INFORMATION MEMORANDUM

---

IM-2025-07

SPECIFIC CONVICTION OR ARREST RECORDS CONSIDERED IN OCCUPATIONAL LICENSING

This information memorandum provides a summary table of professions that require the Department of Safety and Professional Services (DSPS) or a credentialing board to review a person’s arrest or conviction record when granting, renewing, or reviewing an occupational credential.

GENERAL STANDARD

Wisconsin has established a broad standard that prohibits employment discrimination on the basis of an arrest or conviction record. Under this standard, DSPS and the credentialing boards are generally prohibited from considering a conviction record in granting, renewing, or reviewing an occupational credential for an individual. ss. [111.321 and 111.322 \(1\), Stats.]

However, the law allows DSPS or a credentialing board to refuse, bar, or terminate an occupational credential due to a conviction for a felony, misdemeanor, or other offense if the circumstances of the offense are “substantially related” to the circumstances of the licensed activity. s. [111.335 \(3\) \(a\), Stats.]

The statutes also identify situations in which a conviction record must be considered, as summarized in the table below. In some lines of work, DSPS is further required to refuse, bar, or terminate a credential for certain types of convictions, regardless of the nondiscrimination standards and the substantial relationship test.

SPECIFIC CONSIDERATION

As noted above, in addition to the general standard for consideration of circumstances that may be substantially related to the circumstances of a licensed activity, DSPS and the credentialing boards are required to analyze the circumstances of certain offenses in relation to certain professions.

The following table identifies whether the governing provisions for a profession regulated by DSPS or a credentialing board require an offense to be considered. The table indicates what type of criminal history must be considered, and provides the citation for the profession-specific requirement.<sup>1</sup>

For an overview of the standards used in reviewing an applicant’s criminal records history, see Legislative Council, Consideration of Conviction or Arrest Record in Occupational Licensing, IM-2025-06 (Nov. 2025).

<sup>1</sup> The table summarizes only occupational credentials regulated by DSPS or a credentialing board for an individual person, and does not address business credentials regulated by DSPS or the credentialing boards.

However, if a profession does not require a specific consideration, credentialing in the profession remains subject to analysis as to whether the circumstances of an offense are substantially related to the circumstances of the licensed activity, under the general standard that allows consideration of a substantial relationship.

For an individual’s arrest record, in each profession noted below where arrest may be considered, DSPS and the credentialing boards may only consider an arrest record that has a pending charge for an identified serious offense. An arrest without a pending charge for one of the identified serious offenses may not be considered.<sup>2</sup> s. [111.335 \(1m\) \(b\) and \(4\) \(a\), Stats.]

Entries emphasized in bold text identify offenses that prohibit credentialing altogether if a person has been convicted of the listed offense. In those cases, an analysis is not conducted to determine whether the circumstances of the offense are substantially related to the circumstances of the licensed activity.
