Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, the term for a plumbing apprenticeship is 4 years. The department of industry, labor and human relations (DILHR) may extend the term by one year upon application of the apprentice, the apprentice's employer or both. DILHR may prescribe the character of plumbing work that the apprentice may do during the 3rd and 4th year of the apprenticeship for the apprentice to qualify at the end of the apprenticeship as a skilled mechanic in the art of installing plumbing work.

This bill extends the term of the plumbing apprenticeship to 5 years, or up to 6 years if DILHR extends the term. Under the bill, DILHR may prescribe the character of plumbing work that the apprentice may do during the 3rd, 4th and 5th years of the apprenticeship in order for the apprentice to qualify at the end of the apprenticeship as a skilled mechanic in the art of installing plumbing work.
