

Raymond M. Dall'Osto is a partner at Gimbel, Reilly, Guerin & Brown in Milwaukee, specializing in white collar and criminal defense cases in federal and state court, civil litigation and constitutional rights cases. His practice also includes representing health care providers, law enforcement officers, public officials and licensed professionals in employment, licensing and disciplinary matters and in government investigations. Mr. Dall'Osto received his law degree from Marquette University Law School in 1977 and taught there as an adjunct professor in the late 1980's. Before joining his current firm in 1990, Mr. Dall'Osto served as legal director of the Wisconsin ACLU, as a felony trial attorney and ultimately as director of the Milwaukee public defender office. He has also served as a director, officer and chairman of the State Bar of Wisconsin's Criminal Law Section and the Individual Rights and Responsibilities Section, as a member of the State Bar Professional Ethics Committee and recently, on the Wisconsin Legislature's Wrongful Conviction Task Force that developed the criminal procedures reform law, 2005 Wis. Act 60. Mr. Dall'Osto frequently lectures at continuing legal education programs and has written extensively on criminal law and procedure, constitutional rights and legal ethics.
