will not go down without a fight.

Thank you for your time,

K. Stamper

To the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Thomas Twiton, a resident of Madison, ZIP 53719. I am writing to testify my opposition to the Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I have lived in Wisconsin since my family moved here in 2007 when I was in the fourth grade, and attended school through high school in Wisconsin and returned to Madison for my career. School is such an important time of development, and kids and young adults need to be uplifted, protected, and given every opportunity to grow and succeed, not discriminated against and denied the space to be who they are. Transgender and non-binary youth need our support in being fully who they are.

I have a niece and nephew who will be in the Wisconsin school system. It is so important to me that that school system cherishes and uplifts all its students, rather than hating and suppressing some of them. I have friends and loved ones who are transgender or non-binary, and these discriminatory bills make them feel unwelcome in our state. Please do not push forth this agenda of hate on our children, and instead let them know that all children are loved and valued and given opportunity to be their authentic selves in our state.

Thank you,
Thomas Twiton

I have lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an education free from harassment and discrimination.

We've seen these kind of bills before. They have been brought before this committee year after year in an attempt to terrorize our trans youth, their parents, and decent folks all around the state who understand these bills are no more than hatred and grandstanding.

This is a grotesque public spectacle where homophobic and transphobic legislators make us come back year after year and beg for some shred of decency. For some shred of humanity, some empathy, some understanding.

I'm not submitting this to beg you to not be cruel. I'm submitting this to tell you that the people of Wisconsin are—on the whole—better than this.

All Wisconsinites—yes, even the children—deserve the right to dignity, the support to grow and thrive to their greatest potential. These bills are directly in opposition to those rights.

I hope that you learn. I hope you fix your hearts.

Regardless, I and so many others will continue standing up for decency, for kindness, for justice, and for all LGBTQIA+ kids in Wisconsin.

Scott Hershberger
Regarding AB100 and AB103
March 5, 2025

My name is Scott Hershberger, and I am a Madison resident. I am testifying that two bills currently before the Assembly, AB100 and AB103, would have a negative impact on our students and should not become law. I am a straight, cisgender man, but I have many transgender friends who would have been harmed by this legislation if they were still in school.

I had several transgender friends in high school. My college roommate (still a dear friend years later) is a trans man. Many people in my current friend group are trans women. All these friends have shared with me painful stories of discrimination that they faced after coming out—individual acts of dehumanization as well as policies that created huge bureaucratic hurdles and decreased their quality of life.

When people call them by a name or pronoun that they do not identify with, this creates deep emotional wounds. If this has never happened to you, take a moment and imagine someone intentionally doing it to you. Maybe there was a bully when you were in school who always called you a name you hated. It doesn't feel good. Now imagine your teachers calling you that name, over and over. That's dehumanizing, and that would have long-lasting mental health impacts. That's what AB103 would do to trans kids.

Now, imagine that you went through this trauma because you wanted to get a competitive edge in sports. Would that be worth it? No, it wouldn't. Trans kids who are athletes just want to be kids playing sports as their authentic selves. One of my friends who is a trans man played soccer growing up, both before and after he transitioned. He had a much more positive experience after the transition, once he was playing with other boys. And his teammates were happy to have him. AB100 would prevent kids from enjoying sports the way every kid should be able to. Again, this would cause long-lasting harm to their mental health.

It's easy to think that these policies would only hurt trans kids. But that's wrong. These policies would hurt all kids by teaching them to discriminate, teaching them to ignore others' wishes, teaching them to disrespect their peers.

Instead of institutionalizing discrimination, we need to institutionalize empathy and understanding. We need to educate our kids with the tools to value everyone's perspectives so that they can interact respectfully regardless of gender identity.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103. Thank you for reading my testimony and considering my input.

Best wishes,
Scott Hershberger

To the whole Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing this email to oppose both AB 100 and AB 103. Not only are these bills unnecessary, but they aim to take rights from our most vulnerable population. The number of trans youth playing high school sports is extremely small. If you care about protecting youth, you should be focusing on protecting our vulnerable youth population - not further ostracizing them.

As for needing written documentation from a parent before a school can use pronouns other than their biological gender -- again, this is absolutely unnecessary. Using a different pronoun or a chosen name is not a burden to anyone. However, using the preferred pronouns for trans youth is very important to their mental health.

A study done by the Trevor Project of over 61,000 children aged 13-17 in 19 states, showed that suicide attempts increased by 72% when those states passed anti-transgender laws. NPR article

I have a teenage cousin that is transgender and transitioning to a female. Erica (formerly Eric) was suicidal and in a very dark place until, through therapy, she started to understand she is transgender, and that she had the option to live her life as a different gender. Erica is now a well-adjusted teenager, enjoying time with friends rock climbing and participating in gymnastics.

As a school board member at the Deerfield Community School District (I am speaking on my own behalf, not on the behalf of the board), I care deeply about making school a safe place for all students. Please reconsider these bills. As a school board member, I do not want to be forced to participate in increasing the risk of youth suicide attempts for this unnecessary legislation.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Cari (I prefer this name to my full name, Carilyn) Jacobs. Now I'm wondering how many of you use a different name than your birth certificate states? But, I digress...
I live in Milwaukee, 53210.

I am writing to let you know I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103.

I have been fortunate enough to meet six trans individuals throughout my life. Five are adults and are highly intelligent, talented individuals who are not only valued for who they are as people, but also for their contributions to their communities and workspaces. Not one of them has used their trans identity as an attempt to try to get ahead in sports (or anything else on life) or to gain access to a different a bathroom. I mean really; why would anyone choose to identify as trans in today's dangerously unsupportive society? They have all gone through (and many continue to go through) substantial pain and heartbreak just to be recognized as their true selves.

One of the six individuals is a trans youth who is a remarkably strong, caring, and intelligent person. I can only imagine what this person is going through at this time. Not only is being a teenager hard enough, but when some family members aren't understanding and now society at large is trying to erase your very identity, I can only imagine how lonely, frightening and isolating it must feel. In the United States, many youth already feel unsupported and ostracized enough; that much is evident in the obscene amount of suicides and school shootings that take place. Trans youth have an additional level of social navigating to deal with and again, no one would choose to be trans for any reason other than to be true to who they actually are.

I'll close by saying that a good friend once told me that every single person is their own kaleidoscope image. Every single person is an array of colors and angles and patterns and, if you've ever clicked through a kaleidoscope, you'll know just how beautiful each and every array is AND that the variety and differences in each also bolster the others.

We are better together and stronger together. Don't pass these bills that are attempting to break the kaleidoscope. See the beauty in everyone instead.

Thank you,
Cari Jacobs

I am writing to strongly oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 36 years, serve our community as a social worker in the mental health field, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a safe and inclusive education free from harassment and discrimination.

I have worked with trans youth for years as both a school social worker as well as in the mental health field. Those who were able to have their names and pronouns affirmed on a consistent basis by their community were able to engage more fully in their education and felt safer in the school environment. Those who engaged in group activities such as sports or clubs were the most resilient and able to overcome their mental health challenges. I firmly believe that all humans deserve and require a place of belonging in life, and to take that away from trans youth via these bills is truly unacceptable.

AB 100, AB 103 - Testimony against

Hale Sink (legal: Haley Sinklair)
937 E Gorham St Apt 2
Madison, WI 53703

"I've walked these capitol corridors with conservative, free-market, and centrist organizations reporting on legislation back to 2013.

I've enjoyed the privilege of growing up and out of beliefs that rob individuality from people like my Grandfather, W. Harlow Duerst.

Harlow went by his middle name, denouncing his first name, shared with and assigned at birth by his domestically abusive and alcoholic father.

Grandpa Harlow was a Republican for 98 years, and the most peaceful Christian Lutheran man I've ever known.

He accepted me for me. Why can't we all do the same?

This bill denies the existence of the very individuality Assembly persons here cling to in their own being and arguments.

Not only do y'all not know what you're talking about in these bills, you don't even know who's in the room with you.

Robin Vos, you and your colleagues have TRans brothers and sisters within your own beloved Koch network. I would know, they cut my checks 2013-2016.

I ask that you abandon your assumptions about a deeply rational, emotional, and spiritual journey.

Lack of education does not give you reason to deny the fact that Trans people exist. They are your sons and daughters in the reddest counties asking for safety, just once.

The Trans and Queer community transformed me into a better person.

As a respite worker with Trans and Queer youth, your bills will kill kids.

Are you prepared to carry those deaths to the gates of your God, Representatives?

Make the right choice, vote against bills lacking power, lacking truth.

Pause for a moment.

To gain the knowledge I know you're capable of consuming and understanding.

Thank you, Representatives. Thank you Trans community. Thank you all for your time."

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103. I believe these bills are seeking to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports and use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right of trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools. My transgender child and all children deserve equal access.

My 17 year old child has been working through their transgender journey since they were 13 years old. Because of so many negative and painful experiences of judgement and discrimination they have slowly transitioned adding new ways of living in their gender identity with each phase - using they pronouns when entering high school then thoughtfully progressing to he when reaching 11th grade and feeling more confident, secure and supported in their community. The path he took isn't unusual. It mirrors many young people's exploration and discovery of self - the job that every young person is tasked with - to figure out who you are and how you can best contribute to our world.

AB100 and AB103 would take away my child's and all other children's right to be themselves and contribute their full selves to society. Because of my child's ability to be themselves he thrives as an A student, an athlete, a performer in theater and choir and student leader.

Please don't take these rights away from him. Please don't pass these harmful bills out of your committee.

Thank you

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education

I am writing to urge the Wisconsin state assembly to vote against bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills harm children and deny them equal opportunities. Transgender kids deserve the same opportunities as cisgender kids. Trans kids belong in school sports if they choose to participate. All school children deserve the opportunity to join a school team of their choice and explore their own athletic abilities. To bar any kids from school sports is truly unjust and unkind. This bill would directly harm trans kids and does not make cis kids safer. It's a wholly unnecessary legislative attack on a small number of children, which is sickening to me. Transgender kids and cisgender kids alike deserve to be addressed with the name and pronouns they use at home or with friends, while they are in school. The first day of school, most teachers will run down the class list and ask kids what name they use. Example: "Elizabeth? Do you go by your full name or a nickname?" The teacher asks each student this question because it shows respect for the student's autonomy. Kids deserve the right to change their names and pronouns whenever they want to, just as adults do. This should be a matter between a student and their teachers, and should not require parent notification. Name and pronoun changes can represent safety, autonomy, and authenticity for students. This bill is similarly unnecessary, and harmful to children who are exploring or embracing their identity.

I oppose both AB 100 and AB 103. First, Wisconsin was the first state in the nation with a broad anti discrimination policy for schools. Transgender and gender-nonconforming students have the right to be safe and be themselves at school. Wisconsin Statute 118.13 requires school districts to have a formal complaint process called "pupil nondiscrimination. Federal law prohibits discrimination based on sex, which includes gender identity, potentially requiring schools to accommodate students' preferred names and pronouns. Public schools have a responsibility to create a safe learning environment. Wisconsin school districts are required to comply with federal law prohibiting discrimination based on a student's sex-- and generally also gender identity. I implore the Education Committee to promote educational equity and access to educational opportunities for each student in our public schools through non-discriminatory policies.

To the members of the assembly Committee on Education

These bills will undoubtedly harm Wisconsin kids. I oppose both AB100 & AB 103.

First, the bill on banning transgender athletes will ostracize trans youth from enjoying recreational activities. Most of the time, kids are just participating in an after school activity for socialization and being involved with something. Why are we trying to restrict children from that? Additionally, at this age group, sports have very little to do with natural ability. If this bill is at all meant to allow "fairness" in sports based on the physical ability of children, the fact that children go through puberty at different rates throws that out the window. Two kids in 7th grade can have wildly different strengths, growth spurts, etc, and this bill completely overlooks that to vilify trans kids specifically. I strongly oppose this bill.

The Second bill will also harm kids. Why is the government trying to get its hands in how kids perceive themselves? Is the next bill going to restrict the use of nicknames, another way that kids and people self identify? I oppose this bill and its goal of the government to restrict kids self expression.

Dear assembly committee on education,

I am writing as a lifelong Wisconsin resident to express my concern about the new anti trans bills, AB100 and AB103. These bills do nothing to protect children. In fact they do the opposite by making trans children feel bullied and unsafe in school.

School is difficult enough for students. For students to succeed they need to feel like school is a safe place. By banning them from sports or refusing to use their pronouns as they request them, you are not only refusing them agency but are making them a target for bullying. Imagine a student who dresses masculine, goes by a masculine name, and at a quick glance LOOKS masculine, and forcing them to play on the woman's softball team, or be called 'she' in class.

These students already face so much discrimination and hate. How does refusing to use their chosen name or pronouns protect them or anyone else at the school? Alienating children like this will lead to more insecurity, more bullying, and likely higher rates of drop out and suicide.

Please protect trans youth. They deserve to be cared for in school just like every other student.

Best,

April Presnell

Legislature

I am a concerned Madison community member and am testifying about how these anti-trans bills frighten me because of the precedent they would set and the danger they would impose on our trans youth.

Transgender kids are so brave, and we should be celebrating their discovery of identity, not condemning it. They should be allowed to play sports with other children of their gender and be referred to by their correct name and pronouns.

I didn't know I was trans until college, and it was (and still is) a challenge to get people to respect my pronouns. If I had to manage the misgendering when I was a child, I'm not sure that I would have been able to cope. Students, especially those in middle and high school, have so much going on in their day-to-day and they deserve basic levels of respect so they have the energy to manage all the other things life is throwing at them. They shouldn't be forced to be deadnamed or misgendered every single day. That is a miserable and exhausting way to live. I want trans kids to grow up to be trans adults and these bills will be huge factors in preventing that. "The Trevor Project's 2023 U.S. National Survey on the Mental Health of LGBTQ Young People found that 41% of LGBTQ+ young people seriously considered attempting suicide in the past year, including roughly half of transgender and nonbinary youth¹". If you take away a sport they love and force them to be deadnamed and misgendered, that will certainly contribute to suicide rates among trans youth.

These bills will also set a dangerous tone and precedent, opening the door for more anti-trans legislation to be introduced in Wisconsin. Legislation of this kind will harm the safety of so many Wisconsinites, trans or otherwise. It's terrifying living as a trans adult in America today, I can't imagine the terror experienced by our trans youth. I felt the need to speak out because we all deserve to live in peace, not constant fear and dread.

Please reject these bills. They are dangerous and will lead to trans deaths, one way or another. We need to love and protect our trans communities, not destroy them.

Trans people have always existed and will always exist. You get to decide how many of us continue to exist and what our quality of life looks like. Please make the right choice.

Thank you for your consideration,

Morgan Adams

At a time when legislators' efforts could be spent on far more important issues, focusing on regulating pronoun use and a trans athlete ban is ridiculous and cruel. Trans kids threaten absolutely no one. Leave them alone.

To the members of the Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education:

Thank you for the opportunity to speak about AB100 (K-12 Trans athletic ban) and AB103 (restrictions on the use of pronouns for trans and non-binary youth).

These bills are breathtaking in their scope and the harm they can inflict, with no evidence that their good outweighs this harm.

Only 1.4% of all youth in the US ages 13-17 identify as transgender. I couldn't find statistics for Wisconsin, or national statistics for ages 12 and under. Why do you need AB100 when only a tiny number of youth identify as trans and it is likely that not all of those want to participate in sports? And what business is it of the state to legislate the use of pronouns? Why is it in the state's interest to interfere in this deeply personal part of people's lives? We have much more pressing issues in this state to address.

I want to remind you that it was in the late 1990s, that marriage equality for gay couples a hot button issue. Bills were introduced to ban or support gay marriage, and it was highly politicized. Miraculously, the more we as a nation talked about it, the more we became aware of family members who were gay, and became personal. Now a significant majority of Americans support gay marriage. In 2023, 80% of Wisconsinites approve of it.

Many of us are only recently, becoming aware and educated about what it means to be transgender. And only a few of us, especially in my generation, have transgender people in our lives. Thankfully this is beginning to change. My son and daughter have transgender people in their lives, including my daughter in law's trans sister. My 6 and 12 year grandchildren have transgender classmates, friends, even a teacher or two. They go with the flow.....they use pronouns fluidly and play in mix gender sports. It is no big deal to them; they are all human. They simply would not understand these bills, which sideline and vilify their family and friends.

Others will speak to the facts that should persuade you to say no to these bills. And facts are super important. As important is the consideration of the potential harm you inflict should these bills pass. You are trying to legislate being transgender out of existence and denying those who are transgender any agency....and all, it seems to fulfill a political agenda rather than address a pressing problem. I urge you to vote no on obit. Thank you,

Hello,

I am writing this testimony against current Wisconsin Bills AB100 and AB103. Hate has no place in our communities as marginalized identities continue to be attacked by the current presidential administration, and as a state, we must do everything in our power to resist the current wave of fascism that it has allowed to crop up and allow transgender youth to thrive and have a sense of community and welcomeness in spite of the Federal Government.

Dear members of the Assembly committee on Education ,

My name is Laura Komai, and I am a resident of Madison and business owner in Madison. I have lived in Madison for over 50 years and have always had great pride and love for this state. Unfortunately the Republican party has been testing that. Where is the dedication we had towards the ways that rural and urban communities depend upon each other, for our wonderful natural resources, for the foundation of public schools and access to education for everyone, and the fair treatment of all people? Where is the care for the way that success of our children brings success to our communities and our economy? I'm tired of the ways you are wasting time and resources, targeting innocent people who simply want to live their lives with the freedoms that you would expect for yourselves.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB 100/103. I am opposed to these bills because they interfere with the individual liberties of our children. Is this helping with rural transportation to schools? Is this helping create learning environments that are safe from gun violence? Is this helping with budget shortfalls and failure to keep up with inflation?

I really don't understand why politicians are so concerned with private lives in ways they would not tolerate in their own lives. I hope you will focus your time and attention on matters that will improve fairness and success of all children of Wisconsin.

Sincerely,

Hello,

My name is Drew Laser, and I am a Milwaukee county resident. I am writing to ask the assembly committee not to pass bills AB100 and AB103. Both of these bills are attempts to make life more difficult for trans and queer students. As a trans person myself, I understand the discomfort and pain that students go through when they feel left out and unsupported. There are so few of us, and we ask only for basic respect: to be addressed by the name and pronouns that feel comfortable to us, and to be included in our community. Trans children deserve to feel safe and comfortable at school. Banning trans kids from being in their preferred sports team and making social transition such as a name change or pronoun change a difficult bureaucratic process serves no one, and in fact creates harm. It also seems like it would create confusion — if we have to go through this process for any non-legal name, can no one go by nicknames? These bills are short-sighted attempts to make life even more difficult for a very small group of people who pose no threat and are generally just trying to exist. Please choose to be a kind person and to try to understand and support the people around you.

Thank you,

Drew

Hello,

Unfortunately I cannot make it in person, but I strongly oppose Bill AB 100 and AB 103.

At a time when teens in the area are committing suicide in alarming rates, and knowing the high rate of suicide attempts by transgender people, it is horrible that these bills are even introduced.

This is nothing more than grandstanding. Who are they protecting? No one. What are they "protecting" from? Reality. Not everyone is the same. That's life.

To single out and ostracize transgender students who are not hurting anyone, and simply trying to live their lives, is horrible.

While racist and homophobic people are being emboldened by the president, I ask you to stand up for what's right.

These bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

Hi,

I'm Wyatt Garlow, a Wisconsin resident and a Transgender person who is concerned about the bills AB100 & AB103. As a former transgender student who received education within Wisconsin schools, the possibility of Bills AB100 and AB103 passing into law are worrying to me.

For myself and many others, having the ability to have teachers/faculty use my chosen name and pronouns as well as the ability to play team sports was an extension of my freedom. Even if I was denied the possibility of being called my chosen name and pronouns by one teacher, there were many others that understood the importance and chose to respect my decision.

If Bills AB100 and AB103 are passed, not only are you restricting transgender students freedom of expression, you are creating an unsatisfactory and uncondusive environment for their learning. Students shouldn't have to worry about advocating for themselves the way I had to worry, and I hope my words don't fall on deaf ears.

Thank you for reading my testimony and I hope this may provide some insight.

Thank you,
Wyatt Garlow

My name is Noah Leigh and I am the school board president for the West Allis/West Milwaukee School district. However, today I am providing testimony only on behalf of myself, not the entire board of education since this was not a topic we had a chance to discuss as a board.

AB 100 and AB 103 are both bills that I have personal issues with in regards to the damage they could inflict on vulnerable students of my district. However, I am not going to focus on these concerns for my testimony, but keep it much broader in that both of these bills aim to strip my authority as a duly elected school board member for the district I serve and give that authority to the state.

As a school board member, I am elected to represent my constituents in regards to the operation of the West Allis/West Milwaukee et. al. school district. This includes the consideration and creation of policies that govern said school district. Bills AB 100 and AB 103 would force policies on my district, and all other school districts in the state of Wisconsin, circumventing the statutory authority granted to myself as an elected school board member.

As a school board member, there are many concerns that I aim to address in order to improve my district. The topics addressed in AB 100 and AB 103 are not topics that my constituents have brought to myself or the board as topics of concern. However, if these topics were ever a concern for my constituency, I would like the opportunity to address those concerns based on what is best for my district and not be restricted by the state in how to address those concerns.

In conclusion, I believe that AB 100 and AB 103 are an overreach by the state to exert control of decisions that should be made locally by the duly elected officials designated to make those decisions. I guarantee that there is no state representative or senator that understands the needs and concerns of the school district I represent better than myself. I ask that you allow me and my fellow board members to continue to serve our school district as informed by our constituency without interference from the state.

Respectfully,

Noah Leigh, President of the West Allis/West Milwaukee et. al school district"

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

As a parent, business owner, and advocate in Middleton Cross Plains School District of Dane County, I am writing to you in concern of bills AB100 and AB103 currently being considered, that would ban trans athletes from school sports.

I even more strongly am opposed to the idea that children are no longer allowed to use pronouns to which they feel comfortable with based on their gender identity.

I understand that federal funding may be withheld. However, I believe we as a state need to come together to find alternative funding sources for our schools.

The current administration's bullying tactics are disgusting and unconstitutional. I would encourage law makers and representatives of Wisconsin to not fall susceptible to the authoritarian, racist, xenophobic, homophobic, and exclusion-based leadership.

As a state we must stand strong to protect our children and families. Every child deserves the freedom of unadulterated and uncensored educational opportunities with freedom to express their own identity with respect from staff and peers.

Childhood and adolescence is already a challenging time of learning, growth, and development paired with social pressure and rejection. Our children do not need the additional pressure and stress of being surrounded by hate and targeted for their differences.

Many trans and LGBTQ+ children already face difficult navigation of their identities in families and in their community. They have some of the highest suicide rates of all children and demographics. Children and their families spend the majority of their waking hours at school and involved in school activities.

Taking away this protection in schools is inequitable, and quite frankly appalling. I urge you to carefully consider the consequences of Wisconsin families which should be our ultimate goal.

One aspect that makes Wisconsin unique is the culture of inclusion and community. In trying times we come together and we stand for what is right, regardless of what the rest of the world is doing.

Wisconsin was the first state to ratify the 19th amendment to allow women to vote, setting the precedent for equality within our state, our communities, and our families. We should remain steadfast in this commitment.

I strongly urge you to take this bill off of the table and allow children the safety, dignity, and respect they deserve within their school community.

My name is Dani O'Brien, and I am professor of education in Ashland, WI. My research and work focus on making schools safe, supportive spaces where all young people can thrive. I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103. These are harmful bills that will no doubt make schools more dangerous for transgender and non-binary students in our state. Queer students, and transgender students in particular, are at an increased risk of suicide. A recent peer reviewed study found that when states pass anti-trans laws suicide attempts among transgender and nonbinary youth increases by up to 72%. If you care about children, and their safety, you must oppose these bills. A 2023 study found that 48% of Wisconsin's LGBT youth have seriously considered suicide and we should be doing all we can to decrease that risk. Regardless of your political party or individual views, I hope you can see the harm that bills targeting transgender and non-binary students causes.

Please help save young Wisconsinites' lives by opposing these bills.

Members of the Assembly:

I am writing to express my opposition to AB100 and AB103.

I am the coparent of a wonderful young trans woman. She's intelligent, athletic, kind, gentle, and empathetic. She's a human being who's working to become a contributing, caring, and productive member of society. The bills being proposed are an attempt to strip my daughter, and other transgender children, of their humanity and right to exist as who they are. We—and it's no secret to any of us, including members of this body—know that rates of suicide amongst queer and transgender children are statistically higher when compared to other children. I've already started mourning the needless deaths by suicide that will occur because of bills such as these. I've already started mourning the irreparable mental harm these bills will have on our children. My daughter is loved and cared for, and despite the hatred purported by these bills, will be loved and supported by her parents who will do anything to protect her and to make sure she grows into the empowered woman she is. Other children won't be so lucky.

The State of Wisconsin has an opportunity to distinguish itself from other states and the federal government and to come out in support of our transgender children, family members, friends, and neighbors. Please—don't be a party to the death of our children. Vote no on these bills.

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee of Education,

My name is Lynette Miller, and I am a resident of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for fifty-five years. I have been a member of a Christian Church for all those years. There are youth in my church who have identified themselves as transgender or on the LGBTQ+ spectrum. They are very concerned about the way the government is targeting them. Some are even considering moving away.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because legislators are not trained to understand physical and mental sexual identity and are hurting these children and youth. I developed a little understanding about the variety of sexual identities from an acquaintance who studied psychiatry at Columbia University under a professor who worked with parents and babies around the world who were born without a definite sex.

There is great physical and psychological variation in people even in individuals of the same sex. Even if everyone on a team identifies as the same sex, there are going to be some who are better than others. Sports are for physical and social development. It is a place where people can learn to appreciate and work with a variety of people. A good coach will help the members of the team work as a team. Vote no on assembly bill 100.

I think we all want to be called by the name we prefer and be identified by the pronouns we associate with. Vote NO on assembly bill 103.

These bills discriminate against a group of people instead of treating people as individuals. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

Sincerely, Lynette Miller

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

As a trans/nonbinary Wisconsinite, I strongly oppose the proposed bills AB100 and AB103. The moral panic around trans kids is appalling and reactionary, and those who will be impacted by this bill are deeply vulnerable youth who will be made to feel even more ashamed of their existence than they already do. I suffered due to a lack of inclusivity in school and am saddened to see those in power fighting to intensify the oppressiveness of the environment. If you claim to support our state's youth, understand that these bills will cosign hatred and violence against those perceived as 'other' and the suicide rate among LGBT people will raise from its already horrifying level. Our lives are in your hands; please make the right choice.

Hello to the Assembly Committee of Education,

Thank you for your time today. My name is Emma Cholip and I'm a resident in Madison, Wisconsin. I'm writing this testimony to ensure the protection and inclusivity of trans youth. Particularly, this is in regards to their right to be in athletics and unfair legislation aggressively singling out this small portion of students because of their gender.

I am not a student athlete anymore, but the team spirit and inherent community that comes with being a part of a sports team, especially during formative years is immensely important for forming relationships and sportsmanlike conduct. Being a part of a team is a special experience that no one should be excluded from, especially not for their gender or transness. It helped shape me, a nonbinary person, into a more empathetic, well rounded person when I was with people who shared the same passion as me, and actively wanted me to be there.

Encouraging the exclusion of students who already feel alienated from the growing anti-trans climate in the United States is detrimental not only to the trans students, but to everyone alongside them as well. Our communities are only as strong as our weakest members; those who are most likely to experience violence, incarceration, and in the worst cases, suicide and homicide. The more we push trans youth to the side and allow them to suffer under the violent rhetoric that exists in these anti-trans bills being put forth, the more we're condemning ourselves to further division.

This testimony is for everyone who is no longer here to speak on it. To those who have been killed, merely for their existence. To those who ended their own life in fear of never being able to live as their authentic self. To those who are living on the streets, or homeless shelters, scorned by their families who failed to keep their promise of unconditional love. I am speaking for them, because I am able to, and they are not.

Do not let these anti-trans bills pass, do not give up on these children who are in the greatest need of support. They deserve to be protected. They deserve to be loved. They deserve to be included as they are, not who everyone wants them to be.

I deeply oppose bills AB100 and AB103, and can only stress that it will cause more pain. Do not let them continue on.

Thank you for your time.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB103 and AB100, both of which unfairly target transgender and gender non-conforming youth in Wisconsin. These bills create harmful barriers for students by restricting the use of preferred names and pronouns (AB103) and by prohibiting trans youth from participating in school sports consistent with their gender identity (AB100).

As a community member and advocate for youth well-being, I have multiple friends with transgender children, and I fear for their mental health and overall well-being if they are denied the right to be seen, respected, and included. Schools should be safe spaces where all students feel supported and valued, not places where their identities are erased or restricted. Denying students the ability to use their chosen names and pronouns isolates them, increases their risk of anxiety and depression, and sends a harmful message that they do not belong.

Furthermore, barring transgender youth from participating in school sports strips them of essential experiences—teamwork, confidence, and a sense of belonging—that should be available to all students. Research consistently shows that when trans youth are affirmed in their identities, their mental health outcomes improve significantly, while exclusionary policies cause lasting harm.

I urge you to oppose AB103 and AB100 and instead focus on policies that support the well-being of all Wisconsin students. Thank you for your time and consideration.

To the members of the Committee on Education,

As a cisgender female, I do not fear my transgender siblings nor competing with them. Furthermore, I am fully capable of taking care of myself in all situations and do not need your so-called "protection" of me.

AB100 would prohibit those assigned as males on their birth certificates from participating in sports usually ascribed to females. AB100 would also prohibit males from access to locker rooms assigned to females.⁸⁸ I P⁹⁹

While on its face these may seem reasonable, the reality is quite different. Further consideration of both bills indicates a troubling, and unnecessary, point-of-view that females are in need of protection from males. If this is not the case, why did you not propose a similar bill prohibiting those assigned as females from participating in sports usually ascribed to males? Let me be very clear that I would oppose such a bill as a violation of Title IX and the Senate rejection of a bill excluding transgender students from school sports (<https://www.aclu.org/press-releases/senate-rejects-bill-excluding-transgender-students-from-school-sports>.)

AB103 would require schools and their staffs to address students solely by their legal name as stated on their birth certificate and refer to students using solely pronouns that are consistent with the gender ascribed to them on their birth certificate. This would shut down students' process of inquiry into who they are and who they want to be and isn't restricted to names and pronouns but also education and career paths. AB103, which would restrict the speech of students, their families, teachers, and other school staff, based solely on content of such speech, is also likely a violation of the First Amendment.

For all of the reasons stated above, please do NOT go forward with AB100 and AB103.

Thank you.

Regarding AB100 and AB103
6 March 2025

Hello, I'm Amie Hoag, and I've lived in Wisconsin most of my life. I've chosen to raise my daughter here because I know the people of Wisconsin are some of the most genuinely kind people on the planet. What is represented in AB100 and AB103 does not represent Wisconsin.

I'm reading a book called An Immense World by Ed Yong. This book explores the senses of the animal kingdom, laying out the way mammals, birds, insects, fish, and reptiles experience the world around them, and how different it is from the way humans experience that same world. It even goes so far to explore how human beings experience some senses, like the sense of smell, in wholly unique ways. For some people, for example, sweaty gym socks smell like vanilla. Imagine that. Doesn't smell like vanilla to me.

Why am I talking about sweaty gym socks when we're talking about transgender kids in Wisconsin? Because this is just one illustration of how each one of us experiences this vast and mysterious world in our own unique way, and it's harmful to assume that the way I experience the world is the only way to experience the world — or the right way to experience the world.

This legislation, AB100 and AB103, take aim at a remarkably vulnerable part of our population. Children are already naturally vulnerable, and children who are being told they can't be who they know at their core they are? Well, they are the ones we need to protect the most.

These pieces of legislation amount bullying for that vulnerable population and fear-mongering for the broader population. I took a look at the numbers.

- * According to the Williams Institute at UCLA, 0.6% of the US population age 13 and older identifies as transgender.
- * In Wisconsin, there are a little more than 412,000 middle and high school students, about 7% of our state's total population of 5.961 million.
- * If you apply that nation-wide percentage to the middle and high school populations in Wisconsin, that means we have about 2,472 transgender students in the state of Wisconsin, which amounts to about 0.04% of our state's total population.
- * Let's go a little further. Wisconsin has 359 middle schools and 514 high schools, for a total of 873. That means there is an average of fewer than 3 transgender students at each school. Hardly enough to make a sports team out of, and certainly not a burden to learn the preferred names of.

Now, I know that transgender numbers are certainly underreported — and who could blame a kid for hesitating to share who they really are in an environment like this? But if you take those numbers at face value, that means this body is targeting 0.04% of our state's population, an average of less than 3 kids per school. If that isn't bullying, what is?

Laws like these not only make our state less safe for this small population of vulnerable kids, they make it less safe for every single person. Because where will you draw the line? How about you draw it right here and vote no on this discriminatory and bigoted legislation.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Good morning,

As a resident of Thiensville WI, a practicing healthcare professional, and a concerned parent, I am writing to declare my opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. These proposals represent the willful ignorance and abject hatred of bigots seeking to alienate and intimidate marginalized children. Such heavy-handed measures will do little but create fear, perpetuate discrimination, and legitimize violence. This is unacceptable.

I ask you as an active voting constituent, to please reject AB 100 and AB 103.

Dear Legislator,

As a citizen of Wisconsin, I'm again demanding that you respect our youth as each human has the right to be cared for and nurtured.

RE AB 100: Denying young people their right to play on sports teams is preposterous. There are so many better things to legislate, for example, keeping guns out of the hands of people who would use them to hurt others in Wisconsin. AB100 prevents children from developing their social and physical skills. They need those skills to thrive as citizens, consumers and taxpayers. All young people deserve to play sports. Let's be adults about this and stop trying to control people. It's ridiculous.

RE AB103: Every person has the right to be addressed in a respectful manner. This starts in childhood, when young people begin to develop autonomy. In our FORWARD-thinking neighbor to the south, Chicago, students are addressed with the names and pronouns they prefer. This allows them to concentrate on their school work, get better grades and grow up to be citizens and consumers that contribute to society.

Giving the children the rights they are owed will happen. Younger generations don't trifle with such nonsense and soon they'll be in your position.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Drew Kohrs and I live in Fitchburg, Wisconsin. I oppose both AB 100 and AB 103 bills. Transgender and gender non-conforming students deserve an opportunity to play amateur sports. These bills are a cruel attempt to further isolate kids who already feel different.

In research published by Kaiser Permanente, transgender youth are more likely to be diagnosed with mental health conditions than young people who identify with the gender they were assigned at birth. A team sport could be the support one kid needs to feel included!

Getting the opportunity to play, and to compete, and to grow as a person? Everyone should have access to that.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Samuel Rouleau, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. Such policies would only alienate and isolate children who are trans, with no justifying benefit to any child, trans or not.

I believe AB100 specifically is clear government overreach. The matter of determining who is eligible to compete in any athletic competition should be solely up to the parties directly involved in hosting the event. There is no reason that the state government should intervene.

Regarding AB103, children that hide their being trans from their parents usually have legitimate reasons to do so, and forcing faculty and staff to report students who ask to use a different name or set of pronouns will cause more harm than good. The enactment of this bill will lead many children to bottle up their pain in fear of straining their relationship with their parents, and a child who doesn't tell anyone about their struggles can't get help from anyone.

As one of your constituents, I ask you to vote against both AB100 and AB103.

Sincerely,

Subject: Opposition to AB100 and AB103 – Protecting the Rights and Dignity of Transgender Students

Dear Members of the Wisconsin State Legislature,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103, two bills that would harm transgender students in Wisconsin by restricting their participation in sports and limiting their ability to be recognized by their chosen names and pronouns in schools. These measures not only violate fundamental principles of equality and dignity but also place undue government interference in deeply personal matters that should be handled with compassion, not legislation.

Every child deserves to be treated with respect and fairness, and these bills send a dangerous message that transgender youth are unwelcome or unworthy of the same rights as their peers. Studies have shown that affirming a child's gender identity reduces rates of depression, anxiety, and suicide. By enacting policies that single out and discriminate against trans students, Wisconsin would be ignoring the overwhelming evidence that acceptance and inclusion create safer, healthier communities. Additionally, these bills undermine the autonomy of local school districts, teachers, and parents, inserting state lawmakers into private decisions that should be made by those who best understand and care for each individual student. Restricting the use of correct names and pronouns not only disrespects transgender students but also sets a dangerous precedent of government overreach into educational spaces.

I urge you to reject AB100 and AB103 and instead focus on policies that support all Wisconsin students. Our state should be a place where every child—regardless of gender identity—feels safe, valued, and empowered to thrive. Please stand on the right side of history and protect the dignity and rights of transgender youth.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will choose to affirm Wisconsin's commitment to equality and fairness.

Sincerely,

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Rev. Rachel Young Binter and I am a resident of Milwaukee, residing at 1830 N 51st Street, 53208. I am also the mother of a trans daughter and served as a pastor to many trans and non-binary youth in my former call as a Lutheran campus pastor at UW-Milwaukee.

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103, which would strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

These bills actively discriminate against and harm children born with a whole body that does not conform to the gender assigned to them at their birth based on a part of their body. These bills also actively dismiss the science that documents that there is and always has been gender diversity within the chromosomes, hormones, brains, and organs of human beings and that this means intersex, non-binary, and transgender people have always existed within the human population.

Children within these minority populations already face tremendous obstacles in navigating the world and society, with 82% of all transgender individuals having considered suicide and a full 40% attempting. A recent peer reviewed study by the Trevor Project found that suicide attempts increase as much as an additional 72% for transgender and gender nonconforming teenagers in states that pass anti-transgender laws aimed at minors.

As a mother and pastor to trans people, these numbers are not abstract to me. They represent gifted, beautiful young people that I know and love - many of whom almost did not make it as they fought to find their way in a world that is fearful and turned against them. They include my own most precious child, who I carried into existence through my own body, held at my chest as my first born, and have loved since her first breath. My daughter is funny and smart and adored by her family and friends. She gives back to our community daily in the challenging work she does compassionately caring for vulnerable populations of people in the emergency room of a local hospital. She is an advocate for the least among us, as taught to her by her pastor mother, the congregations in which she grew up, and the teachings of Jesus Christ. She grounds my life with her wisdom and makes me a better Christian every day through the witness of her own courage.

Like so many parents of trans children, however, I almost lost her as she faced the struggle of coming out. She knew I would advocate for her life, but she knew the rest of the world would not, and it was the hardest thing she has ever done, but she knows if she hadn't done it, she wouldn't be alive. She is here and contributing to the world with power and grace because she has chosen to stop fighting who God created her to be and has finally allowed others to see her as I trust God has always seen her. Yet I constantly live with the fear that someone will beat her or take her life because we live in a society that is demonizing her very existence. There is nothing holy about denying people the right to exist as God created them to be. Jesus, in the Gospel of Matthew, says of the gender nonconforming people of his time, the eunuchs, "For there are eunuchs who were born that way, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others—and there are those who choose to live like eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. The one who can accept this should accept it."

I don't know why government officials feel they can legislate against people Jesus himself accepted and against a biblical witness that uplifts again and again our need to love and care for those who are vulnerable in our society. I don't know why the life of my daughter and other children, who it is proven will gain strength to live by being able to play sports with friends and be called by the names and pronouns that affirm their innermost being, are being actively targeted by laws that will take their lives away from them. I don't know why sports are considered more holy than the life of a human being, especially when people of all genders have widely different levels of strength, agility, and capacity. (I can assure you, my daughter would be no threat on any sports team, even before estrogen decreased her strength and muscle mass). I don't know why scientific knowledge of the diversity of humankind is being ignored in order to punish innocent children who want to thrive in the bodies given to them.

This legislation is cruel and defies what has proven to be true, which is that the lives of gender nonconforming children are stabilized by even one caring adult or institution. As a mother who lives every day swallowing down the fear that her child will come to harm in a world mounting against her and that I will face the greatest fear of her life being taken away from me, I beg you to oppose this legislation. I beg you on behalf of myself, I beg you on behalf of the two other women I work with with trans children and every parent of a trans child, and I beg you on behalf of our society that needs the gifts our children bring to the world. In my many years of campus ministry, it was so often my trans and nonbinary students who brought the biggest and most caring hearts into the room, because they knew how life saving it was to have someone care for them and this is true of my child as well. I believe this is why Jesus tells us that salvation will come from the least among us. May we listen to him and protect those who carry in their very holy, God-created bodies our own path into the kingdom of heaven.

Sincerely,

Rev. Rachel Young Binter

Dear Representatives,

My name is Justin Marquez, and I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting this written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills. I do not want any child to feel unsafe and unwanted simply because of who they are or how they see themselves. In school, I had a couple friends who identified as transgender and it was hard to watch others disregard their identity, whether intentionally or not. Living each day having to face ignorance or malice must be incredibly tiring and sad, and I do not want kids today to have to experience what they did. I now identify as transgender as well, and I am fortunate to be a part of a loving and accepting community. All I want is for trans kids to find their own community, and to not be alienated due to legislation.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. Enacting these bills will enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB100 and 103.

Thank you,
Justin Marquez

Kattarina Kaybee
Regarding the Assembly Committee on Education
March 4th, 2025

My name is Kat Kaybee and I am a resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am testifying against Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. I was an elementary teaching assistant at a character-education-based charter school for four years, and I'm a trans/non-binary adult who was out to my school community - teachers, students, and parents alike. I am sickened by the lack of compassion and understanding being shown in these bills, and the insertion of the government in the private business of individuals.

During my time in the classroom, I interacted with hundreds of different students. A handful of these children were trans/non-binary, but for most students, I was the first out trans person that they met. Let's talk about me as a trans adult in that space. Do you want to know what impact my transness had on them? For cis students, it made them aware of another type of person they can encounter in the world. It confused them sometimes, just like any new piece of information might confuse someone as they add that information to what they already know, but that's to be expected as kids learn about new things in the world. But for trans students, my transness gave them an adult they could trust and be honest with about their inner feelings of self - someone who actually understood what they were going through.

Transness is being talked about as this big, scary, deviant "other" when it's just another way of being. The trans/non-binary children who passed through my classroom were just like any other kid. They had homework to worry about, soccer tryouts to practice for, piano lessons they were dreading, friends who ate lunch with them every day... And teachers who loved them and wanted to provide a caring, nurturing environment for them to grow to be their best selves. For some kids, that's going to mean social transitioning, a.k.a. going by a different name and different pronouns. And some kids who want to start that social transition don't have adults at home who would respond with care and nurturing like their teacher would. This is what adults who are afraid of children transitioning are missing.

There are countless situations where the only adult a child trusts is at school, for whatever the reason may be. Likewise, there are important, overlooked reasons that some children are asking teachers to call them a new name/new pronouns without asking their parents the same thing. These kids are having to do the hardest and saddest thing a kid could ever have to do - weigh whether or not their adult at home is a safe adult or not. I know that sounds harsh against those parents - I know that those parents are worrying about what is best for their child. They fear permanent change that'll be regretted, or they fear damnation, or they simply fear something they're unfamiliar with. But outing a kid to parents who would keep their kid from transitioning doesn't make the feelings of transness go away - it puts them in danger, and pushes them away further, showing them exactly who they can and can't trust with their truest self. If a kid doesn't want their parents to know they are trans, the issue isn't the teachers at school "hiding" this information. The issue is parents who let fear overcome their responsibility to love UNCONDITIONALLY. Why does that kid not want their parents to know? What resources can we provide to support children who don't feel safe to be themselves at home and who don't feel that trust with their guardian? What resources can we provide their guardians? Why do we think banning the change of names and pronouns in schools will make children "safer" when it'll just cut us off from them even further, and leave them vulnerable, hurting, and lost, stuck in a space where they have to worry about personal safety and their rights as an individual, instead of homework and piano lessons? Why are we continuing to believe false claims that trans athletes are taking over sports and introducing bills that will alienate, harm, and dehumanize ALL children - not just trans ones - who just want to play sports and have fun? What actual concrete evidence shows these bills are necessary and not just a Republican attempt to control, belittle, and eliminate a group of people that they have such a baffling hate for?

Children's lives will be put into jeopardy if we rip away these rights to individual privacy and individual determination. Government doesn't get a say in this. Government doesn't NEED a say in this. Fight against Assembly Bills 100 and 103 and stop the misunderstanding and unjustified fear-mongering.

I appreciate your consideration of this testimony in these matters.

Representatives,

My name is Ani Miskowski. I am a resident of Milwaukee. While I believe that there is plenty of evidence detailing the harm Assembly Bills 100 and 103 will cause, part of me fears that those points do not matter to you. I fear that hearings like these have become an easily dismissible formality where the physical presence of a committee is meant to placate us. I hope I'm wrong. I cannot force you to open your hearts, and I would not want to. All I have is my hope that you will let yourself hear me.

I was born into a God-fearing family. We went to church every week. We communed with people who shared our faith and our values. But despite all of the faith that my parents claimed to have, they were afraid every day, afraid of making even one misstep, afraid of others, afraid of themselves, afraid of God, and afraid of punishment. That fear destroyed our relationship. I was not brave enough to ask them then, so I ask you now, those of you with open hearts who truly believe trans children are hurting themselves and genuinely want to protect them:

What if you're wrong? What if God's priority isn't the names or pronouns of these children but whether they are accepted and loved? What if trans children are not perverting their bodies but are transcending them, embracing a divine energy inspired by God?

I can't answer for you. I understand it might be scary to grapple with these questions regardless of what faith you may or may not hold. Your mind might conjure memories of shame or even physical punishment, times where you were deemed not masculine or feminine enough. Or perhaps you witnessed others receiving similar treatment and vowed to avoid it. Your instinct might be to defend these corrections, to insist they were acts of love, but you know what it feels like to be loved. Love is incompatible with the rejection of mental and physical autonomy. Do you know how it feels to find joy in who you are only for someone else to insist "You are who I say you are." If you know how that feels, if you remember that confusion and frustration, how can you carry that pain forward? How can you give it to children?

I feel sorry for you. Because I see the joy in these children. I see the love and transformation they bring to their families. Why don't you trust their joy? What messaging have you received that taught you their truth is in opposition to yours?

The only people you are protecting with these laws are yourselves, and, while you might feel like you've done something good (despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary), you are also holding yourself back. You are running away from your cognitive dissonance because you are afraid of what will happen if you're honest. As long as you avoid honesty, you will never know true peace. I do not want you to be trans if you're not trans. I do not want you to change your name unless you'd like to. I want you to have the freedom to celebrate differences in others and in yourself without fear of punishment. I want these children to lead long, happy, and fulfilled lives.

I beg you to use this moment and your power to show trans children love and acceptance. You have the ability to reject these bills and their rhetoric, and, furthermore, you have a moral responsibility to do so. All it takes is one moment to choose to embrace change. Aren't you tired of being afraid?

Compassionately,

Ani

My name is Sloan Greenheck and I oppose bills AB100 and bill AB103.

All children deserve safe and supportive environments. Encouraging knowledge, learning, and self exploration is the purpose of education. By restricting a child's access to education and acceptance of gender expression, irreparable harm WILL be caused.

I am nonbinary. I am scared. I can only imagine how horrifying it is to live as a child in this political climate. Please do not make children feel less safe.

Thank you.

Waterloo, WI

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Aislinn Hutchinson and I am a concerned resident of the city of Madison. I've lived in Wisconsin for five years and have called Madison home for all of them. I am a business owner, spouse, and active member of my community. I am also trans. I am testifying on bill AB100 and AB103. I am testifying both about allowing trans youth to participate in sports according to their identified gender as well as their ability to use their chosen name and pronouns in school.

I am testifying about this because I myself just came out as non-binary this year. I am also a former college D1 athlete, and sports were and are my entire life. I recently had to find a new league to play hockey in because all of this hate that is being spread towards trans people is becoming a problem everywhere. My league tried to ban all trans players, including non-binary players. This significantly impacted my mental health as hockey is the place I go to play, have fun with my friends, decompress, and get physical activity. There was absolutely no scientific reason for banning athletes like myself from participating in sport, and the same thing is happening to youth if this bill is passed.

I wanted to share my story because I believe all PEOPLE should have the right and access to sport, as well as to use the pronouns of their choosing. Sports, and feeling safe in a dressing room are so important. This is a place where youth are able to learn skills about teamwork, camaraderie, and how to accept one another but this bill creates a scenario in which people will be taught to fear and discriminate against their trans peers. We are just people, wanting to respectfully be shown respect and honor like any human person deserves. The way this bill specifically targets trans youth is abhorrent and I will not stand for it in my community. Madison is a welcoming community for all trans and queer people and I have never felt safer to be myself in a community. Passing these bills will create an environment where others can openly hate and fear monger them when all they want is to be accepted for who they are. Just believe them. How does it affect you? Do you know a trans person? Have you loved a trans person? I do, and I have, and they are the most caring people who know themselves deeply, and just want to exist with the same human rights and decency that cis people get. Please, just leave the trans kids alone.

I wish I had access to language like non-binary or trans when I was a kid this age, I would have known myself a lot better then. It took me 29 years to come out. I have never been happier, or thriving more than I am today. I have never felt safer in sport when others use my pronouns and allow me in their locker rooms. Please don't let youth have to deal with hatred from this young of an age. I barely made it to 29 years old, and a lot of these kids will not survive passing a bill like this. Suicide rates dramatically decrease when we allow kids to be themselves, and to be recognized by others as themselves. My solution is to allow kids to use the pronouns of their choosing, because why does it affect you to respect what someone wants to be called? Let trans kids play sports with their gender, because there is no real difference in athletic ability at these ages, and we all just want to play.

Thank you for taking the time to read my story, and I urge you to think about these kids as people, trying to figure themselves out, instead of as some scary group of people that the media and leaders of this country have decided are bad and wrong. Thank you for your consideration of these matters and solutions, it is very much appreciated.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 30 years. I came as a teen from California and could never leave because I felt more at home in Madison than I have ever felt. But lately I've found myself questioning if this is where I can stay. If Wisconsin is where I want my children to go to high school and college? Why would they stay in this place if we pass bills that restrict the rights of others who are doing nothing more than asking to live as their authentic selves?

As you consider your vote today, I'm asking you to think about the children of today and tomorrow who these bills truly affects. What do you have to lose? What do you have to gain?

I personally have loved ones who, in the past few years, have been able to be their authentic selves, to go to school and use the pronouns that reflect who they truly are. Passing this bill would take away their comfort, their safety, their ability to live as who they truly are meant to be. I have gained the honor of knowing Trans youth who make our community a better place.

But, if these bills pass, I have so much to lose. I lose knowing the people I love as they authentically are. I lose seeing the people I love who can live safely and who feel comfortable living their lives in our community, this community, where they were born and raised and want to be able to stay. These bills are nothing more than a way of telling someone they don't belong. That's not the Wisconsin way. That's not who we are. Please consider the people who would truly be affected by these bills and support their rights to be who they are.

Trans youth deserve the right to participate in sports, and to use the pronouns that reflect who they are. Please vote in a way that supports the inclusive community we know and can be proud to be a part of.

Thank you for your support,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

My name is Kelsey Foster (she/her). I am a lifelong Wisconsin resident, and I write today in opposition to Assembly Bill 103. I have also written in opposition to Assembly Bill 100, because I see these bills as two pieces of the same problem: Certain legislators have gotten very confused about what their jobs are. Instead of working to address the real challenges that face all Wisconsinites, they are wasting time and taxpayer money on being hateful, divisive bigots. I don't know where they got the idea that their roles as state legislators have anything at all to do with telling kids what they can and can't be called. That is blatant government overreach. Calling someone by the name and pronouns they choose does no one any harm, and in fact can be hugely beneficial for trans youth, some of the most vulnerable members of our communities.

We have actual problems in the state of Wisconsin that our elected representatives could be addressing. Please, stop targeting kids and get back to work.

Thank you.

To members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I oppose Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Trans youth deserve to learn and participate by playing on sports teams and using locker rooms that match their authentic gender. They also deserve to use the name and pronouns they identify with at school. Every person has the right to be and to belong. This is what schools and school sports are for. Learning to appreciate each other's differences and how they contribute to the whole (as well as make us stronger). By not allowing students to be themselves, we are contributing to their mental health problems which is detrimental to not just them but other students and society at large. Please consider sending a message that we are here to love one another and unite in the acceptance of trans youth. They deserve to belong as themselves in schools and extracurricular activities.

Dear Assembly Education Committee members,

My name is Laura Stoesz, and I am a licensed professional counselor in training with a Master's of Science in Counseling from the University of Madison. These are my own views, and they are informed by psychological science. As a psychotherapist, I work with children and adults who have been harmed by anti-trans legislation like AB 100 and AB 103. I ask that you vote no on both these bills because they will harm children and adults in our state, leading to public health impacts, lost productivity and creativity, and lost faith in your work as politicians.

Trans, gender nonconforming, and nonbinary people have always existed. It is society's prejudiced views, policies, and actions that harm non-cis people, not their gender identity. The evidence in scientific literature is clear. As researcher Ilan Meyer established in his seminal 2003 peer-reviewed paper, "stigma, prejudice, and discrimination create a hostile and stressful social environment," which leads to mental health problems and can lead to negative physical health effects. (Meyer, "Prejudice, social stress, and mental health in lesbian, gay, and bisexual populations: Conceptual issues and research evidence," Psychological Bulletin, 2003). We have known this for over twenty years, and yet bills like these continue to inflict minority stress on people, causing public health impacts that reverberate for decades.

Lost productivity and creativity: As nonbinary author Alok Vaid-Menon says in Beyond the Gender Binary, "Gender non-conforming people face considerable distress not because we have a disorder, but because of stigma and discrimination. There is nothing wrong with us, what is wrong is a world that punishes us for not being normatively masculine or feminine." Pronouns are a zero-cost affirmation of identity. If you could affirm a child with a word, why would you refuse to do it? I'm not talking about potentially hurtful words. Using a correct pronoun or name is morally neutral, costs nothing, and affirms a child without harming another person. The discomfort of the person being asked to use the correct name or pronoun is not harm; dysphoria is. Dysphoria is traumatic, and the more gender nonconforming children and adults are forced to experience it, the more trauma builds up, leading to challenges in life functioning, just as we see in PTSD, and in fact, sometimes rising to the level of clinical PTSD. This mental trauma of being misidentified, stigmatized, and ostracized has a social cost, as traumatized people often need additional support from friends, family, or social systems. Traumatized people and their allies pay the cost, but so does society, when a person's potential goes underutilized and their relationships and lives are affected by trauma. Some people still excel despite these stacked odds, like trans athletes, and they are my inspiration.

Trans-inclusive sports can still be fair. Trans athletes in sports aligned with their gender should be allowed to compete. Overcoming transphobia and adapting to changing bodies are challenge enough for trans athletes. They should not be subjected to exclusionary practices just to be able to enjoy their sport. Far worse outcomes can and do happen to girls and women in sports than competing with trans athletes, who pose no threat to safety. Look at the recent US Olympic Gymnastics team and how many were systematically abused by a cis male team medical provider, who did present a threat to safety and who was allowed to continue far too long. Look at the intrusive testing being proposed to police women's categorization as women just to participate in their sport. Inflicting this testing would be traumatizing, objectifying, and unnecessary.

Lost faith in you as an elected official: It's not a good look to be anti-trans. It may seem politically expedient now, when others are attacking trans rights. But in the years to come, anti-trans politicians will suffer the consequences of alienating so many people -- allies, loved ones of trans people, folks who come to realize what brilliant, beautiful contributions trans people bring to society. I watch Roller Derby, a sport that is inclusive of trans athletes, BECAUSE it is inclusive of trans athletes. At games, I get to witness gender diversity, excellence in sport, and welcome for all. At the most recent game, competitors wore shirts that affirmed, "Trans Athletes Belong Here." There was a palpable joy in the arena and on the bleachers. Children clamored to high-five all the athletes at the end of each game. This is the positive impact inclusion can have: sportsmanship, compassion, and inclusion. Who doesn't support those values? Anyone who votes for AB 100 or AB 103.

Sincerely,

Laura Stoesz, M.S., LPC-IT

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing today to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

My name is Astrid Hooper Lofton and I am a Madison resident. I studied Human Development and Family Studies at the University of Wisconsin- Madison. While there, I took an internship through Madison School & Community Recreation where I worked in a middle school afterschool program and helped run summer school.

While there, I worked with some of the Trans students who will be impacted by AB100 and AB103 if they are passed. I think about them and what they will experience going on to highschool and how they would be excluded from participating in extracurricular sports or potentially be forced to go by an incorrect name or pronoun. The intense shame and othering this would cause is hard to imagine, and trying to do so breaks my heart.

Recently, my family lost my step-sister to suicide. She was a Trans woman. I hope you all keep in mind the undisputed fact that the Trans community faces much higher rates of depression, anxiety, and suicidality than cisgender people as you discuss these bills. Constant discrimination from unaccepting communities is what drives those statistics. I do not believe there is enough reason to pass these bills. All the reasons not to, however, are perilously important as they may save the lives of our Trans youth.

Thank you for your time,

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

As an ordained pastor in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and a resident of Wisconsin, I strongly oppose AB 100 and AB 103. These bills undermine the basic human dignity that should be afforded to all people, including our transgender neighbors, friends, and family members. My faith calls me to recognize and affirm the worth of every person as a beloved child of God, and these bills fail to honor that fundamental truth.

Beyond the harm they cause to transgender individuals, these bills also place undue burdens on families, educators, and school staff—forcing them into impossible positions that fracture trust and create fear where there should be care and support. Policies that target and marginalize vulnerable populations do not reflect the values of compassion, justice, and equity that should be afforded to all residents of Wisconsin.

I urge you to reject these harmful measures and instead work toward laws that uplift and protect the dignity of all Wisconsinites. We are called not to create division, but to care for one another in love.

Dear Members of the Assembly Bill on Education,

I am writing to oppose Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

For Bill 100, I am opposed because school sports are not professional sports. All children and youth are still developing and develop at different rates regardless of gender and that includes transgender kids. Blocking transgender children and youth maintains them as second class participants and reminds me of the days when girls were only allowed to play half-court basketball, or were only allowed to wear dresses and skirts, or when we forced left-handed children to try to become right-handed--all within my parents' lifetime. All children and youth play and participate in athletics because first and foremost it's fun, it's something they enjoy. In a world where transgender children and youth are more likely to be bullied. Studies from the National Institute of Health show that 53% of cisgender boys and girls are likely to be bullied, but that rate is 83% for transgender kids. Disallowing trans children and youth from participating in athletics, including locker room use, contributes to the sense of isolation and poor mental health and well-being, as shown in that same study. Inclusion of transgender children and youth has the opposite effect of building self-esteem and acceptance among all children and youth, including both transgender and cisgender kids. The percentage of transgender youth ages 13-17 is less than 1.5 percent of the entire U.S. youth population. We are talking about a small number of children and youth who just want to be treated like everyone else. Please oppose Assembly Bill 100 to assure fair treatment and mental well being for all of our children and youth.

For Bill 103, I am opposed because people change names and use nicknames all the time. Are we going to not allow children to use the nickname they prefer? Are we going to insist they use the last name they are registered in, even if they are not in the custody of that parent and choose to use a different family last name? This is an unnecessary bill. For transgender children and youth, studies have shown that using their preferred names and pronouns boosts self-esteem and mental well-being. This is the same for cisgender children. I myself was given a nickname by my family that has been used my whole life; when someone uses my full legal name I know they do not know me personally and do not know who I really am. I know other cisgender adults who were given a nickname by their family and as they became teens they stopped using it because they found it didn't fit. Why would we do this to children and youth? This seems unnecessarily cruel. Allow children and youth to use the names they prefer. Pronouns are also a similar way of declaring who someone is, and it seems rather ridiculous to tell someone they aren't who they know themselves to be. But not only is it ridiculous, it is harmful, and contributes to bullying. Studies from the National Institute of Health show that 53% of cisgender children and youth are likely to be bullied, but that rate is 83% for transgender kids. This seems like a waste of legislation to target a small percentage (less than 1.5% of all children and youth in the U.S.) and would also affect cisgender children who use a different name at school. Vote no on Assembly Bill 103.

I have never written a testimony before. But as a transgender individual living in Wisconsin I have to speak out against Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

In regards to AB 100. I was a freshman in highschool when I started socially transitioning. The importance of being called the appropriate name and be correctly gendered cannot be overstated. Socially transitioning is just as important as medically transitioning, especially when gender affirming healthcare is not always accessible. Principals and schools should not be allowed to discriminate against their transgender students. They should not be able to inflict their personal beliefs to harm trans youth. Calling someone by their correct name is a sign of respect and acknowledgement that causes no one harm and does not cost anything. Legal name changes are a lengthy process should not be required in order to be called the correct name.

In regards to AB 103. It is unfair to target and discriminate against any child who wishes to participate in school activities. The legislators who are looking to impose this bill, and the countless others across the nation, are in a fight against literal children. There is an insignificant number of trans kids in athletics that are being harassed by conservative ideology. They are seeking to exclude them because they do not agree with their personal decisions.

Please let me know if this is sufficient! I hope to hear back from you confirming that you have received this and it will be some use!

My name is Maks Kopish, I am a constituent from La Farge, WI (54639). I've lived in Vernon County for the past six years, and I am in training to become an interfaith minister. Four years ago, I decided to change my name with the realization that my interior self is much more masculine-leaning than people would assume based on the sex (female) and name I was assigned at birth.

I discovered that there is a name for a feeling I had my entire life, the feeling of not really fitting within the category of "girl" or the social expectations of girl/womanhood. The word is dysphoria. Gender dysphoria is what I felt when I'd open birthday presents from my mom to find pink clothes, barbie dolls, and heart-shaped jewelry, when my young self wanted army men, spy gadgets, and science books. Gender dysphoria is what I felt when I had to wear a dress to prom and felt like a man in drag. Despite being biologically female, I have never fit within the box of girl/womanhood, and I knew it from the earliest age I can remember.

Changing my name and adopting gender neutral pronouns (they/them) was a massive relief for my mental and emotional health. I immediately felt more confident, happy, and excited about life. I was getting to know myself better, no longer hiding under labels that always felt off. I was being more honest with my friends and loved ones about who I really am. Changing my name and pronouns was one of the most important and life-affirming things I've ever done. My only regret is that I was kept from my own truth for so many years trying to fit within a category I didn't belong.

Please do not cause misery for our kids. They have it hard enough with everything going on in the world. Just let them be themselves. Gender is not some big scary thing. Gender expression should be fun and interesting. Don't you want to know who people really are, in all of our wonderful and wild glory, and as our Creator, rather than our government, intends?

Please do not pass AB100 and AB103. Trans kids should be able to use the locker room that suits their self-understanding of their gender; and refusing to use a person's name and pronouns is not only supremely disrespectful but also massively harmful for that person's internal well-being and sense of self. Just let us be.

Thank you,

I am writing in regards to my opposition to Assembly Bills 103 and 100

As the parent of a trans person, I have witnessed how beneficial it is to have a trans person referred to as the chosen name and pronoun that identify as. Attacks on transgender people, especially youths have life long emotional and mental health difficulties. Those that have Gender Dysphoria are trying to live their true, authentic selves and school should be a place where they can focus on their education. Transgender is not a new concept, across the world many cultures have thousands of years of history that includes transgender people. Current focus on transgender people now is not about the best interest of them, it is emboldening a society of hate on a marginalized group and any vote to restrict their right to exist can only been seen as an act of hate.

Assembly Bill 100 is another needless assault on transgender individuals. It invites gender policing that could subject any woman to invasive tests or accusations of being "too masculine" or "too good" at their sport to be a "real" woman. It also reinforces the stereotype that women are weak. Women and girls who are trans face discrimination and violence that makes it difficult to even stay in school. According to the U.S. Trans Survey, 22 percent of trans women who were perceived as trans in school were harassed so badly they had to leave school because of it. The idea that women and girls have an advantage because they are trans ignores the actual conditions of their lives.

This letter is speaking out against bills AB100/AB103.

I am a parent of a cisgender child, but fully support the full inclusion of transgender athletes in sports at all levels. I believe that students, regardless of their gender identity, should have the opportunity to compete and thrive in a welcoming and equitable environment. Transgender students are already at greater risk for depression and anxiety. However, a 2022 study done by of the Human Rights Campaign (HRC Foundation) and the University of Connecticut 2022 LGBTQ+ Youth Study found that high school-aged transgender and non-binary student-athletes reported higher grades, lower levels of depression, and were less likely to feel unsafe at school than those who did not play sports.

In 2023, when the Wisconsin State Assembly signed off legislation limiting transgender participation in youth sports, author Barbara Dittrich (R) said she was aware of only six transgender athletes in Wisconsin. I don't have concerns with my daughter playing sports with transgender athletes. I do have increasing concerns on genital checks being required if any student's sex is called in question.

Transgender individuals, like all athletes, deserve respect, safety, and the ability to pursue their athletic goals without discrimination or exclusion. Inclusion in sports not only enriches the lives of transgender athletes but strengthens our collective commitment to fairness, teamwork, and community. By ensuring that everyone has access to play and compete, we foster a society that values diversity, acceptance, and human rights. I am calling on the Wisconsin state assembly to reject policies that discriminate against transgender athletes and instead champion efforts to ensure their equitable treatment and participation.

Together, we stand for inclusion, equality, and a future where all athletes belong.

My name is Liz Charewicz, and I am reaching out to you to respectfully urge you to oppose AB100 and AB103. These bills, which seek to ban transgender athletes from participating in sports and restrict of pronouns, represent an overreach of government authority and undermine the principles of fairness and individual liberty that, we, as Americans, hold dear. I am a mom of two boys who are heavily involved in youth sports within the City of Franklin, WI.

Contradicting values of limited government: Both bills unnecessarily increase government involvement and interfere with the lives of taxpayers like me. Decisions about sports participation and pronoun usage should be made by individuals--and not by the state. These bills impose a one-size-fits-all solution that disregard individual freedom public servants, like yourselves, were elected to fight for. As a parent, I am a consumer of youth sporting clubs. I don't think I want lawmakers to craft the policies and procedures of organizations my kids are involved in. These bills are a 100% overreach.

Undermining fairness: Transgender youth, like all children, deserve the opportunity to participate in sports and enjoy the benefits of teamwork, discipline, and physical activity. Excluding them from sports denies kids of these opportunities and sends a harmful message saying that they are not valued members of society. Fairness can be achieved through thoughtful policies that balance inclusion with competition, without resorting to blanket bans. If Boy Scouts of America can get the memo of gender identity why can't educated state lawmakers? I expect some follow up to help me understand who has the time to manifest such a time and money drain by promoting hate among youth and families which is being done by these bills.

Infringing on personal freedom: Pronouns are a matter of personal expression, speech, and respect. The government fundamentally, should not proactively censor or influence speech. This bill is a mean spirited, dangerous, and unprecedented threat to our First Amendment rights. I would like to see the WI legislature pass laws around supporting spelling, grammar, phonics, and communication skills instead of wasting taxpayers' time, money, and resources on banning a population of children from accessing positive recreational activities. I encourage lawmakers to review writing of youth in our public and private schools and report back to me on what we should focus on--fear mongering or helping our students have access to academic excellence.

Distracting from budgetary, social, and economic issues: Regardless of your beliefs around the existence of an entire population, of people, we can agree that it is not anyone's right to dictate who an individual is or can be. Please consider the constitutional and long-term harm that will be caused to individuals, State constitution and laws from passing what I see as a shameless and publicity-focused pot-stirring win for republican law makers. According to the Williams Institute, only 1.4% of youth athletes are transgender. As a mom whose kids are in hockey, football, snowboarding club, diving, swimming, tennis, and baseball, I can assure you that the use of pronouns and gender identities of children is not an issue.

Please fulfill your civic duty by opposing both of these bills and aligning with our constitutional freedom.

AB100/AB103 OPPOSE

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on AB100/AB103,

My name is Morgan Lange, I am a registered nurse, a parent, currently a public health nurse for Madison & Dane County, a family member and friend of individuals in the LGBTQ+ community in Madison, and a former school nurse.

I am testifying to oppose the anti-trans legislation being proposed in AB100 and AB103. I was a school nurse for 5 years in the Madison Metropolitan School District (2019-2024) and know firsthand how harmful and dangerous this type of legislation is for trans youth and the school community overall.

These bills completely take away the power of an individual to determine their identity and instead give it to a person of power (the school principal). NO ONE should be allowed to tell anyone who they are. This is a completely inappropriate guideline for a school community - as one of the foundational pillars of the school environment is acceptance of others and being unafraid to be yourself. Specifically, the sports team environment fosters teamwork and working with others, and engaging in camaraderie. These bills create a tableau for others in the school to fear and discriminate against their trans peers or their trans students.

More than 1 in 10 LGBTQ+ young people attempted suicide in the past year, and 39% of LGBTQ+ young people seriously considered attempting suicide in the past year — including 46% of transgender and nonbinary young people. (These statistics are from theTrevorProject.org). I want to emphasize that LGBTQ+ youth are not more prone to suicide because of their gender identity or sexual orientation but rather because of how society has treated them and stigmatized them.

I also want to point to the statistic from the trevorproject.org that clearly shows 49% (almost HALF) of LGBTQ+ youth experienced bullying at school. As a school nurse - this is something I have personally witnessed. I have taken care of many trans students in the health office, in mental health distress or even crisis from bullying or discrimination that they are experiencing from peers, and in some cases from school staff. As someone who has worked in the middle and high school environments, I can say with absolute certainty, that stigmatizing trans youth, but disallowing them to express themselves will have a devastating, and likely deadly effect on the youth in our Wisconsin schools and the education community. I am completely horrified that these bills are even being proposed; schools are a place for inclusion and acceptance of self-expression, not hate and discrimination.

Thank you for hearing/reading my testimony. I hope you will consider what I have shared with you today, and stand up for trans youth (and all people) in Wisconsin by opposing AB100 and AB103 which severely harms trans students in the state of Wisconsin.

Sincerely,
Morgan Lange RN

My name is Virginia Kamp. I grew up in Appleton, Wisconsin, completed my Bachelor's Degree at UW- Madison, and am currently a resident of Wauwatosa. I am writing to strongly urge you not to move forward with bills AB100 and AB103.

When I was a high school student in Appleton, I knew that I was gay. But I also knew that I wanted to be seen as a "good" student, so for a long time, I didn't tell anyone. But later, I got to know other students who were openly LGBT, and who were bullied and made to feel unsafe because of it.

So, along with a few other students, I started a Gay-Straight Alliance at my school. I still did not tell my teachers that I was gay, but they knew I was part of forming this organization. And to this day, I can still remember how I felt in each of my high school classrooms after my teacher's found out this information. There were some classrooms where I felt safe to learn, safe to be myself. But unfortunately, there were lots of classrooms where I did not feel that way.

I am deeply concerned that these bills will only serve to increase self-harm, self-hatred, and even suicide among Wisconsin's kids.

I hope that that is enough for you to not move these bills forward. But in case it's not, let me also share my perspective as a former classroom teacher. We are already having a hard time keeping teachers in classrooms, and I fear that we will lose more teachers - good, kind, loving teachers - if you tell them that they can't listen respectfully when a child asks them to use a preferred name or pronouns.

There is one final thing I hope you will consider. When I did finally start coming out as gay, I remember that there were certain people who surprised me. People I expected to be disgusted who instead were curious and kind, who kept our connection and our communication open long enough to get to actually know me, and for me to actually get to know them. I see a Wisconsin where it's possible for that type of kindness to overcome partisanship. Let's be the state where you can be a Republican or a Democrat, where you can disagree wholeheartedly, but where we don't let fear or hatred prevent us from taking care of all of our kids.

My name is Kate McKay and I am a resident of Madison, WI writing you today to ask you to oppose both AB100 and AB103.

Regarding AB100: As a former NCAA Division III college athlete at one of Wisconsin's public universities, I find it abhorrent that you would try to take the joy of sports away from anyone. Growing up, sports were the one place I felt like I belonged and it wasn't important who we were playing against, but that I could be part of a team and play the games I loved. By taking away the ability for trans athletes to participate in sports teams aligned with their gender, you're taking away so many opportunities for kids to learn, grow, move, and succeed. As a woman, I want to play sports with other women. Trans women are women. Trans men are men. This goes for students and minors too.

Regarding AB103: A person's name - the name they prefer to go by - whether it's a shortened version of their first name, their middle name, or something completely different - is so important to identity. By stripping students of their right to be called the name they identify with is stripping them of their identity! Pronouns are similar. When referring to students by pronouns they do not identify with, you're not only disrespecting their identity, but showing that you don't care at all about who these students are. It's frustrating that over and over again the right for both cisgender and transgender students to be addressed in their preferred manner comes into question.

Trans rights are human rights. Whether or not you believe trans people when they tell you or others about their identity, what they are experiencing is real. These bills will hurt and exclude people. I vehemently oppose them and ask you to think about the people these will impact. Oppose these bills!

Thank you for your time,

Kate McKay

For 34 years I was a pediatric nurse practitioner in the Madison School District. Many of those years I worked with students who were transgender. They needed the love, acceptance and support from all of us. These students just want to be students who can live life without someone imposing restrictions on whether they can play sports or not. These students were beautiful individuals just like all children. They just want to live their authentic lives with names that fit who they are. Why is there such a fixation on names, pronouns and bathroom use?

Why is it that legislators feel the need to take valuable time away from important topics like education, homelessness, & the economy among many other issues? Why must you try and ruin the lives of children who just want to be children? I just cannot understand why Republicans have decided they can take parents rights away by deciding what is best for children who are transgender. Health care providers, parents and the children should be able to decide what is best...not legislators.

Please, please support children who are transgender.

I strongly oppose AB 100 & AB 103. Please get back to work on legislation that will improve lives, not destroy them.

Dear Committee Members:

Regardless of your politics or religious beliefs, Wisconsin children will be harmed by Bill 100 and 103. Students deserve to be able to be their authentic selves at school, and these bills block that right. Do not contribute to the alarming suicide rate of our children. Do not deny our youth peace of mind and acceptance. Please stop Bill 100 & 103 to protect the children of Wisconsin from self-harm and harm from others. ALL students deserve to belong in our schools.

Dear Representatives

My name is Will Manley. As a resident of the state of Wisconsin and city of Milwaukee, I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103, proposed on March 6th to the Assembly Committee on Education.

Both of these bills are crafted to target the tiny percentage of transgender students and children in the state of Wisconsin. Both through athletic bans for the approximately 0.002% of trans athletes in Wisconsin student athletics, and by allowing the creation of a hostile atmosphere for trans students, regardless of whether they are at school, camp, daycare, or home. These bills are not meant to do anything but disrupt and distract from the real problems facing Wisconsin residents.

Through my experience as a teacher, both in the state of Wisconsin and beyond, in the classroom and out of it, I can tell you these bills help no one and hurt everyone. They are invasive, shameful, and blatantly bigoted. These bills do nothing but bully and alienate trans children and create a climate of fear where there is none! Children do not hate each other by nature, they are confident and curious and should be lifted up and celebrated for this, not driven to division.

Trans people will continue to exist, at all ages, at all stages, and to allow these bills to come to pass is to allow violence to fall on these children. As representatives I urge you to acknowledge and empathize with the pain these bills will cause, and vote against these bills.

Sincerely,
Will Manley

Dear Members of the Assembly,

My name is Sam Eifert, and I am a lifelong resident of Stoughton, Wisconsin. I have spent 34 years in this state, and I am proud to call it home. I am a Realtor, a business owner, a board member of a local non-profit, and a member of a professional Realtor council. Growing up, I was involved in sports from a young age, playing baseball and basketball throughout my childhood and high school years.

I am writing today to strongly urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills AB 100 and AB 103. These bills are not only harmful to our transgender youth but also fundamentally undermine the values of inclusion and equality that we hold dear in Wisconsin.

Transgender students already face immense challenges, including discrimination, bullying, and a higher risk of mental health struggles. To strip them of the right to play sports aligned with their gender identity and to deny them the ability to be recognized for who they truly are—by using their name and pronouns—would only worsen their struggles. It would send a message to these young people that they do not belong, that they do not have a right to exist as their authentic selves.

The conversation about "fairness" in sports has been manipulated and exaggerated. The reality is that transgender students simply want the same opportunities as their peers to participate, learn, and grow. The idea that they pose a competitive advantage is a distraction from the real issues. Should we apply the same logic to athletes like Michael Phelps, whose physical characteristics were exceptional and not "standard" compared to other swimmers? Sports are about more than just competition—they are about building resilience, fostering teamwork, and teaching life lessons. Transgender students deserve that opportunity too.

It is disheartening that, in a time when there are so many critical issues facing our state and our nation, we are focused on further dividing and harming vulnerable members of our community. The harm these bills would cause to transgender youth is far-reaching, and the focus on sports and pronouns is a dangerous distraction from the real challenges we should be addressing.

Please, take a moment to think about the well-being of our children. Do not pass AB 100 and AB 103. Stand with equality, dignity, and inclusion.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

RE: AB100 and AB103

To the members of the 2025 Assembly Committee on Education:

Wisconsin Assembly Bills 100 and 103 are yet another installment in the latest wave of legislation aimed at destroying the rights and freedoms of transgender individuals -- this time, attacking our children. These bills will prevent transgender students from participating in the school sports that align with their gender identity and also forcibly out transgender students if they in any way request staff to recognize their authentic selves. They are not just unnecessary wastes of Wisconsin taxpayer dollars; they are actively harmful.

Supporters of AB100 argue that the bill protects fairness in women's sports. These claims, however, are based on misleading political narratives and reject widely respected scientific evidence. Countless major medical organizations, including the American Academy of Pediatrics as well as the American Medical Association, recognize and confirm that transgender athletes do not inherently have an unfair advantage over cisgender athletes, and sports governing organizations such as the International Olympic Committee already have policies ensuring fair competition regardless of gender. AB100 is really just a solution in search of a problem, and in the process of trying to fabricate a crisis, it singles out and excludes transgender youth, sending a message that these children are not welcome.

AB103 is another attempt to marginalize transgender students -- this time by restricting how schools recognize and respect their identities. This bill would prevent schools from using a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns unless they align with a legal name change and are formally requested by a parent. If any parent or legal guardian makes such a request, ALL guardians will be given the opportunity to intervene. I know several people whose parents divorced or separated due to deep disagreement over whether their child should receive lifesaving care. Had AB103 been law they would have been subjected to the whims of their anti-trans parent, whether or not they were involved in their daily lives. Such policies disregard the lived experiences of transgender and nonbinary youth and will force their guardians to weigh whether to risk outing their children to unsupportive family members, who themselves will have the power to override a supportive parent. Or likewise, if they will risk the scrutiny of potentially unsupportive or even bigoted school administrators, personnel who may not even know the child in question. These barriers to simply existing at school are only in place for students the author deem unworthy of identity; students who request a name or similar accommodation who are not transgender are not burdened by AB103. Respecting a student's chosen name and preferred pronouns should not be a matter of politics; it is a matter of dignity, mental health, and safety. AB103 is not about parental rights or educational integrity; it is about policing identity and forcing schools, teachers, and staff to participate in discrimination against transgender youth.

Wisconsin's AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection -- they are about discrimination and control. The bills target an already vulnerable population, ignoring general scientific consensus and the voices of transgender people themselves. If these bills become law, they will cause real harm, not only by worsening stigma and mental health, but also the likelihood of self-harm among transgender youth.

A study published in the Journal Nature¹ September of 2024 assessed 19 states where anti-trans legislation passed from 2018 to 2022 and found an up to 72% increase in past-year suicide attempts by transgender and nonbinary youth, with a causal relationship by those states' anti-trans legislation.

Children's suicide rates increased across all states where anti-trans bills had been passed, and specifically as a result of those bans being enacted by their state legislatures.

These bills kill children born the same way as I was – created by God to find and live as our authentic selves. At best, they are intended to penalize and subjugate children who themselves are unknown by this bill's authors or the members of this committee. But in effect, this body will be setting policy that certain children are unwelcome in our schools, and unwelcome in our society more broadly. How many children must die before their lives are considered by this body?

I firmly believe what my church teaches: that all children, transgender nonbinary or otherwise, are created by God to find and embody our authentic selves and live out our lives as any other child of God. These bills attack that purpose, and with it our dignity and humanity. Would this body cosign the hatred, verbal and physical attacks transgender Children of God will be forced to endure by their peers, teachers, administrators, extended family and community? Will this body shield itself from the reality that children will be subjected to conditions which guarantee they will be told they are unwelcome in our society? This was a reality I was forced to live through for many many years, and as a result I regularly considered ending my own life beginning at the age of 13. I know many others like me who considered the ultimate sin, and I can only wonder how many more people would be alive today had they not experienced the same. I pray this body looks beyond themselves to see the humanity they will be snuffing out by putting their political careers over the lives and safety of fellow Children of God.

“If any of you cause one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea. Woe to the world because of things that cause sin! Such things are bound to come, but woe to the one through whom they come!”

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 47 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive education free from harassment and discrimination.

I have 4 minor children of my own, all of whom have trans friends. The thing about these friends is they're only referred to as "trans friends" by adults. Kids at school simply call them friends, or teammates, or classmates. Kids in the neighborhood call them by the name they introduced themselves with and aren't bothered by using their friends' preferred pronouns. If our children can accept people just as they are, our government leaders should too. Please oppose these bills.

To the members of the Assembly,

I am writing in opposition to the bills AB100 and AB103, which seek to restrict Athlete's and Children's Transgender rights in Wisconsin.

I am born and raised in Wisconsin for nearly four decades, and this bill will adversely affect our state and communities within in untold ways. To put it plainly, these bills are the Republican party seeking to do legally harm a minority community, for no apparent reason other than the goal of causing harm. To borrow a phrase levied at then Senator McCarthy decades ago, 'Have you no decency?'

Of all the goals you could be focused on at this moment, you are choosing malice and pain towards students over quite literally any other form of support this state currently needs. Workers Rights, equitable tax distribution, equitable tax contributions, caring for the environment, to name but a few goals for the common good. Rather than take on any of that, well, here we are.

I will close by asking what other minority groups you would seek to hide from public view again because you feel irked by their existence? Why can we not just let our kids grow up and thrive?

I would like to express my opposition to the Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. Every person deserves to use restrooms that match their gender identity, participate on teams that match their gender identity, and particularly feel safe enough to be authentic in their schools by referring to themselves with pronouns that match their gender identity. We have to support and protect our trans kids. They belong just as they are.

I am writing to vehemently oppose bills AB100 and AB103. These are bills that attack LGBTQ+ rights, especially for transgender youth. The Wisconsin Legislature has continued to advance bills that target transgender people. LGBTQ people have the right to participate in sports activities, to live in safety, to thrive, to be addressed by the name and pronoun they choose, and treated with dignity. These bills will cause harm to LGBTQ youth.

I ask that you reconsider your support of these bills.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Cedar Worth, and I am a constituent from Middleton, Wisconsin. I am submitting this written testimony in opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, which are scheduled for discussion in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly designed to ban transgender athletes and restrict name and pronoun changes for transgender youth. These bans, amidst an unprecedented wave of anti-trans legislation across the US, will only serve to alienate and harm transgender children, fostering a climate of fear rather than support.

As your constituent, I urge you to vote against these proposed bills. Transgender people exist and will continue to exist at every age. Enacting these bills would not only harm the transgender people you represent but also the broader transgender community by enabling hate, creating further division, and cultivating a climate of fear.

I ask that you, as representatives in Wisconsin, acknowledge all of the trans people you represent and vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Amy Basel and have been a resident of Madison since 1995, with a home now in the 53714 zip code, and I'm writing to oppose the Bill AB100 and AB103. As a person with the same initials (AB) as these bills, I do not want to be even closely associated (no matter how random) with something so horrible. Please vote NO to both Bill AB100 and AB103!

I'm not proud of my state representatives taking the time to even introduce these bills in the year 2025. You all should be spending time fighting back against the takeover we are seeing and cuts to important supports and supporting our education system instead of trying to criminalize gender identity and tell kids that they don't belong. We should be trying to work toward sports teams that are open to all pupils. Why must we continue to separate folks by their gender that people want to maintain is binary when it is not. You should be ashamed of yourself for wasting the time it takes to write and get these before the committee. These bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools. There is not any need to further provide laws against a small and marginalized group of kids. This is blatant discrimination instead of working with kids, schools and parents.

There are so many other things that our schools and kids (pupils) attending them need instead of these hateful and discriminatory Bills. Please start spending your time on those and not trying to vilify trans youth.

I'm not trans, but I know several people who are and I've taken the time to listen and learn from them. There is a specific friend of mine that was born a female and grew up a girl and always was referred to as a tomboy. This friend of mine who is now an adult had qualified to participate in the CrossFit games and has been an athletic trainer and athlete themselves. They even started a fitness company and helped the roller derby league I was a part of with some training. Within the last few years, they have transitioned to using he/they pronouns and getting gender affirming surgery. He identifies as a non-binary trans male and is now living life as their authentic self. This friend of mine recently took themselves out of the CrossFit games and was disappointed to see this organization comply with an executive order based on fear and without any scientific evidence behind it. How can anyone think this is better for all kids, instead of appeasing the instances of a few people who "think" that they were discriminated against.

Ironically, Bill AB100 would not have applied to my friend as a pupil or athlete in school had they decided to transition sooner, since they are a female at birth and therefore would be able to qualify for male sports since the bill just refers to male at birth folks not able to qualify for female sports participation. Doesn't that just scream for a lawsuit of discrimination? Why would you just making it one gender and not include trans folks that identify as male not be able to participate in female sports?

More importantly, I've worked with skaters in a sport, and students in college who have clearly expressed the fact that they have gender identities that are not easily put into binaries of male and female. Whether or not you think that gender exists within that spectrum - the fact remains that people identify along that and are not changing their gender assigned at birth or going by different names or pronouns to win on a female sports team or impersonate anyone. They are trying to live their lives as themselves, and you and I don't need to understand or agree with that to know that it is harmful to force people to put themselves in one group or the other. Sports teams and Schools should be where we are helping kids to build identities, friendships and teamwork skills as well as getting to know one another.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on AB100 (transgender athlete ban) and AB103 (preferred name/pronoun ban).

I oppose these two bills as the proud parent of a transgender 14 year old girl who thrives socially as a K-12 climber in our local community and would be deeply bereft without such opportunities. I am a Madison resident, have lived in Wisconsin for 19 years, and intend for my family to continue to live here for many more years to come.

If passed, these bills will do enormous harm to our youngest and most vulnerable constituents. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

In my view, it is well beyond the role of the state to dictate this level of rigidity over policy for children so young.

Sincerely,

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Sarah Forzley, and I am a Madison resident. I've lived here since 2012, and my husband and I settled here to be near his family, just like all his siblings. I say this to emphasize that even while pursuing a masters, a doctorate, and a corporate career, I continue to prioritize family values. Additionally, I am a former instructor at the University of Wisconsin, a former high school teacher, and a former elementary school teacher. Given that I live according to my family values, and that I spent over twenty cumulative years teaching young people and participating in girls' and women's sports myself, I care deeply about safety and equity in school and in sport.

For these reasons, I urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100 and 103. These bills do not increase safety or equity in schools or sports. Trans girls and trans women do not threaten the success of individual women or of women's sports in general. I have seen this myself as both an athlete and a teacher. Instead, they reveal a fundamental misunderstanding of sex assigned at birth, of the actual threats that girls and women face every day, and of athletic competition. Sex assigned at birth is not a perfect way to identify a person's sex. I have had students with different medical conditions whose sex assigned at birth did not take into account their chromosomal makeup because the doctor simply visually assessed the baby's features. I also have had students who felt that they belonged nowhere because they did not "fit in" with the boys or girls at their school. I would have loved to see those students find belonging, purpose, and friendship through sports. These bills instead teach our students to fear and discriminate against their peers. These bills teach our students that the definition of "girl" or "woman" is ever narrower. These bills threaten to drag us back into a time when the United States was more sexist, when women had even fewer opportunities in sport.

After my master's degree, I taught at a university in Paris and ran for a team there. I was just a run-of-the-mill varsity athlete in college, but in France I quickly climbed the national rankings. Why? Because France has less gender equality than the United States. I know that sometimes, conservative folks fear that liberal folks are not proud of the United States. I can say without hesitation that I am proud of the United States for how far we have come in girls' and women's sports since my mother's time. In France, I faced more sexual and physical harassment, more restrictive expectations for my gender, and more inequality in sport than I face here. Though it meant giving up my excellent ranking in France, I was relieved to return to the competition scene in the United States because, frankly, I love how many women in the United States are faster than I am – women's sports here have thrived under Title IX to the benefit of all, including mediocre athletes like myself. We are carried along in the wave of those who run faster than we do. It is in our interest to compete against as diverse a group of women as possible so as to improve our training and overall times.

Perhaps, if you feel that discussing nonbinary genders is polarizing, you can remember a time in your life when you did not fit in. Remember how uncomfortable that was, how isolating, how sad you felt. Trans students do not choose to be trans; nobody chooses to have a more difficult life in this way. Allowing trans students to participate in sports, allowing trans students to use the bathroom most comfortable for them, tells them that they belong. Nobody would undergo so much social stigma just to cause harm to others. Trans students are not trying to harm anyone, and they certainly don't threaten our sports. Do you know what does threaten girls and women in school and sport? Sexual harassment by male students, teachers, administrators, and clergymen. Bias from adults who do not believe girls or women have what it takes to lift weights, to succeed in STEM, to obtain advanced degrees. Let's focus on real problems instead of an imagined one.

Sincerely,
Sarah Forzley

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

Vote No on AB100. Sports and locker rooms should be available to all students. Sports are an essential foundation for many students' participation in extracurricular activities in public schools. As a high school student at West High School, I played on the soccer team and still have friendships with my teammates today.

You must oppose this bill because it attacks the freedom of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin. It creates an environment where it is ok to sideline kids rather than include them in the sports they love. We ought to do everything we can to support the rights of all kids to play sports in Wisconsin.

A vote yes for these bills is a vote yes to take away the right of all kids to enjoy sports with their friends. Make sure you vote no to protect kids' rights to play sports.

Vote No on AB103. The government has no business getting into our personal lives and telling us how to live our lives. Vote No on AB103 to keep the government out of all our kids' lives and let all kids be themselves.

Vote No on AB100 and AB103!

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to AB100 and AB103. These proposed bills are deeply harmful and would actively contribute to an unsafe and hostile environment for queer and transgender students, teachers, administrators, and parents.

AB100 and AB103 are not about fairness or protection—they are transphobic measures that seek to erase and marginalize transgender youth. Trans students, like all students, deserve to be affirmed, supported, and safe in their schools. Denying them the ability to participate in sports or forcing them to be misgendered undermines their dignity, mental health, and overall well-being. These bills would fuel a climate of discrimination, making schools even more unsafe for queer and trans youth.

I have lived in Wisconsin for over 20 years and I am a full-time therapist. Many of the clients that I support are queer or trans, or have loved ones who are queer/trans. In my work, I see firsthand the destructive psychological and emotional impacts that legislation such as these proposed bills have on queer individuals and the queer community. Particularly under this new administration, trans folks are being targeted, scapegoated and persecuted. Trans people are under attack, and bills like this are nothing more than state-sanctioned discrimination.

Trans people exist. Trans people are not a threat. Trans folks are simply asking for the basic human right to be themselves without fear of persecution.

These proposed bills do nothing but put trans students at greater risk of bullying, isolation, and harm. If the goal of this committee is to protect and support students, then the focus should not be on banning pronouns or excluding children from sports—it should be on addressing the real dangers facing our schools, such as gun violence. Gun violence is the leading cause of death among young people in this country. Instead of wasting precious time and resources targeting one of our most vulnerable student populations, I urge you to prioritize real solutions that will protect all students.

I strongly urge you to reject AB100 and AB103. These bills do not protect students; they only harm them. Schools should be places of learning, growth, and acceptance—not sites of state-sanctioned discrimination.

Sincerely,
Tiffani Amber Sebastian

Dr. Stephanie Budge, Madison, Wisconsin
Regarding Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103
To: The Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education

My name is Dr. Stephanie Budge and I am a resident of Wisconsin who has a specialty in understanding the mental health impacts of discrimination related to transgender individuals. I am a licensed psychologist in the state of Wisconsin. While I am testifying as a private citizen, my role as a Professor of Counseling Psychology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison provides me with the expertise necessary to comment on this bill (I have published 100+ academic articles mostly focused on transgender people, over 180+ conference presentations mostly focused on transgender people, and have engaged in clinical work related to over 200 transgender people). I have worked in the field of transgender research and clinical work for 17 years.

I am testifying that the passing of these bills and the subsequent actions from these bills have a high likelihood of causing both physical and mental health impacts on youth. For the record, I oppose the proposed bills AB100 and AB103 based on the scientific research presented below.

Broadly, psychological science has used the concept of “minority stress” to understand and explain the reasons why transgender people (and members of other minority groups) experience physical and mental health disparities (see Meyer, 2003; Hendricks & Testa, 2012). The minority stress model indicates that there are three types of minority stressors: 1) external stressors, 2) expectations of external stressors, and 3) internal stressors. Examples of external stressors experienced by transgender people include discrimination, prejudice, harassment, rejection, and non-affirmation of gender identity. Examples of internal stressors experienced by transgender people include concealing one’s gender identity, internalizing gender-related stigma, and constantly thinking about one’s gender. Transgender people will often expect that they will experience external stressors due to having actually experienced them in the past, as well as witnessing or hearing about other transgender people who have experienced external stressors. This lens can assist with understanding the impacts of both exclusion from sports teams (AB100) and the impacts of not being able to use chosen names and pronouns in required settings, such as schools (AB103).

Sports Participation

For children and young adults, school-sponsored sports offer lifelong benefits and have a positive developmental impact that is second only to family support. These benefits can be seen in a variety of realms in students’ lives, including social and emotional development as well as physical and mental health. With regards to social benefits, students who participate in sports are given the opportunity to make friends and become part of a supportive community of teammates and peers (Boone & Leadbeater, 2006). Athletes spend considerable time with their teammates, often experiencing high-pressure situations together that lead to deeper friendships and students who participate in sports also can build teamwork, discipline, and leadership skills (Thompson et al., 2022). They learn the importance of working as part of a team to achieve a common goal and the importance of each teammate’s role in bringing about that goal (Salcinovic et al., 2022). Moreover, coaches and other staff members provide students who participate in sports access to meaningful mentorship and guidance. (Mills & Clements, 2021). This mentorship can extend beyond school sports, guiding students through other areas of their lives.

With regards to emotional benefits, school sports provide an opportunity for youth to gain confidence. They also reduce the effects of risk factors, such as stressful life events, that lead to increases in depression. Furthermore, learning how to manage stressful events at a young age provides benefits to student athletes throughout their lives, such as learning how to regulate their emotions. Students who participate in sports experience significantly lower levels of externalizing issues (for example, aggression and delinquency) and anxiety/depression (Vella, 2019). Students also experience the success and personal fulfillment achieved from discipline, hard work, and perseverance through many hours of practice and competition, all of which helps students develop positive habits that can benefit them in many other areas of life (Eime et al, 2014).

Based on my experience working with transgender youth, it would be psychologically damaging for a transgender youth to be banned from playing sports on equal terms with cisgender peers. This type of discrimination causes irreversible and severe damage to transgender youth development. Specifically, discriminating against transgender youth athletes leads to an increase in youth anxiety, depression, trauma, and suicidal ideation/attempts as well as an increase in physical health concerns for transgender youth (Chan et al., 2024). Barrera et al. report that the physical consequences for transgender youth of not being able to participate in sports include worse cardiovascular outcomes, poor bone mineral density, and poor neurocognitive development when compared to cisgender youth. In addition, physicians report that participation in sports is often one primary method through which transgender youth gain access to regular medical care, and if they do not participate in sports, it increases the disparity between cisgender youth and transgender youth (Hughes et al., 2022). In addition to the physical and mental health consequences of not being able to participate in sports, transgender people report greater experiences of harassment, prejudice, rejection, and bullying as a result of legislation focused on restricting transgender people's rights (Tebbe et al., 2022).

Transgender youth will also internalize the shame and stigma of being excluded for a personal characteristic (being transgender) over which they have no control and that already subjects them to prejudice and social stigma. Fear of additional discrimination and violence are two primary outcomes that stem from transgender youth being excluded from sports (Kosciw et al., 2022). Not only are there the actual consequences outlined above that occur from direct discrimination, but fear of additional sports-related discrimination leads transgender youth to avoid gym/physical education class, locker-rooms, and athletic fields and facilities. Also, being misgendered (i.e., requiring transgender girls to participate in boys' sports) is associated with the internalization of stigma and the subsequent mental health consequences that arise from internalized stigma (McLemore, 2015).

Importance of Social Transition

The incongruence between a person's gender identity and sex assigned at birth can manifest in clinically significant distress, which the American Psychiatric Association calls gender dysphoria. Gender dysphoria is codified in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (APA, 2022; DSM-5-TR) and is the medical and psychiatric diagnosis for distress associated with gender incongruence. Two current diagnostic categories are used by mental health and medical providers when children and youth are transgender: Gender Dysphoria in Childhood and Gender Dysphoria in Adolescents and Adults. Although individuals who are diagnosed with gender dysphoria can experience a diversity of symptoms, the shared diagnostic criteria that is required for both includes clear, distinct, and significant distress from the incongruence between the sex the individual was assigned at birth and their gender identity.

For transgender individuals, social transition can be an important aspect of treatment to reduce the symptoms of gender dysphoria. As part of a social transition, an individual will typically, among other things, use a name and pronouns congruent with their gender identity and use sex-designated facilities such as restrooms that align with their gender identity. To be clinically effective at alleviating the distress associated with gender dysphoria, a social transition must be respected consistently across all aspects of a transgender individual's life—for example, at home, in school, and at work. It is the aim of treatment to assist the individual in successfully integrating their internal identity into a life that allows them to function consistently in accordance with that identity and not feel shame for who they are. For those transgender adolescents for whom social transition is part of treatment of gender dysphoria, it is likely that serious distress will result if clinically indicated aspects of transition are impeded, as is suggested in both AB 100 and AB 103.

The precise treatment for gender dysphoria depends on the individual. For most transgender individuals, a gender transition is considered psychologically and medically necessary. Transition can take either or both of two forms: (a) social transition, and (b) medical treatments that change a person's body to align with their gender.

Gender dysphoria reduces significantly when the treatment aligns with the individual's goals, and the medical community has known for decades that there are effective interventions to reduce gender dysphoria. Every major medical association in the United States agrees that medical treatment for gender dysphoria is safe, necessary, and effective (Lockmiller, 2023).

For transgender individuals, social transition can be an important aspect of treatment to reduce the symptoms of gender dysphoria. As part of a social transition, an individual will typically, among other things, use a name and pronouns congruent with their gender identity and use sex-designated facilities such as restrooms that align with their gender identity. To be clinically effective at alleviating the distress associated with gender dysphoria, a social transition must be respected consistently across all aspects of a transgender individual's life—for example, at home, in school, and at work. It is the aim of treatment to assist the individual in successfully integrating their internal identity into a life that allows them to function consistently in accordance with that identity and not feel shame for who they are. For those transgender adolescents for whom social transition is part of treatment of gender dysphoria, it is likely that serious distress will result if clinically indicated aspects of transition are impeded.

Psychotherapy to reduce the harmful effects of stigma and improve resiliency can also be an important form of support for individuals of any age with gender dysphoria (see Budge et al., 2025; Budge et al., 2021; Exposito-Campos et al., 2023). While psychotherapy can be useful as a support tool, it is not a substitute for social transition and medical treatments needed to reduce/eliminate gender dysphoria (see Lindley et al., 2023).

Attempts to "cure" transgender individuals by seeking to change their gender identity to match their assigned sex are ineffective and cause extreme psychological damage (see APA, 2021). All major associations of medical and mental health providers, including the American Medical Association, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics, consider such efforts unethical.

Failing to support a transgender minor's gender identity can cause serious harm to their long-term health and wellbeing because transgender youth experience that mistreatment as a profound rejection of their core self. This harm often includes significant psychological distress and difficulty maintaining healthy interpersonal relationships and developing emotional resilience, among others. Research demonstrates the importance of social transition for transgender youth. Research from the longitudinal TransYouth Project (TYP) indicates that transgender youth who have socially transitioned demonstrate similar mental health patterns when compared to cisgender youth (Durwood et al., 2017; Olson et al., 2016). Additional research demonstrates that social transition processes are related to less depression, less suicidal ideation, and less suicidal behaviors (Russell et al., 2018). Consequently, delaying social transition is detrimental for transgender youth. Horton's (2022) qualitative study of parents of transgender youth provides an in-depth analysis of the consequences of delaying social transition for children, notably mentioning the psychological distress that results from delaying social transition. In the largest nationwide survey in the U.S. focusing on discrimination experiences of transgender people 18 and older, impeding social transition processes (for example, not being able to change one's name) is directly related to experiencing harassment and assault (James et al., 2016). In a large (N = 1,519) nation-wide Canadian survey of transgender youth, findings similarly demonstrate that not being able to access social transition components/processes is also directly related to experiencing harassment, assault, and denial of services (Taylor et al., 2020).

In addition to studies that focus generally on external stressors, there have been several studies that delve into specific types of external stressors. For example, there is one type of external stressor called "misgendering" that includes communications or actions that convey that a person's gender is misperceived or is being purposefully denied, as is being highlighted in both AB 100 and AB 103. Examples of misgendering can include using a name or pronouns inconsistent with a person's gender identity or denying them access to gendered facilities that are consistent with their gender identity (McLemore, 2018). In a study with 1,091 participants, researchers reported higher anxiety scores for participants who reported more instances of misgendering (Jacobsen et al., 2023). As well, McLemore (2015) found that experiences of being misgendered were associated with anxiety and negative affect (e.g., hostility and guilt), lower self-esteem related to appearance, and felt stigma. In a follow-up study with more specific measures regarding mental health, McLemore (2018) again reported that experiences of being misgendered were related to depression, anxiety, stress, and felt stigma. In addition to depression and anxiety, Colson et al. (2024) found that participants reported post-traumatic stress symptoms as a result of misgendering.

Misgendering, along with other forms of external stressors, is considered a form of social exclusion. Social psychology has established that seeking social acceptance is one of the most basic human needs and that the harms of social exclusion based on identity are widespread and can be catastrophic. On an individual level, social exclusion impacts one's sense of belonging, self-esteem, sense of existence, and self-control. Social exclusion is associated with an increase in maladaptive behaviors and risk-taking behaviors. On a systematic level, social exclusion is often reinforced by organizations and institutions adopting policies and procedures that can enforce discrimination toward certain groups of people. Social exclusion is considered harmful in general; however, it can be even more harmful when people in positions of power perpetuate notions that isolate and stigmatize transgender people. Research on social identity theory describes the harm that results when people of higher status—usually people in power such as administrators—fail to affirm or actively disaffirm lower-status individuals with a marginalized identity (Hogg, 2016). This often leads to external forms of harm such as ostracization and discrimination against the individual by peers and others, as well as internal harms such as internalized shame and self-hatred. These internal and external factors can be directly related to psychological distress, such as post-traumatic stress disorder, depressive disorders, anxiety disorders, and hypertension, amongst myriad other health concerns.

In a study involving 610 transgender individuals (Galupo et al. 2020), study participants provided information about their experience of gender dysphoria. When asked about the impact of being misgendered or otherwise discriminated against based on their being transgender, they provided descriptions such as “it’s like a visceral, violating, physical manifestation of psychological pain for me” and “each of those [misgenderings] is a knife.” In our recent publications on the experiences of gender dysphoria, the data indicate that gender dysphoria is distressing (Lindley, Lee, Norton, & Budge, 2024) and that social experiences, like misgendering, increase gender dysphoria (Lindley, Pulice-Farrow, & Budge, 2023).

Misgendering and Gender Discrimination Have Long Lasting Mental Health Effects

Transgender people report extensive exposure to mistreatment, harassment, and violence (James et al., 2016). One of the largest nationwide studies in the United States focused on LGBTQ+ youth demonstrates that transgender youth experience significant amounts of harassment, bullying, and violence (Kosciw et al., 2022). In a report from the data that compared transgender and cisgender youth (GLSEN, 2021), 84.4% of transgender youth felt unsafe at school when compared to 20.6% of their cisgender LGBTQ+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, and queer, but not transgender) peers. In addition, 43.6% of the transgender sample reported missing school because they felt unsafe or uncomfortable, compared to 24.9% of their cisgender LGBTQ+ peers. The study indicated that 77.3% of transgender students reported experiencing discrimination at school, compared to 46.1% of the cisgender sample. In the overall report (Kosciw et al., 2022), 80.3% of youth reported hearing biased language regarding gender expression and 65.2% reported hearing anti-transgender language while at school. Of those youth, 72% reported that there was a staff member present while hearing those remarks and that 91% of staff did not intervene. In one of the largest nationwide Canadian studies to focus on transgender youth (Taylor et al., 2020), 66% of youth reported being bullied, 35% were physically threatened or injured, 9% were threatened with a weapon; 63% reported experiencing verbal sexual harassment, 34% reported physical sexual harassment. In another study, transgender youth reported high rates of physical violence at school (57%) and nonphysical victimization at school (68%) (De Pedro & Gorse, 2023).

Transgender children and adolescents experience a great deal of victimization in the school environment, including bullying, physical assault, sexual assault, maltreatment, property victimization, and witnessing/indirect victimization. In their systematic review, Martin-Castillo et al. (2020) examined the effects of school-based victimization throughout 19 studies covering over 23,000 transgender people. Results from this systematic review indicate that transgender youth experience significantly higher rates of victimization at school than their cisgender peers.

There also is robust data regarding the psychological impact of external stressors for transgender youth and young adults. Exposure to discrimination has been linked with higher reports of depression, anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder, self-harm, and suicidality (e.g., Chozden et al., 2019; Price-Feeney, Green, & Dorison, 2020; Veale et al., 2019; Wilson et al., 2016). Pease and colleagues (2022) note that external minority stressors were directly related to psychological distress for young adults. In addition to this finding, they also note that experiencing more anti-transgender discrimination leads to higher levels of gender dysphoria, which then increase psychological distress for young adults. A recent meta-analysis noted that gender related discrimination, gender related rejection, gender related victimization, and nonaffirmation of gender identity were all positively related to depression and anxiety (Wilson et al., 2024).

Regarding mental health disparities, transgender youth consistently report higher instances of mental health concerns when compared to their cisgender counterparts. When compared with cisgender matched controls, transgender youth displayed a twofold to threefold increased risk of depression, anxiety, suicidal ideation, suicide attempt, and self-harm (Reisner et al., 2015). In their study, Fox et al. (2020) report that transgender adolescents were 8 times more likely to report depressive symptoms when compared to cisgender adolescents and were 5 times more likely than cisgender adolescents to report self-harm and suicidality. There is a large body of research demonstrating that these disparities can be explained primarily by the presence of external stressors. One study by Suarez et al. (2024) analyzed data comparing 98,174 cisgender and transgender youth and found that transgender students were more likely than cisgender students to report experiences of violence, poor mental health, suicide risk, some sexual risk behaviors, unstable housing, and felt less belonging at school. A recent meta-analysis noted that transgender young adults experienced significantly higher rates of 7 types of victimization (violent victimization, sexual victimization, intimate partner violence victimization, stalking, bullying, microaggression, and discrimination) when compared to cisgender young adults (Daigle et al., 2024).

Although all psychological distress deserves attention, suicidality (suicidal ideation, suicide attempts, and completed suicide) is perhaps one of the most devastating outcomes due to the finality of completed suicide. For transgender youth, the evidence indicates that suicidality is an overwhelming mental health disparity. Data indicate that transgender youth are more likely to attempt suicide when compared to cisgender youth; for example, that 45% of transgender youth compared to 12% of cisgender boys and 24% of cisgender girls (Zell & Kerr, 2024). Additional studies indicate that transgender youth are 2.71 times more likely to attempt suicide than cisgender youth (Jackman et al., 2019). In one of the largest samples of transgender young adults (age 18-25) in the US, 66% of respondents indicated an experience of suicidal ideation (Wang et al., 2024). In addition, in a sample of transgender youth, 86% reported suicidal ideation and 56% reported a previous suicide attempt and that external stressors such as harassment and bullying were directly related to suicide attempts (Austin et al., 2022). As noted above, these disparities can be explained primarily by the presence of external stressors. A recent systematic review indicated that safety and connectedness at school were amongst some of the primary protective factors from suicide attempts for transgender youth (Christensen et al., 2023).

Studies demonstrate that a negative school climate is not only detrimental to transgender youths' mental health, but also impacts their academic achievement. When compared to cisgender youth, transgender youth were three times more likely to be truant from school due to feeling more unsafe and distressed (Day et al., 2018). Additionally, transgender youth reported greater victimization at school and poorer academic performance when compared to cisgender LGBTQ+ peers (Poteat et al., 2021). Transgender youth are statistically more likely to fail a class than cisgender youth and are less likely to take advanced math classes by the end of their school (Wilkenson et al., 2021).

Conclusion

I urge the Wisconsin Legislature to understand the mental health effects of excluding transgender youth from playing on sports teams that match their gender identity and effects of not using the correct name and pronouns for youth. As outlined above, these effects can be

To: Assembly Committee on Education; Representatives Kitchens, Goeben, Mursau, Duchow, Snyder, Dittrich, Penterman, Melotik, Brill, Hong, Cruz, Phelps, and Sheehan.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education,

Please do not pass Assembly Bills 100 and 103 banning trans athletes in public schools from participating in sports activities and preventing trans students from using their preferred names and identities. People are who they are. People do not choose to be gay, bi-sexual, homosexual, trans, etc. I understand that there are particular reasons why it might be unfair for a trans female to compete in women's sports or the reverse may also on occasion be true. However, identification with a specific gender that is not the birth gender is traumatic for a family and difficult enough for a child.

Please understand that being a trans person or a gay person is not a choice people make. This is a fact of nature or a choice from God. People do not choose to be different, etc. If this was really a choice people make in life do you think people would really choose to make life this hard for themselves? Try to put yourself in the position of a gay person or a trans person. How would you feel if there were laws passed to keep you from being who you truly are? Being a trans person is tough enough without having to deal with legislation against your unique identity. If you study the science of LGBTQ identity I think you will realize that laws can't change life for people whose identity differs from what you might consider "normal."

Legislators have spent an inordinate amount of time debating an issue that impacts a very tiny number of people. In the event that a trans women is competing in a sport and wiping out all the competition then it is reasonable to consider some special action but the issue is so rare that I hope we can use our laws for purposes that impact greater percentages of people. Thank you for considering my concerns about this issue.

Sincerely, Nancy Piper Jankovich, 1155 North Osborne, Racine WI 53405

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 67 years, and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, dignity-affirming, equal, inclusive, caring education free from harassment and discrimination with the opportunity to thrive.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Ramona Keyes

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lori Vavrus, a concerned parent/grandparent from Washburn, WI 54891. This is my written testimony for opposing bills AB 100 and AB 103 Both bills are aimed at stripping the rights and dignity of transgender students.

These students have the right to compete in sports and to be called by their name and pronouns of choice. These students, like all of our students, have the right to feel included, supported and welcomed. School sports provide opportunities for staying healthy, working as part of a team and creating friendships - all lifelong benefits.

Being called by their name and pronouns of choice are especially important. Studies show that transgender youth suffer mental distress when referred to with the incorrect name and pronouns. This show of support is especially important if they are not receiving that respect in their own home. They need somewhere to feel validated. Everyone deserves to be heard.

Thank you for your consideration of these matters.

Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education

I wish to express my opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103.

I believe trans kids have the right to exist in our society. Period. All this extra attention persecuting trans people, particularly kids, is very unproductive to the general public and is rather harmful to trans kids.

Regarding Assembly Bill 103, the government should not concern itself with names and pronouns at school, other than to support kids being themselves. People use nicknames and such all of the time. Let's stop pretending you are protecting parents' rights. You are only looking to out a child or suppress their authentic selves. We need our government to work on actual issues that affect people every day, not persecuting a small group of people. This bill is a dog whistle.

Regarding Assembly Bill 100, trans kids do not transition to dominate girls sports. Trans kids who want to participate in sports should be allowed to do so. This bill is also a dog whistle.

Your exhausting and relentless attacks against a small population are ridiculous. Do actual work that improves lives rather than working to exclude trans people.

Sincerely,

Soren Shivy, concerned Constituent and supporter of trans kids and people

Dear Assembly Committee of Education,

I could not be there in person, but wanted to write to share my concern over the bills regarding student athletes and pronouns in schools (AB100/AB103). I fiercely advocate to make this world a safer place for transgender and non-binary children.

Parents of transgender and non-binary children have become all-too-familiar with the danger that can come if a child is unable to express their gender identity. Research shows that transgender and non-binary children are at great risk of emotional harm, showing that 82% had contemplated suicide over the last year and 40% have attempted suicide [1].

Please think about that for a moment - over two-third of all kids who are transgender come to the conclusion, at some point in their young lives, that they would be better off committing suicide than live in a world that believes they are not welcome. I ask you to take time to speak with families of trans children. You will find story after story about trans children whose "choice" literally came down to being their true self or dying.

It causes harm when we deny or reject a child's gender identity. It is irresponsible and shameful for you, or any other elected official, to pass two anti-LGBTQ bills that further stigmatize these children and call into question their judgment.

I'm asking you to think about the way children in the LGBTQIA+ community are treated. This is a difficult, scary and beautiful mountain for them to climb, and we need to be there for them. I'm asking that you provide support and acceptance. Please do not propose a trans-athlete ban and a bill restricting pronouns and names used by transgender kids.

Thank you,

Brooke Dykema

My name is Emily Erler, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Milwaukee, WI. I am writing this testimony against AB 100 and 103.

As an educator in this state, I have seen the extreme mental duress that LGBTQ+ youth navigate as they explore and discover who they are, who their families want them to be, and at times, have to navigate the deeply traumatic times when those two futures are in direct opposition. Adding the government's involvement in limiting extracurricular choice and name usage!? The purposes of AB 100 and 103 are clear: To encourage discrimination against trans kids. To alienate youth and stoke a climate of fear amongst children. Students cannot learn if they do not feel safe.

Why in the world is our government wasting time on policing what name a kid goes by? The club they want to join? Why are we spending time limiting the future of our youth and silencing the young voices of Wisconsin?

I'm not sure why our representatives feel the need to engage in viral, hate and outrage-based political theatre when Wisconsinites are struggling under the weight of so much already.

Trans people, at any age, exist and will continue to exist. Vote against AB 100 and 103.

Testimony Regarding Assembly Bill 100 & Assembly Bill 103:

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

The vilification of trans youth is abhorrent and does not belong in the Wisconsin legislature.

Transgender people comprise 1.6% of the human population. Of that fraction, even less play sports. Only 34 trans athletes have openly competed in U.S. college sports to date and fewer make it to the professional level. The largest disparities in sports fairness come from the socioeconomic disadvantage of marginalized populations, not trans participation. Proximity to privilege predicts success in sports, not testosterone levels or biological markers. Meanwhile, disparities faced by the trans community begin at a young age and impact all facets of life including sports access. Trans youth are 9 times more likely to experience homelessness than their cisgender peers, and 68% experience bullying in middle school and high school. 22% of trans women surveyed in 2015 reported that they were bullied so badly in school that they dropped out. Many trans students worry about where they will use the bathroom at school, never mind which locker room to use. Without supportive services to help them navigate these additional challenges, it's tougher for them than their peers to make it through classes, let alone onto a soccer field. (Thank you to ACLU for the use of their stats and statistics)

These bills are only fueling anti-trans rhetoric that trans women have an unfair advantage in sports, despite a lack of consistent research to suggest this. As a woman, please do not speak for me to say that this bill is protecting mine or my daughter's rights, when in truth it is only limiting the rights of small group of individuals who should be receiving care, support, and affirmation instead of hate.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin for 40 years, have served our community as a substitute teacher, legal secretary, member of the Middleton Commission on Aging, and community volunteer. I am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to an educational environment free from harassment and discrimination, where they feel safe to take the risks involved in learning, where they feel valued as a community member and able to explore their future roles in society, where they feel able to contribute to the community as themselves.

In my time working with students, changing pronouns was not a distraction to anyone's education. Participating in any group activity, like sports, when adults model the self respect and respect for others that we all require to live in community has not made anyone feel unsafe. But trans kids have felt unsafe and unseen every day when they use the restrooms in public, people ignore their respectful requests to be addressed as requested, and adults model the language and behaviors that give children in the room tacit permission to ignore, bully, or harass another student.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose bills AB100, a proposed trans athlete ban, and AB103, a bill restricting the rights of transgender students using the correct name and pronouns.

I have lived in Wisconsin all my life and am speaking on my own behalf as a private citizen and a parent.

I strongly oppose these bills because trans children and youth, like all of our students, have the right to a supportive, respectful education free from harassment and discrimination. They also have the right to participate in sports -- to stay healthy, be part of a team, and build confidence and self-esteem.

I have many transgender children in my circles, and they are the loveliest human beings. I can assure you that they do not pose a threat to anyone. They are silly and kind, funny and talented, imaginative and smart. They also struggle in similar ways to other kids -- worrying about friends and fitting in, how to achieve success, and make themselves and their parents proud. They are kids, just like any other kid -- just like the kids in your life, even.

Trans kids are struggling to get by, just like the rest of us, and they deserve a fair chance. Please give them that chance and oppose both of these bills.

Although I'm not able to be there in person, I'm writing today against these bills which would place limits on the rights of trans kids to participate in school athletics programs.

Kids come in such different varieties of height, weight, hormones...and as long as they are willing to show up for practice and do their best in whatever sport it is - SO BE IT!

Dear Representatives,

My name is Christopher Tammes, I am a constituent and resident of Milwaukee (53212) where I work two jobs, have hit multiple milestones in my own transition, and have found a vibrant and compassionate community of other trans people and allies.

I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear and hate rather than cultivating connection, understanding, and mutual respect.

As one of your constituents, I implore you to vote strongly against these proposed bills. Being one of the only out transgender students in my high school left me the choice to give up on being the most honest, true, and happiest version of myself or be the version that would let me continue to compete within my passions. No kid should have the entirety of a State government becoming the bullies that I faced when trying to just be myself. If a child figuring out who they are and how they want to live in this world is the biggest threat that you face, I truly envy how little struggles you have to actually face in your life.

I hope all the representatives continue to uphold the separation of church and state, continue to show that Wisconsin is a state that represents compassion, and know that trans people will continue to exist at every age; as we always have.

To enact these bills is to enact violence on the trans youth of your own communities, as Representatives of Wisconsin I hope you acknowledge all the trans people you represent from all corners of the state; and in good conscience vote against AB100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Subject: Opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103. As a substitute teacher at my children's public school, I see firsthand the impact that inclusive policies have on all students. These bills target a very small number of students, yet they cause very real harm to a vulnerable minority group.

Legislation should be focused on supporting all students and ensuring that our schools remain places of learning, growth, and acceptance. Instead, these bills create unnecessary division and distraction. Furthermore, they represent a misuse of taxpayer dollars, as they seek to address a problem that does not exist while ignoring more pressing educational needs.

I urge you to vote against AB 100 and AB 103. Our schools should prioritize the well-being and success of all students, not target specific groups for political reasons.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Regarding Assembly Committee on Education

03/05/2025

My name is Amber Anderson, BSN RN and I am a nurse at a local child/adolescent psychiatry unit. I am writing in regard to Assembly Bill 100 and 103.

For the past four years, I have worked on an acute-stay child and adolescent psychiatric unit in the Madison area serving patients ranging from six to eighteen years old. The majority of patients I work with are admitted after a suicide attempt and/or after disclosing suicidal ideation. Throughout my years working with this population, I have had the privilege to meet kind, clever, empathetic and resilient kids in our community. Many of these patients identify as either trans or nonbinary. More often than not, the stressor resulting in suicidality is a lack of recognition and acceptance of their preferred name and pronouns. Further supporting this fact, according to the Trevor Project, anti-transgender laws cause up to a 72% increase in suicide attempts amongst transgender and nonbinary youth.

The reason I am writing to advocate for this community is simply this: I have seen the ramifications of not accepting a child who identifies as trans or nonbinary, and fear for our youth if these bills were to pass. I implore you that, based on proven statistics, allowing this bill to pass would essentially be signing a death sentence for many of Wisconsin's trans and nonbinary youth.

In summary, as a medical professional who works with this specific population on a daily basis and understands the negative effects these bills would have on youth in Wisconsin, I believe you should not allow Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103 to move forward.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Amber Anderson, BSN RN

As a registered nurse and a parent of an amazing nonbinary child, I am writing in opposition to AB100 and AB103, and asking legislators to stop going after transgender children and work to address one of the numerous actual problems facing Wisconsinites.

My child has been bullied in school by classmates who have targeted them for their gender identity, despite the fact that my child using they/them pronouns and identifying as nonbinary has zero effect on anyone else. Thankfully, their school administrators took it seriously and facilitated a conversation between all of the kids involved about treating each other with respect, and the bullying stopped. This outcome happened because the school is committed to fostering a culture of mutual respect and supporting children's identities. These bills would interfere with our school's ability to support children like mine.

These bills do not protect children, period. They make my child and other transgender and nonbinary children LESS safe. The sports bill is unscientific, as studies show no difference in athletic ability between cisgender girls and transgender girls who have not gone through a male puberty, and the regulations on schools will make it harder for gender-nonconforming children to find support. It's shameful that politicians have decided to make a small, vulnerable population of citizens a scapegoat to whip up public fear and anger in this moral panic. It's causing real harm to children and adults who only want to live honestly and be themselves. Historically speaking, targeting minority groups has never reflected well on those in power. This will be no exception, and I encourage you all to vote with this in mind.

Dear Committee Members of Bills AB100 and AB103,

I implore you to think about the children who will be adversely impacted if these bills pass. Being transgender is NOT a choice. Very young transgender children already KNOW that their gender should be other than that assigned to them at birth, and express this fervently to their parents. How many transgender children have you actually talked to? How many parents of transgender children? Are you educated about this enough to make a decision that could ruin a child's life? Please vote NO to bills AB100 and AB103. Transgender children are human beings who deserve to be loved and believed. YOU hold their happiness in your hands.

I appreciate your time and hope you will consider my beliefs.

Dear Representatives -

My name is Camille Camacho. I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Oak Creek. I am submitting a written testimony AGAINST the Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education, which is meeting on March 6, 2025.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti trans legislation proposals across the US. These bans also don't do anything but alienate, belittle, and exclude transgender kids. Lastly, the bans create a climate of fear rather than inclusion.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote AGAINST these proposed bills because I want a safe community for my students. I am a high school teacher in Milwaukee Public Schools and I have trans students. My trans students are extremely brilliant, kind, hilarious, hard working, and the world is a better place because of their presence. They deserve to live in a state (and world) that accepts them for who they are and respects their identities. They deserve to have a high school experience where they can participate in sports. My students feel heard and seen when I utilize the pronouns they tell me to use rather than the pronouns given to them at birth. True recognition of their real identity increases their motivation in school, sense of belief in themselves, and their overall classroom performance. Not only will their lives be better when people stop being transphobic and when lawmakers stop making transphobic laws, but our world will be better because of the actions my students will take to change the world once they graduate high school.

Trans people exist. Trans people are beautiful. They will continue to exist and be beautiful at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent. I ask that you, in good conscience, vote AGAINST AB 100 and 103.

Testimony Opposing Bills AB100 & AB103

My name is Kaycie Peck, from Stevens Point, WI 54481, and I'm writing to you under two hats. The first hat I wear is of a parent of two confident children, one of which is a transgender 7-year-old. The second is as a high school and middle school GSA advisor in rural Wisconsin.

As a parent of a trans child, I oppose both bills AB100 and AB103. We have been following our child's guidance on their gender journey since they were 3 or 4 years old. This is consistent with the American Pediatric Association's information that a child often solidifies their understanding of gender around 4 years old. It was then that our child started saying sometimes they felt like a girl, sometimes they felt like both, and sometimes they felt like neither. In 4K, when the school photographer asked the class to line up in a boys line and girls like, my child fell to the floor crying not knowing which line to go in. Every teacher my child has had has been incredibly supportive, loving, and respectful of my child's identity. They teach age-appropriate discussions of gender, that there are no boy or girl books, toys, jobs, etc. All the public school teachers my child has respect their pronouns, often check in on them and the family to ensure they are doing all right. My child also has a physical disability, Spina Bifida. Despite two very "othering" qualities of their identity, my child is confident, thriving, and proud of all of who they are. Why? Because they are surrounded by people in their life who support and love them for who they are. They are surrounded by love at school, where they are 8 hours a day.

If the bill passes and my child's teachers are stifled from supporting my child, what will happen? The data has shown that trans students who don't have a supportive adult at school have a higher likelihood of depression and suicide. These bills would harm children like my child. My child would no longer have the opportunity to benefit from youth sports. Youth sports teams are not about the competition and the winning. The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association (WIAA)'s mission statement is to organize an athletic program that will "maximize opportunities for member schools' participation" in interscholastic athletics, as well as "cultivate high ideals of citizenship and sportsmanship". How is a law that forces exclusion from sports supporting cooperation, teamwork, collaboration, common vision, and goal setting that youth sports in schools provide?

If I want my child to be a successful human in this world, these laws are setting them up to struggle if not fail. These laws will not give them the support they need to work within the school structures these laws are tearing down. These laws will also go against my parental wishes and parental rights, which they seem to be claiming to protect.

Under my second hat, I write to you opposing these bills as a GSA advisor to middle and high school students in a rural community outside Stevens Point for almost 10 years now. I have witnessed the struggles that trans and LGBTQ+ students face when they are finding themselves, expressing themselves, or just existing. I have witnessed their struggles, but I have also witnessed their bravery at advocating for what they need in a community that is not always supportive. These bills will close doors to students that work very hard to even reach those opportunities. As my role in education, our goal is NOT to hide things from families. Our goal is to work WITH families. All these laws will do will harm students who already have so many hurdles to jump to succeed.

Please, be on the side of supporting all students, including all students, not harming or excluding students. Do not pass bills AB100 & AB103.

Thank you for your time,

kp.

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing to oppose AB100 and AB103.

I strongly believe that trans children should be included in school sports and athletics and they should be able to participate with whatever group or gender grouping they feel most comfortable playing with. AB100 will result in transgender and intersex children being excluded from school activities that would allow them to build friendships, developed social skills and learn about how to take exercise. I play a sport with at allows trans women. This inclusion has only positively contributed to my experience and that of my team and league.

Similarly children should have agency to determine what name they want to use and what pronouns they feel most comfortable with. AB103 will make children less safe and is a step backwards. Research shows that gender diverse youth experience best outcomes when parents, families, and communities use pronouns that align with a child's gender identity. Letting children use the pronouns and names that align with how they see themselves is an easy way to make kids safer.

The comment is as follows:

I am registering my opposition to this bill, which proposes a damaging invasion of privacy into all children's lives. This bill serves only to increase surveillance and perpetuate stigma for private matters that real-life data and plenty of anecdotal evidence shows is not a problem for communities. There are already laws against actual crimes. We don't need this bill against kids who are just existing and minding their own business.

To the Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am writing, as a mom and an educator, to express my strong opposition to Assembly Bills 100 and 103, as I believe these proposed measures would harm Wisconsin students and undermine the inclusive and supportive environment our schools should foster.

Regarding AB 100:

This bill, which seeks to exclude transgender students from participating in sports teams consistent with their gender identity, is discriminatory and unfair. Transgender students, like all students, deserve the opportunity to participate in school sports to build teamwork, confidence, and a sense of belonging. Excluding them not only isolates these students but also sets a harmful precedent of inequality in our schools.

Regarding AB 103:

This bill, which would require parental consent for students to use preferred names and pronouns, disregards the importance of respecting students' identities. Schools should be a safe space where all students feel valued and accepted. Forcing students to obtain parental approval for something as personal as their name or pronouns could put vulnerable students at risk, particularly those who may not have supportive home environments.

Both of these bills fail to prioritize the well-being and dignity of Wisconsin's students. Instead of enacting policies that marginalize certain groups, we should focus on fostering inclusivity and ensuring that every student has the opportunity to thrive.

I urge you to reject AB 100 and AB 103 and to advocate for policies that support all students, regardless of their gender identity or personal circumstances.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Committee Members,

My name is Alicia McQuade, and I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed amendments to AB100 and AB103. These amendments, which target transgender students by seeking to restrict their participation in school sports and limit the use of their correct names and pronouns, are harmful, unnecessary, and not supported by research or best practices.

Data clearly shows the harm that discriminatory policies inflict on transgender youth. According to The Trevor Project's 2023 National Survey on LGBTQ Youth Mental Health, over 50% of transgender and nonbinary youth seriously considered suicide in the past year. Importantly, trans youth who have their pronouns respected attempt suicide at half the rate of those who do not. Policies that invalidate students' identities—such as forcing staff to misgender them—put lives at risk.

Additionally, participation in school sports has well-documented benefits for all students, including improved mental health, increased school engagement, and social connection. The American Academy of Pediatrics has found no evidence that inclusive sports policies harm cisgender athletes, while excluding transgender students contributes to poor health outcomes, stigma, and social isolation.

Leading authorities in medicine and education—including the American Medical Association, American Psychological Association, and National Education Association—oppose legislation that restricts the rights and dignity of transgender youth. The amendments to AB100 and AB103 are out of step with these expert recommendations and with the values of fairness, safety, and inclusion in our schools.

The proposed amendments are not protecting students; they are actively endangering some of our most vulnerable young people. I urge you to reject these amendments and stand in support of trans students who deserve to learn, grow, and participate in school without fear of discrimination.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

I am vehemently opposed to both Assembly Bill 100 and Assembly Bill 103. The only purpose I can see for either bills is to marginalize, punish and shame trans youth. The bills do not improve the educational environment or the health or wellbeing of children.

Competition in scholastic sports at the k-12 level should focus on fun, skill development and sportsmanship. Bill 100 advances none of those principles. Rather than discourage students from participating in sports that fit their perception of themselves and their interests, you should be encouraging them to grow and reach their potential. Medical studies do not support the misconception that any student will be damaged by the participation of trans youth on a sport team that does not align with their gender at birth. Athletes come in all shapes, sizes and abilities regardless of their gender.

I fail to see the harm in recognizing a child's identity by using the pronouns they prefer. Will you also pass a bill that demands teachers call students by their proper first name rather than a nickname or middle name? A teacher who reinforces a child's sense of self will increase that child's self-esteem and confidence, and therefore increase that child's chance of academic success.

If you are interested in increasing a child's self esteem and academic success, veto both Assembly bills.

Sincerely,

Hi,

I am opposing bills AB 103 and 100 because of their negative impact on trans kids. I figured out that I was queer in my late 20s and that journey of self-discovery was difficult. I was worried people would judge me. I was sad that I didn't know about this part of myself sooner.

We can and should do better for our trans kids. We should listen to them, believe them and connect them to gender affirming care (if that's what they want). These bills are a giant leap backwards and are part of the wave of hate that LGBT communities face. I hope these bills fail and that many people speak out against them.

Thanks for your consideration,

Dear members of the Assembly Committee on Education:

I whole-heartedly ask that you reject Assembly Bills 100 and 103. I work in secondary education and have seen first-hand that implementing affirming language and policies can save lives.

The Trevor Project reports that over 41% of LGBTQ+ young people have seriously contemplated or attempted suicide, including half of trans and nonbinary young people. My daughter was part of this statistic and we were thankfully able to save her. Two of my friends were not so lucky.

One of my LGBTQ+ students lost their life to suicide at 15 and another at 19. While these students were lucky enough to have supportive homes, they were not affirmed in their churches or with many peers. Every time someone is called by the wrong name or pronoun, it does damage.

If I were to force a member of this committee to go by a different pronoun and name every single day, they would not hold their head as high.

If I refuse to call Representative Dittrich by her name and instead refer to her as whatever I feel is best (Mr. Barnaby Dittrich, maybe), I guarantee she would not feel respected or valued.

If I refused to allow Senator Jacque to join a sports team based on his levels (or lack of) testosterone, questioning his gender-affirming beard and asking for physical proof of his masculinity, he might feel unsupported and question his worth.

It is a matter of life or death to allow kids to grow and figure out who they are. While they are growing, it is our utmost responsibility to support and respect students as people. They have lives that are worth saving.

Vote against these bills. They affect no one besides marginalized kids who need adults to protect and support them. What difference does it actually make to YOU to be respectful. Be brave and do the right thing.

Very sincerely and hopefully.

As an ELCA pastor for over twenty years, and the founding chapter leader of PFLAG Washburn in the Chequamegon Bay area in northern Wisconsin (started in 2009), I am writing with strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103.

These bills seek to strip the rights from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender and eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with in our schools.

As a pastor and PFLAG leader, I have met many transgender and gender fluid adults and youth. It is clear to me that they are being scapegoated by these bills. All people deserve to be their authentic selves. If bills like these become law, my personal friends will be devastated and have to move from the state of Wisconsin. These are families with professional parents who contribute so positively to our community.

PFLAG envisions a world where diversity is celebrated and all people are respected, valued, and affirmed inclusive of their sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression.

PFLAG's membership of LGBTQ people, families and allies have united in love, embracing each other and people whose communities are often marginalized, erased or ignored. Unity and inclusion and a shared commitment to human dignity of all people are critical to fight discrimination and bigotry in any form so that all families can live free of fear. Now, more than ever, PFLAG's vision and mission are essential in this country.

Please vote for the dignity of all people and against AB 100 and AB 103.

Dear Representatives,

My name is Mansi Singh, I am a Wisconsin constituent and resident of Madison. I am submitting a written testimony against Assembly Bill 100 and 103 proposed in the Assembly Committee on Education meeting on March 6th.

AB 100 and 103 are clearly crafted as a trans athlete ban and to restrict name and pronoun changes for trans kids, respectively. These bans come at a time of unprecedented anti-trans legislation proposals across the US and do nothing but alienate transgender kids and create a climate of fear rather than cultivation.

As one of your constituents, I implore you all to vote against these proposed bills.

I am a school psychologist in Wisconsin and work closely with students who identify as trans. These students face high rates of mental health issues (such as depression, anxiety, and suicidal thoughts) when compared to their cisgender peers. Being able to express their gender identity freely and engage in activities such as athletics that promote mental health, can improve their sense of self-worth and well-being. Bills that limit these rights work towards worsening mental health outcomes. My job involves promoting inclusion and acceptance for all students, regardless of their identities. Discriminatory policies that restrict students' access to their chosen pronouns and athletics contribute to climates of exclusion and increase stigma amongst peers. This may lead to bullying, isolation, and less support for trans students. Trans individuals have a right to their autonomy and dignity. Discriminator policies infringing on these rights are counterproductive towards ensuring that schools are safe and nurturing educational environments for all students. As policy makers, harm prevention should be an ethical commitment you strive for when making important decisions. These policies will undermine those efforts, leading to long-term effects on trans individuals mental and emotional health.

Trans people exist and will continue to exist at every age. To enact these bills is to enact violence upon trans people. As Representatives in Wisconsin, I ask that you acknowledge all of the trans people you represent, and in good conscience vote against AB 100 and 103.

Sincerely,

Dear Wisconsin Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Kim Suhr, and I live in Wales, 53183. I appreciate the opportunity to voice my position on AB100 and AB103.

I encourage you to vote NO on AB100 the bill that would ban trans athletes from competing on sports teams that align with their gender identity. It seems most people aren't too concerned with trans boys (individuals who had been assigned female at birth but now identify as male) competing in boys' sports, but the thought of even the very small number of trans girls (individuals who had been assigned male at birth but now identify as female) competing in girls' sports makes many Republican lawmakers think they must "protect" cis-gender girls on these teams. This is paternalistic, unnecessary, and frankly, insulting.

I was a female athlete in middle and high school and played with and against lots of players who had what I could have thought of as an "unfair" advantage over me. I was a 5'0" player on a volleyball team who played with and against players who were 6 feet tall—these were non-trans girls who had the good fortune to have been born with different genes than I did. Should I have insisted they play on the boys' teams? Did I need anyone's "protection?" No.

It seems the people who want AB100 to become law are afraid that cis-gender males will fake being trans in order to dominate girls' sports. Huh? Exactly what kind of "winning" would that be? Is there proof that this has happened? Even if so, the cases would be vanishingly small compared to the good that would be done for the trans-athletes who are able to compete on the team that matches their identity. Will some trans-athletes be stronger than some cis-athletes? Of course. And the opposite will be true as well. Were there times I was a stronger athlete than other players who seemed to have a physical advantage and more height? You betcha.

As for AB103, this is a problem looking for a bill. People should be called what they want to be called. Period. They should be called by the pronouns they want to be called. Period. We can find thousands of examples of students being referred to by names other than their legal names across this state without anyone blinking an eye. What does it hurt? And what does it hurt to use pronouns that feel more comfortable to the student? If you have never been misnamed or misgendered by others, you can't know what it feels like. Why would you want to impose that type of insult to other people's children? Maybe you should try it: just for a day, have people call you something other than your name and use opposite pronouns. That would be a great exercise in walking in someone else's shoes.

We are better than this in Wisconsin. Please vote no on both of these bills.

Sincerely,

Kim Suhr

To all members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Jill Nagler and I'm a resident of Madison, WI, 53719 and lifelong resident of Wisconsin.

I write to you in staunch opposition to AB 100/103.

Here we are with state politicians engaging in the manufactured outrage towards the transgender community and vulnerable transgender children.

Here we are with yet another set of violent and dehumanizing bills that attack transgender kids, their families, and their educators for no logical, sensible, rational, or ethical reason.

It is manufactured outrage for no other purpose than to deflect and place blame on transgender people as easy targets instead of actually addressing the issues that harm Wisconsin's children, such as gun violence, food and housing insecurity, lack of accessible extramural programs especially for poor families, bullying, and lack of funds to support the sports programs that these bills claim to be protecting.

Trans kids are not the cause of any of these issues, and allowing trans kids to play extramural sports and to be able to have their pronouns respected is protective against the violence they face from society and their peers.

If you want to truly protect kids, then stop these farcical attacks on transgender kids and the transgender community.

Put in the work to address actual social issues instead of falling into the cycle of fake outrage.

Let transgender kids play sports!

Use the name and pronouns that people choose, it literally does not hurt anyone to let people choose their name and pronouns. Especially kids who are exploring the world and their place in it.

Let kids be kids!

Stop the attacks on transgender children, let them live.

I implore you to oppose these abhorrent bills and all others that are cruel, unconstitutional, unethical, and seek to target vulnerable communities with manufactured outrage.

Please act with humility, ethics, sensibility, and compassion and end this assault on the transgender community in Wisconsin.

With gratitude,

Jill

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I am a 57 year old woman, a Lutheran Christian, and I've lived in Dane County most of my life. I believe that all children are uniquely and wonderfully made by our Creator. It is the job of families, schools, and society to encourage, accept, and love them as they grow.

The two bills before you simply make trouble where there is none to be found; they are both unnecessary. I urge you to oppose them.

RE AB100: There is ample scientific evidence that transwomen and girls have no "advantage" over cisgender women and girls in sports. Youth should be allowed - and encouraged - to participate in sports with their peers and to use the locker room that aligns with their identity.

RE AB103, there is no good reason to make it difficult for students to use preferred names and pronouns in schools. Kids have enough trouble growing up and navigating school; they do not need the added burden of having to "provide paperwork," to request their preferred name be used. To honor the use of someone's preferred pronouns is to be courteous and kind. Why would I deny someone that?

These bills create barriers to learning, and I hope the Assembly Committee on Education is able to see that.

Respectfully,

Dear Representative Stroud Education Committee Member Chair Representative Kitchens:

I am a constituent of Assembly Representative Stroud. My address: Dana Churness, 86495 Lenawee Rd, Herbster, WI 54844.

I am writing to register my strong opposition to AB 100 and AB 103. As you know, these bills seek to strip the rights away from transgender athletes to play sports or use locker rooms that align with their gender. They eliminate the right for trans students to use the name and pronouns they identify with.

This amounts to no less than State sanctioned discrimination. As the parent of a gender diverse child, who will be impacted directly by the trans athlete bill, I can speak personally to the harm that these bills cause. (Even by merely being introduced and considered.)

1 in 3 trans kids will attempt suicide by the age of 18. Bills such as these will create an even more hostile environment for our children to have to learn in. This is absolutely unacceptable. The attack on trans youth, initiated by unconstitutional Executive Orders and enforced by bills such as these amounts to ruthless, heartless bullying behavior by grown adults who should know better.

We are not asking you to believe in something that you don't. We are asking that you kill these bills which will actively harm (physically and mentally) our children.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Dana Churness

I am writing in regard to the transgender legislation being considered for Wisconsin. I write as a community member, the interim President of the Board of the LGBT Center of SE Wisconsin, as well as a mental health provider. I write to request no anti-trans legislation be created for our youth or adults in the beautiful state of Wisconsin.

At our Center, we see youth and adults that land all over the gender spectrum. This is for many reasons: normal healthy self-discovery; multiple areas that place a person in both "masculine" and "feminine" categories; perception of themselves vs perception by others of birth body parts; full realization. Additionally, it is widely recognized that a person who is given the time and ability for self discovery is most likely to make healthy decisions and choices with less error. Whereas a youth who has been severely restricted from obtaining information and spending time in self reflection is most likely to self harm, make unhealthy and unsafe choices, increasing the likelihood of costly effects to society.

Neuroscience, genetics testing and studies, and psychosocial assessments have persistently and consistently revealed that a person who experiences more than one gender, or, identifies with a gender other than that specified at birth, actually match cognitively and emotionally with their DNA and genetic markers. We are increasingly aware that what a person believes is their gender matches what their bodies own code tells us, regardless of birth assignment. Amazing information when we stop and listen to the facts.

I will not address the bathroom and locker room challenge right now, except to say we know factually, by shutting people out of youth athletics, bathrooms doesn't make them safer, it makes them less safe. Safety has been almost 90% unsafe because of cisgendered straight males. Consequently, we do not see them at all interested in showing up in a bathroom dressed as a woman. Conversely, we do not see a "female" dressed as a "man" in a men's bathroom.

We have an opportunity right now to say that we can more for the health of our citizenry than we do for controlling a label. I challenge you to do so. The people of Wisconsin deserve it. You may deserve their vote for you. But you need to earn it.

I am writing to ask you to do anything you can to speak against the anti trans bills today.

I am an adult athlete and have played along side trans athletes for the last ten years. I have never once felt it was unfair or that I was unsafe playing with trans athletes. I have seen how this marginalized group has been able to flourish and experience joy in competing in sports. There is no reason trans students should not be able to play sports with their identified gender.

I have teen aged children and would not be concerned if they were playing with or against trans athletes.

We should allow kids and teens to express themselves in the ways that they feel most comfortable. We use nicknames for cis people. We can use different names and pronouns for trans, non binary and gender non conforming youth. Especially if this prevents them from experiencing depression, anxiety or suicidal thoughts. It's a small act of seeing someone and there should be no rules against our schools supporting youth in this way.

Please do whatever you can to keep trans youth safe and vote or speak against the anti trans bills.

Thank you,
Lacy Germano

Anti trans rhetoric is harmful and cruel . Anti trans legislation is unnecessary and cruel. MTF athletes of any age do not have any kind of unfair advantage in any sport, especially as children. Both of these bills do nothing to protect anyone as every single fear-mongering talking point is completely fabricated. It's meant to further harm a small number of individuals that aren't like you. They are not confused. They are not groomed. They are not pushed into being trans. They are born trans due to the biological effects of genetics and endocrinology. You are legislating the the removal of their human rights over nothing but hateful, fear based lies spread among Republicans. It's wrong, and it's far past the time you stop dehumanizing people you refuse to learn anything about and accept.

I'd like to discuss my extreme dissatisfaction with the introduction of these bills into the Wisconsin legislature. Laws like this not only prevent trans youth from being able to express themselves, and respected as who they are, but opens them up to further abuse in a system that already does not care for them. The passing of these bills will undoubtedly result in more bullying and higher rates of depression, or worse in trans youth. The claim around these kinds of laws are that it's to protect children, but by forbidding them to express themselves as they are you're putting them in harms way.

These bills are vile attempts to isolate and punish trans people, and specifically children for merely existing as they are. As a Wisconsin citizen born and raised I abhor the thought of these bills passing and I cannot in good conscience stand by as this legislature furthers these hateful bills.

Thank you,
Shafiq

Hello, I am a transgender woman who is deeply alarmed by the bills being proposed today. I went through school not knowing about my gender, but I can say how deeply being treated as a man within that environment hurt me. Being forced into gym classes surrounded by boys who bullied and harassed me, since they could tell that something was different about me even if they didn't know what.

A lot of my friends have relatives who are in school right now, who are personally threatened by these proposals. I care about these people, and they deserve to be able to feel safe in their schools. A school refusing to support someone opens the door to bullying and even assault.

Disclosing this kind of information to a kid's parents against the kid's will is also dangerous. Abusive parents exist, and a lot of abusive parents are willing to do incredibly cruel things to a kid to punish them for being part of the LGBT community. I have friends who were abused by their parents for being trans, who barely survived that treatment.

Beyond the emboldening of cruel actions by trans kids peers or abusive adults, constantly being forced to exist in a space that denies you a basic part of who you are is incredibly disruptive to someone's mental health. That does not create an environment where a student can effectively learn, and I know that experience has caused me to want to die before, and that plays a serious role in the high rate of suicide in trans youths. This is a question of children's lives. Whatever harm you believe is caused by affirming their gender, is it really equal to the harm caused by losing a sibling or a child to suicide?

Would there be a bill forcing people to be left handed? Brown eyed? Let our people be their true selves and make room for them to live their lives peacefully amongst us.

I am a mother of two children, ages 7 and 9. My son told me the other day that he feels like he is both girl and boy. As he grows and discovers his identity, he should have equal access to play sports and use pronouns that match who he is. It doesn't make any sense to restrict our kids.

We all want our children to be safe and protected. That is why the adults show children how to protect others and care and support each other. By excluding and segregating, we show children that others are less than. That our differences are scary and to be pushed out.

Let's teach our children how to include, and how to protect each other. So that when they become adults they are welcoming, supportive, and caring members of our society.

Please don't target our trans, non-binary, and queer children. Learn more about them. Educate yourself before casting them out.

Thank you!

I am transgender and I knew that about myself when I was in middle school.

When I was in school trans people were not talked about, knowledge was hard to find and, because of this, being out or transitioning felt like an impossibility. It was a secret I kept until I met and talked to other trans people later in life.

Young people who have the courage to be themselves are miraculous to me, they deserve to be nurtured, protected and embraced by their communities. Their names and pronouns should be used and they should be able to participate in sports and access the same scholarships and opportunities as their peers.

I have been open about myself for over a decade now and I know that the moment I made the decision to embrace myself was where my my life diverged from a grey burden I endured to the rich and fulfilling life I lead now.

I sometimes wish I had had the courage young people have now back when I was their ages but the past can't be changed. What I can do is support them in the here and now and help make the future brighter for young trans people in Wisconsin going forward so the next generation never has to feel like I did.

Dear Assembly Committee on Education ,

The vilification and dehumanization of trans people is dangerous and will lead to violence. We must protect our most marginalized communities and provide them with the care, compassion, and access they need to thrive. We demand that our elected representatives protect ALL their constituents - even those who are easy targets. Focus your energies elsewhere; on protecting our national forests and resources, the department of education, removing DOGE from gutting our agencies and violating our privacy, and building better relationships with the international community.

Do better!

Dear lawmakers,

Trans students and athletes should have the right to express whatever gender they are and to use whatever pronouns they choose. If an athlete identifies as male, they should play with other male athletes. And vice versa.

As the grandmother of a trans kid I am concerned about all the misunderstanding of our trans kids. Please consider what it is you are saying when you are taking so much time to "punish" these kids and their families. I would like to see more energy put into things that are really important, like caring "for the least of these" and what that really looks like....when Jesus proclaims his mission statement "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free...." - I believe that he is talking to all those who have no voice and he has come to give them voice. So, I implore you to make the right decision to recover your sight and see how all of us were created equal in the eyes of God.

The authors of this legislation have obviously never met any of the transgender adults they were elected to "represent". If they had, they would know that trans people are creative problem solvers. Having lived experience that what society tells you is impossible is in fact achievable frees the mind to solve any number of problems. Wisconsin has plenty of problems facing our children, lead, pfas, and other pollutants in our drinking water, the pressing need to adapt so that we can all thrive in a hotter world that produces more violent storms and greater risk of forest fires. I believe Governor Evers addressed the needs of Wisconsin's children at some length so you can refer to that address for a more exhaustive list.

The aim of this legislation is to bully a tiny fraction (1%) of the population. Bullying is not a show of strength. Bullying is a confession of weakness. These bills, if passed, would show the State of Wisconsin legislature to be so pathetically weak that they attack the most vulnerable fraction of a percent of their own population in a flamboyant display of impotence.

How about trying this instead. Don't pass these bills. Keep Wisconsin a marginally safer place for a tiny number of creative problem solvers to call home. This state does not need more bullies. It needs more creative problem solvers.

My name is Ryan and I am an uncle and educator in Wisconsin.

I just want to say that our kids - ALL kids - deserve as much support as possible. Especially in dark times like these, we adults have a responsibility to be the guiding light and set a good example for the children in our community. These bills do the opposite of that. There are several, ongoing issues that directly impact children's health and safety. Examples include things like ensuring that all children have access to healthy food without shame; creating safe and affordable solutions for the housing crisis; supporting students and educators through sufficient funding for ALL public schools; taking REAL measures to prevent gun violence in schools and other places. Instead of putting their efforts behind these things, the instigators and supporters of these bills are choosing to focus their attention on children's genitals. To me, that is creepy and criminal - and it doesn't "protect" anybody. In fact, engaging in active bullying of already vulnerable populations via legislature has been proven, time and again, to cause further harm. Schools should be safe, inclusive places for children to learn. They should be part of the support system for families. Sports should be fun and inclusive opportunities for ALL children. If we teach our children that bullying is wrong, then schools and sports should be bully-free zones - and it's difficult to do when bullies are implementing unnecessary and harmful laws. So, please, don't be a bully: do better, so that ALL of our kids are safer.

Thank you,

Here is my testimony,

Most of my life I had to hide myself to get by. I am a minority in many different ways, through the color of my skin or my sexuality. My racial background and immigration status made me the target of many jokes and stereotypes. I found myself miserable and longing for belonging. I didn't dare to reveal another part of me that would just be the target of bullying. That is exactly the struggle posed by trans youth today. These bills would only compound their struggle and further isolate them. Being trans is a part of who they are, it is not just a phase or something that can change.

Recognition of someone's new identity should not be restricted by unreasonable obstacles. For many people, being addressed by their preferred name is a sign of dignity. It's frankly the least that someone could do. You wouldn't address a divorcee by their previously held last name?

Trans athletes make up an incredibly small portion of the total athletes in the state. This is not a "rampant" issue. There are many other things that the legislature should be focusing on. In addition, sports are inherently unequal in that they prefer body types that are a few standard deviations from the norm. There's a reason that I had no hopes for the NBA being under 6ft. Would it be reasonable to restrict players over a certain height to make it "fair"? In many sports there is not biological advantage to being born male or female. Frankly the gap in performance comes from underfunding, a lack of infrastructure, and unskilled staff for women's sports. Where is the support for that?

I doubt the legislature will heed my words, but go out and meet a trans person. I guarantee you, it will be like meeting any regular person. These are not any different in the way they think or act. They desire the same human things. They are our friends, family, co-workers, and fellow human beings. There is no reason to deny their right to free expression and existence. It does not impede on the rights of anyone else. Let trans youth live their lives, it's difficult enough being a kid.

it is a simple act to see a child for who they are, and many agree that it takes a brave child to insist on being seen for their truest selves even when it can cost them so much. while I do not refute their bravery, I also know that often these children do not themselves believe they are brave - they simply have no other choice. to not be who they are openly and fully would cost them even more - their sense of self, their hope for a future, their feelings of safety and bodily autonomy, their self-determination, their agency, I could go on for pages. across the country children are being denied the right to access medical treatments that would affirm their existence and alleviate much personal suffering. so why also take away the small, every day ways they can simply be seen and uplifted until they reach an age when they have those medical choices available to them? why refuse to use their pronouns, their new name, why refuse them to use a toilet, why turn them away from the sports that bring many enrichments into an athlete's life? (I mean, why are any sports, but especially childrens', even separated by sex anyway - but I digress)

these children are not asking for anything more than to be seen, accepted, and left in peace to learn and grow.

why take that away from any child, trans or not? why risk wisconsin families losing their children to depression, suicide, or other such atrocities that can happen to children who are repeatedly put into these positions? trans children deserve a future, and they also deserve a present.

thank you

Allowing respect toward trans folks requires so little. I fail to understand why bills like this work against that.

Don't tell me it's because you're trying to protect our youth. For ages, we have cultivated a culture of bullying and harassment across the board; I, as well as countless others, have been teased, harassed, bullied, and beaten, in both coed as well as traditionally separated bathrooms and locker rooms.

Don't tell me it's because your religion tells you to do so; for just about every religion has a variation on the Golden Rule, to love one another as God loves us.

You mean to tell me you would rather enforce a hostile environment that pushes already fragile trans teens ever closer to killings themselves, as they feel there is no place in this world for their true selves? Better to have a bunch of depressed, numb kids than to ask ourselves to explore our discomfort and grow a little?

Try again. The trans people in my life are some of the most beautiful, creative souls.

My name is Sara MacDonald and I reside in the Appleton area. I want you all to consider the well-being of our children when reviewing this bill. It is already so difficult for trans children and this bill would make it even harder for them.

When my mom was alive she was a staunch conservative. At the time we would go round and round about gay people as she thought they were misguided and needed electro shock therapy. We were in a particularly ferocious argument one day when I screamed at her that if a person had a CHOICE they would never CHOOSE to be gay but it is hard, and people are judgmental. Gay people risk their lives every day to be their authentic self. My mom finally paused and it was in that moment that she finally understood what was being said to her.

Trans is the new gay. People who are trans don't CHOOSE to be trans, they simply are. People think it's this scary thing, but it literally just means that the persons spirit doesn't match the body they are in. That's it. That's all it is.

If people on the far right keep trying to deny that trans people exist, it is going to result in more mental health concerns as well as likely more suicidal ideation. I hope you will consider all of this and will allow trans people the same freedom that cisgender people have. Thank you.

My name is Anna Knapp and I am a resident of Liberty Grove. I've lived in Wisconsin for the last 15 years and grew up right here on the family farm where I currently live with my husband and 2 daughters. I am a parent of a transgender teenager. My daughter has the support of our entire family of 4 as well as extended family--aunts, uncles, grandparents, cousins who also live and vote here in Wisconsin.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100, 102, and 103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because these bills discriminate against transgender individuals. I can tell you from a family who lives this reality that my daughter is able to participate in 3 seasons of school sports--volleyball, basketball, and softball. In all cases, she is on the team that matches her gender identity. She has ALWAYS played on these teams. She gains great confidence and self-esteem from being included in our small school sports teams. Her mental and physical health is excellent because she is an athlete on these teams. She is definitely not the best athlete on the team, but she's a part of the school spirit and camaraderie that comes from being part of the team.

The support our community has for my daughter participating on these teams has built a strong social support for her. She has great attendance in school, gets almost all As in her classes, performs well on State and District tests and LOVES school. She is a part of many other organizations and as a Girl Scout, provides valuable community service to our local area. It is because she is accepted by her school community that she is able to be so successful.

Our small school district would not be able to support having multiple teams divided by gender. There are just not enough kids in our school to support this. What will this mean for a kid like my daughter? Exclusion is what it means. Being told that even though you are one of the most "girly" girls in your grade (by appearance and actions), you don't belong on the girls' volleyball team.

Why would our state government support this kind of discrimination? Let's be inclusive and show support for all kids. There are a lot of different types of kids on every team--as I watch our school's football or basketball team, whether it's middle school or high school level--I see all types of bodies and maturity levels even on the same team. Some of those kids are over 6 feet tall and some are under 5 feet tall. Some are extremely muscular and some are not. It doesn't matter what their gender expression is. These differences exist in all situations. And let me tell you, my daughter gets hurt on the court--by girls that are not transgender, girls that are bigger and also smaller than her have caused various injuries to her over the years of intense basketball games.

Let's support all of them and let them play.

If passed, these bills will cost lives. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

For the love of God, please do not go after vulnerable children. Do not restrict the ability of trans girls to participate fully in their school as a girl. They need our support and inclusion. Do not restrict the pronouns that can be used for children. Let them be who they are. Let them be called what they want to be called. Controlling language sounds like George Orwell's Animal Farm. Please step up and demonstrate what leaders in education should do: affirm and support these children.

Trans kids deserve the right to be kids. They deserve to express themselves, be respected and engage in activities that they enjoy.

Trying to pass bills that belittle trans kids aren't going to make them disappear. There has always been transgender people and if that makes you uncomfortable then educate yourself and worry about yourself.

Knowing a female to male trans kid, I have seen first hand the harm that alienating these children and young adults causes their psyches. They already have too much on their plates trying to sort out their feelings. Let them choose their own names and pronouns, period. Let them play sports.

Imagine a legislature trying to make heterosexuality illegal. How would that make straight people feel? (I'd be against that bill too!) We are who we are. These bills are hurtful to these children, hurtful to the community, hurtful to the country!

The hallmark of how far a society has advanced is its treatment of its outcasts. History will not be kind to us.

I am writing in opposition to these bills banning transgender athletes from participating in sports with teams that align with their gender identity, and disallowing students from using their preferred name and pronouns.

- These are bills that, in effect, tell trans students and athletes not to exist. Consider the logic: If an athlete has transitioned to being female, and then has to choose between playing on a team with male athletes or not playing at all, what do you think will be safe or comfortable for them? Neither choice. You're telling them you don't want trans athletes to exist.
- By disallowing students from social transitioning (referred names and pronouns), we are taking away their freedom to choose their social identity. That's something that is shown to lead to higher rates of depression and suicide. You're telling them you don't want trans students to exist.

These bills would lead to more transgender children dying. We can't allow that. Don't tell children their government doesn't want them to exist.

Good Morning,

On my son's 17th birthday, he left my husband and I each a card to open. The cards read "It's a boy!". His wish for his birthday and everyday going forward was to be called Jay and to leave Katie behind. He sobbed as we hugged him and told him we loved him unconditionally. To imagine that your child was worried that you wouldn't give them the same support as the previous day because of who they felt they were meant to be, broke my heart. The catholic school system he was enrolled in accepted Jay and nearly all the staff used his chosen name and pronouns. There are always people to this day who struggle with using the pronouns he/him but that is their personal struggle-not his. It is such an easy thing to make people feel seen and accepted. School is where we send our kids to grow and learn. To become confident and feel safe. Trans kids can't thrive if they aren't accepted for who they are at the most basic level. Dictating pronouns would be devastating.

A person should get to choose their pronouns. It makes a difference. It makes them feel accepted and seen. It is personal to them, and we should respect who they are completely. My wish is for everyone to feel respected and seen. My son is so happy and overcomes other obstacles everyday as a college student. His journey to feeling ~~accepted~~ started with the use of he/him. It saved his life.

Sincerely,
Jenny Julius

My name is Gwen Firmin, and I am a lifelong Wisconsin resident and former Head Start Teacher.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to these bills.

We are living in a time of crisis. Our state's children are facing increased poverty, food insecurity, gun violence, and racial and religious discrimination. The current federal Regime is actively trying to cut Medicaid, WIC, TANF, and SNAP.

Instead of focusing on these real issues that are adding stress and trauma to our students' lives, the proponents of these bills want to single out a very small portion of our population and demonize them.

These bills do nothing to make our students feel safe loved and welcome in our schools. They do nothing to fill their hungry bellies or make sure they receive proper medical care.

All those who contributed to advancing these bills should feel ashamed. Instead of protecting our children and feeding them, you are separating and bullying them.

These bills must not pass. All they will do is cause harm to children who desperately need to be loved and accepted.

Spend your time on legislation that will actually help them instead.

As a healthcare provider I see the youth of America at all stages and in all shapes and sizes and expressions of self.

I am a cisgender woman- meaning I was born with female sex parts and identify as a woman in my gender though it's no one's business in my opinion.

I have a privilege of being aligned with both my sex and gender but my job is empathy so I see the pain of many who feel and sometimes physically are misaligned. Because of the privacy and confidentiality of my job I won't give names or identifying information. I will take you on a journey of a story of a young eight year old person. They were born with physical attributes of the sex assigned at birth- feminine —a girl—but always knew they were a boy. When they were told "No you are —" they began to question themselves, their identity and when they finally were seen for who they were a light went on. They asked that their hair change and the way they were dressed altered a bit. They then asked to be called by the correct pronouns. This helped this child find inner solace and joy. My job is empathy and joy especially for youth and families. I understand that what we don't understand can sometimes scare us. Imagine if you were told you weren't the gender you know yourself to be. If you were told you must stop using pronouns because someone outside yourself and your family has a judgement on you.

I know girls who are stronger, faster and tougher than boys. I know boys who are effeminate, sensitive and aren't into athletics. These attributes don't belong to just one gender. They belong to all.

As for locker rooms. Boys and Girls and all in between need to understand about privacy and protection of themselves and each other. If it ain't yours- it don't pertain to you.

As a former coach the rule is get in, get changed, get out and let's get this game started.

This isn't about honoring tradition or the protection of people. This is about being scared that the feminine could be as strong or stronger than the masculine and that is something to be worked out in a therapy room not in congress or legislation. Make an appointment.

Thanks for the time.

To members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Brenna Gladding, and Madison, Wisconsin is the community that I am proud to call home. I was born and raised in Dane County, attended the University of Wisconsin-Madison for my undergraduate education, have worked many years in the state supporting children, teens and adults with developmental disabilities, and currently work at a public high school in Special Education. At the high school, I work with students who are a part of the LGBTQ+ community, and they are some of the most thoughtful, caring, and creative students I know. They show up authentically as themselves and in doing so inspire others to do the same. It would be wrong to put into effect legislation that would prevent these students from existing as their true selves, and would go against what we ought to stand for as Wisconsinites.

Growing up, I had the opportunity to join social clubs in and outside of school and play sports like softball and hockey from the time I was little, until I graduated high school. Because of these sports and clubs, I learned how to be a friend and a teammate. I made valuable friendships, learning important life lessons, and grew stronger both mentally and physically. These moments in my early life were essential to my personal growth and development, and in each of these settings I have had the opportunity to be my true and authentic self. Something so simple, something many of us take for granted, and something that every single child deserves.

The proposed anti-LGBTQ legislation is harmful to young people both who identify with the community and those who do not. It is important that all people, children especially, feel comfortable, safe, and empowered to be their true authentic selves, and have the opportunity to do so, whether they want to compete for their school's sports team, join the robotics team, compete in Model UN, or whatever else. To prevent children from being themselves during a time where they are simply trying to figure out who they are and what brings them joy and fulfillment, is wrong and unjust, and the proposed legislation would do just that. We owe it to the young people of Wisconsin to support their right to be themselves, and to celebrate our similarities as well as our differences.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Here is my testimony against the Anti-trans Bills:

It is appalling to me that our government is trying so hard to injure children. Since that is exactly what these bills are hoping to do. They are excluding children from participating in activities that are good for their physical health and mental well-being. Additionally, why are we trying to make school even worse for children to attend? The purpose of a school is to educate our students and make them feel like they can be at peace. Creating an unsafe and hostile environment is only going to push them further away from wanting to be at school. Children should be allowed the freedom to explore themselves and express their identities freely. Do you think that these laws are going to keep kids safe? No. These laws will only harm children. As a person who works with a lot of kids who identify outside of the gender they were assigned at birth I can tell you right now that these laws will only need to more children harming themselves and potentially taking their lives. Just last week, I had a student come up to me apologizing that they weren't going to be fully present because a friend of theirs had committed suicide because he was constantly being dead-named and the people around him refused to use the correct pronouns. Children are dying and we are doing nothing to prevent it. In fact, we are encouraging children to isolate themselves and hide their true identities. These bills disgust me and they should disgust anyone who believes in freedom of expression. We should protect children. Not cause them more undo harm.

Let me know if you need anything else!

Suze Falk (they/them)

I am writing to emphatically support Wisconsin legislators in resisting anti-trans legislation (related to athletics and pronouns).

Our trans community members and neighbors deserve our fierce support and protection. These proposed laws do not make people safer - instead, they will embolden violence against trans folks, raise rates of mental health struggles within the LGBTQIA+ community, and open the door to more oppressive measures that affect all gender-marginalized people, including women.

Now is a time for bold, decisive, and principled action in defense of those who are most vulnerable.

My name is Russ Faulkner. I'm a cis gendered white male who grew up Republican in Mississippi. As a conservative growing up, I always thought of Republicans as being for personal freedom, liberty, pursuit of happiness. I'm not quite sure how restricting the freedom of children to be themselves is promoting core American values.

I have a six year old son in the public school system in Sun Prairie and I want him to know that all types of folks are valid and should have the space to exist and not be discriminated against. I also want him to be comfortable being himself without having to mask or hide.

If you want to protect children, you should create a space where they feel like they can grow and discover themselves rather than be ashamed of who they are.

Medical decisions should be made between families and doctors. As long as the child's care team is following the law and their hippocratic oath, it's nobody else's business what decisions are made.

So, I hope you stand against this un-American legislation, and realize that oppressing others doesn't make you freer or protect children. Especially since there's no data that shows that trans people pose a threat to anyone else just for existing.

Thank you for your time.

I am a constituent of Wisconsin. I urge that these Anti Trans bills do not pass. These students are children just trying to live their lives and survive. It is disgusting the discrimination that has come to threaten the LGBT+ Community since Trump took office.

I have friends and family who are part of the LGBT community, as am I. We just want to live our lives in peace. Transgender people deserve respect and to be called by their correct name and pronouns. There is a very small number of trans students, especially those who play sports. All children deserve to grow up playing sports if they wish. All children deserve to go to school and feel safe.

Human gender and sexuality vary greatly. This is well understood by the medical and scientific world. LGBT+ people have been historically discriminated against both in violent and nonviolent ways.

The LGBT+ community is a minority that already struggles with anxiety, depression, and suicide, as well as being at a high risk for violent hate crimes.

Again, all we want is to be able to live our lives. We cannot and will not be erased. I am against these bills and any future Anti LGBT bills.

To the Assembly Committee on Education,

What on God's green earth is the matter with you? As if growing up trans isn't hard enough, you want kids to also have to endure government-endorsed harassment?

Trans kids already experience such hardship that they have higher suicide rates. Nobody's committing suicide because they had to share a bathroom with a trans person. Do you have no sense of perspective?

How many of you are named Susan, but like to be called Sue? Or Robert but want to be called Bob? Is THAT going to be illegal, too? Or only illegal if you are Sue but want to be called Bob? Is it OK if your name is Sue but want to be called Bobbie? What if they use a foreign name that sounds like a name in the opposite gender? Why are you wasting any legislative time on this baloney?

Sports are for everyone. They build friendships and fitness. They are a tool for our youth to develop discipline and grit. My daughter was on a cheerleading team alongside a trans boy, and you know what? Nobody died. Nobody gave a hoot. You know what gives kids unfair advantages in sports? MONEY for personal training, private sports clubs, costly traveling teams, sports medicine therapy. THOSE kids have an unfair advantage when competing in sports, but nobody has a problem with that.

My darling niece - sorry - now NEPHEW, is a bright jewel in this world. They are loving, brilliant, nurturing, kind, and talented as all heck. They don't care much for sports, so you can get your knickers out of their twist. When they decided they wanted to change their pronouns and name, our entire family, end to end, generation to generation, got on board and supported them with LOVE. And if they decide later that they want to change that again, why is that any of the government's business? Our family will still love them and support them because that's what good people DO.

America USED to be about freedom to do what you want and keeping the government and religion out of people's private lives. These anti-trans bills are the absolute antithesis to freedom... and petty and repressive and small-minded and... Lord, I could go on. Just fill in the rest for yourself.

Very sincerely indeed,

Representatives Ditrich, Dehnke, B. Jacobson, Kreibich, Maxey, O'Connor, Tusler, Mursau, Senator Jacque, and the Assembly Committee on Education:

I strongly oppose 2025 AB 100, AB 102, and AB 103 and condemn any and all attempts to restrict the rights and liberties of the people of Wisconsin, including our youth. These bills only serve to appease the current scapegoat narrative by directing hate against some of our more vulnerable Wisconsinites. These bills are simply a way to virtue signal and distract us from the lack of action taken to address real issues that impact Wisconsin. They do nothing to address the rising housing costs, increased grocery prices, stagnating wages, and inflated healthcare premiums that impact all Wisconsin families. In addition, the First Amendment of the Constitution protects all free speech, one of the most important tenets of our country's founding.

As a healthcare provider, I understand that exploration of identity, among many other things, is a normal and healthy part of human development. Discouragement of this or infringement upon people's individual rights to express themselves is harmful to that development. Numerous studies have demonstrated this and leading health care experts and medical and psychological boards (including the American Medical Association, the American Psychiatric Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics) all agree.

This legislation is not "efficient" nor is it "common sense", it would simply require more bureaucratic paperwork, more angst for those targeted, and is a distraction from enacting real policies that help our people and families. I urge you to focus your time and effort on legislation that will actually solve real issues that your constituency of Wisconsin faces on a daily basis.

The trans community has every right as we all get. Just because they don't they feel they are associating with the gender in which they were born doesn't mean they don't deserve the same respect as the rest of us. Make accommodations for those that are transitioning and they can be like the rest of society. This would be considered discrimination according to our for fathers!

Dear committee members,

I Alil P. Siamof residing in Mt Pleasant, WI 53406 implore you to protect the rights of trans youth by opposing bills introduced by the state legislator. That is AB 103, 102 and 100. These bills are grossly targeting an already marginalized and heavily targeted demographic of people just trying to be themselves. Forcing teachers to ask permission from parents to use their students correct pronouns strips away the rights of these youths own autonomy. It also puts youth at a significantly higher risk of abuse, unhousing and suicide. It's your duty as our representatives to represent everyone regardless of their identity. Protect our youth by opposing these draconian bills. If passed, these bills will only cause suffering and future suicides. Do what is right. You must

Morning,

As a former college athlete (UW Oshkosh Tennis player 2002-2006), I am asking for a rejection of the anti trans bills. Boys are NOT saying "I really want to play a sport but I'm not good enough, so I'm gonna pretend to be a girl just to play." Any transwoman who decides to move forward with transitioning is going to be subjected to some of the most insane bullying and verbal (and probably physical) torture by classmates and adults alike.

These bills also hurt girls. Girls can look masculine, especially athletes. How masculine appearing is too masculine before a girl is subjected to "you're a dude" taunts? And how are you going to prove it? Make her show someone in the bathroom? Girls will feel pressured to prove they are a girl all just to play sports. And we all know there are evil evil men who will use this to their advantage to "inspect" a female athlete. Larry Nassar was the gymnasts' doctor and he was able to sexually assault multiple girls.

Kids have it hard enough growing up with being insecure about everything. Allowing them to use the name and pronouns they are most comfortable with at school will help give them confidence in who they are. Don't make things unnecessarily harder for these kids than they need to be.

Thanks.

To whom it may concern,

Below you will find my testimony in support of trans youth. Although I wish to remain anonymous to protect both myself, the school I work for and the children who attend-- I would thank you for sharing my testimony.

Dear legislators,

There is (and always has been) an alarming degree of misinformation surrounding the LGBTQIAA+ community. I could throw statistics at you to refute numerous bullet points, but instead I would like to let me own human experience speak for itself.

I work in education, serving a small school in rural Wisconsin. We host less than 100 students, but around 75% of our population identifies as being apart of the queer community. Among that 75% are transgender and other youth whose identity falls under the trans umbrella. No one is telling these children how to be or feel. My co-workers and I simply allow them a place to exist and explore themselves.

These children are full of love. They amaze me every day with their compassion for one another. At the beginning of last year, one of their peers suddenly announced they wanted to try out a new name. None of them asked questions, no one pried or made fun. They just switched gears. Half way through the year, the same student announced they would like to be addressed by he/him pronouns. Again. Acceptance without question.

These children advocate for one another and have even shown immeasurable patience and kindness when correcting my coworkers and I if we slipped up and use the wrong pronouns.

Not one adult in our building influenced them or asked them to do that.

At their age, I had joined my much larger school's Gay Straight Alliance. Although this was largely a positive experience, that helped me discover who I am, I remember the infighting. Back then it was "The LGB" community. The B was new and controversial. The "T" was fighting for space. I had same aged peers who felt "the trans kids needed their own club."

The marginalized making their own peers feel smaller than they already felt.

I could never imagine that happening with these children. And by allowing them to exist and find themselves with our fear of judgement, we are saving lives.

Since coming to work at this school 3 years ago, I have often heard the unprompted sentiment, "This school saves lives."

A student once wrote me a letter that said, "You are one of the reasons I am still here."

Aside from concerned, I was confused as this was not a student I interacted with all that often. When I followed up with them, they told me it was because I made them feel accepted.

I had not actively done anything besides respect what that child asked me to call them and let them be themselves.

There are a small handful of children who are thriving and alive in Wisconsin at this very moment, in large part because of their school environment.

Under the legislation that is being proposed, these children might not exist. This legislation creates a hostile environment in which children make the choice to commit suicide.

Trans people have always existed. Trans people have often had to hide. The fact that we are at point in our history where folks can be open and live authentically is amazing!

Our children are brave and they are generation which will usher forth a society wherein people can exist without judgement-- but only if we continue to foster and encourage that loving energy.

Please, do not support the legislation which would make it otherwise. Please do not pass legislation which force people back into the closet and foster an environment of fear.

Thank you and sincerely,

A rural Wisconsin educator,

Hello!

My name is Mandy, and I am a WI parent.

I just want to say that our kids - ALL kids - deserve as much support as possible. Especially in dark times like these, we adults have a responsibility to be the guiding light and set a good example for the children in our community.

These bills do the opposite of that.

There are several, ongoing issues that directly impact children's health and safety. Examples include things like ensuring that all children have access to healthy food without shame; creating safe and affordable solutions for the housing crisis; supporting students and educators through sufficient funding for ALL public schools; taking REAL measures to prevent gun violence in schools and other places.

Instead of putting their efforts behind these things, the instigators and supporters of these bills are choosing to focus their attention on children's genitals.

To me, that is creepy and criminal - and it doesn't "protect" anybody.

In fact, engaging in active bullying of already vulnerable populations via legislature has been proven, time and again, to cause further harm.

Schools should be safe, inclusive places for children to learn. They should be part of the support system for families. Sports should be fun and inclusive opportunities for ALL children.

If we teach our children that bullying is wrong, then schools and sports should be bully-free zones - and it's difficult to do when bullies are implementing unnecessary and harmful laws. So, please, don't be a bully: do better, so that ALL of our kids are safer.

Thank you,
Mandy Cappleman

To the members of the committee here gathered,

Due to the unusually swift treatment of this legislation, I do not have the time to write as eloquently as I wish. But I do have people in my life who have expressed how frightened they are for bills like these to pass, and how unsafe they and their high school peers would feel daily if it passed. Therefore let it stand that I oppose this bill on the grounds that it needlessly restructures public school systems to protect children from ambiguous psychological threats that have not, to my knowledge, been proven to exist.

I believe we should spend our time and energy solving problems that are proven to cause harm to children, such as cuts to school lunch programs, rather than draft legislation that serves to erase lgbtq people and bog down already understaffed and overwhelmed public schools.

Thank you for your time.

I am writing in opposition to your proposed ignorant, hateful bills. I can only think of two reasons you would waste time writing these bills. Either you are ideologically opposed to trans people or you need a boogeyman to distract from your inability to govern and craft bills that would actually benefit Wisconsin. Both cases are equally shameful. Despite every attempt you make to legislate someone's identity, people will be who they are and will not conform to your very narrow view of society. You cannot legislate people out of existence. As the world becomes more understanding and accepting, and you continue to attack one of the smallest segments of our society, you will be recognized only for your harmful, hateful legacy.

Thank you for your time

In opposition of bills

To members of the assembly,

I have lived in Wisconsin for over 12 years, and for every moment that I have lived here trans people have made it better. I have been very lucky to call them my friends, my loved ones, and my teammates. To go through with these bills is to restrict and deny their existence, and it is gut wrenching. It is gut wrenching to see trans people who have given so much to community to be attacked through these bills. It is unfair that such kind people have to argue for their right to simply exist, and after spending most of my life in Wisconsin I know we are better than this. I know that we are better than being afraid of pronouns or different names, or kids simply wanting to play sports with friends. I am honored by my trans teammates and I want them to stay as they are, to be called by their chosen name, and to be referred by their chosen pronouns.

Sincerely,
Sophia Everett

Hello,

I am writing this as a citizen of Madison Wisconsin to show my unabashed support of queer and trans students. I am vehemently against any and all restrictions on trans athletes in sports and any restrictions on the right of a child to determine their own pronouns. Children deserve to be uplifted as they journey through self discovery. Any attempts to block trans children from living and expressing themselves is not only discriminatory but it drags down the rights of ALL students. Anti-trans bills violate their bodily autonomy, subject them to unreasonable search, and are emotionally scarring. Please protect and embolden the rights of trans children across Wisconsin for the betterment of us all.

- Avery Sun Honn

My name is Heather Thiele and I've lived in Wisconsin for over 20 years. I'm asking you to stop proposing laws against my loved ones. My trans family members, our family friends who are trans, our trans community members all are having to fight continuously against laws that are trying to strip away their rights to live as themselves and as full members of society. Remember that they are your neighbors and community members too, not hypothetical problems to be solved or erased.

i keep hearing that these proposed laws are for protecting children, particularly girls, but if that's the case, then these laws should also be protecting transgender girls, but instead they demonize and harm them.

Any student should be allowed to play sports. If you're dividing by gender, than transgender girls play on the girl's teams and transgender boys play on the boy's teams. If you think that would give trans girls the overall advantage, despite what the research says, than divide your teams by skill set and capabilities and not gender. Some students are always going to be top athletes. I was always one of the worst players on my teams and it wasn't because my teammates were trans, I was just bad at sports. Trans kids aren't villains, they just want to participate like everyone else.

Allowing students to go by a chosen name and preferred pronouns allows them to feel more at ease as themselves. Kids have gone by nicknames that they identify more with as long as I've been alive and I've never heard of that being an issue that needs a law made about it.

I'm the parent of 2 trans adults, both had distinctly different personal journeys, but the one thing they had in common was that when they were in a safe space to be fully out and able to use their correct pronouns and their chosen names, they flourished. When they had to conceal parts of who they were, it interfered with their ability to be present, to fully participate in the activity or the event, it impacted their mental health and overall took energy that could've gone towards learning or creating.

As a parent, there's nothing I want more than my kids to feel safe, to be supported and to have the same opportunities as others. If for some reason my child had not felt comfortable sharing their gender identity with me, I wouldn't be angry or upset at the school for creating an environment that included them, I'd only be disappointed in myself for not making our home that same type of place.

Whether they're kids or adults, trans individuals deserve the same dignity and respect afforded to fellow citizens. We're all humans and as such we all should have the opportunity to live the full human experience of being ourselves without being punished or ostracized for it.

Thank you for your consideration.

Good Morning!

Thank you for taking testimony today.

I have been trying to educate myself for awhile about transgender people. There is a lot to learn. Despite this fact, I will attempt to speak my views in defense of transgender people.

Fact checks reveal that very few incidences throughout the world have occurred where a trans woman appears to have won an athletic competition and caused a cis-gender woman to lose. These facts have been reported on news media and need to be acknowledged to destroy the lies and hysteria regarding transgender people.

There is a real lack of understanding and empathy regarding transgender people being promoted and encouraged for the sake of political gain. It seems, that in these times, any amount of ignorance is acceptable to meet one's political goals. Death and destruction are no obstacles. One study indicates, that transgender people have a 75% rise in suicide as laws against them are discussed and passed.

As a former mental health provider, who handled a crisis response system for suicidal clients, I don't feel this is a good time to remain silent. There is no need for this escalation of deaths and psychological punishment to people who just want to live their lives like any other human being.

Belonging is a very significant need for all humans. Who among you, who are conducting this hearing, could withstand being stripped of their medical care, their respective collegial sports groups, their jobs, their rights to be part of society because of their gender presentation?

I would ask you to perform those basic exercises in thought and emotion that amount to an addage called, "Walk a mile in my shoes".

An attack against the transgender people is really an attack against all. It causes shame and pain to anyone who doesn't confirm to rigid roles of behavior.

Please don't pass these destructive laws proposed against transgender people.

Thank you,

Carolyn M. Schueppel

I'm honestly sick of and disgusted by this perverted and sadistic terf agenda and I want to see it stop. We have the republican party demanding to know and inspect the genitals of children, force them to give birth, and allow old men to marry them? It's grotesque, absurd, and evil. What is the end goal, how far does it go?

My name is Ashley Hong (she/hers) and I am a concerned Wisconsinite and educator. Today, I am submitting my testimony in dissent of the Wisconsin Assembly bills number 100, 102, and 103.

As a middle school math teacher for 7 years in the Madison school district, every positive relationship I had with students was built on them knowing I was a safe person with whom they could be their truest selves. I've had a number of students either come out to me as LGBTQ+ or seek support in understanding this part of themselves. Any education professional will tell you that earning the trust of students is the number one way to create more positive outcomes for them both academically and social-emotionally.

Too many children are taken from us at a young age by suicide due to the exclusion, ridicule, and ostracization they feel from just trying to be who they are. According to a study done by the Trevor Project, 45% of LGBTQ+ youth seriously considered attempting suicide in the past year.

Additionally, 68% LGBTQ+ students felt unsafe in school because of sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression characteristics. To be clear, the startling and negative impact of discriminatory practices on LGBTQ+ youth and their mental health is not due to the presence of their identities, but rather the hatred and exclusion experienced in response to them.

I cannot stand idly by and watch yet another systematic erasure of trans and LGBTQ+ students stand in our state. These bills take the power away from individuals to determine their identity and participate in self-affirming activities and instead gives it to another just because they are in a position of power in the school. No one should be allowed to tell anyone who they are.

I urge you to take steps to actually support students rather than adding to the reasons for the statistics I listed above. According to that same study by the Trevor Project, LGBTQ+ youth who live in a community that is accepting of LGBTQ+ people reported significantly lower rates of attempting suicide than those who do not. This means allowing schools to support students in the ways that affirm them, including, but not limited to, using their preferred pronouns and name, allowing them to compete in the sports in which they identify, protecting their rights as a marginalized group, and much more. You all have an opportunity to directly impact the futures of youth in our state, including whether they have one or not.

Thank you for reading my testimony and giving it serious thought as you consider these bills. I hope you all will do the right thing for the well-being of all young people in Wisconsin.

To the members of the Assembly,

My name is Alicia Ward, I am a young woman who lives in Baraboo (Zip 53913) and I vehemently oppose Assembly bill 100-103 and I urge the members of the Assembly to vote down these bills.

These bills will not change the threat of injury incurred by playing school sports, on the contrary they will make schools a more dangerous place. Politicizing children is not the path to happy healthy environments for education. Children should be free to explore their identity in a way that is safe and free of harmful persecution, especially by adults. Not using the pronouns that children wish to use, and excluding them from sports, is legally sanctioned bullying of children by adult politicians. This spirit of hate towards people that do not fit a vision of "normal" gender identity will trickle down and lead to more bullying, harassment, and abuse in the classrooms.

The push to exclude transgender students from sports will not make children's sports safer. I understand that this push is done in an effect to make girls sports "safer from men" but this is based in a fallacy as men do not play women's sports and the transgender women that play women's sports do not have advantages based solely on their assigned gender at birth. To demonstrate, I was assigned female at birth and when I played tennis in high school there were other girls on my team, assigned so at birth, that were stronger, bigger, and faster than me. On the other hand, there were girls I was stronger than. On the mens team, there was similar variation and there were certainly men that I was bigger and stronger than. The fallacy this bill is based on is disrespectful to female athletes who don't need the government to stand up for them in sports. Discriminating against transgender students is no different than discriminating against any student on the basis of physical characteristics, which is inherently unfair and controlling.

Putting restrictions on what students will be called in school and making it harder for students to be called what they wish based on medical information restricts children's freedom. It's a simple issue of free speech but regardless of the blatant infringement of rights, it is known that using individuals chosen pronouns improves mental health outcomes and decreases suicide risk.

I implore the members of the Assembly to consider how this bill will impact the daily lives of students in wisconsin. Many gender conforming students will not notice the effects of this bill, but for the minority of students that do not conform to the binary, these bills will have devastating consequences. I graduated from high school in 2019 and these bills would not have negative effects on how safe I felt in school. Please vote no on these bills and protect ALL of Wisconsin children.

Sincerely,

Alicia Ward

My name is Jake (he/him) and I am a concerned Wisconsin voter and educator. Today, I am submitting my testimony in dissent of the Wisconsin Assembly bills number 100, 102, and 103. I am a resident of assembly district 76 and senate district 26.

For the past 7 years, I have been an educator in the state of Wisconsin. I have worked in three different districts and in each district I have had the chance to work and teach our brilliant LGBTQ+ youth. I have seen the power in honoring and respecting who they are as they navigate their identity and how they are just trying to figure themselves out just like the rest of us. I have seen how LGBTQ+ students support each other and provide meaningful and supportive spaces to process emotions and feelings. I have seen how they do this in light of a country and a state that doesn't believe they should exist.

Not honoring a kid for who they choose to be, is cruel and inhumane and I am strongly imploring everyone to vote no on Assembly Bills 100, 102, and 103. Instead of trying to erase our students and who they choose to be, let's instead focus on creating supports and environments where are LGBTQ+ students can actually thrive.

Dear committee members,

I Alil P. Siamof residing in Mt Pleasant, WI 53406 implore you to protect the rights of trans youth by opposing bills introduced by the state legislator. That is AB 103, 102 and 100. These bills are grossly targeting an already marginalized and heavily targeted demographic of people just trying to be themselves. Forcing teachers to ask permission from parents to use their students correct pronouns strips away the rights of these youths own autonomy. It also puts youth at a significantly higher risk of abuse, unhousing and suicide. It's your duty as our representatives to represent everyone regardless of their identity. Protect our youth by opposing these draconian bills. If passed, these bills will only cause suffering and future suicides. Do what is right. You must

To the Wisconsin State Assembly Committee on Education on the topic of trans student athletes and the use of gender affirming practices in schools.

My name is Emma Hood, I live in Wisconsin, I am a nurse, and a mother of three children. I am also the proud parent of a transgender child.

Importantly, before I share more, I want to address the vulnerability inherent in sharing my story. I have seen parents in these situations be demonized and the children mocked. And at the same time, I think sharing is necessary right now more than ever. I believe every elected official here has an obligation to try to listen when someone takes risks to write or speak publicly.

I am deeply concerned about the current social and political climate surrounding transgender people, and the degree to which it has been forced into my life and others. These stereotypes have the potential to shape laws and policies in ways that may be difficult to understand, unless you are or love someone who is transgender.

My child was assigned male at birth, and up until three years old, this is what we thought he was. Right after she turned three, she showed a clear interest in dressing in girls' clothing and wanting to grow her hair long. Many of the people around her at this time speculated it was a phase that she would grow out of. But she didn't. It has persisted without change for over 5 and a half years.

One of the myths surrounding parents of trans children is that we are "teaching our children to be trans". And I think this comes from the premise of having limited experience or knowledge on gender expression. I can assure you; I spend more time thinking of ways of trying to keep my child's world as simple as possible these days. Most of the time, parenting her is like parenting any other child except there are certain events or situations that have called on me to really listen and learn more about who my child is. Once, when my daughter was about 4 or 5 years old, I offered her some boys' clothing for her to wear, just to see if she showed interest. It resulted in her crying in my arms for over ½ an hour while she fell asleep. That night she so clearly told me she was a girl. At that age, she did not have words for transgender or even what pronouns were. She just knew who she was. I did not teach her anything. For me, it was clear that I would choose to listen and love my child.

When my daughter was 6 years old, she asked to change her name to a girl's name and said she wanted to be a girl, at home and at school. I was so fortunate to have the support and the expertise of the staff and teachers at the school. Who she is now, secure in herself, is undoubtedly a result of her community. She is a bright, caring and creative child.

Last week, I asked her, what if mom had told you had to be a boy when you told me you were a girl? What would that have felt like? She answered, "I wouldn't feel good, I wouldn't feel free". Trans children have been telling us what it feels like to be in their bodies, and what it feels like to be recognized and supported for a long time.

School policies that support and affirm trans students save lives. It is that simple. There is clear evidence that affirming practices, and the support of caring adults is protective in reducing the risk of suicidality and suicide attempts in trans youth. Additionally, school cultures that allow for harassment and bullying of any student, for any reason, contribute to a higher risk of anxiety and depression, as well lower academic performance. But we know without me even naming it here, which students are more often the target of bullying and harassment. We cannot talk about the use of pronouns and preferred names without speaking to the growing evidence that deals directly with this topic. Schools have the ability to ensure an environment that is respectful of all students and their families.

Finally, I want to say that I have sympathy for the parents who might feel fearful that their child will transition socially at school without telling them or having knowledge about it. I think it can be hard for any parent to feel like their child isn't as close as you had hoped.

For those parents, I would encourage any parent who has a trans or gender non-conforming child to find other parents and seek support if you need it. Especially if you don't feel like your community or church has been able to. The most protective and loving thing a parent of a transgender child can do is be their safe-haven and the person they trust to be themselves.

There is room in our humanity, within our faith communities and our schools for transgender people, and I hope you are all fortunate enough one day to know and love a transgender person or child. I urge you to support policy and practices that affirms transgender people and oppose bill AB100 and AB103.

Thank you

To the members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

My name is Lex Williams Page, and I live in Cross Plains, Wisconsin, 53528. I oppose bill AB100.

I attended high school at Middleton High School in the Middleton-Cross Plains Area School District as a teenager, and I have now resided in Wisconsin for seven years. I am a proud member of Madison's community and currently work at a local nonprofit, although I have also worked in public schools and programs serving youth in Dane County. I have several siblings who still attend school in Wisconsin, and I have worked with many children and teens, several of whom are gender non-conforming or transgender students. The trans youth I have worked with, and all trans youth, are normal children - they want to be included by their peers, recognized for who they are as they work to figure out their identities, and to spend time thinking about schoolwork, their friends and families, and all of the other complex and simple parts of life that make up being a child. These children do not want or need to go to school every day worrying about whether they are given the same rights as their peers or allowed to exist in the spaces and roles they most identify with and feel comfortable in. Trans youth are also acutely aware of societal attitudes around transgender and gender non-conforming individuals. They are aware that joining gendered sports will subject them to scrutiny, harassment, and people in positions of authority over them questioning their identities. The choice to join a gendered team sport is likely not a lightly taken or easy decision for these youth. I want to ask the Assembly Committee members what they hope this bill will accomplish. What are we worried will happen if the tiny minority of trans students who wish to play team sports, who identify as female and are comfortable enough in that identity to join a sport and play it competitively, are allowed to participate in an activity that helps them form social bonds and contribute to their communities.

Transgender people make up less than 2% of the US population, and trans women - who this bill specifically targets - make up even less than that. The amount of transgender girls in Wisconsin who participate in team sports is likely an inconsequential number, hardly worth spending legislative time debating and the time, resources, and energy it will take to enforce this bill, except for the fact that this bill joins an onslaught of bills throughout the United States that seek to vilify and persecute a small, already incredibly marginalized community.

Under the guise of 'protecting women and girls,' this bill perpetuates harmful negative stereotypes not only about transgender women, but it also assumes that there is an easy way to identify and persecute trans women that will not have any harmful effects on other students, particularly cisgender women and girls. We have seen cisgender female athletes be persecuted, shamed, and bullied for being suspected of being trans - for seeming 'too strong' or 'too masculine' - not only re-enforcing negative stereotypes about the capabilities and talents of women and continuing to restrict how women are able to express and identify themselves, but also making it more acceptable for people in positions of power to feel comfortable harassing, invading the privacy of, and questioning the identity of women and girls of all identities. Let's be clear: the real threat to women is not trans children. It's people who want to police women.

I encourage all members of the Assembly Committee on Education who care about youth, women and girls, and transgender people in Wisconsin to remember that your duty is to serve your constituents, ensuring we have continued access to our civil rights and protections and a good quality of life. Persecuting trans children is an affront on our right to privacy, discriminatory, and does nothing to help families and youth in Wisconsin. Vote against this bill.

Thank you for your time,

Lex Page

Here is my testimony,

Most of my life I had to hide myself to get by. I am a minority in many different ways, through the color of my skin or my sexuality. My racial background and immigration status made me the target of many jokes and stereotypes. I found myself miserable and longing for belonging. I didn't dare to reveal another part of me that would just be the target of bullying. That is exactly the struggle posed by trans youth today. These bills would only compound their struggle and further isolate them. Being trans is a part of who they are, it is not just a phase or something that can change.

Recognition of someone's new identity should not be restricted by unreasonable obstacles. For many people, being addressed by their preferred name is a sign of dignity. It's frankly the least that someone could do. You wouldn't address a divorcee by their previously held last name?

Trans athletes make up an incredibly small portion of the total athletes in the state. This is not a "rampant" issue. There are many other things that the legislature should be focusing on. In addition, sports are inherently unequal in that they prefer body types that are a few standard deviations from the norm. There's a reason that I had no hopes for the NBA being under 6ft. Would it be reasonable to restrict players over a certain height to make it "fair"? In many sports there is not biological advantage to being born male or female. Frankly the gap in performance comes from underfunding, a lack of infrastructure, and unskilled staff for women's sports. Where is the support for that?

I doubt the legislature will heed my words, but go out and meet a trans person. I guarantee you, it will be like meeting any regular person. These are not any different in the way they think or act. They desire the same human things. They are out friends, family, co-workers, and fellow human beings. There is no reason to deny their right to free expression and existence. It does not impede on the rights of anyone else. Let trans youth live their lives, it's difficult enough being a kid.

I am writing in opposition to these bills banning transgender athletes from participating in sports with teams that align with their gender identity, and disallowing students from using their preferred name and pronouns.

- These are bills that, in effect, tell trans students and athletes not to exist. Consider the logic: If an athlete has transitioned to being female, and then has to choose between playing on a team with male athletes or not playing at all, what do you think will be safe or comfortable for them? Neither choice. You're telling them you don't want trans athletes to exist.
- By disallowing students from social transitioning (referred names and pronouns), we are taking away their freedom to choose their social identity. That's something that is shown to lead to higher rates of depression and suicide. You're telling them you don't want trans students to exist.

These bills would lead to more transgender children dying. We can't allow that. Don't tell children their government doesn't want them to exist.

Knowing a female to male trans kid, I have seen first hand the harm that alienating these children and young adults causes their psyches. They already have too much on their plates trying to sort out their feelings. Let them choose their own names and pronouns, period. Let them play sports.

Imagine a legislature trying to make heterosexuality illegal. How would that make straight people feel? (I'd be against that bill too!) We are who we are. These bills are hurtful to these children, hurtful to the community, hurtful to the country!

The hallmark of how far a society has advanced is its treatment of its outcasts. History will not be kind to us.

Trans kids deserve the right to be kids. They deserve to express themselves, be respected and engage in activities that they enjoy.

Trying to pass bills that belittle trans kids aren't going to make them disappear. There has always been transgender people and if that makes you uncomfortable then educate yourself and worry about yourself.

I am writing as a life long Wisconsin resident and a parent with kids in Wisconsin public schools for the last 9 years. Trans kids play sports and using the correct pronouns for people hurts no one. Doing the opposite hurts everyone. How can we claim that Wisconsin is "moving forward" when issues like this are so behind the times. I am against my kids being in a school system that would not protect them if they were trans!

Thank you for your time,

For the love of God, please do not go after vulnerable children. Do not restrict the ability of trans girls to participate fully in their school as a girl. They need our support and inclusion. Do not restrict the pronouns that can be used for children. Let them be who they are. Let them be called what they want to be called. Controlling language sounds like George Orwell's Animal Farm. Please step up and demonstrate what leaders in education should do: affirm and support these children.

My name is Anna Knapp and I am a resident of Liberty Grove. I've lived in Wisconsin for the last 15 years and grew up right here on the family farm where I currently live with my husband and 2 daughters. I am a parent of a transgender teenager. My daughter has the support of our entire family of 4 as well as extended family--aunts, uncles, grandparents, cousins who also live and vote here in Wisconsin.

I am writing to urge you to vote NO on Assembly Bills 100, 102, and 103. As a Wisconsinite, I am opposed to these bills because these bills discriminate against transgender individuals. I can tell you from a family who lives this reality that my daughter is able to participate in 3 seasons of school sports--volleyball, basketball, and softball. In all cases, she is on the team that matches her gender identity. She has ALWAYS played on these teams. She gains great confidence and self-esteem from being included in our small school sports teams. Her mental and physical health is excellent because she is an athlete on these teams. She is definitely not the best athlete on the team, but she's a part of the school spirit and camaraderie that comes from being part of the team.

The support our community has for my daughter participating on these teams has built a strong social support for her. She has great attendance in school, gets almost all As in her classes, performs well on State and District tests and LOVES school. She is a part of many other organizations and as a Girl Scout, provides valuable community service to our local area. It is because she is accepted by her school community that she is able to be so successful.

Our small school district would not be able to support having multiple teams divided by gender. There are just not enough kids in our school to support this. What will this mean for a kid like my daughter? Exclusion is what it means. Being told that even though you are one of the most "girly" girls in your grade (by appearance and actions), you don't belong on the girls' volleyball team.

Why would our state government support this kind of discrimination? Let's be inclusive and show support for all kids. There are a lot of different types of kids on every team--as I watch our school's football or basketball team, whether it's middle school or high school level--I see all types of bodies and maturity levels even on the same team. Some of those kids are over 6 feet tall and some are under 5 feet tall. Some are extremely muscular and some are not. It doesn't matter what their gender expression is. These differences exist in all situations. And let me tell you, my daughter gets hurt on the court--by girls that are not transgender, girls that are bigger and also smaller than her have caused various injuries to her over the years of intense basketball games.

Let's support all of them and let them play.

If passed, these bills will cost lives. At a time when LGBTQ+ youth are already struggling with harassment and discrimination, we should be making it clear that they are safe and welcome in Wisconsin.

My name is Sara MacDonald and I reside in the Appleton area. I want you all to consider the well-being of our children when reviewing this bill. It is already so difficult for trans children and this bill would make it even harder for them.

When my mom was alive she was a staunch conservative. At the time we would go round and round about gay people as she thought they were misguided and needed electro shock therapy. We were in a particularly ferocious argument one day when I screamed at her that if a person had a CHOICE they would never CHOOSE to be gay but it is hard, and people are judgmental. Gay people risk their lives every day to be their authentic self. My mom finally paused and it was in that moment that she finally understood what was being said to her.

Trans is the new gay. People who are trans don't CHOOSE to be trans, they simply are. People think it's this scary thing, but it literally just means that the persons spirit doesn't match the body they are in. That's it. That's all it is.

If people on the far right keep trying to deny that trans people exist, it is going to result in more mental health concerns as well as likely more suicidal ideation. I hope you will consider all of this and will allow trans people the same freedom that cisgender people have. Thank you.

I am writing to support all of our youth. Students should be allowed to use the pronouns of their choice and names that they feel represent them.

Youth should be able to seek gender affirming care. These are decisions to be made between families and health care providers. Not to be dictated by the government.

Allowing respect toward trans folks requires so little. I fail to understand why bills like this work against that.

Don't tell me it's because you're trying to protect our youth. For ages, we have cultivated a culture of bullying and harassment across the board; I, as well as countless others, have been teased, harassed, bullied, and beaten, in both coed as well as traditionally separated bathrooms and locker rooms.

Don't tell me it's because your religion tells you to do so; for just about every religion has a variation on the Golden Rule, to love one another as God loves us.

You mean to tell me you would rather enforce a hostile environment that pushes already fragile trans teens ever closer to killings themselves, as they feel there is no place in this world for their true selves? Better to have a bunch of depressed, numb kids than to ask ourselves to explore our discomfort and grow a little?

Try again. The trans people in my life are some of the most beautiful, creative souls.

I am writing this email to let you know that i oppose the LGBTQ bill you are discussing today. Every person, regardless of their gender and race should be entitled to equal rights in my opinion. To discriminate is of the most opposition to our common rights as human beings.

There's so many reasons beyond our scope, that friends and family that are LBGTQ that are having their rights taken away. Please stop this and find a solution where our voices are heard and a way equally to honor all.

Dear committee members,

I Alil P. Siamof residing in Mt Pleasant, WI 53406 implore you to protect the rights of trans youth by opposing bills introduced by the state legislator. That is AB 103, 102 and 100. These bills are grossly targeting an already marginalized and heavily targeted demographic of people just trying to be themselves. Forcing teachers to ask permission from parents to use their students correct pronouns strips away the rights of these youths own autonomy. It also puts youth at a significantly higher risk of abuse, unhousing and suicide. It's your duty as our representatives to represent everyone regardless of their identity. Protect our youth by opposing these draconian bills. If passed, these bills will only cause suffering and future suicides. Do what is right. You must

Regarding Wisconsin Assembly Bills 100, 102, and 103

March 5th, 2025

My name is Jake (he/him) and I am a concerned Wisconsin voter and educator. Today, I am submitting my testimony in dissent of the Wisconsin Assembly bills number 100, 102, and 103. I am a resident of assembly district 76 and senate district 26.

For the past 7 years, I have been an educator in the state of Wisconsin. I have worked in three different districts and in each district I have had the chance to work and teach our brilliant LGBTQ+ youth. I have seen the power in honoring and respecting who they are as they navigate their identity and how they are just trying to figure themselves out just like the rest of us. I have seen how LGBTQ+ students support each other and provide meaningful and supportive spaces to process emotions and feelings. I have seen how they do this in light of a country and a state that doesn't believe they should exist.

Not honoring a kid for who they choose to be, is cruel and inhumane and I am strongly imploring everyone to vote no on Assembly Bills 100, 102, and 103. Instead of trying to erase our students and who they choose to be, let's instead focus on creating supports and environments where are LGBTQ+ students can actually thrive.

In community,

Jake Rodgers, Madison

Dear Members of the Assembly Committee on Education,

I know trans people; I love trans people. I have trans students, trans friends, members of my community who are gender diverse in many ways. Trans people are deeply unfairly under attack, and you cannot legislate trans people out of existence. Our trans community members belong in ALL spaces, with their chosen names, as they are, without question or apology. It is well past the moment when we should be loudly and unwaveringly standing up for and advocating for trans inclusion and liberation.

These Assembly bills are an egregious attack on people who have every right to participate in activities for which cis counterparts face no barriers. An attack that tells people how they should identify because we feel...fear? Hatred? Threatened? Ridiculous, baseless beliefs that fuel violence towards members of our community that just want to exist in peace.

Please vote NO on AB 101 and 103. Do not allow this to happen. We can be better than this. And we ARE better because of our trans and gender diverse communities.

Sincerely,
Dr. Kate Phelps

Subject: Written Testimony for AB100 and AB103

Dear Rep. Kitchens,

My name is Sager Smith, I am a concerned citizen with many close loved ones that could be or would have been significantly negatively affected by the proposed bills. My testimony will concern primarily the harm that could be done by AB100 and AB103, especially in regard to the mental health, safety, and wellbeing of those that are gender nonconforming or transgender.

My little brother is trans, and went through his transition during high school. One of the most crucial parts of transitioning for him was changing his name and pronouns, freeing himself from some of the dysphoria that his deadname and incorrect pronouns caused. Being able to change them at school, with his peers and teachers was an incredibly positive change for him, and that is an extremely common story for other transgender people. My brother first came out to his friends at school, and that space was where he felt most comfortable beginning that change. He deserved to have that decision respected in that space, regardless of what my parents thought about it. His story is one of success, the support he received from peers, teachers, and other loved ones was integral in improving his mental health. My parents were and are supportive of him; but many parents are not, and the parental power to force a name and pronouns in a school setting risks trans children being unable to receive support in a place where they spend the majority of their waking hours. The decision should be up to the child, like in my brother's case, because children deserve agency and to have their personal identity decisions respected regardless of what their parents think about their name and gender.

I wanted to share this example because it affirms that the parents should not be involved in every decision in every space in their lives. These bills will only serve to make harder the lives of trans and gender nonconforming youth. The main thing that the bills do is allow parents that are bigoted or hateful of trans children to do harm to their children, and prevent those children from participating in spaces that affirm their gender identity.

The only reasonable thing to do in this situation is to stop these bills at this committee, as they do not solve any actual issues, and only serve to allow hateful parents to more easily harm their trans children, which wastes the time and energy that could be better spent helping these kids and other children in the Wisconsin Education system.

Thank you Representative Kitchens very much for considering my words on these bills, and I hope that this will help convince you to vote against these harmful bills.

Sincerely,

Sager Smith
