Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, if a person intends to operate a new hotel, tourist rooming house, bed and breakfast establishment, restaurant or vending machine commissary or intends to be the new operator of such an establishment, the establishment must be preinspected by the department of health and social services (DHSS) or a local health department that is granted the status of an agent of DHSS and the person must pay a preinspection fee. An exemption to these requirements exists if the holder of a permit for an establishment transfers the permit and the operation of the establishment or vending machine to an immediate family member.

This bill expands the exemption to the requirements for preinspection and payment of a preinspection fee for transferring a permit for the operation of hotels, tourist rooming houses, bed and breakfast establishments, restaurants or vending machine commissaries. Under the bill, an exemption applies when a permit holder transfers the permit to a corporation, limited liability company or partnership that is controlled by the person transferring the permit or by an immediate family member of the person transferring the permit.
